REV FR JOSEPH M FITZGIBBONS

FATHER FITZGIBBONS LEAVES WINCHESTER

Transferred From St. Mary's to Abington Parish

Rev. Fr. Joseph M Fitzgibbons, for the past five years assistant pastor of St. Mary's Parish, was this week transferred by Cardinal O'Connell to a similar position in the parish of St. Bridget in Abington. He left Winchester on Tuesday afternoon and will spend a few days at Jamestown, R. I., before assuming his new duties.

The news of Father Fitzgibbons' transfer came as a real shock to the entire community. During his stay here his friendliness, virility and quiet sincerity won for him the liking and esteem of all with whom he came in contact. Among his parishioners he was universally beloved and his going is greatly regretted, especially by the young people in whose interests he had labored almost unceasingly.

Father Fitzgibbons came to Winchester in 1922 from St. James Parish in Salem where he had been for five years, going there from St. Mary's in Brookline. He received his preparatory school education at Boston Latin and Boston College High School from which he was graduated in 1902. He received his degree from Boston College in 1906, captaining the baseball team while an undergraduate at University Heights. He studied for the priesthood at St. John's Seminary, Brighton, graduating in 1910. On the 9th of June in the same year he was ordained by Cardinal O'Connell in the Cathedral of the Holy Cross, Boston.

Following his transfer to St. Mary's in Winchester Father Fitzgibbons began at once his work among the young people of the parish. During his five years among them he founded and kept in continuous operation 11 distinct organizations; including St. Mary's Catholic Club, Knights of the Mystic Garland, St. Mary's Dramatic Circle, St Mary's Mandolin Circle, a basketball and baseball team, the Fidelis Club, St. Mary's Fife and Drum Corps, St. Mary's High School Alumnae, St. Mary's Cadets and St. Mary's Girls' Catholic Society. In addition to his work with the above and his many other duties as assistant pastor, Father Fitzgibbons was chaplain of Winchester Council, K. C.; Winchester Branch, M. C. O. F.; St Mary's Holy Name Society and of the Children's Sodality of the parish. The fifth anniversary banquet of his Young Men's Catholic Society held last November was a red letter night in the history of the parish.

Last summer Father Fitzgibbons was instrumental in putting upon the diamond the best team which St. Mary's has ever sponsored, a club which was universally respected in semi professional ranks throughout this district. He was looking forward to a big opening day which he was arranging for the beginning of the coming season. The last public appearance of his mandolin circle was on the evening of March 16 when the young ladies and their conductor, Mr. Gigliotti, gave a recital in the Town Hall.

When it is recalled that previous to the coming of Father Fitzgibbons these many organizations either did not exist or existed only in theory, the measure of his constructive ability becomes most apparent. He takes with him the best wishes of the community for his continued success in his new field. A kindly man, blessed with a sense of humor and understanding, he will be greatly missed.

His place in St. Mary's Parish is to be taken by Rev. Fr. George H. Quigley who comes to Winchester after more than 20 years of service at St. Francis de Sales Church, Charlestown.

JOSEPHINE R. WELLCOME

Josephine R. Wellcome, widow of S. Clark P. Wellcome, passed away Tuesday afternoon at Danvers after a lingering illness. Mrs. Wellcome was 65 years old and a native of Newport, N. H., the daughter of George and Josephine (Richards) Wilmarth. During her 29 years in Winchester she had made her home on Washington street in the Highlands district.

Funeral services were held on this Friday afternoon in the chapel at Woodlawn Cemetery, Everett, and were conducted by the Rev. John H. Whitley, pastor of the Second Congregational Church. Miss Jean McLellan sang the hymns, "Abide With Me" and "Nearer My God to Thee," during the service. Interment was in Woodlawn Cemetery.

BICYCLE THIEF CAPTURED

Yesterday afternoon Sergt. William Rogers of the Police Department arrested after an exciting chase, a youth who was locked up at headquarters, charged with the larceny of a bicycle, belonging to Bradford Hill of 20 Fletcher street.

Young Hill had left his machine in front of the dry goods store of Franklin E. Barnes & Co., on Main street and found it missing upon his return.

Bruce Kindred of 37 Railroad avenue noticed a youth ride away upon the bicycle and together with Hill went to headquarters where the story was quickly told to Sergeant Rogers.

The latter started after the thief and overtook him on Grove street at Symmes corner.

When questioned by Chief McIntosh at headquarters the prisoner gave his name as Michael J. Murphy, 15, of 515 Main street, Medford. A telephone call to the Medford Police brought the information that no such address existed in that city.

Further questioning by Chief McIntosh finally elicited the statement that the boy's name was Daniel E. Scannel and that his home was at 515 Medford street, Charlestown.

Gangs of bicycle thieves are known to operate from Charlestown and the police are trying to connect their prisoner with others in the ring.

Scannel was detained following his examination and appeared in the District Court at Woburn this morning.

JOHN HERBERT

John Herbert, formerly a clergyman, and for many years a prominent Boston lawyer with offices at 18 Tremont street, died Sunday morning, March 27, at his home, 5 Lewis road, after an illness of two days with pneumonia. Previous to contracting pneumonia he had been confined to his home for two weeks by the condition of his health which had been poor during the winter months. He had lived in Winchester for the past four years, coming here from Somerville, which city he had made his home since 1880.

Mr. Herbert was born in Wentworth, N. H. in November, 1848, the son of Samuel and Maria (Darling) Herbert. His father conducted a law office at Rumney, N. H. He graduated from Boston English High School in 1867, and from Dartmouth College in 1871. He studied law in his father's office and was admitted to the New Hampshire bar in 1875.

At about the same time Mr. Herbert decided to study for the ministry, and attended Andover Theological Seminary. In 1876 he accepted a call to the Congregational Church at Stoughton. He soon returned to the law, however, and in 1880 took up practice in Boston, moving at the same time to a residence in Somerville.

For many years Mr. Herbert was an active Republican. At various times he was president of the Appleton Academy Association, organizer and president of the Somerville Municipal League, president of the Boston Congregational Club, president of the Appalachian Mountain Club, a director of the Merchants' Co-operative Bank of Boston and a member of the Boston, Massachusetts and American Bar Associations. He was admitted to practice in the Supreme Court of the United States.

Mr. Herbert was one of the founders of the old Broadway Congregational Church, now the Broadway-Winter Hill Congregational Church. He was also one of the founders of the Scientific Temperance Union and years ago acted as its attorney in the successful legal battle which it waged to have temperance taught in the schools. At the time of the final reunion of the society he had been the only one of the original members surviving.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Blanche E. Herbert; two sons, John Herbert, Jr. of West Somerville and Carl Guy Herbert of Waltham; and a brother, Henry W. Herbert of Rumney, N. H., and Orlando, Fla.

Funeral services were held on Tuesday afternoon in the Winter Hill Congregational Church, Somerville, and were conducted by the pastor, Rev. K. K. Haddaway, assisted by Rev. Howard J. Chidley, pastor of the First Congregational Church of this town. Mrs. Pauline B. Ieser at the organ played as an introduction the "Shepherd's Symphony" and the hymns, "Lead Kindly Light" "Abide With Me," "Oh Love That Will Not Let Me Go," "O Paradise" and Peace, Perfect Peace." There was a large attendance and many beautiful flowers.

The honorary pallbearers were Josiah H. Quincy, Herbert A. Buck, John J. Higgins, Dr. Henry H. Piper, Richard E. Pickthall, Dexter Thurber, J. Frank Wellington, Charles H Richter, James Drummond Ball and Benjamin S. Wiley. Ushers were Frank S. Holden Oliver Bacon, J. Harvey White, William S. Tabyer, David F. Choate, and Frank H. Wentworth. Burial was at Mount Auburn.

A Tribute to Mr. Herbert

He must have heard his blessed Lord's "Well done!"
For there was such a glory on his face,
It was a look triumphant, wondrous glad,
And as we gazed the glory grew apace

No sting of death was there, for victory
Had overspread his features, and a light
That seemed reflected from the great white throne
Cast over him a heavenly radiance bright

And so we know that his reward has come
For years so rich in service and in love,
And he has "entered in" to joys supreme,
Walking with God in heavenly courts above

ALL'S WELL!

Considerable excitement prevailed at police headquarters yesterday afternoon when a report was circulated that two boys had been drowned in Mystic Lake. Sergeant Rogers and Officer Donaghey made a quick trip to the lake when they were told that two boys had been seen putting out onto the water in a canoe, from the rear of Mr. J. A. Dolben's on Lakeview road. The boys had disappeared entirely and a hasty search disclosed that the canoe had not been returned to its former resting place.

The local officers with Metropolitan Officer Dwyer launched a boat and made a thorough examination of upper Mystic where the tragedy was thought to have occurred. Nothing was found excepting a partially submerged skiff which was towed ashore.

Later it developed that the boys had decided the lake was too rough for canoeing and had landed, going to the home of one of them, without returning their craft to its accustomed place.

SHOULD BE LEWIS PARKHURST

The Star received last evening, too late for original correction, notice of an error in the appointment of the Committee on Waterways by Moderator Hayward. This committee should contain the name of Mr. Lewis Parkhurst in place of Mr. Richard Parkhurst.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Bowe of Mystic Valley Parkway have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Helen Bowe to Mr. Howard Walter Robbins.

U. S. MARSHAL KEVILLE AT LEGION HOUSE

Col. William J. Keville, U. S. Marshall for the District of Massachusetts and during the World War Colonel in command of the 101st Ammunition Train of the 26th Division, was the speaker at the regular March meeting of Winchester Post, 97, A. L., held last evening in the Legion Headquarters on Washington street. About 75 members of the Post were present.

During the business meeting Commander Arthur S. Harris exhibited the cup presented the Post in recognition of its win in the recently concluded Legion bowling tournament for the 3rd district of Middlesex County. The Post was also presented a handsome framed picture, the gift of Mr. Robert F. Guild.

Plans for Memorial Day were discussed, details for its observance having once more been left to the discretion of the Post. The observance will be in accordance with the usual custom except for the dedication of the Memorial Room in the Legion house which will occur following the return from Calvary Cemetery at noon.

It was also voted to organize a Post rifle team and in this connection a committee was appointed, including Stanley W. Mobbs, J. Russell Carroll and Marshall W. Symmes.

Colonel Keville was accorded a hearty welcome when introduced by Commander Harris. He stated that few actually knew what a U. S. Marshall was and added that when he was first appointed by the late President Harding in 1921 he too had been ignorant of the duties he was to perform. According to the speaker an incumbent in this office is appointed by the President, confirmed by the Senate and can be removed at any time by the former alone. Colonel Keville said that his staff consisted of 22 deputies besides his clerical assistants.

In effect a U. S. Marshall is a supply and disbursing officer for the Federal Courts, selecting and paying juries, witnesses, court officers, etc. All Federal prisoners are in his direct jurisdiction and if committed to state institutions, look to the Marshall for payment of expenses such as surgical bills and those for dentistry, etc.

All goods siezed for having been illegally imported are committed to the charge of the Marshal who has the right to sell vessels condemned for illegal use. Colonel Keville stated that oftentimes boats sold for such violations, especially rum runners, are back in the same business within a couple of weeks and his men had confiscated one boat three times.

The enforcement of the government narcotic and White Slave laws is the province of the U. S. Marshal and in speaking of the former Colonel Keville deplored the widespread use of drugs among the criminal class and the growth of the narcotic trade in the country.

His department has charge of enforcing the pure food laws and in this connection the speaker said that the disposition of condemned foodstuffs was often a real problem. He got a laugh when he told of dumping a car-load of condemned grapefruit into Lynn harbor.

The work of combatting the corn borer comes under the supervision of the Marshal as does the regulation of shipping shrubs from state to state. The speaker touched upon the failure of Congress to pass the recent efficiency bill and the resulting lack of funds and loss of clerks until July 1.

In closing Colonel Keville praised the local Post for its policy of inviting State officials to address its members. In this way a clearer understanding of the officers' duties was obtained and the necessity for cooperation between officials and citizens made more apparent. He urged his hearers to withhold indiscriminate criticism of public servants stating that the overwhelming majority of mistakes made by them are made unintentionally and in a faithful effort to do the right thing.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE NOTES

It may not be generally appreciated to what a great extent the Town will benefit by the passing of and the signing of a bill by the Governor for the new sewer to cost $150,000 as a positive relief from the most unsanitary trunk line sewer conditions which have existed.

It required much persistency of effort and determination on the part of town officials to bring about the above result.

Much credit is due Representative Thomas R. Bateman for the successful way in which he obtained this large appropriation, recommended by the Committee on Ways and Means.

It has developed that the Town has a most dependable friend in the person of X. Y. Goodnough as related to its domestic water supply and sanitary sewerage system. Mr. Goodnough is Chief Sanitary Engineer of the State.

The annual meeting and dinner of the Chamber of Commerce is to be held this year on the evening of Thursday, April 21, in the Town Hall. It is with considerable pride that the Chamber announces that it has been successful in obtaining the services of Hon. John C. Hull, Speaker of the State House of Representatives, as the speaker of the evening. This in itself should ensure a record attendance but when to this attraction is added excellent music by an orchestra and male quartet few will care to miss the party. Further and more complete announcements will appear in later issues of the Star.

CALUMET NOTES

About 150 members and lady friends took advantage last Friday evening of the invitation of the Old Belfry Club to pay them a return visit. All those present were tagged as they entered so there could be no confusion about identification.

Calumet was very much pleased and surprised at the vast improvements which had been made at the Old Belfry Club and Old Belfry certainly has a house with which they can justly be proud.

President (Fletcher) Taft was on the job from the minute Calumet entered until the last person left for home. He is a live wire and had the crowd with him right from the start.

Scores in the several contests were as fololws: Cowboy pool, Carleton (Calumet) 200, Smith (Old Belfry) 134. Balk line billiards, Dean (Calumet) 209, Hopkins (Old Belfry(144. Pool, Wilson (Calumet) 200, Jackson (Old Belfry) 195 Billiards, three cushion, Hayden (Calumet) 25, Locke (Old Belfry) 15. The bowling in both the men's and ladies' bowling contests was very close, Calumet men winning the first string but losing the second and winning the total by the small margin of 4 pins. None of the men's scores were much to brag about, the rolling being below what Calumet bowlers usually average. The Calumet ladies won both of their strings and the total, the last string being won by the small margin of one pin and only six on the total.

President Taft just as soon as Calumet arrived asked members upstairs to the hall and imediately made them feel right at home. After he had invited President John Hart Taylor to occupy the stage with him, he immediately lead the audience in community singing.

Since our last visit a new and enlarged stage had been built. It must have made Calumet envious when compared to their own (here's hoping some day we may have a new one ourselves).

The spelling bee afforded considerable amusement, Old Belfry winning. We fear, however, they had had much more practice than we. In other words, they took their positions more quickly.

Calumet was much interested in the Old Belfry family membership idea. This membership gives privileges to all members of the family.

Refreshments were served and dancing was very much enjoyed until midnight.

The calendar for April is out and we hope members will be as enthusiastic during this month as they have been all winter. On Saturday, April 2, we shall have a Saturday night smoker and prizes will be given for three strings with handicap rating— a prize for each in classes A, B and C. There will, therefore, be an equal opportunity for all those who roll. The regular Saturday night lunch will be served.

Don't forget the evening bridge for ladies and gentlemen Friday April 8 at 8 p. m. This will probably be the last one of the season.

We would remind you again that Harry Bowler will be with us on Saturday, April 9.

The annual meeting, dinner and entertainment on Saturday, April 16. Be sure and save the date.

CHILDREN NARROWLY ESCAPED ASPHYXIATION

Philomena and John Lento, aged two and one-half years and 13 months respectively, children of Mr. and Mrs. Pietro Lento of Swanton street, narrowly escaped death by asphyxiation Tuesday afternoon. When their mother returned to her home after being absent but a few minutes on an errand she found the two children on the floor of the living room which was filled with illuminating gas from an open jet. Rushing into the street Mrs. Lento attracted the attention of a truck driver who rushed the unconscious children to the Winchester Hospital where they were revived with difficulty by Dr. Roger M. Burgoyne.

They were later allowed to go to their home where latest accounts state that they are getting along nicely. It is thought that in her mother's absence Philomena turned on the gas jet.

Ensign Harry B. Heneberger, U. S. N., spent a few days leave at his home, 43 Myrtle terrace, last week. Ensign Heneberger is attached to the U. S. S. Kanawha which put in to Newport, March 23. Later the ship rejoined the battleship fleet in the Carribean.

Quite a few tables have already been engaged and it is suggested that members who wish to attend should make their reservations at once. Either George Cummings or "Bill" Wood will look out for you. The date for the Metcalf Union play, "The Ghost-Hunters" has been definitely settled as April 8 at 8 p. m. This is a one-act play written by Mrs. Charles H. Watkins and is for the benefit of the Isle of Shoals. Dancing afterwards.

The subject of Mr. Reed's sermon was, "One Difference Between a Man and a Machine." He said, in part: The question is, Is man a machine? has recently been debated. I take it, however, that to most of us the question is not debatable. We are as sure that man is more than a machine as we are that we are alive. We recoil at any proclamation that cheapens human nature. The resentment comes not from our conceit; but our self-respect. All the arguments for life's cheapness fall to the ground before the conviction in a man's heart that shows him the infinite worth of his mother or his son. One difference between a man and a machine is this; the man makes the road, the machine takes the road. Man is a pathfinder, a pioneer, his pilgrim feet with stern impassioned stress beat a thoroughfare across the wilderness. He makes straight in the desert a highway for his God. Every man is infinitely precious, because he has in him something of the divine power of him who was "the way," the divine power to lay out new and happier ways in this old world.

Next Sunday Mr. Reed will preach. His subect will be, "What the Camel Said."

The musical program will be:

Prelude "Gethsemane"	Malling
Anthems
Oh, How Amiable"	Rogers
Oh Saviour of the World"	Goss
Duet "We Are Ambassadors"	Mendelssohn
Postlude	Stern

The specialists and near specialists in landscape architecture attached to the Fire Department were very much on the job the first of the week giving the grounds in the rear of the Central Station a thorough renovation for the spring season. The little plot will compete in popularity with any of the Town's playgrounds, and the fire fighters have a busy time keeping it all ship-shape. We understand that gardeners McKenzie and Scanlon have not gotten their spring planting done as yet. There were too many boulders on the beds.

LOUISE ROSS

Louise Ross, aged 52, wife of Charles Ross of 49 Irving street, died Sunday afternoon at the Winchester Hospital after a brief illness.

Mrs. Ross was born in North Carolina but for many years had made her home in the North. Previous to coming to Winchester about two years ago she had lived for some time in Woburn where she had many friends made through her activity in the work of St. John's Baptist Church. Her husband, a daughter, Miss Cora Ross, and a son, Charles Ross, Jr., survive her.

Funeral services were held on Tuesday afternoon in St. John's Church, Woburn, conducted by the Pastor, Rev. H. H. Jones. The interment was in Wildwood Cemetery.

A SOLUTION OF MANY PROBLEMS

The automobile, the radio, electricity and gas, with their many domestic uses, the telephone, and the commercial bakery are all the perfect natural outgrowth of strongly defined national tendencies.

It is also true of laundry service. Originally used as a convenience by those momentarily incapable of presiding at the wash tub, it has now grown to a public service industry of nation-wide scope.

In many homes the set-tub covers are seldom removed. The "New England Way" has proved, for many a housewife, to be the answer to her need for conserving her strength, increasing her leisure, pleasing her husband, and keeping her maid.

MYSTIC VALLEY SEWER BILL PASSED

Through the efforts of Rep. Thomas R. Bateman the Mystic Valley Sewer bill, a project offering relief from the intolerable conditions which have prevailed in Winchester centre for the past two years, has been passed and signed by the Governor. The project is a very expensive one, calling as it does for the expenditure of $450,000 for 6000 feet of sewer. This is accounted for through the bed of quicksand through which it passes.

Rarely does a proposition of this size pass the first year it is introduced, but in this case the examination was completed and the reports of the Metropolitan District Commission and the State Board of Health were ready ahead of time, and the hearings before the three committees were completed in less than 30 minutes.

Under the provisions of the Constitution, no appropriation bill may precede the General Appropriation bill, commonly called the budget. In this case the day after the General Appropriation bill was signed by the Governor the sewer bill was laid on his desk.

This sewer starts just over the Winchester line in Medford and runs to Prescott street, that city. By its construction the pressure, now forcing sewage to back into the cellars of business blocks in Winchester square, will be relieved.

If such property is situated in two or more places, or if a recorded mortgage includes two or more estates or parts of an estate as security for one sum, such statements shall include an estimate of the interest of the mortgagee in each estate or part thereof. The assessors shall, from such statement or otherwise, ascertain the proportionate interests of the mortgagor or mortgagee respectively in said estates, and shall assess the same accordingly. DAILY PHILOSOPHY

Honest work does more than lead to material success, it relieves the pangs of sorrow, ripens and refines character.

Showers always alternate with sunshine to make the days pleasant, so do sorrows and pleasure, pain and weariness, alternate with comfort and rest.

If your wife can't cook to suit you, don't divorce her, it will be better to eat at a restaurant and keep the girl for a pet.

If you see good in everybody, nearly everybody will see good in you.

THOSE PESKY MOSQUITOES

To the Editor of the Star:

To those who spend the summer months in Winchester the mosquito has come to be an almost intolerable nuisance. We are awakened at daybreak by his morning song. At eventide he viciously attacks with his poisoned lance all who venture to remain outdoors.

We are all under great obligation to Mrs. Powers for attacking this pest almost single-handed a year ago. As a result of her efforts a most helpful and suggestive report was distributed to every house in town at the beginning of the year. A part of this report was a most illuminating map prepared by the town engineer. The report and the map, taken together, give us the information needed in order to attack this pest intelligently, and it was a necessary preliminary step.

It makes no great difference whether the prevailing species is the Culex Pungens or the Anopheles Punctipennis. We all know that whatever his species he is a pestiferous cuss and ought to be exterminated.

From a study of this map we can all see where [illegible] breeding places are, and if the [illegible] can be relied upon a very lar[illegible] n of these birds are [illegible] ir borders and a rela[illegible] umber migrate from oth[illegible] We are also informed that [illegible] cies found most numerous in town rarely fly more than 600 yards from their breeding ground.

The Park Commissioners, the Board of Health, and the newly appointed Waterways Committee, working together, can lay out a systematic campaign of filling and grading to eliminate permanently in a few years the breeding places of which the map shows there are many, especially along the banks of the Aberjona River from one end of the town to the other.

In the meantime much can be done to improve conditions if the citizens of the town will co-operate in applying palliative measures, as suggested in this report. At very little expense many low places can be filled and empty cans, boxes, and barrels which can hold rain water and which form the very best breeding places for mosquitoes can be burned, buried, or carried to the public dump. If each householder would look after all such things and all waste material within 600 yards of his home, we could, together, clear up many of the less troublesome spots, leaving the larger ones along the river to the town committees to take care of. Then once in about two weeks for two or three months in the summer all the catch-basins in the streets should be given a thin coating of oil under the direction of the Street Department and all catch-basins on private property should be taken care of by the owners in the same way.

Winchester is too beautiful a residential town to tolerate permanently such a nuisance, and now that the matter has been so carefully and intelligently put before us there is no excuse for our not grappling with it and showing Mrs. Powers that her efforts will in the end be productive of most beneficial results.

THAT MOTION TO ADJOURN

March 28, 1927

Just a word in reply to the article appearing in your paper of March 25, 1927 relative to the motion to adjourn made at the meeting of March 17.

Though it is commonly said that a motion to adjourn "is always in order," this is not strictly true. A motion to adjourn is not in order when a meeting is actually engaged in voting, and the question on another motion is being put; as was the case when this motion to adjourn in question was made. Also it should be noted that no motion is in order until the moving party is recognized by the chair, after which the motion should be made.

Yours truly,
Geo. B. Hayward

THE FORTNIGHTLY NOTES

Mr. Henry Warren Poor, A.M., of Medford, a travel lecturer for the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railroad enchanted the members and guests with a most interesting talk on California, Arizona and New Mexico, including the Grand Canyon of Colorado on Monday. With his talk he showed not ordinary colored slides but real pictures of vivid coloring, true to nature which he had made and colored himself, and he was famous in art long before he was known to the lecture platform.

Throughout the afternoon Mr. Poor showed his love for his native country and made all see how true his assertions were that the traveler in searching for natural wonders, active volcanoes, tripping waterfalls, thrilling mountain climbs, and deserts, rare vegetation and exotic coloring can find them all without crossing the ocean

Mr. Poor first showed pictures of California, "the dream land of America," with its tropical vegetation and high mountains. There was San Francisco with its wonderful harbor, the Japanese Gardens and the Golden Gate, Pasadena in which are located the costly homes of millionaires, and Catalina ,where it is always summer.

His description of petrified trees in New Mexico and Arizona, the mountains and the cliff dwellers were very poetic, but when he talked of the mesas, rising like mighty fortresses from the plains, the painted desert with its 36 colors of sand ranging through the red and yellows down to the deep purples, and the Indians still grinding their own corn and cooking with the old Spanish ovens, his artistic nature overflowed to give the audience a real thrill. Every one felt the grandeur and the mystery surrounding so much beauty combined with the strange whimsies of Nature.

The Literature Group

"The Ancient and Modern Literature of India" is the subject for the final meeting of the Literature Group for this year. The committee has arranged a program which includes selections from the prose, poetry and drama of India. The group will meet in Fortnightly Hall Monday afternoon, April 4 at 2:30. This will be a rare treat for those who are interested in the Indian literature but have little time for study.

Conservation Committee

Don't forget the Bird Walk in our Fells on Saturday, April 9, under the auspices of the Brookline Bird Club, Miss Edith Torrey, leader.

Meet at the Winchester Highlands Station at 1:40 p. m. upon the arrival of the 1:15 train from Boston. Those living near Wedgemere or Winchester may find it convenient to take the same train at either of those two stations.

Art Department

On Wednesday, March 23, 63 members of the Fortnightly left Winchester at 10 a. m. by auto to spend the day at the Art Museum. The program for the day started with a lecture by Miss Wheeler on Spanish and Italian artists, from the early 12th century through the 15th and 16th centuries illustrated by slides.

The description of the 12th century Spanish fresco in the little chapel was very interesting also the method of removing it from its home in Europe to America. After the lecture the members visited the galleries and saw the two paintings that have just been acquired by the museum, "St. Martin and the Beggar" by El Greco and "The Adoration of the Magi" by Tintoretta. We also saw a collection of Goya's paintings, the figures in some of his pictures were so serious and severe. The members were also interested in Velasquez another Spanish artist "The Infante Maria Theresa and Her Father, Philip IV" were good examples of his work.

We then came to the Sargent collection after which we visited the tapestry room. Here we saw some of the finest tapestries in this country. The Chinese garden was very interesting and the walk through the Japanese galleries. The Japanese collection at the Boston Art Museum is the largest in the world even larger than the collection in Japan.

The ladies then had luncheon, this rest period was certainly enjoyed by everyone. During luncheon each member received a reproduction of some picture they had seen that day in the galleries.

After luncheon the ladies visited the Colonial Swiss and Flemish rooms.

On Tuesday, March 29, the 65 members visited the Isabella Stuart Gardner Museum. Members left Winchester at 1:30 p. m. by auto, arriving at the museum about 2:15 p. m. The members were conducted through the various rooms by Mr. Carter and Mr. Hobday. The court was glorious. You could find nothing in Europe more picturesque. It was as if you were suddenly transplanted to some beautiful palace in sunny Italy with the gorgeous blooms in a riot of color. The music was also a treat. These trips which were so thoroughly enjoyed will not be soon forgotten.

On Wednesday, April 6, the Arts and Handicraft exhibition will take place at Fortnightly Hall from 2 p. m. till 10 p. m. Be sure and bring your exhibits to Fortnightly Hall, April 5. The Art Committee will be receiving exhibits all day April 5.

Remember! You may not have another opportunity to see an exhibition like this. Do not fail to come as there will be many beautiful as well as interesting things to see. A small fee of 35 cents will be charged for admission: this will include the refreshments. Posters and essays in by April 1.

WINCHESTER AN ANCIENT CAPITAL

Winchester, Eng. (Special Correspondence)—Winchester shares with London the distinction of having been for centuries the capital of England. It became the capital of the Kingdom of Wessex in A. D. 519 and was the center from which Alfred the Great ruled from 871 to his passing in 901.

It is known that Winchester was one of the leading cities of the south of England away back in pagan times. The Romans strongly fortified it and built fine roads to connect it with Southampton, Salisbury, Cirencester, and other towns. From the beginning of the adoption of Christianity in Britain Winchester became one of the most important ecclesiastical centers and it has remained through the centuries a place of religious importance.

The Site of Early Churches

Winchester Cathedral is one of the show places of England, and is, for visitors, the principal center of attraction. The site of the present cathedral was also the site of early churches which have been traced back as far as 164, but it was in 1079 that Bishop Walkelin razed the former church and laid the foundations of the magnificent cathedral that dominates Winchester today. The bishop was a man of large ideas, for the cathedral he started is 556 feet in length and 88 feet wide at the choir, being the largest cathedral in England. Additions and alterations have been made at various times during the eight centuries that have intervened, but the cathedral remains one of the greatest monuments of the Middle Ages, and one of the most impressive structures, especially in the interior, in the whole world.

Winchester College, founded in 1382, shares interest with the cathedral and is the oldest of the five great public schools of England—Eton, Harrow, Rugby and Marlborough all being founded at later dates. Many of the school's original buildings still remain, and visitors can see the great gatehouse, the buttery, the old classrooms and the fine chapel. The college has some of the finest old stained glass in England in its older buildings.

The Great Hall

Near the West Gate of the city is the Great Hall, now the only remnants of a Norman castle built by William the Conqueror, in which is the world-famed King Arthur's Round Table, 18 feet in diameter. Doubts have been cast on the authenticity of the table, but it is known that the same table was there prior to 1400. King Henry III was born and lived in this old castle, and three centuries later Sir Walter Raleigh was imprisoned there.

The High street in Winchester is one of the most picturesque thoroughfares in Britain. Both this street and the interesting side streets that lead from it contain a great number of old churches, almshouses, and curious old buildings. The town appears to have suffered remarkably little from the passage of time, due, no doubt, to the pureness of the atmosphere and its freedom from corroding gases. A mile from the town, on the southampton road, is the Hospital of Holy Cross, founded in 1136 and considered the neblest almshouse in the land. Its bounty has been given to many famous men for centuries, comparatively recent ones being Emerson and Edward VII.

It was in Winchester that the curfew was first rung in England, its object being to give notice to householders to cover their fires for the night to prevent the danger of a conflagration from untended fires. It still rings, but its original purpose is unheeded.

Winchester is easily reached from London and a visit to it falls naturally into an itinerary touching a number of interesting towns. It has an abundance of accommodation for travelers, to suit all purses, and makes a good center from which to visit many attractive places. The town is 63 miles from London. Oother places that may be reached from Winchester, and the distances in miles are: Sutton Scotney, 7; Whitchurch, 12; Newbury, 25; Basingstoke, 17; Acton, 18; Farnham, 27; Petersfield, 19; Fareham, 19; Gosport, 25; Stockbridge, 9; Salisbury, 23; and Andover, 14.—[Christian Science Monitor.

BENGAL PROVINCE, INDIA: LAND OF TIGERS AND JUTE

Will Hindu music played near Mohammedan mosques cause Bengal Province, India, to lose two of its native executive councillors?

These posts are filled by a Mohammedan and a Hindu, since the people of the province are almost equally divided between these religions.

For more than two years the Governor of Bengal sought two competent men who would co-operate and recently a Moslem and a Hindu were appointed. Now it is reported that the Moslem opposes the activities of the Hindu musicians in the vicinity of the Moslem churches.

More Than 80 Languages Spoken

Straddling the northernmost point of the Bay of Bengal, the province stretches northward to the peaks of the Himalayas. While it covers a slightly larger area than Kansas, as many people live in Bengal as inhabit New York State, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Ohio, Texas and Michigan. More than 80 different languages are spoken, not to mention the various dialects.

The narrow northern extremity of Bengal resembles that of Idaho. Like Idaho, Bengal spreads out as it stretches southward. But after leaving that extremity, no one could charge Idaho with having such deformity of shape, for the border line of Bengal zigzags in all directions.

Coast Is Water-logged Jungle

Bengal's gateway is its most homely feature. The water that surrounds the coast is laden with silt, brought down from the north by the Ganges and a labyrinth of rivers and creeks that pierce the coast line. Water-logged jungles, infested with tigers and other wild animals, lie between these channels. These wilds and the swampy lowlands immediately north of them are called the Sundarbans.

When the Ganges goes on its annual rampage and overflows its banks for 200 miles from its mouth, the Sundarbans are submerged. The less flooded area is planted in rice and it is an interesting sight to see row boat farmers tending their submarine crops. When the water subsides, it leaves a fertile layer of earth that causes jute, rice and wheat, and many other products to thrive in this region.

Calcutta, India's Largest City

Calcutta, capital of the province, and the largest city of India, lies about 80 miles up the Hooghly River. Since it is the only large port at the head of the Bay of Bengal and easily reached by canals, rivers and railroads from the interior, Assam and other neighboring provinces also use the port of Bengal. As a result the Hooghly is filled with shipping.

As one approaches the city by water, the tall smoke stacks of jute mills loom up above low buildings where jute sacking is made and shipped to all parts of the world. Jute products that are not made at Dundee, Scotland, come from Bengal's mills. More than $125,000,000 worth of jute products are exported from Calcutta annually.

Calcutta includes Calcutta proper, the trading district, Maidan, the residential section, and Howrah, on the opposite side of the Hooghly, a manufacturing center and the terminus of three large railroads. They are all included in Greater Calcutta with a population as large as Detroit.

In sharp contrast with the commercial and factory districts, Maidan has beautiful parks and lakes, fine residences and imposing government buildings. The buildings were occupied by the Indian government when Calcutta was capital of India, before Delhi became the government seat in 1921. The Governor's residence in Maidan was formerly the Viceroy's palace. It is twice as large as our White House.

Darjeeling on Bengal's Roof

Nearly all Bengal is a flat, fertile plain from the Sundarbans to the foot of the Himalayas which is reached after a day and night of rough train riding. A narrow gauge railroad is then taken to reach Bengal's roof, Darjeeling, perched 7000 feet up among Himalaya peaks. The snake-like course of the railroad passes thousands of acres of tea plants that, from a distance, resemble fields of boxwood hedge. Some of the plants grow six feet tall in Bengal, and are stripped of their leaves five times a year.

Darjeeling is a haven during the hot, humid summer months for the British in Bengal. The temperature in the mountain town seldom goes above 80. The Governer of Bengal spends four months of the year here. Homes and villas in the resort are rented to visitors and Darjeeling has its quota of sanitariums.

The mountain peaks in the neighborhood of Darjeeling are different from any in the world. So are the natives. Many of the town's inhabitants are Tibetans. At the station one is greeted by a bevy of Tibetan women who hire themselves out as porters. They are famous for their strength. Heavy trunks are swung across their backs and carried long distances up and down hill with apparent ease. Even with three or four husbands they are heads of their families.

The native women seem to try to out-jingle one another by wearing all kinds of ornaments. Even those who look poorly nourished are bedecked with earrings, anklets, bracelets and necklaces of silver, glass and turquoise. When two or three of them approach, they jingle like the chains on a herd of circus elephants' legs.

Indian "Manitous"

"Manitou" is a name given by American Indians to any spirit or supernatural being, good or evil. It was common among western and Mississippi tribes, and was applied to any object used as a fetich or an amulet.

Perhaps This Is Why Market Venders Age

A reporter on the Los Angeles Times was sent out on a very important mission to find out where Angelenos make most of their foolish remarks. Was it at the zoo? at the railroad stations? at information desks? Not at all. Most of the senseless remarks made in Los Angeles, he found, were made in the big public markets.

"Sometimes I think half the funny slips in the city are made right in front of this stall here," volunteered one vender. "Only the other day a young woman came up and asked for a pound of bacon already fried. Of course, what she wanted was bacon already sliced."

Another vender spoke up: "Once a young man came and asked me for some eggplants. I started picking some out. He said he didn't want those things, he wanted eggplants. I replied they were eggplants. Well, we argued back and forth, and then he clinched the argument by saying that he knew they weren't eggplants, because eggplants are flat and round, like slices of pineapple. I gave in."

The Mad Book

Why doesn't somebody write a mad book, dedicated "to all the poor people who have lost their tempers and don't know where to find them?"

A few suggested chapters:

To have your feet stepped on.

To have a conductor abuse you before a carful of people.

To have a cross voice on the telephone tell you you to "Butt off the line."

To see what you want on the counter and have a clerk tell you: "We don't keep it."

To ask for the Mad Book and have a clerk say, "It's never been published."

Hides of Unequal Value

South American Pagans

Latest estimates of the population of South America place it at 65,000,000, the number being about equally divided between Indians and whites. The Indians are pagans and missionaries have been at work there for more than 50 years. The continent has all climates from tropical to frigid.

The Agile Pianist

In playing Chopin's Etude in E Minor the pianist has to interpret 3,950 musical signs in two and one-half minutes. That means that his eye has to catch correctly and his brain to comprehend clearly more than 1,500 signs a minute, and his fingers have to execute accurately more than 2,000 movements a minute. Since it requires at least a tenth of a second to recognize a letter of print, the musician must have marvelously quick mentality and muscles to perceive and understand his more complicated typographical characters and to translate them into manual motion at such a rate.—Collier's Magazine.

THE J. B. BLOOD COMPANY

Foundation and Early Growth

The J. B Blood Company has grown from a small beginning. It is a long and eventful road from the first little store opened in 1881 on Market street, Lynn ,to the great market now opened in Malden as the fourth and the latest in design and plan of operation of the markets conducted by the Company.

Josiah B. Blood, the founder of the business, started his store with but one clerk. His integrity and the policy of providing good foods at the right prices led to increased business, so that one after another Mr Blood's four sons joined him in the enterprise. Today, there are over 1000 employees co-operating with one son and six grandsons of the founder

The Malden Market is owned and managed entirely by the J. B. Blood Company, and is without doubt one of the largest and best equipped cash and carry department food stores in the world. This spendid plant is evidence of the Company's faith in the future of this section of New England, and of its determination to deserve and hold the confidence of its customers, and to win new friends.

The architectural design of this new fireproof market is impressive in its simplicity. The arrangement of the interior combines attractiveness and business adaptapility. The main floor of the store building covers an area of nearly half an acre, and this great space is devoted to the counters and aisles of the sales department and receiving room. These are arranged to give prompt and satisfactory service to a great number of customers without crowding or confusion. The broad and unobstructed aisles make a tour of inspection and buying an occasion of pleasure as well as of profit.

Modern Equipment

The spotless tiled counters and walls, and the glass-protected and refrigerated show cases, maintain the freshness of the goods displayed in a manner that appeals to every household provider.

The store floor is of red quarry tile, which with the marble base of the walnut counters, the ivory tile of the other counters and of the lower walls, sets a standard of cleanliness that is maintained throughout the whole establishment The old ivory walls and the lighter tinted ceiling with its latest type of semi-direct illumination give a bright and cheerful effect in all parts of the room

Each selling unit is served by hydraulic elevators from a supply and storage room located directly under it in the basement

Each department is installed at a counter especially designed for displaying and caring for the particular foods sold there and each is manned by clerks familiar with their special line of supplies. The Company conducts a school in Lynn where all new [illegible] are required to pass a [illegible]h qualifies them for their [illegible]ork.

To most people a food store has always been a prosaic place, but modern invention and enterprise have so revolutionized the housing and equipment of this great modern market as to make it a place of lively interest to everyone The imagination is stirred by the thought of the vast army of workers in all countries and climates whose products continually roll into these store rooms to feed the people of this center of population.

Parking Space and Rear Entrance

For the accommodation of the great number of customers who come to market by automobile a large private parking space and customers' entrance have been provided by the Company at the rear of the store. Within the block surrounding the market building 21,000 square feet of private parking is available for customers. This area is sufficient to properly care for 100 automobiles at one time

Will Call Department

At the Will Call Department near the rear doorway to the parking space customers may check bundles, or have their purchases assembled and ready to take away. In this department, Will Call telephone orders will also be received and the goods packed to be called for by the customer.

A Model Basement

The light and airy basement is devoted to the storage and service rooms for the various departments, the refrigerators and refrigerating machines, the hydraulic elevators, the wash rooms, the heating outfit, the refuse incinerator, the banana ripening rooms, the potato bins and the many other facilities that make a complete service department for a great food-supply store.

The fresh meat refrigerator has a capacity of three car loads, and the adjoining meat cutting room is ready to keep the counters constantly supplied with expertly cut steaks, chops, roasts, etc. The perfectly equipped fish counter is supplied directly from the scaling, icing and washing room below. The six refrigerated corned beef tanks have a capacity of 700 pounds each. All the other service units are stocked to supply their respective departments with everything they may need.

Mezzanine Floor and Balconies

From the balconies of the mezzanine floor visitors can get a comprehensive view of the whole market. On the rear balcony is a waiting and rest room for customers Here are also located the locker, the reading, rest and lunch rooms for the employees Nearby is a hospital room supplied with first aid equipment

Store House

The Malden Market will be open from 8 a. m. to 6 p. m week days, except Wednesdays, when the closing hour will be 12:30 noon.

The J. B. Blood Company has always led in making reasonable hours for its employees. Over 30 years ago they were the first to introduce the year-round half-holiday. As far as is known, they were the first to set 8 o'clock as opening time and were the pioneers when in 1919 they began closing their markets at 6 o'clock every night, including Saturdays and days before holidays.

Their experience has proved that the unreasonably long hours customary in this line of business are not necessary.

Bakery

Among the striking changes in present day household economies is the growing use of foods prepared outside the home This change has been greatly accelerated by the improved quality and the reasonable cost of the great variety of breads, rolls, cakes and pastry made in the best equipped and managed modern bakeries.

To maintain its position in the forefront of producers and distributors of the choicest food, the J. B. Blood Company has just erected and equipped one of the finest bakeries in the country. The old bakery and kitchen had, by the quality of its products, increased its business many fold in the past 21 years, until over 80 people were employed. It has now been closed and the space used for the growing needs of the Summer Street Market.

The new great four story building, planned for the scientific preparation and distribution of bakery products and cooked foods, is a fitting companion to the Malden Market. The same careful attention to cleanliness, and a like intensive study of the most efficient machinery and methods have been combined to create a great pure food producing plants that has few equals and no superiors.

Automatic Ovens

The great 70 foot traveling plate oven has a wonderful line of accompanying automatic machinery, capable of producing 3500 pounds of bread of the finest quality every hour.

By these automatic appliances the ingredients for great quantities of bread are filtered, sifted, weighed, measured, warmed, mixed, kneaded, moulded, raised, placed in the pans, baked, cooled and delivered to the wrapping machines in a continuous process that produces the finest bread at a minimum cost.

The pressing of electric buttons controls the whole mechanical process. The great traveling conveyor moves slowly through the oven, receiving at one end the pans of dough and by the alchemy of properly combined heat and moisture converts the dough into hot golden-brown crusty loaves which emerge from the other end of the oven 70 feet away at the rate of 60 every minute.

Delicatessen Kitchen

On the top floor is a large light and airy kitchen where, by means of the latest and best machines, electric roasting ovens, electric cooking ranges, and steam jacketed kettles, are prepared all the delicious cooked foods sold at the delicatessen counters, and sent out by the catering department.

Other rooms are devoted to the making of pie fillings, frostings, doughnuts and crullers

Pies, Cakes, and Pasteries

One entire floor is devoted to pies cakes and pasteries. Here each lot travels on schedule from the time the daily orders are issued from the office, through the entire process of weighing and measuring the ingredients; mixing, cutting and preparing them on various special machines, and baking them in the 50 foot traveling oven similar to the larger bread oven, or in the four smaller electric ovens.

Calling the Turn

"Carry out my original declaration," he said. "I am about to call the names of those persons who are now asleep in the congregation John Haycock."

There was no response.

"John Haycock."

The stout man stirred again.

The pastor's voice rang out:

"You're going down, all right, John Haycock, and things will be kept very hot for you, I'm sure. Let us now sing the ninety ninth hymn."

OH, THE HOUSE THAT IS CLEANED IN THE SPRING, TRA LA . . .

A nation is preparing to clean house. This annual event is distinctly an American tradition, and it's one of our most noble heritages—just another manifestation of American cleanliness.

In France, soap is a luxury and perfume a necessity, in comparison with the use of these articles in America. In Italy running hot water in abundance is only for the favored of fortune. And all over Europe the scarcity of bath tubs is famous!

But as every American housewife knows, living up to her ideals of cleanliness is a mighty big job at spring housecleaning time. Therefore with real American efficiency, she calls in a gas water heater, a gas washer, a gas clothes dryer and a gas ironer to bear the heaviest of her burdens—to say nothing of the gas range in the kitchen that cooks while she works.

It take a woman to appreciate the help these gas servants can provide for cleaning house in true American fashion.

MAIN STREET and NEIGHBORS

If Mrs. Edgell took her telephone from the hook and found Mrs Mason talking to her sister, she had no compunction about breaking in and saying: "Is that you, Mrs. Mason? Would you mind letting me call the grocer so's I can get some sugar on today's delivery. Thank you, I won't be more'n a minute, and then you can have the line again."

It is different today, because Main Street is different, with its land developments and additions, and its apartment houses.

Its neighbors do not know each other well, if at all; consequently, there is a reluctance about breaking into a telephone conversation, because what once would have been accepted as a friendly interruption might now be regarded as an impertinence.

A party-line telephone is a sure test of neighborliness. If with two or four friends you could make an agreement for joint ownership of an umbrella or an automobile, and harmoniously share in its use, you probably could get along with a four-party telephone line and never find or give cause for complaint.

If the ringing of telephone bells disturbs you, if delays in sending or receiving telephone messages irritates you, consider whether the additional cost of a two-party or a one-party line will not be worth while.

We recommend one-party lines wherever we have the necessary facilities in place and in most places we have them.

Call the Telephone Business Office if you want service as a new subscriber, or a change from party-line service.

BOWDOIN SQUARE THEATRE

Beginning Monday, April 4, and continuing for the entire week the management at the popular Bowdoin Square Theatre will offer what is termed a Spring Vaudival Carnival in which nine big time vaudeville acts will appear on the program, making it one of the biggest and best bills of entertainment ever to be offered at that house. Apart from the vaudeville portion of the program there will also be presented high grade picture features. David Belasco's, "The Auctioneer," a William Fox offering will be one of the top features. In the cast will be viewed such favorites as George Sidney and Gareth Hughes. Another picture will be "The Desert's Toll" with Francis McDonald, a Metro-Goldwyn feature alive with thrills and romance. Lupini Lane will appear in his latest comedy, "Movieland." Bargain night comes Friday with extra acts on the bill. Concert Sunday at 3.

The free parking service for suburbanites is much enjoyed.

MISS SMILEY SPOKE

Miss Carolyn D. Smiley of this town, a missionary from the First Congregational Church attached to the Marathi Mission in India, was one of the speakers to address the gathering of 1000 who attended the luncheon of the Foreign Policy Association in the Copley Plaza Hotel, Boston, last Saturday afternoon.

Miss Smiley was one of those to champion the work being done in foreign fields by American missionaries, stating that in many cases they had done much to alleviate the condition of native peoples under Western rule. She said that missionaries fight epidemics which often arise in the East and which unchecked might spread over the world. They are an influence for goodwill and understanding and this influence has been felt even by such great oriental Nationalist leaders as Ghandi and Tagore. Missionaries have done much to aid commerce and teach the native peoples agriculture.

After spending several years in India, Miss Smiley is at present upon a year's leave of absence and is making her headquarters in Winchester with her mother, Mrs. E. C. Smiley of Symmes road. The former has spent much of her time since her return upon the lecture platform and the Star has printed a number of interesting letters which she has written about her work at the Marathi Mission.

Mrs. Henry W. Isaman of Kenwin road gave a bridge party last week Thursday in honor of Miss Agnes Gorman of Belmont. The affair was largely attended by members of the teaching staff of the public schools, with which Miss Gorman has been associated for the past nine years. She leaves the teaching staff force next month to marry Mr. P. Nicholas Petrocelli, a prominent Boston attorney.

MUSICAL TREAT FOR PALM SUNDAY

Epiphany Choir to Present Spohr's "Calvary" at 4 O'clock

Music lovers in Winchester and surrounding communities will be interested in the announcement that in accordance with its annual custom the choir of the Church of the Epiphany will sing a Lenten oratorio in the church on the afternoon of Palm Sunday, April 10, at 4 o'clock.

In past seasons the singing of Dubois' "Seven Last Words of Christ" and Steiner's "Olivet to Calvary" have attracted increasingly large audiences and it is expected that this year's presentation of the great oratorio "Calvary" by Spohr will tax the capacity of the church to the utmost.

Organist and Choirmaster J. Albert Wilson, in electing to present the last named oratorio, is subjecting his organization to an exacting test. The score of Spohr's work is a difficult one and adaptable only to choruses of greater than ordinary ability. Its requirements, both for soloists and ensemble, are exacting and that the Epiphany choir should attempt it at all is proof positive of the group's skill.

"Calvary" is little known about Boston or indeed on this continent though it has long been a favorite in England and European countries. It was brought out in 1835 at Cassel, Germany. In its production on Palm Sunday in Winchester the Epiphany choir of 45 vested men and boys will be assisted by George Boynton, tenor, and Walter Kidder, bass, both eminent soloists and widely known in the field of sacred music. The other soloists will be Jack Page and Willard Grush, sopranos, and Kenneth McLeod, baritone, the latter well known to Winchester audiences.

Ludwig Spohr, though not so widely known, is ranked by musicians with Beethoven, Mendelssohn, Bach, Mozart and Weber among the world's great composers. Born in 1781 at Brunswick he came by his musical ability naturally, his mother having been a pianist and singer while his father, a physician, played the flute. At the age of five he began the study of the violin and he later became noted as a teacher of and a performer upon this instrument. His first published violin concertos were written in 1802.

Spohr's first public appearance was at a school concert when he played with much success a concerto of his own composition. At the age of 14 after an ill fated concert tour he returned to Brunswick where he won the favor of the Duke who agreed to pay for his further musical education. The boy's only instruction in theory was received at Brunswick from Hartung, a pedantic organist.

In 1802 Spohr went to St. Petersburg and in 1804 played in several German cities, becoming during the year following the leader of the Duke of Gotha's orchestra. He was married about this time to Dorette Scheidler, a harpist, who died in 1834. He conducted in 1809 the first music festival in Germany at Frankenhausen and in 1811 wrote his first symphony. After spending some years as a conductor in Vienna he made a tour of Italy and in 1817 became the conductor of the opera at Frankfort where his "Faust" was produced the next year. In 1820 he visited England, and introduced the baton for the first time into a Philharmonis Concert at London. On his way back to Germany he stopped in Paris and gave a concert at the opera.

On New Year's day, 1822, Spohr entered upon his duties as Hofkapellmeister at Cassel to the Elector of Hessen-Cassel and remained there for the rest of his life. Here was done his more mature and the best of his work including in all about 200 compositions embracing nine symphonies, 17 violin-concertos, much chamber music, overtures, four oratorios, 10 operas, psalms and songs. There is hardly any form of music at which he did not try his hand.

In 1857 he was pensioned and his last appearance in public was in 1859 at a charitable concert by the Meiningen Court Orchestra when he conducted his "Consecration of Tones."

Spohr died at Cassel, Oct. 22, 1859. His second wife, Marianne Pfeiffer, whom he married in 1836, did not die until 1892. A statue was erected to him in 1883. Philip Hale, the eminent musical critic says of him,—"As a musician he was not aggressive or daring enough to seize a great opportunity. He believed in the ability of a composer to convey emotions through absolute music; in carrying out this belief he was not successful. Though his compositions are more and more disappearing from opera house and concert room, they must command respect; and no violinist can afford to neglect his admirable contributions to violin literature.

The statement in last week's Star that Mr. Charles Woolley of Fells road had suffered the death of his mother, Mrs. Mary E. Woolley, was incorrect. Mrs. Woolley, while very ill recently, has improved in health. The Mrs. Mary E. Woolley who died was not Mr. Woolley's mother.

ONLY TWO WEEKS MORE FOR "WHAT PRICE GLORY"

Great Film Hit to Leave Majestic Theatre, Boston, After 13 Record Weeks

Those who have not as yet witnessed the famous William Fox screen masterpiece, "What Price Glory," at the Majestic Theatre, Boston, have only a short time more, for the long engagement—13 weeks in all—positively will come to a close on Saturday night, April 16.

When "What Price Glory" leaves the Majestic Theatre it will have established one of the longest runs on record for a feature motion picture production. To date close to 175,000 persons have viewed the famous film and many additional thousands are expected to take advantage of the remaining days.

The fact that many cities in other parts of the country are patiently waiting for the opportunity of seeing this production, forces the present run to a close. It is not likely to return to New England as a special road-show attraction, and positively it will not be shown in or around Boston this year.

Based on the first and most successful of all war plays, this motion picture version emerges as an epic of life behind the lines during the dark days of the Great War. It is a slice of real life so convincingly portrayed upon the screen that it lingers long in the memory of all who see it. To miss the motion picture version of "What Price Glory" as now presented at the Majestic Theatre, Boston, with its special symphony orchestra and its many stage effects, will be to miss one of the real treats in screen history.

GRANADA ATTRACTIONS

The Granada Theatre in Malden, the most beautiful playhouse in this vicinity, offers a highly interesting and varied program today and Saturday. "The Wreck," starring Malcolm MacGregor and Shirley Mason, is the dramatic feature, while Charlie Chaplin in "Shoulder Arms," is the comedy attraction. The vaudeville program for today is headed by Willie West & McGinty in their hilarious farce entitled, "A Billion Building Blunders." This is one of the best acts in vaudeville and for a number of years was a feature of Ziegfeld's famous Follies. Not a word is spoken during the act, the laugh effects being achieved by pantomime. Four other acts are offered today and Saturday in addition to this big headliner.

That lad with the toothsome smile, Douglas MacLean, arrives at the Granada next Monday in what is hearalded as his funniest to date, "Let It Rain." In this picture Doug is revealed as a fighting marine. Most of the scenes of this picture were taken aboard one of Uncle Sam's big battleships but there is not a bit of war in the picture, just one long continuous round of fun. Five acts of vaudeville, a regular feature of the Granada programs, will be offered in addition to the screen attraction.

One thing that out of town patrons of the Granada appreciate is the free parking space which is available to everyone. It is not even necessary to go to the Theatre first to take advantage of this free park, simply drive in and leave the machine with the attendants who are always on duty.

RECENT DEATH

News has been received in Winchester of the death of Mrs. Mary Hancock of 44 Beacon street, Arlington. Mrs. Hancock was well known in Winchester as she was one of the organizers of the Winchester Council of the A. A. R. I. R. She died after an illness of about one month at the Arlington Symmes Hospital of that town. She is survived by two sons, two daughters and a foster son.

Mr. and Mrs. John Rutherford, formerly of Whiting, Indiana, are visiting Mrs. Rutherford's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Burwell of Madison avenue, West. Mrs. Rutherford was before her marriage Miss Amelia Burwell.

PLAYGROUND APPOINTMENTS MADE

A meeting of the Park Board was held on Monday evening, organization for the year being effected with George T. Davidson as chairman and Fred C. Alexander as secretary.

Playground instructors were appointed as follows: Palmer Street Playground—Mr. Francis Tansey and Miss Marion Hanlon; Leonard Field—Mr. Clarence O'Donnell and Lucille Skilling; Loring Avenue Playground—Miss Lucia McKenzie.

The playground at Loring avenue will be opened for the first time this year. Sand boxes, swings and other apparatus is to be installed, and later a base ball diamond will be laid out. At the Palmer street field the small hill in the middle of the plot has been entirely removed during the winter. This mound interferred with the construction of additional tennis courts, and with its removal five courts will be available this year and the Park Board has anticipations of four more.

The Palmer street courts are now ready for play, this season being the earliest they have yet been opened.

The Park Board has ordered portable bleachers, constructed of iron and wood, for Manchester Field. These bleachers will provide seating capacity for 800 persons.

WORK AT PALMER STREET PROGRESSES

The work of grading and removing the knoll in the center of the Palmer street playground has been progressing rapidly the past week. When completed there will be much needed space available in case it becomes necessary to add to the tennis courts maintained by the Town. The popularity of tennis here makes this contingency very probable and the favorable figure which the Park Department was able to obtain upon the contract made it seem advisable to let it at once.

The Department expects to begin operations upon the new Loring avenue playground in the immediate future. The land in this location is not such as to require much grading and the work should progress rapidly. Apparatus will be in position in plenty of time to begin the regular playground season.

WINCHESTER TO HAVE NEW BARBER AND BEAUTY SHOPPE

Announcement is made that on or about April 1 a new and strictly up-to-date Barber and Beauty Shoppe is to be opened in Winchester in the new block at 560 Main street.

Complete service for men, women and children may be obtained in the new shoppe which is to be equipped with every modern mechanical device, including the violet-ray.

Facials, all sorts of hair waving, as well as the usual barbering service may be obtained from experienced operators under strictly sanitary conditions.

Mr. Gerald Seminatore, proprietor of the new "Elite Barber and Beauty Shoppe" is announcing a new service check which will prove of interest to his patrons. Mr. Seminatore will be remembered as having been previously associated for some time with the local barber shop of B. F. Mathews.

FLORENCE CRITTENTON LEAGUE NOTES

The Winchester Circle is to assist the Boston Florence Crittenton League at a Benefit Shop or Rummage Sale at Horticultural Hall, Thursday, April 14. Mrs. George E. Willey, the Chairman of this project, requests that Winchester members and their friends save any articles of rummage they may have and send them to Mrs. W. Holbrook Lowell, 4 Lakeview road, April 1, 2, 5 or 6. The Winchester Circle will be given due credit for their help and it is hoped that the members will respond generously and aid in this work.

The Woman's League of the First Baptist Church will meet on Thursday, April 7, from 10 to 4.

TOWN SHOULD PURCHASE THE LAND

To the Editor of the Star:

As Oliver Wendell Holmes well asserted, long arguments are as a rule superflous, hence I will be as brief as possible. Now then, your humble servant never attended the grammar school but, nevertheless, I shall always assist others to receive what I have not received, namely an education.

At the last session of the annual town meeting it was asserted that some folks were opposed to substituting the name Samuel W. McCall instead of Mystic on the present Mystic School. Let no inhabitant of this beautiful residential suburb think for a moment that the name of the late Samuel W. McCall, the World War Governor of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, was ignored. The Town of Winchester constructed a street adjacent to his former home and honored him when they named and called it Governors avenue. A street adjacent to his recent home in the hill section at the west side is called McCall road.

By the way Mr. Editor I was personally acquainted with the late Samuel W. McCall and the late Samuel J. Elder. They certainly were two congenial gentlemen.

It seems to me that we made a serious mistake when we refused to support the School Committee when they recommended the purchase of the Holton property adjacent to the Lincoln School. The property is now for sale as I noticed for sale signs in front of the house. If the town purchases this property the surroundings of the Lincodn School will be, in my opinion, second to none in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. Despite the barking, harping critics and blatherskites who seem to delight in criticizing public spirited gentlemen who give their valuable time to the town gratis, and never suggest a remedy for the defects as they ascertain them. I believe constructive criticism is a fundamental necessity. In time, perhaps, it will be possible with the money that is received from the sale of the former school lots to purchase the Holton property, and I firmly believe the town will never regret it.

Let us visualize the names of some of the streets that are adjacent to the Lincoln School. The names are as follows: Harvard, Hancock, Lincoln, Washington, Webster and Governors avenue. Names for pupils to meditate on.

If I had the wisdom of Solomon or the power of Demosthenes or Cicero, the great Roman orator, perhaps the above few lines would be more effective. I trust there will be a reply to this article in the next issue of the Star.

Very truly yours,
Patrick I. Craughwell

IDA MAY WENTWORTH

Miss Ida May Wentworth, formerly a resident of Winchester, died on March 23 at Oakland, Cal., after an illness of 5 months, according to dispatches received by her brother, Mr. Royal S. Wentworth of Calumet road.

Miss Wentworth who had made her home for nearly 15 years in Winchester previous to last March left town at that time to travel in California, having sold the house on Church street which she had occupied with her sister, Miss Alice Wentworth.

The former had intended to return East, but was stricken ill while in San Diego, Cal. She was removed to the home at Berkley, of her brother, Frank W. Wentworth and later taken to a hospital at Oakland where she died. Her sister left Winchester as soon as news of Miss Wentworth's serious illness was received and was with the deceased at the time of her death.

Miss Wentworth was born in Chelsea 55 years ago and was the daughter of Henry and Margaret (Hill) Newell. Besides her brother, Royal S. Wentworth of this town, she is survived by her sister, Miss Alice Wentworth, and by two brothers, Frank W. Wentworth of Berkley, Cal., and Dr. Harry W. Wentworth, living in Idaho. Following funeral services the remains were cremated.

STIFF FIGHT WITH GRASS FIRE SATURDAY

The Fire Department was given a stiff fight with the worst grass and brush fire of the season last Saturday evening on the old golf course off Woodside road. The fire started on the cemetery land and spread rapidly, the blaze from the burning rushes producing an intense heat.

The department was notified of the trouble by phone at 5.48 and while a piece of apparatus was busy fighting the fire Box 44 was pulled in at 6 o'clock for the same blaze. Woburn was also sent to the scene, but neither the services of the firemen nor those of Winchester's second crew were needed. The fire did no damage.

Four other alarms were answered during the day. The first was, at 10.49 in the morning for burning grass on Cross street which before the arrival of the apparatus had set fire to a barn at the residence of Mr. J. J. Thibeault, but which did little damage. At 2.10 in the afternoon there was a second grass fire on Canal street and at 3.42 p. m., a third on Forest street. Shortly after 5 o'clock the men made a run to put out a grass fire on the Metropolitan Parkway near the Medford line below Sandy Beach.

THE CHANDLER FOUR WHEEL BRAKES ARE SAFE, CERTAIN AND EFFICIENT

"Four Wheel Brakes depend for their effectiveness upon perfect equalization of all four wheels," says Mr. Walter H. Dotten, local Chandler dealer.

"In the Chandler system of mechanically-operated external contracting four wheel brakes, equalization is certain and positive because of the unique hookup design. The system is so arranged that, regardless of the amount of pressure applied to the foot pedal, the braking effect upon all four wheels is absolutely equal."

BOY SCOUT HIKE

One of the most successful hikes of the season for the Winchester Boy Scouts was held last Saturday, March 26. More than a score of boys went to Shaker Glen on a trip which tested their ability. "Tower ball," a game new to the local boys, and "capture the flag" were played on the trip. In the latter contest the team captained by "Phil" Hartson was victorious.

The boys who made the trip were given an opportunity to write descriptions of it with the understanding that the best of these would be published in the Star. The story chosen for this honor was the one substituted by George Philbrick of Troop 1. It follows:

The Hike to Shaker Glen

Saturday the 26th was a perfect day for our first real hike this spring. With 22 scouts, led by Mr. Butters (Scout Executive Arthur E. Butters) we started from the new Scout headquarters. All went smoothly 'till we got within a half mile of the Glen; there, no one was sure of the exact direction of our destination. Each direction which was pointed out was disputed by someone. At last we started in the most generally approved direction. After crossing swamps, pushing through underbrush, and climbing hills, we finally arrived at the Glen.

We all cooked our own "eats" and satisfied our appetites according to our individual ideas. Some Scouts passed tests. "Bill" McAulry and Albion Ayer passed second class cooking and firelighting. "Jim" McGowan passed second class firelighting and William Gaffney passed first class cooking with "twist-baked-on-a-stick," and "hunter's stew."

After lunch we played "tower ball" and "capture the flag."

Going home was much easier, as we had learned the shortest way. Some of the luckier fellows "hiked" home on a truck. Anyway we arrived home a happy and enthusiastic bunch of Scouts.

There will be another hike in about two weeks.

STOLEN CAR IN WILD CHASE THROUGH TOWN

At 3.25 Sunday morning Officer Charles Harrold of the police noticed a Studebaker roadster, which had previously been reported stolen from Malden, passing through the square in the direction of Woburn.

The car was occupied by two young men who upon sight of the officer put on all speed in an attempt to escape.

Commandeering a Yellow Taxi driven by Leo McDermott of Woburn the patrolman chased the fugitives to the Arlington and Lexington Parkway where they made good their escape. Six shots were fired after the fleeing machine during the chase.

Later the same morning the car was reported recovered in Lexington where it had been abandoned. Aside from two punctured tires it was unharmed.

RECTOR EVANS' PLEA FOR CHRISTIAN UNITY

Preaching at the morning service in the Church of the Epiphany, on Sunday, the rector, Rev. Allen Evans Jr., made a strong plea for Christian reunion, urging the support of the movement for unity, which reaches a first great step in the coming conference of faith and order in Lausanne.

He dwelt on the increasing spirit of good will and fellowship among the denominations of the Christian Church and the passing of prejudice and interdenominational feeling. It is notable in that it is developing from the ground up. Its advance will be marked by a great gathering in Switzerland in August when 500 representatives of 87 different nationwide churches, will study the differences of doctrine and organization among the churches with a view to preparing the way to unity, all in the spirit of mutual understanding.

No church is asked to commit itself by any vote to any change of doctrine; indeed the delegates have no power to commit the churches to anything. It is an open conference with a view to wiping out suspicion or misunderstanding due to ignorance. From this will result reports and recommendations which will be referred to the churches for their consideration.

The position of the Episcopal Church is practically that of the Anglican communion, based on the "Lambeth Quadrilateral"—the Bible, Sacraments, Creeds and the Holy Orders. In approaching the problem of Christian reunion, we must admit frankly and in a sympathetic spirit that other churches have tenets or beliefs that are at variance. At this point rises a real test of the honesty of a will for reunion. No one church possesses all the truth. There are obvious evidences of the gift of the Holy Spirit in all of them. The members of anyone church are not the only ones who will be saved. Reunion will fail if a church falls back and insists on its inherited beliefs and peculiar methods of organization and conduct. Each church has its possible contribution to the whole. Christian unity will gather even greater strength through the spread of unity of spirit and co-operation in charity, reasonableness and fellowship in the discipleship of Christ.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS

The police have been receiving complaints of broken windows from property owners in various parts of the town. More than 50 panes of glass have been broken in the unoccupied Mary L. Coit house on Hillside avenue and 19 in the garage of Mrs. Lillian Simon on Church street. An auto headlight was also broken in the latter instance. The police rounded up several boys in connection with the damage done.

In connection with the recent boom in the patent leather industry which has made our neighboring city of Woburn the largest producer of patent leather in the world it is interesting to note that the local firm of Beggs & Cobb is increasing the patent capacity of its tannery to 3300 sides a day. The Murray Leather Company of Woburn in which Mr. James S. Murray of this town is actively interested is increasing its output to 1200 sides a day.

Postmaster George H. Lochman reports that the contractor has received orders from Washington to begin work upon the new Winchester office at once.

Mr. George W. Blanchard, formerly for many years proprietor of the Blanchard Coal and Lumber companies and who now makes his home in Maine, was in Town over the past week-end visiting his sons, Messrs. Sydney and Dean Blanchard, who are now conducting the business.

Think Of It--

MARRIED IN TUFTS CHA

Returning to the scene of their college days, Miss Herna Coffin Rowe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kimball of Manchester, N. H., and Preston Brainard Rowe of this town, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter W. Rowe of Myrtle terrace, were married last Saturday afternoon in Goddard Memorial Chapel at Tufts College. The ceremony was performed at 3 o'clock by the Rev. Clarence P. Skinner of the faculty of the Crane Theological School at Tufts in the presence of members of the immediate families of the young couple and a few intimate friends. Among the guests was the bride's grandmother, aged 82 years.

The bride was attired in a wedding gown of white georgette and carried a shower bouquet of white sweet peas. Her veil of tulle, which was held in place by a bandeau of pearls and brilliants was of real Parisian design and it is of interest to note that it had been worn by the bride's mother and previously by the latter's cousin.

The maid of honor was Miss Priscilla Porterfield of Wollaston, a cousin of the bride and she wore rose taffeta with picture hat to match and carried sweet peas. Herbert Hawthorne Rowe of Winchester, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. The wedding march from Lohengrin was played upon the violin by the bride's mother, accompanied on the piano by her sister, Mrs. Coolidge Porterfield.

Immediately folowing the ceremony a small reception was held at "The Snuggery," West Somerville. A wedding supper was served, after which Mr. and Mrs. Rowe left upon a honeymoon trip.

The bride is a graduate of Manchester, N. H. High School and of Jackson College. She later received her degree from the Harvard School of Education and has been teaching at Laconia State School in New Hampshire. She is a member of the D. A. R. and of the Sigma Kappa Sorority.

Mr Rowe is well known in Winchester where he attended the local schools, graduating from the high school in 1913. He attended Tufts College, leaving to enter the service at the time of the war. Later he studied at Harvard and was for several years a master at Brewster Academy at Wolfeboro, N. H., resigning to enter business. He is a member of the Alpha Tau Omega Fraternity and of the Officers' Reserve Corps, 97th Division.

The new Buick sedan authorized at the Town Meeting for the use of the Police Department was delivered by the Winchester Buick Company Tuesday. It replaces the old Reo touring car which covered many a mile during its long years of service.

WESTERNERS HELD BY LOCAL POLICE

Monday evening while patroling his beat on Washington street officer Archie O'Connell of the Police Department noticed two young men seated in an Essex coach parked near St. Mary's Church where a mission service was being held. The appearance of the men excited the patrolman's suspicions and after questioning them he took them to headquarters where they were further questioned by Chief William R. McIntosh.

The young men were rather noncommittal as to their business in Winchester. They claimed to be in search of work and their financial resources of 54 cents seemed to indicate a need for employment. They gave their names as Hubert C. Becker, 23, and Ernest Leadford, 26, both claiming Topeka, Kans., as their home city. A Kansas number plate on their machine seemed to corroborate this part of their story.

After questioning them Chief McIntosh decided to hold the young men until he could receive a reply from the Topeka authorities. They were consequently locked up, and in reply to the chief's telegram came a request to keep the prisoners in safe keeping until the arrival of a Topeka officer who would return with them to that city where it is alleged that one is wanted for non-suport and the other for violation of parole.

So it is that the wayfarers are experiencing the hospitality of the Winchester lock-up in return for which at frequent intervals they render a program of vocal and ukelele selections which is said to be not too bad.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS

The first tests made of the new Layne unit recently installed at the Woburn pumping station on Horn Pond showed that the pump is capable of producing 1,111,000 gallons of water per day as against the contract requirement of 850,000. The preliminary purity tests conducted by the State Department of Health found the water supplied through the unit to be of the purest quality and better than the city's original supply. As a precautionary measure a second test was made.

The Fire Department put out two grass and brush fires on Tuesday. The first was in the woods off High street at 1:25 p. m. and the second at 2:50 at the corner of Cambridge and Pond streets. At 1 o'clock Wednesday morning the men were summoned to put out a fire on the dump in the rear of the Whitney Machine Company on Main street.

LOCAL LEGIONAIRES WON BOWLING CAMPIONSHIP

After enjoying a most successful season the bowling team of Winchester Post, American Legion, won the championship of District 3 in the recent tournament limited to Legion Posts in Middlesex County. As a result of its prowess the team, including Captain "Bob" Hamilton, "Bill" Rogers, "Fred" Mitchell, "Nate" Thumim, "Jack" Moynihan and "Pug" Johnston, together with Commander Arthur Harris of the Post were guests of honor at a big bowling banquet given on Wednesday evening in the Belmont Town Hall. Following the dinner there was an entertainment program, orchestral selections and movies.

Winchester's team was very much in the calcium. In addition to winning the team prize "Pug" Johnston walked away with the award for high individual average and would have copped that for high three string had it not been for a ruling preventing a single competitor from winning two prizes. Johnston's winning average was 102 and he was presented with a cup emblematic of his prowess. "Bob" Hamilton with 100½ and "Bill" Rogers with 100 1-3 finished two, three in this competition. "Pug's" high three string was 346 and once again "Bob" Hamilton was runner-up with 344. In recognition of winning the team prize the Post was presented with a handsome suitably engraved cup, the individual members receiving gold Legion buttons. The presentations were made by the County Athletic Officer, Robert Bolin of Somerville. About 80 Legionaires attended the banquet, including two of the State officers.

Winchester's bowling season is not closed as there still remain new worlds to conquer. The tournament in the western part of the county is still in progress, but as soon as the winner is determined then Winchester will compete with that team to decide the Legion champion for the entire county.

"The Gondoliers"

"THE GONDOLIERS"

When the curtain rises on the stage of the Town Hall on the evenings of April 29 and April 30, those fortunate enough to have obtained seats will witness a revival of one of the most popular and entrancing light operas of a half a century ago.

"The Gondoliers" by W. S. Gilbert and Arthur Sullivan will be presented under the auspices of the First Congregational Church. Several artists of well known histrionic and musical ability will assist the chorus in what promises to be one of the finest and best staged productions ever given in Winchester.

Plans are under way also to transform the interior of the Town Hall from the cold gray battle-ground for the settlement of Town matters to one more truly in tune with the gay, gorgeous and sunny environment of an Italian city.

Many weeks of painstaking effort and hehearsal under the direction of such an able and resourceful leader, the well known director, playwright and coach, Mr. Henry Irving Dale, are bringing the work of these who are to take part in this production to a very high level of perfection.

The chorus made up mostly of the church choir and the artists, who are to have the principal singing parts, have already become imbued with the joyous musical atmosphere of this opera. Under the guidance of G. Wallace Woodworth, that capable and brilliant musician and conductor, the songs and the music of this opera are being revived with an artistry which radiates the rollicking, sparkling and scintillating spirit of this Gilbert and Sullivan production.

With two such outstanding men of ability in their particular fields, guiding this presentation of the opera, its success is assured.

Mr. Dale has acted in the capacity of coach and director for a great many plays given in and around Boston and is the author of a number of plays which have been produced on both the amateur and professional stage.

Mr. Woodworth, who is the conductor of the choir at the Congregational Church, is an assistant to Dr. Archibald T. Davison, professor of music at Harvard College. His work in connection with the musical activities of Harvard University has brought him into great prominence and placed him in the front ranks as a conductor and thorough musician. During 1926 Mr. Woodworth was in charge of music at Harvard and conducted the concerts held in Symphony Hall with the Harvard Glee Club and the Boston Symphony Orchestra. He is now director of the Radcliffe Choral Society. He has received the most glowing press reviews of his musical achievements.

The Cast

Many of the principals in the cast for this presentation of "The Gondoliers" have become well known to Winchester audiences through their skillful and clever portrayal of character in plays which have been given here in the past. The fame of many of these same artists have now, however, reached far beyond the confines of Winchester.

Helen Barr, who will take a leading part, that of "Casilda" in this opera, has been heard many times over the radio through station WEEI. On the concert stage Mrs. Barr has achieved notable success not only here in Massachusetts but has also thrilled many a New York and New Jersey audience with her singing and clever acting. Perhaps one of Mrs. Barr's most notable successes and a very recent one is that of a joint recital which she gave at the University Club at Boston with a rising young pianist, Mr. Dence Leedy.

ROTARY CLUB FORMED

Business Organization Launched Here Tuesday

Under the guidance of officers and members of the Woburn Club, Winchester business and professional men started a Rotary Club here on Tuesday when they met at the Calumet Club, elected officers and appointed committees.

For several weeks a move along such lines has been contemplated and both the Kiwanis and Rotary Clubs have been considered. The Winchester men have been guests at Medford, Woburn and Stoneham.

In effecting the organization here the following officers were elected:

President George T. Davidson
Vice-President Harris S. Richardson
Secretary Loring P. Gleason
Treasurer William E. Priest
Directors James M. Quinn, Patrick T. Walsh, Daniel R. Beggs

At the next meeting of the club, which will be held on Tuesday noon at Glendale Farm as the guests of the Woburn Club, the composition of various committees which will function during the year will be announced, the place of holding meetings and the day of the week selected. It is said that the meetings may be held on Monday noons at the Winchester Country Club.

Already a large number of applications for membership are reported up for consideration, and these will be taken up in order, one admission a month being the rule.

The Winchester Club starts with the following charter members: Victor Anderson, G. Raymond Bancroft, Daniel R. Beggs, Ralph H. Bonnell, George T. Davidson Loring P. Gleason, J. Churchill Hindes, Frank H. Knight, George H. Lochman, Allen H. McLatchy, Nathaniel M. Nichols, Frank E. Randall, Rev. George H. Reed, Harris S. Richardson, Irving L. Symmes, Patrick T. Walsh, T. Price Wilson, James J. Quinn, Stanley G. Puffer, William E. Priest, Edmund C. Sanderson, Daniel Kelley, Dr. Richard W. Sheehy.

A party of Winchester people including Mr. and Mrs. William E. Schrafft, Mrs. Harold Gale, Miss Medora Gale and Miss Nancy Holden returned this week from a cruise of several weeks in the West Indies.

HIGH SCHOOL NINE STARTS MONDAY

Monday afternoon at 3.30 Winchester High School will open its baseball schedule when its team will journey to Belmont for an engagement with Belmont High. Wednesday afternoon Coach "Ernie" Roberts' Medford High ball tossers will invade Winchester and on next Friday Reading will play on Manchester Field for the first time since the old days when it was a member of the Mystic Valley League circuit.

The above constitutes a man-sized program for the local players who are not very far advanced, due to unfavorable weather conditions and the lack of indoor facilities.

Coach Mansfield is undecided as to his lineup for the opening, bar the fact that Captain "Lefty" Hatch will start on the pitching rubber. The veteran southpaw will work only a couple of innings as he will have to come back against Medford on Wednesday.

Montague seems to have the call for the first base assignment with "Barnie" Murphy at second, Ray Halwartz at third and "Howie" Smith, shortstop. This, with the exception of Montague, makes up an experienced infield.

"Hennie" Knowlton is the only veteran outfielder and it looks like "Bobby" Callahan would have to patrol a garden when not pitching. "Charlie" Deherty and "Dick" Murphy are other's likely to get in there. Either or both of the Amico boys are likely to finish up the Belmont game with Franklin behind the bat. Taylor, looked upon as first string catcher, is in wrong with the office while McNeil a sure-fire infielder and Cobb, a promising outfielder are lost to the squad for two weeks for violation of training rules. There is some possibility of Taylor being able to play Monday but if he can not the team will be up against it for experienced catching, one of the main cogs in a nine-s defense.

ELKS INSTALL

New Officers Officially Placed on Tuesday Night With Fitting Ceremony

The newly elected officers of Winchester Lodge No. 1445, Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, were officially installed on Tuesday evening before one of the largest gatherings in the history of the order in this town. The installation work was performed by Benamin Derby P. E. R., of Concord Lodge No. 1479. He was accompanied by a large and distinguished suite composed of men eminent in Elkdom.

The new officers installed were as follows:

Exalted Ruler George H. Lochman
Esteemed Leading Knight Thomas F. Fallon
Esteemed Loyal Knight Bernard F. Cohen
Esteemed Lecturing Knight John F. Doraghey
Secretary Dr. James H. O'Connor
Treasurer John H. Coakley
Tiler Andrew P. Harrod
Trustee for 3 years Nathaniel M. Nichols
Delegate to Grand Lodge Fred H. Scholl
Alternate Delegate Maurice [illegible]

Appointed Officers

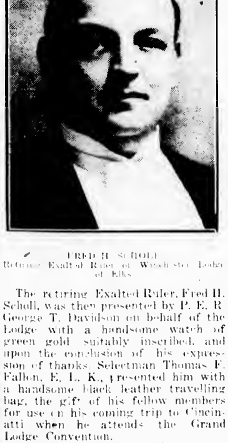
Chaplain Ted [illegible]
Inner Guard Geo. L. Arnold
Organist Fred Strachan

GEORGE H. LOCHMAN
Exalted Ruler, Winchester Lodge of Elks

Seldom has such a large and distinguished gathering assembled at a meeting of the Lodge. Every seat in the hall was occupied, and it was necessary to place additional chairs for the members and visitors who entered during the evening. Many out of town lodges were represented and Concord Lodge alone had a delegation of about 65 members.

The installation followed the regular business of the Lodge, conducted by the retiring Exalted Ruler, Fred H. Scholl. He expressed his appreciation and thanks to the officers and members for their support and work during his term, and presented his appointed officers with gifts of calf skin billfolds, and his 11 stewards with silver pocket pieces.

At the conclusion of the initiation, Exalted Ruler Lochman pledged untiring efforts towards the furthering of the order and the welfare of Winchester Lodge. He presented the installing officers with souvenirs and gifts of flowers. Short addresses were made by P. E. R. Derby and H. Wesley Curtis, Past District Deputy, of Arlington Lodge.



FRED H. SCHOLL
Retiring Exalted Ruler of Winchester Lodge of Elks

The retiring Exalted Ruler, Fred H. Scholl, was then presented by P. E. R George T. Davidson on behalf of the Lodge with a handsome watch of green gold suitably inscribed, and upon the conclusion of his expression of thanks, Selectman Thomas F. Fallon, E. L. K., presented him with a handsome black leather travelling bag, the gift of his fellow members for use on his coming trip to Cincinatti when he attends the Grand Lodge Convention.

At the conclusion of these exercises, the Lodge was officially closed and those present were served a banquet by the Stewards, after which a vaudeville entertainment, presented under the direction of "Buddy" Shepard, occupied the remainder of the evening.

Messrs. James J. Fitzgerald and Charles F. Dutch have notified the Moderator that they will be unable to serve upon the Committee on Secondary School Facilities authorized at the last town meeting. This leaves Messrs. Robert F. Guild, Edward A. Tucker and Robert M. Stone faced with the necessity of appointing two new members to fill the vacancies upon the committee.

CALUMET

CALUMET NOTES

The regular monthly evening bridge for ladies and gentlemen and other guests takes place tonight at 8 o'clock, and will be the last one of the season. Mrs. R. L. Emery will be the hostess.

Harry Bowler will speak at the smoker Saturday evening. We hope to get him to show us some practice shots in our golf net. Now that the season is opening, it will be a good chance for golfers to come down and get some pointers, free of charge. Regular Saturday night lunch.

We presume members are reserving Saturday evening, April 16—the date of the annual dinner and election of officers. Dinner at 6:30; meeting and entertainment to follow. Please fill out the return postcard sent you and mail at once, as reply must be in by Wednesday, April 13, in order that provision may be made for you. We understand that Ernest Chase Chairman of the entertainment committee, has given a dress rehearsal of the moving pictures that were taken on the alleys on Feb 22 and the audience pronounced them snappy and full of action. You will enjoy seeing yourself as others see you and those who are not so fortunate as to have been included will have a good laugh also. We also understand that Chairman Chase will show some pictures taken on his recent visit to the West Indies. Come and get acquainted with the new officers and also be sure to tell the Ex's what good work they have done.

At the roll-off last Saturday evening Wallace Blanchard took first prie in Class A (Wallace has taken a good many priezs lately). H. C. Roessler was first in Class B and C. W. Davis first in Class C.

Notice—There will be no mixed bowling on April 18. The postponed matches will be rolled on April 29.

We understand that the mixed bowling dinner will be held on May 6. Further particulars later.

Mrs. J. E. Stryker rolled a record string recently in the mixed tournament. She had 123 and that is the highest single string ever rolled in tournament by a Calumet lady. Her feat will therefore be duly inscribed on the records of the Club. Mrs. Arthur S. Kelley had previously held the highest single string (121) and that was recently made. Both of these ladies are members of Team 6.

"HELL AND THE WAY OUT"

A Motion Picture to be Shown at the First Congregational Church Sunday Evening at 7.30

A motion picture film of unasual interest on "War" will be shown in the First Congregational Church Auditorium, Sunday evening at 7.30. The film is entitled 'Hell and the Way Out" and was issued under the auspices of the League of Nations. The film shows through the medium of a short, natural love story, the unutterable sorrow that follows of a utterable sorrow that follows in the wake of war; it lays open to view the vast devastated areas of the human heart as well as the shell-blasted scenes of the fighting.

It gives a vivid illustration of how quickly the murder of the Austrian Grand Duke in 1914 threw practically the entire world into a caldron of battle.

It shows, by the use of fascinating animated maps, how 55 nations of the earth have agreed not to go to war with each other without first submitting their differences to arbitration and conciliation.

It proves conclusively that the League has been able to avert threatened wars, and reveals the processes of conference by which the results were accomplished.

It gives the dramatic highlights of the signing of the famous agreements of Locarno, which meant to a war-torn Europe, Security, Arbitration and Disarmament. It shows how these agreements are placed under the guardianship of the League and how the League is the ultimate authority in regard to issues which may be raised under them.

It gives a dramatic sequence of the swift, decisive action of the Council in settling the Greco-Bulgarian clash in October, 1925.

The Local League of Women Voters and Non-Partisan Association are co-operating in the showing of this film in Winchester. The public is invited. Admission is free. An offering will be taken to defray the expenses of this film.

ORATORIO "CALVARY" TO BE SUNG BY EPIPHANY CHOIR

Next Sunday, April 10 at 4 o'clock the regular annual Palm Sunday musical service by the choir of the Church of the Epiphany will be given.

This year an oratorio called "Calvary" by Spohr a beautiful work, but seldom given in this country because of the demands upon both the chorus and soloists is to be given. This is an excellent opportunity for musicians and lovers of music to hear this little known oratorio.

In past seasons at this annual service the singing of Dubois' "Seven Last Words" and Maunders' "Olivet to Calvary" have always attracted large audiences, not only from Winchester, but from the sorrounding towns and from Boston as well and this year with the giving of a new work and the reputation that the Epiphany Choir had steadily gained through its fine work and through its broadcasting, the church sure is to be crowded to its utmost capacity. The vested choir of 45 men and boys under the direction of J. Albert Wilson, organist and choirmaster is to have besides, Jack Page and Willard Grush, boy soprano, such noted soloists as George Boynton, tenor; Kenneth McLeod, baritone and Walter Kidder, bass.

REV. MR. BURROUGHS RESIGNS TO ACCEPT PASTORATE AT ROCHESTER, N. Y.

Members of the parish of the First Congregational Church learned with regret of the announcement made public this week that Rev. Lisle Burroughs, assistant pastor, had tendered his resignation to accept a call from the Third Presbyterian Church at Rochester, New York. He expects to begin upon his new duties the first of next August.

Mr Burroughs came to Winchester in September, 1924, and is rounding out three years of service in the local parish. He is a graduate of the Boston University College of Sacred Theology and was ordained into the Congregational ministry June 9, 1926.

He leaves to enter a much larger field at the Third Church in Rochester where he is to be executive minister. The parish church is situated within three blocks of the University of Rochester, offering great possibilities for work among students and young people in whom Mr. Burroughs is especially interested.

Much of his work while associated with the First Congregational Church has been among its younger members and with the children of the Sunday School with all of whom he has been extremely popular. He has made many friends in Winchester outside the limits of his parish who will view his leaving with regret while congratulating him upon his advancement.

All expressed themselves as having spent a pleasant and profitable afternoon.

THE WINCHESTER LEAGUE OF WOMEN VOTERS

The Executive Board is convinced that for the April meeting, the League should co-operate with the First Congregational Church on Sunday evening and see the film entitled, "Hell and the Way Out." This film will demonstrate the futility of war in settling disputes between nations and it will also show what the League of Nations is doing to prevent future wars. Every member is urged to take advantage of this opportunity.

HIGH SCHOOL ASSOCIATION MEETS TUESDAY

The High School Parent-Teacher Association holds its next meeting on Tuesday evening in the assembly hall at the school opening at 8 o'clock. Monday afternoon at 5.35 a Hudson coach owned by the Davis Square Employment Service of Somerville and driven by William S. Griffen of 38 Curtis avenue, Somerville, was in collision at the junction of Bacon and Grove streets with an automobile operated by Emeline M. Morton of 197 Highland avenue, Malden. Griffen was turning from Grove into Bacon street while the other machine was headed south on Bacon street. No one was injured and the damage was slight.

WINCHESTER BOY INJURED IN WOBURN CRASH

Ralph Cafrele, aged 5, son of Mr. and Mrs. Tony Cafrele of 358 Washington street, suffered slight injuries to his head and mouth Sunday afternoon as the result of being thrown from an open truck following a collision at Pine and Salem streets, Woburn, in which the truck figured with a coupe owned by Kean Brothers & Bedell and driven by Walter R. Kean of 40 Arlington road, Woburn.

Mr. Cafrele was driving the truck at the time of the accident and besides Ralph was accompanied by his wife and other children. John Dodge of 739 Broadway, Haverhill, was with Kean in the coupe.

Dodge and Kean were thrown from their machine and were taken by a passing autoist to the Choate Hospital where it was found that they were uninjured. The Cafrele family was also taken to the hospital and an examination disclosed that only Ralph had been hurt.

The collision and resulting traffic jam held up Engine 3 of the Woburn Fire Department which was speeding along Salem street on the way to the fire at the Woburn Body Company on Montvale avenue. Chief Charles R. McCauley of the Woburn Police took personal charge of straightening out the tie-up. The coupe was reported as only slightly damaged, but the truck was badly wrecked.

EPIPHANY MEN TO HEAR SPEAKER ON CHINA

A particularly large attendance is looked for at the regular monthly meeting and dinner of the Epiphany Men's Club which is to be held in the Parish House on next Monday evening at 6:45 o'clock.

The principal guest of the club and the speaker of the evening is to be Rev. Howard Stilman Galt, acting president of Pekin University during 1923-24. Dr. Galt's subject is to be "The New Nationalism in China" and in view of the present Chinese situation it should prove particularly timely and of absorbing interest.

The regular supper will be served preceding Dr. Galt's address by a committee of ladies under the direction of Mrs. Samuel M. Best.

DRIVER ARRESTED AFTER CRASH

Howard L. Tarte, 25, of Lake avenue, Woburn, operator of a Buick touring car, was arrested last Sunday evening by officer Mark Kelley of the police, following a collision in which his machine figured with a Dodge touring car on Washington street near Lebanon street.

Police headquarters was notified of the accident and officers Kelley and Noonan were sent to investigate. They found that the Dodge which was being driven by Thomas F. Crawford of 9 West street, Stoneham, had been going in a southerly direction along Washington street at the time of the collision. Both machines had been badly damaged and were towed to Pike's Garage.

Officer Kelley took Tarte into custoday while officer Noonan arrested his companion, Austin Feeney of 4 Church street, Stoneham. At headquarters Tarte was charged with operating a car while under the influence of liquor while Feeney was booked for drunkenness.

In the District Court at Woburn Monday morning both were found guilty. Tarte was fined $100; Feeney's assessment was an even ten.

FIREMEN BUSY OVER WEEK-END

Eight alarms of fire including one out-of-town run kept the firemen from a state of boredom over the week-end just past. The trouble started at 1.05 Saturday afternoon when a fire was discovered in the woods off High street near the standpipe. At 8.12 the same evening there was a chimney fire at the residence of Mr. W. H. Bowe on the Parkway.

The first alarm on Sunday came at 11.18 in the morning for a grass and brush fire at the McLatchey Patent Leather Plant on Cross street. At 1.40 in the afternoon the firemen had a three hour fight with the worst brush fire of the season which started in the woods at the rear of the farm of Mr. Herbert Cox on Ridge street.

Four minutes after the latter alarm came in the Winchester Department was on its way to Woburn in response from an alarm from Box 10-33. The fire which was in East Woburn destroyed one of the buildings at the Gibbons Body Factory off Montvale avenue, formerly the Walker-Johnson shop. The local apparatus answered the alarm according to agreement with the Woburn Department, but was not needed at the fire.

At 4.50 the department was called to put out a second grass fire in the hill district off High street and one hour later to squelch a chimney fire at the residence of Mr. Josef Sandberg on Walcott road.

The last alarm of the evening sounded at 7.14 for another chimney fire at the residence of Mr. Edward O'Connell on Middlesex street.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur E. Grannis of 15 Kennard road, Brookline have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Amy Grannis, to Mr. Robert Sumner Coit. Mr. Coit is the son of Mr. Robert Coit.

MARY MATHEWS

Mrs. Mary Mathews, widow of Edward Mathews and for the past 11 years a resident of Winchester, passed away early Monday morning, April 4, at the residence on Main street of her daughter, Miss Mary Mathews, with whom she had made her home.

Mrs. Mathews was 91 years of age and was born in Ireland, coming to this country more than 70 years ago. Besides her daughter, she is survived by two grandchildren, Miss Anna Oliver and William Oliver, both of this town.

Funeral services were held from the late residence on Wednesday morning with a solemn high mass celebrated in St. Mary's Church by the Rev. Fr. George Quigley. The bearers were two nephews of the deceased, Benjamin F. Mathews and Edward Morris; Fred Eubanks and James Mawn, all of Winchester. Interment was in Calvary Cemetery.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS

Among those recently to receive insignia as members of the basketball team at Mass. Aggies during the past season was Leslie J. McEwen of this town.

Clinton S. Mason of Lloyd street has been in Winchester this week enjoying the spring recess from Williams College. He has had as his guest another Williams' student, "Hal" Adams, whose home is in the middle West.

"Jimmy" Fitzgerald seems virtually sure of a position upon the varsity nine at Tufts this spring. Coach Nash has been playing the big boy in right field during most of the practise tilts to date and the latter's long, extra base swats have featured the Jumbo offense "Harpy" has had absolutely no outfield experience and if he can show a passable fielding game at the difficult right field patrol at the Oval, he will deserve plenty of credit. On the face of it it seems a shame to make a mediocre fielder out of a sure fire first sacker or catcher. "Fitzy" makes a great mark to shoot at in either of the positions with which he is familiar.

Town Engineer James Hinds who has been seriously ill at his home for the past month was able to go down stairs for the first time this week. It will be some time before he is able to resume his duties about town.

Figures made public by Henry F. Long, Commissioner of Corporations and Taxation for the Commonwealth show that Winchester has $152,363.01 outstanding in uncollected taxes, the entire amount being of the 1926 levy. Prior to 1926 the town has no uncollected taxes. The uncollected taxes for the entire Commonwealth amount to $47,294,819.

A crew of steeplejacks gave the flagpole on the Common a general overhauling and painting this week in preparation for the spring and summer seasons.

Lawrence J. Smytherman of Florence street for 38 years in the employ of the Boston & Maine Railroad, has petitioned the company for retirement. "Larry," as he is known to his many friends, has become something of an institution during his many years as baggage master at Winchester Station.

Former Town Treasurer George H. Eustis and Mrs. Eustis of Stevens street left the first of the week for California and Washington, Ore. They are to visit their son and two daughters who live on the Pacific Coast before their return.

UNITARIAN NEWS

Tonight at 8 o'clock, the Metcalf Union is to have its annual party. The entertainment will consist of a play, "The Ghost Hunters," written especially for the Metcalf Union by Mrs. C. H. Watkins and staged under the direction of Miss Frances Mason. The parts will be played by Miss Eleanor Healey, Miss Helen Wild and Messrs. John Robinson, George Hayden, Gilman Haven and Ronald Olmstead. After the play there will be dancing.

Last Friday evening was the Father's and Son's Night of the Men's Club. There were about 70 present. If there was any doubt about "Bill" Wood's ability to prepare a supper which would please the boys, it was soon dissipated for they did ample justice to what was served them. The entertainment consisted of songs by Mr. Charles Ellis and Mr. George Conway, accompanied by Mr. Switzer; a half hour's exhibition of slight-of-hand by a professional magician, followed by a movie "Our Gang." If hilarity and enthusiasm are a criterion, it can be safely said that both the fathers and the sons had a fine time.

Next Sunday Mr. Reed will preach. His subject will be "What Unitarianism Has Contributed to Religion." The musical program will be:

Prelude Prayer	Lorct
Anthems
Oh Lord Our Governor	Gadsby
Almighty God	Mozart
Bass Solo
Postlude March of the Priests	Mendelssohn

The Union Good Friday night service will be held in our church next Friday night. Rev. H. W. Hook will preach the sermon and there will be special music.

The Durell String Quartet has been engaged to play for our Easter Service. They are a notable group of young lady musicians whose services are much sought after. Mr. Switzer has been fortunate enough to secure some anthems which call for string quartet and organ accompaniment. The order of service, including the musical numbers, will be printed in full in next week's Star.

On Friday evening, April 22, at 8 o'clock the Men's Club is to conduct a cabaret. Tables seating four each will be so placed in the vestry as to give ample room for dancing. The Greenlaw Trio will furnish the entertainment. This whole affair is under the personal direction of Mr. W. B. Wood, from whom we both expect and receive much. Tickets may be obtained from Mr. Wood and his committee.

MIXED BOWLING TOURNAMENT

On Wednesday night close matches prevailed in the mixed bowling tournament at the Calumet Club. Team 8 took two points from 12, winning the totals by one pin, 6 got a like number from 7 in a very close match and 10 took two from 11 in another interesting game. The ladies rolled particularly well, their scores being much more in evidence than those of the men.

BOY SCOUTS COMMENCE ANNUAL CANVASS

Letters have been sent out by Winchester Boy Scout Council soliciting funds for maintenance of its various activities. The annual cost per boy is about $10, as only moderate membership dues are required. It is always their intention to bring Scouting within the reach of every boy 12 years of age or over, and Winchester citizens have been very generous in providing means for a healthy progress of Scouting in this vicinity.

Winchester Council officers are very proud of their headquarters building at the Fells, loaned by the State, and fitted out largely by last year's contributions. Here an entire troup of Scouts can be accommodated on a wintry night, with a huge fireplace and utensils for cooking. Over-night and Saturday hikes usually start here, and monthly meetings of the adult supervisors are also held at Headquarters.

The stimulating effect of a central meeting place has had much to do with formation of a patrol of Sea-scouts. These Scouts are all older boys, studying elements of seamanship, particularly handling of boats, under the able guidance of a U. S. Naval Commander. It is hoped that funds will allow participation this summer in the proposed Junior Regattas at the Charles River Basin.

Over 25 Scouts attended a two weeks' camp on the Penobscot Bay last summer. Rates were nominal, and needy boys were assisted. The benefits derived from camp companionship and nature study are inestimable, and plans are already under way for the third annual camping tour.

It is hoped that a large number of citizens will indicate their interest and approval by mailing contributions to Treasurer Dwight D. Elliott, 16 Stevens street. Winchester needs the type of boys who are yearly being taught good character and self-reliance under the careful supervision outlined by the National Council of Boy Scouts, now in its 18th year.

Messrs. Charles A. Gleason and Wallace F. Flanders are members of the committee in charge of the annual dinner of the Boston Real Estate Exchange to be held in the grand ballroom of the Hotel Statler on Monday.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS

Mrs. Edward Russell of Cambridge street was obliged to complain to the police last Saturday about a crowd of West Side boys who were doing considerable damage by running about upon a piece of freshly seeded ground and who had pulled down and scattered about hay which had been stacked on her land. Sergeant Rogers rounded up several of the alleged offenders and took their names and addresses for future reference.

Mr. and Mrs. William U. Wyman of Oxford street are guests at The Manor, Asheville, N. C.

Commander Arthur S. Harris of Winchester Post, A. L., with Past Commanders Nathan Thumim, Vincent P. Clarke and William E. Ramsdell attended the banquet given by the State Department of the American Legion at the Hotel Statler Wednesday in honor of the National Commander.

Mr. Ashton L. Carr of Winchester, vice-president of the State Street Trust Company of Boston, was one of the passengers to sail last Sunday on the Cunard line S.S. "Laconia" from East Boston for Queenstown and Liverpool. Mr. Edwin Ginn, a former resident of this town was also among the passengers on the same ship.

Winchester Council of Boy Scouts is soliciting funds, and reports the annual cost to be about $10 per boy.

Treasurer Dwight D. Elliott of the Boy Scouts is receiving donations for the annual budget this month.

Winchester Boy Scouts include 150 boys of 12 years and over, and are soliciting funds for annual expenses.

Much interest is being shown locally in the annual Boy Scouts canvass for funds, which opened April 2.

Mrs. H. W. Stratton of Lewis road returned this week from a short visit to New Orleans, La.

Miss Sarah Capone of Middlesex street, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Capone, was pleasantly surprised last Monday evening upon her birthday when a group of her friends gathered at her home for a general good time. Miss Capone was presented with many handsome gifts for which she graciously expressed her thanks.

Actual work upon the new post office began this week with the erection of a storehouse for tools and the preliminary excavation.

NORTHERN ITALY: WHERE LANGUAGES BATTLE

The reported deportation of a German lawyer from Salorno in the German speaking portion of northern Italy because it is alleged that he gave lessons in the German language, brings Italy's war-won territory once more into public notice.

Salorno, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society, lies close to the language line which crosses the Adige Valley about 15 miles north of Trento. This line divides the Italian speaking inhabitants of Trentino, the southern portion of Italy's new territory, from the German speaking Tryolese to the north. This former Tyrolean region is now called Alto Adige, by the Italians. This line near Salorno is one of the unique language lines of Europe, since it is apart from national boundaries; yet there is such a plain demarkation that evidences of the cultural boundary can be seen from the windows of a railway train.

Architecture Shows Language Line

As the traveler rides north from thoroughly Italian old Trento, scene of the historic Council of Trent, he finds Italian architecture on every side. In the villages stucco walls, gently sloping red tile roofs, and the companiles of the parish churches proclaim this to be a land of Italians. But soon he notes a change. More and more dark shingle roofs appear and take on a steeper pitch. A little farther along some of the roofs are broken by dormer windows, and then near Salorno he sees on a village church the first sharp Gothic spire. It serves almost as an exclamation point to mark the language line.

From this point northward the population is predominantly Tyrolese, of German blood and German speech. Fifteen miles beyond Salorno the traveler enters Bolzano, metropolis of Alto Adige and finds himself to all outward appearances in a German world. The population is predominantly German speaking, and German, in spite of laws to discourage it, is the language of the streets, the shops, the hotels, and restaurants. One sees only a sprinkling of Italian soldiers and officials on ordinary days. On Sundays and other holidays excursions bring train loads of uniformed Fascisti up from the Italian plains country to the south.

Diverse Cultures Cause Problems

The northern portion of the Adige Valley, though a Roman province in the early centuries of the Christian era, has been governed by people of German ancestry since the days of the barbarian incursions which finally broke up the Roman Empire. The valley, however, lies south of the crest of the Alps, and following the World War was made a part of Italy in order that that country might have a logical geographic boundary capable of easy defense. With the country some 200,000 German speaking people went under Italian sovereignty, a fact which has created a stubborn governmental problem for Italy and many other problems for the population itself. Although the life of the people continues, to all appearances, much as when Alto Adige was a part of the Austrian province of Tyrol, many changes have been brought about by the Italian government.

DAILY PHILOSOPHY

A man said he felt 17 when he was sunny, and 70 when sad, about 40 when sensible, and nothing when he was mad.

If you are the kind of man that is waiting for something to turn up, you doubtless will find that some other fellow got what you were expecting.

I like to hear a long and loud laugh, but a good genuine smile beats a common explosion.

Never forget that, as a normal human being, you have in you the stuff of which success is made.

The advice you don't like is often the best to follow.

The Boston Globe's suggestion that radio stations broadcasting the chain programs be placed all on the same wave length seems like common sense. If twenty-four stations broadcast simultaneously the identical program on the same wave, twenty-three vacant waves will be created, and with proper separation of the new stations (which would be bound to come) radio listeners might get a clear program without interference. Why has this scheme not been advanced before?

From indications, the number of automobiles on the roads has just about doubled since the first of April, and along with the increase has come the usual number of irresponsible drivers. One thing this town should do is to make autos traveling up Main street keep in line from the Parkway to the centre. Besides being nearly killed ourself, we have noticed several other close shaves on this stretch caused by drivers cutting out of line in an attempt to beat someone else to the traffic sign. The police should not allow these drivers, whose proper place is at the foot of the line, to drive by waiting cars, cut in, and hold the law-abiding driver up.

DANCE RECITAL

The recital of ballet and plastique dancing given last Saturday afternoon in the Town Hall by the pupils of Mrs. Cora Corthell Phelps was attended by more than 350 guests. A pleasing and varied program was presented which was much enjoyed, the audience being very generous with its applause. The patronesses included Mrs. Thomas Barnard, Mrs. Bertram Bernnard, Mrs. James Cove, Mrs. Ralph Garner and Mrs. Clarence Warren. "Bill," "Bob" and "Ned" Bernnard and John Johnson acted as ushers. Mrs. A. B. Corthell was accompanist and added much to the enjoyment of the program, which follows:

TEEL SQUARE THEATRE

From the managerial offices of the Somerville Theatre comes word that Miss Marion White will be seen all next week in a dramatization of the famous novel, "St. Elmo" from the pen of Augusta Evans Wilson. This play has created a vast amount of conversation among the theatre-goers all over the world, and has been a subject for discussion in the realms of the colleges and societies from Maine to California. After its tremendous success in New York, "St. Elmo" was taken on tour and played to packed theatres for over four years during which time representatives of an English producing unit saw a performance of the play and secured the foreign rights. It scored as big in London and the English provinces as it has done in America and now we are to have the privilege of witnessing "St. Elmo" next week at the Somerville Theatre.

The Winchester Fire Department answered an alarm at 1.10 Wednesday afternoon from Box 37 for a fire at the home of Mr. Gaspare Tranchita on Harvard street.

REV. ALLEN EVANS, JR.

EPIPHANY RECTOR RESIGNS TO ACCEPT LONG ISLAND PARISH

Announcement is made this week of the resignation, to take effect early this spring, of the Rev. Allen Evans, for the past four years rector of the parish of the Epiphany in this town. Rev. Mr. Evans is resigning to accept a call as rector of Trinity Church, Rockaway, Hewlett, Long Island, N. Y. He had also been elected Vicar of the Pro-Cathedral for the diocese of Rhode Island at Providence, but preferred the Long Island post as offering greater opportunities for service.

Rev. Mr. Evans came to Winchester during January 1923 from the Church of the Atonement at Morton, Pa., where he had been rector for two years. He was graduated from Yale in the class of 1914 and entered the Philadelphia Divinity School. He was made a deacon in June, 1915, and was ordained a priest Jan., 1918. He attended the citizens' training camp at Plattsburg in 1915 and 1916, being made a sergeant at the second camp.

Leaving Divinity School toward the close of his senior year Mr. Evans served for a time as executive secretary to the Chaplain of the Philadelphia Navy Yard. In April, 1918, he entered the training school for chaplains at Camp Zachary Taylor and was commissioned First Lieutenant (Chaplain) May 29, 1918. Going over-seas at once, as a casual, he was assigned to the 104th Infantry, and upon the death in action of the chaplain of this regiment, he succeeded him. He served with the 104th in the Chateau-Thierry drive, at St. Mihiel and in the Meuse-Argonne offensive.

Following his discharge in April, 1919, Mr. Evans became senior curate at St. James' Church in Philadelphia. In October, 1921, he became rector of the Church of the Atonement at Morton, Pa., from where he came to Winchester.

During the four years Mr. Evans has served as rector of the Church of the Epiphany the local parish has greatly increased in number of communicants and has been generally in a most healthy state. Several new organizations have been inaugurated during his service here, included among them being St. Mary's Girls' Choir, the Boys' Club, the Junior Service League and the Girls' Friendly Society. Other church organizations and societies have been much stimulated by his interest and leadership. He has served as a member of the Department of Religious Education for the Diocese of Massachusetts, has been a member of the Field Department for the diocese and chairman of the Service Program for Church Schools. Interested in the civic life of the community he is at present serving his second term as Chaplain of Winchester Post, American Legion. The handsome new parish house recently completed at the Church of the Epiphany stands as a monument to his vision, organizing ability and persistence.

As rector of Trinity Church on Long Island Mr. Evans' work will be centered in a much larger city parish numbering more than 900 communicants. There is also under his direction a mission chapel ministering to many more. He has been universally respected and liked during his four years in Winchester and his departure will be regretted alike by his parishioners and the community as a whole.

GAS FOR THE HIGHLANDS

Proposed Tank On Cross Street Will Supply Residents

It is reported that the Arlington Gas Light Company is about to file application for a permit to erect a gas reservoir at Winchester Highlands. This means that residents at the north end of the town who have long petitioned for gas for domestic and manufacturing purposes will be supplied in the near future.

The proposed location of the storage tank which is reported planned for a million feet of gas is on Cross street within the industrial area of the town zoning system. The company has secured option on land of Daniel J. Daly running from Cross street to the B. & M. railroad tracks, containing three and a half acres. This appears to be a very suitable location for such a tank, combining as it does easy access to the railroad and an entrance on one of the main arteries of travel across the northern end of the town.

World Is "Thin Shell"

"It is wholesome for proud man to look upward on a bright day at some pretty cirrus cloud, to consider that it is composed of ice spicules, that it floats in arctic cold, that it signalizes to us what hothouse creatures we are. If the roof of air were removed we should all be frozen to death in a moment. Just above the roof is deadly cold, and just below the crust of earth is deadly heat. Only within the thin shell that separates these two regions can the human race strut about and congratulate itself on its great powers."—Henshaw Ward in "The Whirlpools of the Weather," in Harper's Magazine.

"THE GONDOLIERS"

Annette Symmes Hughes needs no introduction to a Winchester audience. Her clever and vivacious dancing and singing have won for her a high place among the legion of persons who have seen and heard her. It may not be known, however, that Mrs. Hughes has in the past toured a great part of this country delighting large audiences with her musical and histrionic skill. Mrs. Hughes at one time traveled on the Chataugua Circuit and with other professional organizations. She will take the part of "Gianetta" in the opera.

Ablen Symmes, a brother of Mrs. Hughes, has appeared many times before Winchester audiences. As the "Duke" in this opera he will be given an excellent opportunity to display his extraordinary versatility and talent as an actor. He has starred in the past in some of the leading plays of the Dramatic Club of Boston University as well as many here in Winchester.

Lisle Burroughs, well known to Winchester people, as "Giuseppe" impersonates the part of one of the "Gondoliers" with such skill that it requires no stretch of the imagination to believe that one is actually seeing and hearing one of these artistic and romantic Italian Gondolieri.

Arthur A. Howe of Lynn, as "Marco" who is perhaps unknown to Winchester audiences will take the part of the other principal "Gondolier." Mr. Howe has a fine lyric tenor voice. He has sung many times with the Amherst College Glee Club and with the "University Double Quartet," a Harvard musical group. His portrayal of a "Gondolier" adds a great deal to the picture of sunny, romantic and glorious Italy which is painted by this opera.

Jane Hill of Somerville who takes the part of the "Duchess" has been heard many times over the radio through stations WBZ, WEEI and WNAC. She is a soloist in the Arlington Congregational Church and was for six years a soloist at the Winchester Methodist Church. Mrs. Hill has taken a leading part in many amateur shows.

"Tessa" will be impersonated by Gertrude Dayton Nason of this town. Mrs. Nason has been a soloist for the Cecilia Society and the Boston Musical Art Club and the Union Congregational Church of Boston and was with the Boston Opera Company for two years. Her voice has been heard over the radio from WBZ.

Paul Bennett of Arlington takes the part of "Luiz." He has sung with the "Meistersingers" and has been a tenor soloist with Lynn and Worcester musical clubs. He has sung also for a number of years as a church soloist.

Dorothy Temple Fuller of Cambridge will portray the character of "Inez" in the opera. Mrs. Fuller has studied music in Rome and has toured the country doing concert work. She has sung with the Boston Symphony Orchestra and has been a soloist at the Christian Science Church.

Miss Olive Page, who will appear as "Fiametta" has taken a number of leading parts in plays given here in Winchester and elsewhere. She is a very promising student of Mr. J. Albert Wilson who is well known to music lovers of this town.

"Don Alhambra" will be the character taken by Mr. Winfield Hanson, a resident of Winchester. Mr. Hanson has a rich baritone voice. He has broadcast through station WBZ and is a member of the quartet of the First Baptist Church of this town.

In the chorus are many well known Winchester people who have often delighted Winchester audiences with their rare talents as singers and as actors.

There will be an orchestra of eight pieces. Mr. John Wills and Mr. T. Parker Clarke of this town, both well known musicians, having kindly offered their services.

It is interesting to note that the scenery and lights to be used for these two performances are ultimately to be installed in the new parish house, now under construction, of the Congregational Church.

The scenery consists of a number of units or "flats" of various sizes which are adaptable to innumerable different ways or arrangement. They are painted in soft gray tones which will serve as neutral yet attractive backgrounds for many different types of plays. They have been designed by George McFadden of Boston who is at present scenic designer for the Boston Stage Society in their productions at the "Barn" and who is also doing some experimental work at the Boston Art Museum School.

The lights for "The Gondoliers" will come from the studio of Monroe Pevear who is conceded to be the greatest expert on stage lighting in the country. He designed and provided the lights for the New York Theatre Guild, the Boston Repertory Theatre and a great number of other organizations.

Mrs. Howard Chidley is general chairman in charge of all the various details in connection with the presentation of this opera. Working with her are a number of committees, each having a special phase of the work to take care of.

No expense is being spared to properly stage these two performances. The early demand which has been received for seats is most gratifying and bespeaks a crowded house for each performance.

There are still tickets on sale for both Friday and Saturday evenings at the office of Parker & Lane, Church street.

Influenza Statistics

Records taken over 36 years show that the greatest number of fatal influenza cases occur about the ninth or tenth week of the year, and the fewest about the thirty fifth or thirty-sixth week.

EARTHQUAKE AREA INCLUDES THE JAPAN THAT IS NEW, OLD, AND BEAUTIFUL

Sections of Japan which are most ancient, most modern and most beautiful, suffered in the worst earthquake which has shaken the mainland since 1923.

Fishing villages on and near Wakasa Bay, facing Korea and Manchuria, were in the center of the disturbance. Fortunately the densely inhabited commercial district 90 miles away on the opposite east coast of the mainland containing the cities of Osaka, Kobe and Kyoto, escaped with small damage and few casualties. These three cities are, respectively, the second, third and fourth largest in Japan.

In the quake area modern Japan is represented by Kobe and Osaka, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society. They are companion cities. Osaka's million people manufactures what Japan needs. Osaka sends her export products 25 miles by rail to Kobe for shipment. When the shock came a big American liner was at the dock at Kobe. There are always sleek liners and burly merchant ships in Kobe harbor. Much of the raw silk shipments to America, valued at more than $300,000,000 a year, come out of Kobe. This is modern metropolitan, occidental Japan.

"Third Wonder" of Japan in Quake Area

Twenty miles north is Kyoto, stronghold of ancient Japan, the residence of the Mikado from the time Charlemagne went riding through barbaric Europe. It was to Kyoto that the body of the Japanese emperor who died recently was taken for burial near the tombs of his ancestors. Kyoto has the grace that accompanies age and aristocracy. Its streets are wide. Temples look down on it from the encircling hills. The emperor and the court have gone to Tokyo but many artist colonies which the emperor planted remain in Kyoto. Fine pottery, silk weaving and painting are the pride of the city. Nothing is old in Kyoto unless it has survived three centuries. In the old capital oriental Japan lingers.

Newspaper dispatches have not yet reported whether Amanohashidate, "Bridge of Heaven," one of the three famous beauty spots in Japan, has survived the earthquake. It is close to the focal center of earth movements. A geologist would describe this "third wonder" as a natural causeway of rock projecting across an arm of the sea. It is artificial in appearance. That probably recommends it to the Japanese who respect scrupulous, perfect beauty more than the wild, natural variety. Crowning the causeway are files of splendid, old pine trees. One may walk the strand out toward the sea under the singing pines with the waves lapping the shore close on either hand.

Why Loss Was Not Greater

The other two views are far distant from Amanohashidate. One is of the island-filled bay, from Matsushima near the city of Sendai, 300 miles north of Tokyo; the other the Torii of Miyajima near the city of Hiroshima, which is situated on the Inland Sea 250 miles below Kobe. Torii means gate in Japanese, in this case, the sacred gate which stands picturesquely in the water, three stalwart piers on either side supporting a cross beam tip-tilted at its ends. Only the moon knocks at the portals of the Torii. After Mount Fuji the Torii picture enjoys probably the widest popularity in the United States.

Geography has prevented great loss of life in the recent quake which is said to have equalled in severity the disastrous 1923 quake. Mountains come sharply down to the sea on the west coast of Japan and there is room on the narrow shore only for small fishing villages and a few farms. Some of Japan's finest oranges come from this district.

The Emperors' Garden

On the east coast, however, rivers have built up plains and broad valleys in which millions of Japanese are concentrated. Kyoto, in itself, offers first hand evidence of Japan's political history. In the center of the city is the old Imperial Palace, occupying 27 acres. The visitor, after obtaining entrance by card, will find the palace rooms spare and Spartan in simplicity. The charm of the palace lies beyond the buildings in the gardens. Surrounded by the perfection of the gardens it is possible to understand how the emperors, shorn of power by the shoguns, devoted themselves to such works as organizing a cherry blossom festival and formulating a poem style limited to 31 syllables.

Up on a hill is a shogun's palace which is now used by the local governor. The shogun had power and wealth so he, not the emperor, surrounded himself with exquisite carvings, screens painted by the finest artists, and firm walls for protection.

WHO NOT TO MARRY

Boyish bobs don't tell much about housekeeping talents and culinary arts. But that's no sign these wifely virtues are not as much alive today as they ever were!

The Advice-to-the-Lovelorn Editor in one of our daily papers gives encouragement to a young man who bewails the attitude of the modern girl who shuns housework after she is married.

This advisor does not think any such example is typical of the average girl, who, despite her short-cropped hair and athletic prowess, is, at heart, very much like her grandmother and mighty fond of a pretty little home.

But here's the real test—according to this famous writer, "Marry a boyish bob if you must, but never take a girl who speaks a harsh word against the gas range!"

COUNTRY CLUB'S NEW LAY-OUT EXCITING FAVORABLE COMMENT

The alterations which are being made in the golf course at the Winchester Country Club are coming in for much favorable comment among professionals and the better golfers and it is generally believed that with the present improvements completed the course will be as good as the lay-out will permit.

The specifications allow only the 3rd, 4th, 5th, 11th, 14th and 18th holes to remain as they were when the course was opened.

With the new lay-out the famous old 13th passes out of existence, leaving "Johnny" Homan, Waltham's professional, the only golfer ever to make the green in two shots from the back tee.

The construction work is expected to be completed for the annual invitation four-ball tournament, July 6, 7 and 8 and it is further rumored that the coming season will see something big in the line of tournament play at the local club.

HOW CAN I GET HIM TO EAT IT

How can I get him to eat it, exclaim many of the mothers attending the State Demonstration Well Child Conferences. "I know that he should have it, but he just won't eat it."

The fixation of proper food habits is one of the most important jobs that the mother undertakes. The child depends entirely upon food for the development of his body structure and consequently these food habits should receive early and apt supervision.

Dr. Champion of the Department of Public Health suggests a few ways and means of answering the question. "Each member of the family should eat some of everything set before him. The child should not know of the family food prejudice. Remember that the child imitates the adult food peculiarity.

Introduce the new foods in small amounts, one at a time. Accompany a familiar, well-liked dish with a simply cooked and attractively prepared new one.

Be ingenious in the use of dishes! Milk from a blue cup may taste much different from that in a glass. Vary the sizes and shapes of the dishes used. Oatmeal need not always be served in the same sauce dish.

Be versatile in food preparation—change the seasoning and the method of preparation. Milk is the same valuable food whether it be used in cocoa, custard, junket or plain ice cream. A few raisins, added to oatmeal for instance, give variety and interest.

Thoughtful and clever firmness on the part of the mother will be her greatest asset in developing proper food habits for her child.

The child who eats everything is not only benefited physically but he grows up to be a better social being."

POLICE MADE GOOD CAPTURE

With several members of the Police Department on his trail Clifford Thompson, 27, of 22 Meridian street, Malden, was arrested on Highland avenue at 1.35 Sunday morning for the alleged theft from Medford of a Nash sedan in which he had been seen going through Winchester center some time before his arrest.

The machine had been reported stolen by the Medford Police and local authorities had warned their patrolmen to be on the watch. Officer Mark Kelley had seen the machine while patrolling his beat but had been unable to head it off. A while later Officer Noonan saw the sedan at the corner of Washington and Mt. Vernon streets but the driver had refused to stop at his signal.

Returning to the center Officer Noonan obtained a machine, driven by Munroe Morley, in which he scoured the Highlands District of the Town, that being the direction taken by the fugitive motorist. Returning along Highland avenue toward the center the patrolman discovered the Nash abandoned on Cliff street. This lead him to believe that his man was somewhere in the vicinity.

Continuing his search he came upon a Ford sedan parked near Fellsdale and stopping to question its occupants he saw his quarry nearby. Officer Noonan quickly put the man under arrest and he was later turned over to the Medford Police, their department having been the complainant against him.

When Thompson appeared in Court Monday morning he was found to have been not long released from State Prison on parole. He was summarily remanded to prison.

In looking up his record it was found that he is wanted by many towns throughout the State and especially by the police of Manchester, N. H., for the alleged theft of automobiles. The State police have been on the lookout for the man for the past two months, making the work of officer Noonan, in running him down, even more praiseworthy. Both the former and officer Mark Kelley were warmly commended by their superiors, it having been the latter who first noticed and identified Thompson as he was passing through the West Side.

BORROWED TROUBLE

Last Saturday evening Police Headquarters was notified by one Felice Polcaro of 9 Yale street, Medford, that the latter's Cadillac touring car had been taken from where it had been parked in front of the Atlantic and Pacific store in the square. Felice was talking over the telephone from Medford and was greatly excited. What if the car was a 1918 model? It had been newly painted, etc. Would the police do something? Please?

The informant was so wrought up over his loss that he could not remember the registration number of the machine so Lieutenant Harrold had to call Registrar Goodwin's office to get the necessary information. This done Sergt. Thomas Cassidy and Officer John Regan did a turn about the center and there parked snuggly before the selfsame store from which Mr. Polcaro had averred it had been taken the missing Cadillac was found, new paint and all. There were no indications that it had been removed during the evening and the police are at a loss to account for the owner's needless alarm unless someone had been indulging in an over-due April First pleasantry.

MUSICAL PRISONERS LEAVE WINCHESTER

Hubert Becker, 23, and Ernest Leadford, 26, breezy Westerners from far away Topeka, Kan., who were arrested last week Monday evening while parked in an Essex coach near St. Mary's Church and who had subsequently been held at headquarters in response to a request from the Topeka authorities, were turned over to Sheriff Oscar A. Carlson of that city last Saturday. They began at once their long journey back to Topeka where they must face charges preferred against Becker of passing a worthless check and against Leadford of deserting a child.

While housed at the local station house the prisoners entertained the police with ukelele and vocal selections and the lockup was characterized as "very lonesome" following their departure.

Mr. H. A. Knudsen and wife, (who was Miss Josephine Wingate of Winchester) now of Oakland, Cal., with their two children, are visiting Mrs. Knudsen's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. L. Wingate at 8 Stratford road.

WOMEN'S REPUBLICAN CLUB OF WINCHESTER

On Friday, April 1, the Women's Republican Club of Winchester held its fourth annual meeting in the Fortnightly Hall. After a brief business meeting at which the annual reports were read, a most delightful program was enjoyed by about 50 members of the club. Mrs. Helen Edlefson Barr, accompanied by Mrs. Lefavour opened the afternoon's entertainment with four well chosen songs. We are always so glad to have the opportunity to hear her lovely voice.

Mrs. A. J. George of Boston was the speaker of the afternoon. The following her topic, "Our Foreign Relations Today," she touched on our problems in Nicaragua, Mexico, China—the league conference, soon to be held—and finished her talk with a vivid, but all too brief picture of Mussolini.

Mrs. George is one of Boston's best known Current Events lecturers. The club hopes to hear her in its regular program next winter.

Coffee and ices were served by the Social Committee after the program.

The report of the nominating committee and the announcement of an unanimous election of the ballot completed the afternoon.

WOMAN'S CHRISTIAN TEMPERANCE UNION NOTES

The regular meeting of the W. C. T. U. will be held at the Home for Aged People, 110 Mt. Vernon street, on Friday, April 15, at 2:30 p. m. An interesting program is being prepared and a large attendance is requested.

Because Roger Babson is a professional statistician rather than a professional reformer, his observations on prohibition carry more weight with the public than most others. Here are some statements he recently made in print which, considering their source, cannot but be taken seriously.

Prohibition, he finds, "has resulted in increasing the working power of the wage worker and has been a great factor in bringing about higher wages." What has been done, then, with their extra money? "Instead of being employed uselessly for hiring labor to manufacture whiskey and beer, it has been used in hiring labor to build houses, make clothes and other things that are worth while." Among the other things, labor savings, formerly spent on liquor, have gone into savings banks and helped to keep interest rates low.

Especially interesting is Mr Babson's reference to installment buying. "Had it not been for prohibition," he says, "the present growth in the installment business would have been impossible. It was prohibition which enabled workers to establish credits. Without prohibition these credits could not have been established; the goods purchased could never have been manufactured, and the prosperity which we now enjoy would not exist." All this Mr. Babson deduces not from his moral code or his inner consciousness, but from the careful study of thousands of facts and acres of figures.

BOWDOIN SQUARE THEATRE

At the popular Bowdoin Square Theatre beginning Monday, April 11, the management will put forth what is termed "Bargain Week," in which there will be offered a triple feature picture program together with five acts of vaudeville of the selected type. One of the picture features will be the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production "A Little Journey" with Claire Windsor, William Haines and Harry Carey in the big roles. It is one of action and love with plenty of laughs intermingled. The second big feature will be Tom Mix in "The Broncho Twister" with Tony the wonder horse "doing his stuff" and in the cast will be viewed Helene Costello and Malcolm White. The third big feature will be Mae Murray in "Altars of Desire" with Conway Tearle and Robert Edeson in conspicuous roles. There will also be the Christie comedy, "Cool Off," the Pathe News and five big acts.

On Thursday night Sam Cohen will put on his famous Amateur Night performance. Sam will be seen in person conducting this laughter show. On Friday night the usual bargain vaudeville will be viewed. Concert Sunday at 3. The free parking service is of much benefit to suburbanites.

Odd Ocean Denizen

One of the strangest of living creatures is the animal lily, specimens of which have been dredged off the ocean floor near the Queen Charlotte islands. It was found at a depth of 1.8 miles below the surface where it lived in complete darkness in a temperature near the freezing point and under a pressure of 200 atmospheres, or more than two tons to the square inch. Although a true animal, the creature closely resembles a lily in form and, attached to the rocks, subsists solely upon particles of food that the slowly moving waters bring to it.

Sacrifice to Effect

Poesy and oratory omit things not essential and insert little beautiful digressions in order to place everything in the most affecting light.—Watts.

PUPILS OF MRS. LEWIS IN RECITAL

There was a large attendance at the social and pianoforte recital of Mrs. Annie Soule Lewis and pupils held last Friday evening in the Fortnightly rooms. Despite the fact that the recital was of two hours' duration only the very youngest children and their parents left before the conclusion of the program. The audience was very appreciative and evinced a keen pleasure in the work of the young musicians.

Mrs. Lewis spoke briefly in her usual gracious manner and also assisted her pupils in duets and ensemble numbers. The guest performers were Mrs. Patterson and Mr. Towle who assisted their respective daughters, Miss Edith Patterson and Miss Evelyn Towle in the playing of their selections. Miss Florence Anguish was the program's assisting artist and she displayed real talent in her readings, "Little Christel," "She Liked Him Rale Weel" and "The Morning Call." She displayed her versatility by playing one of the program's piano numbers.

While it is always hard to differentiate between performers at a recital by piano pupils, the playing of Cyril Scott's "Dane Negre" by Miss Priscilla Frost seems deserving of special praise. Many in the audience, who had recently heard the same selection played in Winchester by a professional musician, expressed surprise and delight at Miss Frost's interpretation.

Mrs. Lewis closed her program with a musical novelty,—the playing in arrangement for eight hands on one piano of Hewett's "In Procession,"—in which she was assisted by Miss Priscilla Frost, Miss Dorothy Collins and Miss Dorothy Harrington.

GRANADA ATTRACTIONS

A gripping story of the underworld as of today is embodied in "Cheaters" which is the screen attraction the beautiful Granada Theatre in Malden is now offering to lovers of the best the screen has to offer. It is a gripping and dramatic film opus plentifully interspersed with comedy touches for relief.

The plot tells of a trio of men and one girl who have abandoned the life of crime, and determined to escape the domination of the leader of the band, go west, all taking positions in various capacities in a hotel. When they think they have conquered their past and the young couple are looking forward to their marriage, the leader comes to the same hotel on the trail of a woman whose diamonds he covets. From this point the complications come thick and fast and the interest of the plot is held to the very end. In addition to the screen attraction the usual five acts of vaudeville will be presented.

One of the most unusual plots ever filmed is the basis of the story, "The Price of Honor,' which comes to the Granada for three days starting next Monday, with Dorothy Revier and Malcolm MacGregor as the stars. It deals with the unfairness of convicting a man on circumstantial evidence, and shews the evil that is done not only in his life but in the lives of his friends and enemies. The Granada has booked in a special program of vaudeville for the first three days of next week to go with this big screen drama.

MIXED BOWLING TOURNAMENT

Team 14 continued to win games in the mixed bowling tournament at the Calumet Club on Monday night when it took all three from Team 5. The scores were all good and the figures well up to the average, although only one really close string developed when 2 took the first from 13 by a margin of four pins. Thirteen won the match 2 to 1, and Team 9 took all three from 3.

GEKES GAVE VETERANS AUTO RIDE

On Sunday afternoon a party of G. E. K.'s went over to the Disabled War Veterans' Hospital in West Roxbury to take about 26 of the boys for a ride. Before starting away from the hospital each car was plentifully supplied with candy and "smokes." They drove by way of the Providence Turnpike through Dedham, Norwood and Walpole to the Sharon Duck Inn where hot coffee and duck sandwiches were served, returning by the same route.

The affair was planned and directed by Erskine H. Kelley, Jr., the others who drove cars were Sherwood W. Kelley, Herbert Wadsworth, Jr., Leslie L. Hartwell, Jr., Jerry Foster, Robert Comfort, Avard Walker, Albert Noyes, Philip Bartlett, Nelson Bennett and Nathaniel M. Nichols.

The boys were accompanied by Mrs. Charles E. Hoey, Mrs. E. Hawes Kelley, Mrs. Rasmus K. Miller, Jr., Mrs. Joseph Fessenden, Mrs. Nathaniel M. Nichols, Miss Elizabeth B Fessenden, Miss Ruth Nelson and Miss Melinda Foster.

SPECIAL OFFICERS APPOINTED

Announcement is made of the appointment of six special police officers to serve at the new construction job to be done on Cambridge street. John F. O'Brien of Water street, William V. Kelley of Hill street, Charles O'Connell of Middlesex street, Bernard J. Cullen of Stone avenue and Harry T. Dunbury of Main street have been appointed until July 12. The other officer, Walter B. Lord of Hancock street is appointed for one year from April 1.

MISS PACKER IN TENNIS SEMI-FINALS

Louise Packer, one of Winchester's best girl tennis players and captain of last year's unbeaten high school net team, advanced for the second consecutive year to the semi-final matches of the girls' national indoor singles championship tourney played over the past week-end on the covered courts of the Longwood Cricket Club at Chestnut Hill.

Miss Packer won her way into the semi-finals by defeating Betty Pope of Brookline in straight sets, 6—0, 7—5. Her conqueror in the semi-finals was none other than the ultimate winner of the tournament, Sarah Palfrey of Brookline, one of the famous Palfrey sisters who have so dominated junior tennis in the East.

That the Winchester entry in the tournament is rapidly acquiring a more than local reputation as a tennis player is clearly shown by the fact that Louise was seeded sixth in the draw among the 32 entries in the national tournament just past. She was very much on her game at Longwood and played some nice tennis in the three matches won. She should prove a tower of strength to the high school club this season.

PRIBILOF ISLANDS: BARREN BUT PROFITABLE

Where are all the seals that will furnish the pelts for milady's seal skin coats in the future?

Perhaps that question can be answered by few even of those who have felt the warmth of the luxurious wraps.

According to the United States Bureau of Fisheries, 761,281 seals have recently been counted on the Pribilof Islands, the chief breeding ground of the seal, or 38,000 more than were found there a year ago.

A bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society briefly describes the islands and their fur-bearing inhabitants.

Five Bleak Islands

The Pribilofs consist of five islands, lying in the Bering Sea, about 200 miles north of the Aleutian chain. St. Pauls and St. Georges Islands, the largest and only ones of the group that are inhabited, are each slightly more than 30 square miles in area. The other three are merely jutting rocks with a combined area no longer than a fair sized Eastern farm.

The islands are bleak and desolate. Their barren, volcanic peaks and rocky shores are hostile to vegetation. In the winter they are covered with ice and snow, and whipped by the frigid Arctic gales, while during the summer months, the fog that envelops the whole area is so dense that the sun's rays rarely touch the earth. As a result the climate is uncomfortable, cold and damp. Toward autumn the wind clears the atmosphere and here and there grass and mosses make the best of the short fogless and iceless season. Only a few years ago, the inhabitants of the islands were entirely isolated from the rest of the world for six months of the year, but the radio has changed that condition.

When Pribilof, the Russian navigator, whose name the Islands bear, landed there in 1786, after three years' search for the breeding grounds of the seals that frequented the north Pacific and Bering Sea waters, he found no human life, but millions of seals. He was followed by Russians and later by natives from the Aleutian Islands. Russians and a few Americans make up the present population most of whom are connected with the government sealing and fox raising industries.

Seals Are Aquatic Moslems

While seals are sometimes known as sea bears, their names peculiarly follow those of cattle, and dogs, and even human beings. The adult male is called a bull and the female, a cow. Instead of referring either to bears or cattle by calling the baby seals cubs or calves, man calls them pups. The young males fare better by annexing a name of human origin—bachelors.

The more rocky the shore, the more the seals like it during the breeding season, for the harems (the seal families) forsake the few smooth spots on the islands and establish their rookeries (breeding places) among the broken rocks along the shore, or on the sides of rocky hills. From the rim the rookeries appear to the eye as collections of black splotches continually moving, while to the ear comes a blend of loud grunts and barks. Each of these splotches represents a harem of 50 or 60 cows and, perhaps, twice as many pups, which are protected by a bull. The bachelors are not allowed to come near the harems but occupy hauling grounds, on smooth rocks or sandy beaches, outside the family circles. Sometimes a bachelor raids a harem and if successful in his fight with the bull, he takes away a cow or two.

Desert the Islands in Winter

As cold weather approaches, the cows and newborn pups leave the islands and go south, followed shortly afterward by the bulls. They never touch land until their return to the Pribilofs in the spring. The two to three-months-old pups who have been subsisting on milk and hardly know how to navigate, are forced to make their own way without assistance from the rest of the family. As a result it is estimated that 50 per cent of them die before the next season.

The seal herds of the Pribilofs decreased from between 2,500,000 and 4,000,000 when the islands were taken over by the United States in 1868, to 150,000 in 1911. Although the government placed restriction on killing them on the islands, the loss was largely due to the killing of cows while they swam about in the water in the summer, perhaps seeking squid and fish at the nearest food source a hundred miles south, or during the winter while in the Pacific. The death of a cow in the winter means the loss of a pup to be born the following summer, while a similar killing in the summer would perhaps be more disastrous, for the new-born pup left at the rookery would die of starvation and an unborn pup would also be lost. Laws and treaties now protect seals while at sea.

Scientific propagation is showing its favorable effect upon the herds annually. Only surplus males are killed for their pelts. The best furs are taken from seals under five years old. Those that are to be killed are separated from the herd, struck on the head with a large club, and then stuck through the heart with a knife. After the killing an expert skinner can remove the pelt of a seal in two or three minutes.

The government also successfully maintains and propagates blue and white foxes on the Pribilofs which add to the revenue already received from the sealing industry. Nearly 1000 pelts are shipped to this country annually. Unlike the fox farms on the Aleutian Islands where the little animals are inclosed in chicken-wire cages, the Pribilof packs are allowed to run wild. They are the most successful packs in the world.

Most of the pelts of both the seals and foxes are auctioned off in the St. Louis fur market.

SOUTHERN RUSSIA PLANS OUTLET TO SEA

The Volga-Don Canal which is planned through the narrow isthmus between the Volga and Don Rivers from Shumovsky Khutor near Stalingrad (formerly Tsaritsin) to Sarepta, in southeast Russia, would connect the Caspian, Black, Baltic and White Seas by water routes, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

At the proposed location of the canal the two rivers are but 60 miles apart then they veer off in opposite directions, the Don piercing the fertile Cossack country to the east, and the Volga extending northward through the Russian grain belt.

Volga Now Linked With Baltic

The Volga, Europe's longest river, will play an important part in the success of the program, continues the bulletin. A canal is already in use, linking the upper stretches of the river with the Neva River that flows into the Gulf of Finland at Leningrad.

The more than 2000 miles of navigable water of the "Little Mother Volga" as the people affectionately call the stream, are busy with shipping. Huge rafts, some of them longer than a city block, are towed up and down the wide channel by little "side-wheelers." They are laden with grain, hides, wool, fruit, vegetables and other products from the Volga regions. Other "side-wheelers" tow cotton-laden barges from Persia, and oil tanks from the neighborhood of Baku in the Caspian Sea.

Some of the cargoes are consigned to Russian centers and some to Leningrad for shipment to foreign ports. Sometimes the trip to the seaport means thousands of miles of slow travel that takes days and weeks, so the river men try to have all the comforts of home. Often they build log cabins aboard the rafts and surround them with small truck gardens which they tend as if they were on land. At night the boatmen gather around a large fire which from the shore presents a picture of campers afloat.

Volga Boatman Has Disappeared

For years, under the despotic rule of the Tsars, the Russian river was the scene of the Volga boatmen's toil. Singing on minor strains, the boatmen trudged the monotonous shores of the river, tugging at crude tow-ropes, that cut into their bulky shoulders, while their feet sank deep into the soft towpath clay.

But the thousands of porters, as the Volga boatmen were known in Russia, that played the role of our towpath mules, have been displaced by oil burning passenger boats and commercial craft.

Perhaps the Volga would be the greatest river in the world if Nature had been more kind. It is less than 200 miles shorter than the Mississippi and flows through highly productive regions. But it has no Gulf of Mexico at its front door. The Caspian Sea into which it empties has no navigable outlet. As a result the world's largest inland body of water, and thousands of miles of its tributaries are hemmed in from the open sea, and forced to depend entirely upon railroads, camels and other means of land transportation to reach the Black Sea, the nearest outlet to the Mediterranean, or to traverse the whole length of the Volga and Neva to Leningrad.

Caspian Ports Should Boom

When the Volga-Don project is completed, Caspian ports should boom. Ships will then be able to steam up the Volga, through the canal, down the Don to Rostov on the Sea of Azov, and out into the Mediterranean by way of the Black Sea and Bosporus. European and American ports will then be within reach of Baku and other bottled-up Caspian ports by cheap transportation.

Rostov, at the mouth of the Don, will be equipped to handle the increased shipping as a result of the canal route. The harbor will be dredged and grain elevators constructed and Rostov hopes to capture Leningrad's title as the chief grain exporting port of Russia. It is estimated that grain will be shipped through the canal from the elevators at Samara in the heart of the grain region, to Rostov, more cheaply than it is now transported to Leningrad.

Returning through the canal, the boats will transport coal, iron, textiles, farming implements and manufactured articles for the Volga regions and Central Asia. The industrial regions of Ural have not obtained enough coal from the Ukraine or by importation. The Volga-Don will probably alleviate this difficulty by augmenting the service of the railroad that for years has operated across the isthmus but has been unable to handle the heavy traffic. Costly transfer of cargoes from river to rail will also be eliminated.

The canal will take five years to build and will cost the government about $33,000,000. It is expected to pay for itself in another five years.

With the exception of a small part of eastern European Russia, the yachtsman will be able to circle Europe by a water route, when the 60-mile ditch is opened.

EPIPHANY CHOIR DELIGHTED LARGE GATHERING

Spohr's "Calvary" Sung on Palm Sunday—Eminent Soloists Assisted

With the church thronged to its capacity, including extra benches at the rear of the nave and on the side aisles, the Epiphany choir, comprising 44 vested men and boys under the direction of Organist and Choirmaster J. Albert Wilson, sung "Calvary," an oratorio by Ludwig Spohr, last Sunday afternoon. The soloists were Jack Page and Willard Grush, sopranos; George Boynton, tenor; Kenneth McLeod, baritone; and Walter Kidder bass.

The oratorio, "Calvary" is little known upon this continent. Not that it is a mediocre work; far from it. Rather, perhaps, it is a bit beyond the resources of the average chorus and soloists. Spohr has been described as a composer who attempted to convey emotions through absolute music, and in the composition in question he has been eminently successful. "Calvary" is the story in song of our Saviour's arrest, trial, crucifixion and ascention as those stirring events were seen and experienced by His disciples. The score is a difficult one, exacting alike upon soloists and ensemble. Much of its music is of necessity highly dramatic yet there are here and there those passages of pure melodic beauty for which Spohr was so noted. The entire oratorio was not given last Sunday as it is much too long to be practical at such a service. Mr. Wilson's editing, however, was skillfully done and the work in its abridged form lost nothing of its effectiveness.

In its performance of Spohr's work the Epiphany choir established beyond a doubt its right to be classed among the very best of church choral groups about Boston. Its attack, tonal quality, balance and phrasing, even in the most difficult passages bore eloquent testimony to the ability and musicianship of its director, Mr. Wilson. The work of Masters Page and Grush in the few passages for soprano solo was all that could be desired.

Of the other soloists, both Mr. McLeod and Mr. Boynton are old favorites with Epiphany audiences. The latter's pure tenor was heard to splendid advantage last Sunday while his almost perfect diction was as great a delight as ever. His singing of the beautiful aria, "When This Scene of Trouble Closes," occurring near the oratorio's end, was notable alike for tone quality and dramatic effect. The high notes were cleanly taken with great power.

Mr. McLeod made much of his solo passages and suffered not at all by comparison with his more distinguished colleagues. His is a baritone particularly suited to church singing, possessing as it does a singularly sympathetic quality of tone.

Seldom has a bass the equal of Mr. Kidder's been heard in Winchester. Powerful, sonorous, virile, admirably controlled, it proved more than equal to the demands of Spohr's difficult score. He displayed his great ability and musical resourcefulness in the dramatic recitative, "Oh Where, Where Shall I Flee," portraying the bitter remorse of the unhappy Judas, while his legato singing of Peter's beautiful air, "Tears of Sorrow, Shame and Anguish," was that of a real artist. His singing and that of Mr. Boynton during that portion of the score portraying Christ's appearance in the judgment hall, with the interspersing harmony passages sung first by the men choristers and finally by the full choir, will not soon be forgotten. Small wonder that "Calvary" is such a favorite where it is known. For sheer dramatic force the finale of the oratorio, comprising the single line, "He was the Christ, the Son of the Almighty," sung last Sunday first as a thrilling tenor solo by Mr. Boynton and then in a crashing phrase of harmony by the entire choir against the full organ, is seldom surpassed.

In his playing upon the organ of Spohr's difficult score Mr. Wilson added the final touch which made for the completely artistic whole. His master hand could be distinguished throughout the entire production, alike in the splendid work of the choir boys and men and in the perfect blending of soloists and ensemble. He has done nothing better than "Calvary."

MARRIAGE INTENTIONS

Marriage intentions have been filed with the Town Clerk as follows:

IMPROVEMENTS BY POP CONCERT COMMITTEE AT THE WINCHESTER HOSPITAL

A visit to the Operating Suite of the Winchester Hospital is a revelation to one who desires to learn first hand what has been done by the Pop Concert Committee and just how complete and up-to-date is our surgical equipment. To this committee we owe our sincere appreciation and thanks for giving us the best and most approved appliances and for their continued loyalty and devotion to this important department.

They have recently installed a new Scylitic Operating Light, which is a wonderful acquisition with its great reflectors and intricate mechanism, and it is considered by the highest authorities the best possible light in the market. Three indirect top lights have also been added. The old method for water sterilization has been replaced by two new 20 gallon sterilizers of the most approved type, and a Longwood Oil Instrument Sterilizer has been installed. This will save many repair bills, as the oil does not dull the instruments as water does. The Sterilizer for dressings has been repaired and equipped with a new door which makes it as perfect as possible.

A most useful addition to the Sterilizing room is the new sink and the space in the hall left by removing the old one has been made into a mechneded closet for sterile goods.

Attractive glass shelves and racks have been fitted here and there for greater convenience. The new hamper, wall cabinet, bags, pails and basins would rejoice the heart of a housekeeper, as well as a nurse. Then too we have Kelley Haemostats, a Baumnometer, and a truck for large oxygen tank, that it may easily be taken to any part of the Hospital; old instruments have been refinished and many new ones added to make our collection a most valuable one. Freshly painted walls and new shades give just the right touch of immaculate cleanliness.

The cost of this work, done this past winter by the Pop Concert Committee has been over $2750. Extensive piping and wiring were necessary to install all these improvements.

Indeed we have just cause for pride in all these good things, and hope the Pop Concert Committee may long continue its support in keeping our Hospital up to its high standard of service.

HEALTH SURVEY HERE

Beginning May 1, and continuing for an estimated period of about six weeks, a health survey is to be made in this town under the auspices of the State and local health boards. During this period every house in town will be visited and a prepared list of questions asked regarding contagious and communicable diseases and other health factors. This is the first time such a survey has been attempted in this State.

It is the purpose to ascertain what, if any, contagious disease any member of a family has had the year in which it occurred. There are to be five workers, and each family will be asked identical questions. Of course all information is regarded as strictly confidential and will be used only for census purposes.

Residents will be asked whether they or members of their family have ever had diphtheria, scarlet fever, mumps, measles, whooping cough, chicken pox or german measles. Also to name any sickness whatever they have had during the past year.

TOWN ENGINEER NO LONGER SUPERINTENDENT OF STREETS

At its meeting last Monday evening the Board of Selectmen voted to appoint James Hinds Town Engineer for one year until April 1, 1928. No appointment of Superintendent of Streets was made and it is believed that a successor to Mr. Hinds in this position is being sought. Since the resignation of Mr. T. Parker Clarke the two offices have been consolidated and have been filled by Mr. Hinds. It is understood the appointment of the Superintendent of Streets is being held over until Monday's meeting of the Board.

Tuesday afternoon shortly after 5 o'clock while Alvah E. Campbell of Revere was backing a White truck, the property of the Arrow Markets of Boston, on Main street, opposite the Economy Store in the square, the machine narrowly avoided striking Arthur O'Brien of Nelson street who had stepped from the sidewalk directly into the path of the car. A small cart which the boy had with him was smashed by the truck.

CALUMET CLUB NOTES

At the regular monthly evening bridge held last Friday evening Mrs. R. L. Emery, hostess, Mrs. Dickson won first ladies' prize; Mrs. Bowe, second; and Mrs. Chase, third. Mr. Sittinger won first gentlemen's; Mr. Cameron, second and Mr. Chase, third.

We hope members have made arrangements to attend the annual meeting dinner Saturday night. If members have neglected to send in their names, a few, as a matter of convenience, may be accommodated at the last moment, if you will telephone the Club House now.

The regular monthly ladies' afternoon bridge will be held on Wednesday.

The mixed entertainment which was scheduled for Friday, April 22, has been cancelled, but a dancing party will be given instead on the evening of May 6 at the conclusion of the mixed bowling dinner. Those who do not attend the dinner are invited to the dance.

Grip, stance, position, driving, putting, hooks and slices—Harry Bowler gave us a very interesting evening last Saturday, showing us by means of the movies how the game should be played. He showed us Cooper, Jones and Ouimet in action and by means of the slow action of the movies, we were privileged to see just how the shot should be made. Harry generally charges us a fair price for the real thing but members were especially privileged in receiving instruction from him by means of the pictures. Afterwards, we were treated to some instructions by Harry in person, in which he used our golf net. Speaking about Jones he said, the champion had recently reached the age of 25 and had sent out word that hereafter he was to be called "Bob" Jones.

It is pleasing to note that the ladies are running up some good scores in bowling. The men will have to look to their laurels. On one night last week we note that Mrs. Arthur S. Kelley rolled a two-string total which was higher than that of any of the men. Her strings were 97 and 95—very even bowling.

We were pleased to see Elmer P. Randlet around again after his long illness. Whist now will be considerably enlivened.

Calumet members will be pleased to note that Retired Exalted Ruler, Fred H. School of Winchester Lodge of Elks was recently honored by being presented with a handsome gold watch, suitably inscribed, and also with a handsome black leather travelling bag, which we understand he is to use on his coming trip to Cincinnati in attendance at the Grand Lodge Convention.

EPIPHANY MEN ELECT SAME OFFICERS

About 80 men attended the dinner and meeting of the Epiphany Men's Club held Monday evening in the Parish House of the Church.

Following a Lenten supper which was served by ladies of the church under the direction of Mrs. Samuel M. Best a brief busines sesion of the club was held at which the present officers were re-elected for the year to come.

President Sidney S. Paine called upon the retiring Rector, Rev. Allen Evans, who spoke briefly. It was also voted to attend in a body the coming union service of the town's Masonic bodies which is to be held on Sunday, April 24 at the First Congregational Church and at which Rev. Mr Evans is to give the address.

The speaker of the evening was Rev. Howard Stillman Galt, former acting President of Pekin University, who spoke most interestingly upon, "The New Nationalism in China." Following his address Dr. Galt good naturedly answered questions which were flung at him for more than an hour.

President Sidney S. Paine.
Vice-President Edward S. Larned
Secretary Charles T. Lapdee.
Treasurer John W. Johnson.
Board of Directors Harry F. Bezien, William E. Cole, Robert F. Davis, Thomas I. Freeburn, Ralph L. Garner, Frederick N. Hamerstrom, Waldo L. Hart, Donald Heath, Richard S. Higgens, Edward B. Smalley, Charles F. Smith and Robert A. Spong

Word received from Mrs. Alonzo F. Woodside, who is at present in Norway, describes a winter sports' meet which she witnessed at Oslo in which between four and five hundred ski jumpers performed; each making two flights between 1 and 4.30 in the afternoon. She enclosed pictures of the jumpers who display marvelous form.

SOCIAL NOTES

Since the Ordway-Farnsworth wedding everyone has seemed too worn out to do much socially.

On Wednesday, April 13, the final meeting of the "Handkerchief" Club was held at the home of Mrs. Maurice Tompkins. This club has been in existence some 10 years and at every meeting except the final one, a handkerchief is given as a prize and at the final meeting three large and one consolation are given. This year they were won by Mrs. Cutler B. Downer, Mrs. Maurice Tompkins, Mrs. Miles Holbrook, and the consolation went to Mrs. J. Churchill Hindes.

Mr. and Mrs. John Tredennick entertained five couples for dinner at their home on Wednesday.

Mr. Joshua C. Kelley has arrived home from Southern Pines where he has been with Mrs. Kelley for the past two weeks. Mrs. Kelley will continue visiting friends for another fortnight.

Mr. and Mrs. Cutler B. Downer left Thursday to spend Easter with Mr. and Mrs. Norman C. Ives in Wyssefield, Philadelphia.

Mrs. Vincent Farnsworth (formerly Miss Dorothy Ordway) is recovering comfortably from her operation at the Phillips House in Boston.

It is hoped that a large crowd of young people will go to the Country Club dance Monday night. There is good music there but for some unknown reason there seems to be a dearth of those between 20 and 30.

Miss Carolyn H. Russell who is studying at Katharine Gibbs School this year, and whose home is in North Adams, will be the guest of Miss Linda Tredennick over the week-end.

Miss Barbara Lord, of New York City will be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. William P. M. DeCamp for the Technology Junior Prom.

Mr. Charles C. Clarke, formerly of Winchester, will also be a guest of the DeCamps.

Not All Bad Lands Desert

The Bad lands of South Dakota cannot, strictly speaking, be classed as a desert region. The term is somewhat misleading, as the land is fertile, except where it is so steep that vegetation is washed off. In level portions buffalo grass grows and supports great herds of cattle. Good water is usually found in shallow wells and considerable farming is carried on.

Something To Think Over

used candles, pumped water,
spun cloth,
made clothing for all the members of the family,
cobbled shoes,
and never dreamed of radio, telephone, automobiles, or aeroplanes.

Would you like to step backward from this age of comfort and convenience into that day when living was such an arduous business?

THEY ALSO DID THEIR OWN LAUNDRY WORK!

They never dreamed of sunny, sanitary buildings devoted exclusively to scientific washing and ironing, under the direction of people especially trained in this form of service.

Our plants are among the most up-to-date in the country. Do you know about the possibilities they offer to the average housewife? Ask our salesman as he calls at your neighbor's door.

TOURISTS CAME TO GRIEF

Shortly after 11 o'clock Monday morning a Willys-Knight sedan registered to Charles A. Preston of Maple street, Contoocook, N. H., was rammed in the rear by an Overland "Whippet" when its driver, Miss Dorothea Preston, stopped on Cambridge street near Glen road to allow passengers to alight from an electric car.

The operator of the "Whippet," Mrs. Frank LeRiche of 22 Robinson street, Lowell, was cut by glass from the broken windshield of her machine and was taken for treatment to the Symmes Hospital, Arlington, in the Preston car. She was accompanied at the time of the accident by her young son. Mr. and Mrs. Preston were with their daughter in the sedan. The machines were only slightly damaged.

WINCHESTER MEETS READING SATURDAY MORNING

At Reading's request Winchester has put its game scheduled with Reading High School for Friday afternoon ahead to Saturday morning at 10 o'clock on Manchester Field. A civic observance of a religious nature made it impossible for the visitors to fulfil their original contract, and with the Medford game on Wednesday Coach Mansfield was unwilling to play Thursday as Reading stipulated. "Bobby" Callahan will start on the mound for Winchester.

FIREMEN HAVING BUSY TIME

The Winchester Fire Department continues to have plenty of runs largely for grass and brush fires. After answering four alarms on Friday the men were called out twice Saturday, the first time at 3:45 in the afternoon for a grass fire on Lawson road and the second time at 9:50 in the evening for a fire which had been discovered smouldering in a hollow tree at the Unitarian Church.

Sunday morning at 11:4 there was a grass fire on Lake street at the rear of Mr. T. Quigley's stable and at 12:30 there was a second fire there which spread to Palmer street.

At 7:40 Monday morning Chief McIntosh of the police notified headquarters of a grass fire on Cambridge street at Myopia road and at 1:14 in the afternoon there was a second alarm for burning grass in the rear of the Baird Body Shop on Main street. There were four more grass fires the same afternoon at Railroad avenue, Pond street, Lebanon street and Canal street at Sylvester avenue.

Tuesday morning's first grass fire was on Salisbury road at 10 o'clock. At 6 o'clock the Central Station was notified that the bridge on Railroad avenue was afire, but the men upon arrival could find nothing wrong. Grass fires on Middlesex street and Woodside road at 7:12 ended the day.

Wednesday's first run was to Cross and Forest streets for burning grass and at 12:46 in the afternoon there was a similar fire on Everett avenue.

CRUISING IN THE CARIBBEAN

A 22 Day Trip Over the Old "Spanish Main"

On Friday, April 22 the Winchester Post will have the pleasure of looking over an interesting travelogue film which has been secured through the courtesy of the United Fruit Company. The film portrays a cruise on one of the ships of the great White Fleet from New York to Havana, to the Isle of Jamaica, to the Canal Zone through Costa Rica and home.

Some interesting scenes are given of native life, it pictures the sugar industry in all its details, and presents the Panama Canal, from Cristobal on the Atlantic Coast to the old City of Panama on the Pacific entrance. The famous Gatun Dam, locks and spillways are all shown in such a way as to make the observerer feel as though he were actually on the scene

Telephone on Organ

The organ at the Liverpool (England) cathedral is equipped with a complete telephone system. The instrument is so vast that, when the tuners are at work, 17 telephones are required in order that those engaged on outlying parts of the organ may communicate with the man manipulating the keyboard.

CONNORS, MEDFORD ACE, TOO GOOD FOR WINCHESTER

"Danny" Connors, star right hander of the Medford High School baseball team, proved much too good for Coach Mansfield's Winchester team Wednesday afternoon, the locals going down to defeat on Manchester Field by the close score of 2—0.

The game was very slow and on the whole uninteresting. "Earnie" Roberts evidently did not hold his former pupils too cheaply when he elected to send his pitching ace to the rubber against Winchester and his choice proved good. Two widely scattered hits were the sum total of the local batters' offense against apple-checked "Danny," but before panning the boys too vigorously it could be well to remember that this same young man is one of the best schoolboy hurlers in the state.

"Lefty" Hatch, Winchester's rangy southpaw, went the distance for Winchester and pitched one sweet ball game. He allowed the heavy hitting visitors 7 hits, while fanning 10 and passing 3, a great early season showing.

It was this same McCune who started the trouble in the 2nd when he got a lucky double along the third base line to start the frame. Elliott lifted to Murphy in center and Connors rolled to Smith whose throw to first was a bit high, allowing McCune to tally. Montague made no effort to knock the ball down, and in justice to "Smitty" the throw was by no means out of the lot. A little effort on "Red's" part might have saved a run. He is new at the bag and one of the things he must learn is that no first sacker is any better than his ability to spear the bad ones. Aside from this lapse he looked very good out there and got one of Winchester's two hits, the other going to Ray Halwartz.

The locals looked much better than against Belmont, the work of Franklin behind the plate showing a noticeable improvement. "Barney" Murphy had a tough day at second, but it must be remembered that previous to this year he has always played on the other side of the keystone bag.

GRANADA ATTRACTIONS

The 2500 plush seats at the Granada Theatre in Malden are pretty sure to be filled today and Saturday when "Husband Hunters," a picture depicting the swift lives of chorus girls will be presented. "Husband Hunters" tells the story of a quartette of chorus girls who have forsworn gold digging for the more lucrative practice of meeting millionaires and mapping out a life of ease and comfort once the social lion is landed in the matrimonial net. The vaudeville program for today and Saturday is of the same high calibre that is always found at the Granada. Grace Elaine & Co., bright light of musical comedy and late co-star with Al Jolson in "Big Boy," is one of the big stage attractions. The Melva Sisters, two girls who know their music, is another feature on the current variety bill. K. T. Kuma, a clever Japanese illusionist, offers a novel act that is entirely different from the ordinary run. The other two acts combine, song, fun and dance in just the right proportions to round out a bill of hits.

Milton Sills in "The Sea Tiger," will be presented for three days at the Granada starting next Monday. It is the story of two brothers and their devotion to one another. The locale is the Canary Islands and into their peaceful life comes a show girl. Mary Astor, who is destined to become a big star, plays the leading feminine role, while Larry Kent gives a fine performance as the brother. This picture is hailed as the best thing Mr. Sills has done since "Men of Steel."

FLORENCE CRITTENTON MEETING AT BRIGHTON

The next meeting of the Winchester Circle of the Florence Crittenton League will be held at the Florence Crittenton Home at 10 Perthshire road, Brighton, on Thursday, April 21, at 2.30 p. m. Cars will take the Winchester group starting together at the Winchester Station at 1.30. Anyone wishing transportation will please get in touch with Mrs. Geo. Heintz, 9 Everett avenue, (tel. Win. 0255.) Also, Mrs. Heintz would like to hear from anyone who has a car at her disposal and will be willing to assist in taking the members to this meeting.

This should prove to be a very interesting meeting for there will be an inspection of the Home after the meeting. The speaker of the afternoon is to be Mrs. Wm. Healey who will speak on training in citizenship for young people as a preventative of delinquency.

It is further requested that members bring with them to this meeting the blue and yellow bags in which they have been putting pennies for rainy and sunny days, when they will be collected by the chairman, Mrs. Rufus L. Clark. If anyone cannot come to the meeting, Mrs. Clark would like to have the bags left at her house 64 Bacon street before the meeting. The Circle hopes to raise a substantial sum from these bags as it still has obligations to meet towards the room at the Home which it is supporting.

SCHOOL CLOSES FRIDAY

Adolph, 10 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Hans Von Vittinghoff of Mt. Vernon street was treated last Sunday afternoon at the Winchester Hospital for cuts about the face and head sustained when his father's automobile left the roadway and struck a telegraph pole while headed north on Cambridge street at Bedford road in Burlington. Mr. and Mrs. Von Vittinghoff were badly shaken up, but were not seriously hurt.

TOWN LACKS VISION

To the Editor of the Star:

I wonder if the Town of Winchester realizes just what it has done in neglecting to purchase the former Forse-Boynton lot on the corner of Washington street and the Parkway at a reasonable figure.

Even if the opposite lot is bought for a library, should not this fine lot with its sloping ground and noble trees, right in the heart of the town, near its public buildings, be bought and held for future use? Does it not lack vision to let it be cut up into small house lots?

The surroundings of a public library are as important as the building itself. The wide expanse of green lawn in front of one of Richardson's gems,—the Woburn Public Library adds in no small measure to make it a thing of joy to all beholders. With the High School and Memorial Monument on one side, the pond with its island of graceful trees on its other, it seems as if there should be a lawn or some worthwhile edifice on the third side.

Another consideration is the fact that small houses near the front of the lot would obstruct the view of autoists who already find the crossing at the intersection of Washington street and the Parkway dangerous and difficult.

I trust it is not too late for the Town to reconsider the purchasing of this lot to be held in reserve for something which is sure to be needed in the future.

LAUDS WORK OF CHAMBER

Geo. F. Arnold, President,
Winchester Chamber of Commerce,
Winchester, Mass.

Dear Sir:

I have received my bill for dues from April 1, 1927 to April 1, 1928 attached to a letter showing some of the wonderful work that has been accomplished by the Chamber.

I wish to give favorable comment to this plan of making members acquainted as well as the public at large of the good things that have been obtained by the loyal efforts of active members. Many of us who may not be as actively interested as those who bear the brunt of the real work, fail to realize what the body has been instrumental in accomplishing unless some form of calling our attention to these matters is provided. I think the Chamber is to be congratulated and should feel proud of its accomplishments for the year 1927.

Enclosed please find my check for dues mentioned and a sincere wish for continued prosperity and a desire to meet you again at the annual banquet on April 21, 1927.

Very truly yours,
W. M. Crotty

AGNES WESTCOTT JOHNSON

Agnes Westcott Johnson, widow of Warren Johnson and a former teacher in the Winchester schools, died Sunday night at her home on Washington street. Mrs. Johnson had been ill for about five weeks and had been thought to be recovering when she was suddenly stricken Sunday, death coming in a few hours.

Mrs. Johnson was born at Upton, 81 years ago and was the daughter of William and Judith (Barker) Westcott. She came to Winchester in 1870 and the next year was appointed a teacher in the grade schools of the town, a position which she held for 11 years. Many of the older residents of the town remember her affectionately and mourn her passing.

In 1883 she was married to Mr. Johnson who died in 1912. A sister, Miss Laura Westcott of Winchester and one niece, Miss Isabel Westcott of Framingham, survive her.

Funeral services were held on Wednesday afternoon at the late residence and were conducted by Rev. Howard J. Chidley, pastor of the First Congregational Church. Interment was in the family lot at Woodbrooke Cemetery, Woburn.

FREDERIC ARTHUR ROBINSON

Frederic Arthur Robinson, for 27 years a resident of Winchester, passed away last Friday night at his home on Wildwood street after a brief illness.

Mr. Robinson was 87 years of age and a native of Thomaston, Me., the son of Edward and Nancy James (Fales) Robinson. For some years before coming to Winchester, when he retired, he had been engaged in the grocery and provision business at Hudson. As a young man, like so many of his fellow townsmen, he spent several years at sea and before settling in Hudson was located for a time in New Jersey and later in North Carolina.

The deceased was a widower and is survived by two daughters, Alida L. and Amy Robinson of Winchester, with whom he made his home and by two sons, Edward of Burlington, Vt., and Harold B. Robinson of this town.

Funeral services were held at the late residence last Sunday afternoon and were conducted by the Rev. George Hale Reed, pastor of the Unitarian Church. Interment was in Wildwood Cemetery.

NEW COMMITTEE MAKE-UP

A new composition of the committee appointed to consider the erection of a new Junior High School and changes in structure of the present High School was announced this week. This comes about through the resignation of two of the appointees, Messrs. James J. Fitzgerald and Charles H. Dutch. In their stead Mr. Willard T. Carleton and Dr. Richard W. Sheehy have received appointment, making the composition of the present committee, Mr. Robert F. Guild, Robert M. Stone, Edward A. Tucker, Willard T. Carleton and Dr. Richard W. Sheehy.

CANOEING AT CAMP CONTOOCOOK

The beginning of spring causes one to wonder about a suitable camp for the boys. Such a one is Camp Contoocook located at Lake Contoocook, East Jaffrey, N. H. This camp supervised by competent men of long experience is only 60 miles from Winchester by auto. The accessibility of Mount Monadnock and Temple Hills makes mountain climbing attractive. Among the other supervised sports are swimming, boating, canoeing, baseball, tennis, horseback riding and bowling. Mr. Frank Moses, one of the instructors, is physical instructor at the Carnegie Institute, Pittsburgh, Pa., while Mr. Walter Campbell occupies a similar position at the University of Rochester, Rochester, N. Y. Reference, Albert S. Snow, 55 Yale street, tel. Win. 0827-M.

AVERAGE MAN WORTH 98 CENTS

Chemically speaking the average man 5 ft. 10 in. high, weighing 150 lbs., is made of the following substances:

Enough fat to make 7 bars of soap.
Enough sugar to fill a shaker.
Enough lime to whitewash a chicken coop.
Enough phosphorus to make 2200 match tips.
Enough magnesium for a dose of magnesia.
Enough potassium to explode a toy cannon.
Together with a little sulphur.

In eating three meals a day people should think in terms of sufficient fat, sugar and minerals to keep up these general proportions. Most important of all these are the minerals.

A recent bulletin of the State Department of Public Health gives the necessary amount of minerals for each day's food supply as follows:

One egg.
One serving of meat, or fish, or dried beans or cheese.
One potato.
One large serving of a leafy vegetable.
One serving of whole grain bread or cereal.
A serving of fruit.

If you would keep your value at the 98 cent market it would be wise to check up on your diet and see if it includes these mineral-containing foods.

Old Welsh Association

The Gorsedd is an assembly, an essential part of the modern Eisteddfod, the national bardic congress of Wales, whose objects are to encourage bardism, the Welsh language and customs and to foster and cultivate a patriotic spirit. It is divided into three orders, the bards, the Druid bards and the Ovate bards. The first are the poets; the second, religious teachers, and the third, persons interested in literature, science and art. The Druid is the highest grade. Women and men are eligible for all degrees. The first Gorsedd was held in America in connection with the World's fair eisteddfod at Chicago in 1893.

Whether the autumn of your life shall be joyous or joyless depends on how we spend the spring and summer.—Forbes Magazine

"The Cadenza"

A "cadenza" is an ornamental part introduced near the close of a solo, or song. Sometimes it is written by the composer of the song and sometimes by the performer. It is inserted really as a technical display to show off the ability of the performer. It is not so much in vogue now as formerly, and is dying out.

FARNSWORTH—ORDWAY

The first of the weddings arranged for the spring season in Winchester took place in the First Congregational Church last Saturday evening when Miss Dorothy Ordway, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Clarence E. Ordway of Main street, became the bride of Vincent Farnsworth, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Farnsworth of Copley street. The ceremony was performed at 8 o'clock by the Pastor of the Church Rev. Howard J. Chidley, who was assisted by Rev. Fletcher D. Parker of Winchester, the latter a cousin of the bride.

Miss Marjory Ordway of Winchester was her sister's honor attendant and the bridesmaids were Miss Virginia Hart of New Britain, Conn.; Miss Marjory O. Ellis of Montclair, N. J.; Mrs. J. Sidney Stone of Bronxville, N. Y.; and Miss Rosamond H. Lefavour of Winchester. Mr. Farnsworth had for his best man his brother, Harold V. Farnsworth, of Winchester.

The bride wore her mother's wedding gown of ivory satin with rose point lace. Her veil was of Venetian applique lace, held with a circlet of orange blossoms, and she carried a shower bouquet of lillies of the valley and gardenias. The maid of honor was attired in shell pink chiffon while the frocks of the bridesmaids were of chiffon in a pale green shade. All carried arm bouquets of spring flowers.

Following the ceremony a largely attended reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, the young couple being assisted in receiving by Dr. and Mrs. Clarence E. Ordway and Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Farnsworth. The ushers, for both wedding and reception, were John R. Ordway, brother of the bride; Edward A. Neiley and Richard F. Fenno of Winchester; Alfred O. Norris of Lawrence, L. I.; L. Cottrell Farrell of Easton, Pa.; and Edward M. Greene, Jr., of New York City.

Both Mr. Farnsworth and his bride are popular among Winchester's younger set. The bride is a graduate of Walnut Hill School and of Smith College, Class of 1925. The groom prepared for college at Andover and graduated from Sheffield Scientific School at Yale in 1924. While at Yale he was a member of the varsity hockey team and of St. Anthony Hall. He is associated in business with the Heywood Wakefield Co. Mr. and Mrs. Farnsworth are to make their home in Gardner at 20 Blanchard place.

SPRING BOWLING TOURNAMENT

Straight wins were made in the spring bowling tournament at the Calumet Club Tuesday night, teams 5, 6 and 7 winning all four points each from teams 2, 4 and 3. The scores as a rule were much below the average, although in a few instances good strings were rolled.

WATCH YOUR WHEELS BEFORE STARTING

That's the advice Michael Nelson of Cross street is offering other motorists who chance to park their vehicles in a vicinity where there happens to be boys having an enquiring turn of mind coupled with an utter disregard for the personal property of others.

It chanced that Mr. Nelson left his truck parked last Friday on Swanton street, near Main street. In his absence a youngster wondered what would happen, if anyone were to put a stout stick of wood between the spokes of one of the machine's after wheels and left it there until such time as the driver should attempt to start the vehicle. To wonder was to venture and the results were immediate and startling. The truck sustained broken brake band and Mr. Nelson was exceeding wroth. He communicated with the police with the admonition to work quickly and to good purpose.

Sergeant Cassidy investigated the matter with the result that the boy who conducted the experiment in elementary mechanics learned, along with other conclusions drawn, the net cost for installing new brake bands on Mr. Nelson's automobile. It is doubtful if what he learned was worth the price, the old saw, "Knowledge is Power," notwithstanding to the contrary.

YOUR

THE WORLD WAR IS OVER

While political peace has lifted the necessity of many kinds of conservation, still the war on our natural coal resources continues. Now it's conservation of our national fuel supply that is occupying the thoughts of many of our greatest minds.

Science tells us that no other way of conserving coal into power and heat is so conserving of our coal supply as by using its great potential energy in the form of gas. Gas represents the utmost fuel efficiency both from the standpoint of the manufacturer of gas and from that of the user of gas. In the first place, in making gas from coal, every particle of the mineral is utilized. In the second place when you, the user, buy gas instead of coal you get full efficiency from everything you pay for, there are no cinders, ashes or smoke left over,—a total loss on your books.

None of our treasure from under the earth is wasted if it's used in the form of gas. In conserving the rapidly diminishing natural resources of coal, as in the solution of many other modern problems, "you can do it better with gas."

NEW STAINED GLASS WINDOW DEDICATED

At First Congregational Church In Memory of Marshall Watkins Jones and Annie Merrill Jones

A Gift From Their Son, M. Walker Jones

At the dedication of a window given by Mr. W. Walker Jones in memory of his father and mother at the First Congregational Church Sunday morning, Mr. Chidley said in part:

"The window which we dedicate today is in memory of Marshall Watkins Jones and Annie Merrill Jones. Marshall W. Jones was born in Edensburg, Pennsylvania, Mar. 22, 1853. When he was a boy 11 years of age, his father joined the army, to fight with the Northern forces in the Civil War. He was killed at Fort Steadman in 1865. On the morning of his departure to join his regiment, his wife and five children accompanied him to the little railway station and as he bade them good-bye, one by one, he whispered to Marshall W. Jones, who was the oldest of the children, that he must take care of the family now. He then swung onto the rear platform of the last coach and waved to them until the train passed out of sight.

He little knew, nor did Marshall, the responsibility which he had placed on the boy as he left the family in his charge.

There was one of the children in the local Postoffice when each mail came in, anxiously awaiting a letter from the father. One day the coveted letter came and one of the little boys was first in line as the wicket was shoved open and the letter handed to him. He burst out of the Postoffice and ran for home exultantly waving the letter and shouting to everyone whom he saw, " A letter from Dad, a letter from Dad." No words of mine can picture the excitement in that little home as the children gathered round the mother to listen to this letter.

Then came the cruel telegram notifying Marshall W. Jones' mother of his father's death in battle. Then the funeral in the little country cemetery and the widow going back to the folorn home with her six children, for another child had been born six weeks before the father's death. She was not a woman to give way to tears but immediately set herself to the task of feeding six hungry mouths by becoming a seamstress. The neighbors were wonderously kind to the widow. When the wood-pile was getting low, there would mysteriously appear a load of wood unaccompanied by a bill and when spring came, some kind neighbor would appear with a plough and plough the little garden. The mother kept the precious letter in the family Bible and it is a question which she read the most.

Marshall W. Jones assumed his boyish responsibilities as a provider for the family, and went to work, first in a brickyard, then grinding bark in a tannery. He later became a telepgraph operator, then a bookkeeper in Zanesville, and finally a travelling salesman for the same firm. In 1882 he and his younger brother, Seward W. Jones, opened a granite business in Boston by pooling their capital of $2700. They had an office 10 by 12 at 55 Kilby street and launched out on the enterprise which has grown increasingly profitable.

Mr. and Mrs. Jones came to Winchester to live in 1900. Mr. Jones immediately entered into the civic activities of Winchester with the fine public spirit which characterized him to the day of his death. He was for years, on the Directors' Board of the Home for Aged People and left to it and to the Florence Crittenton League a legacy in his will. With Dr. Allen he served on the Board of Public Health for many years, and they together, set the high standards and ideals by which the Board is still governed. He served on the Parish Committee of this church and was always a wise counsellor in its affairs.

My memory of him is of a friendly man passing the parsonage every morning on his way to the station, with a cheery greeting and wave of the hand. He was always modest, friendly, quiet, with a keen insight into affairs and a shrewd but kind judgment of people. No better theme could have been chosen for the window which commemorates him and Mrs. Jones, than "Faith." He had faith in man, in destiny, and in God, and the world is poorer without him.

Annie Merrill Jones, his wife, was born in Gardiner, Me., in 1861. As a strange coincidence, she lost her mother when she was about 8 years old and early took on the responsibility of the home, and the care of a younger sister. Her father was a sea-captain and therefore was away from home a great deal. She came to Boston as a seamstress, and was married to Marshall W. Jones in 1891. Her interest in social service was largely that for the Home for Aged People, where she brought to bear her sympathetic understanding. Her prime interest however, was her home, it was her kingdom, where she lighted up its activities with a motherly and kindly interest. Both Mr. and Mrs. Jones died in 1922, a few months apart.

This church does well to commemorate them, and we gratefully accept the gift of this window, so typical of their joint lives, from their son, Mr. M. Walker Jones.

MUSIC GARDEN

The regular meeting of the Music Garden was held on Tuesday evening April 12, at the home of Mrs. Mavis G. Peterson. Although the attendance was relatively small, owing to the fact that a rehearsal of "The Gondoliers" claimed a number of Music Garden members on that evening, nevertheless a most delightful program was rendered and enjoyed.

A special feature of the evening was the music for two pianos -a treat which is not possible in many private homes. Mr. Carters' report of current events in the musical world was also very interesting. He gave an account of a young pianist named Goldsand who has just made his debut in New York. Mr. Goldsand, although only 16 years old, plays with a perfection of technique which is quite remarkable But besides that, he has a strong personality which permeates his work with poetry and sweetness and variety of expression which are truly remarkable. Mr. Louis Parker, the great musical critic, foresees a great future for Mr. Goldsand.

UNIVERSITY THEATRE

It is a story of springtime in Paris, and Irene Rich is captivating and clever in her interpretation of Mme. Cartier in "Don't Tell the Wife." It was ther seventh wedding anniversary and all was as harmonious as one could wish, when the fascinating flirt appeared among the guests, and friend husband became very much smitten. Then comes the tangle which desn't get straightened out till the very end of the story. The cast includes, in addition to Irene Rich, Huntley Gordon, Lilyon Tashman, Otis Harlan and William Demarest. It is showing at the University for four days beginning Sunday.

On the same program is "The Magic Garden" with Margaret Morris and Raymond Keane. This is an exquisite picture of youthful romance from the last novel by Gene Stratton Porter, author of "Laddie," "The Girl of the Limberlost," "Freckles," and "The Magic Garden" is her greatest story.

The program for the last three days of the week includes "Hills of Kentucky" with Rin-Tin-Tin and "Nobody's Widow" with Leatrice Joy. "Hills of Kentucky" is adapted from Dorothy Yost's story "The Untamed Heart." Rin-Tin-Tin appears as "The Grey Ghost," a dog who leads a hungry pack upon depredation through the mountain hamlets. Dorothy Dawn plays the young mountain school teacher.

"Nobody's Widow" is an Avery Hopwood comedy starring Leatrice Joy an dfeaturing Charles Ray, Phyllis Haver and David Butler. The story starts in England where the "widow" after being happily married voluntarily goes into "widowhood" and skips to Santa Barbara, Cal.

M. C. W. G. NOTES

The postponed regular meeting of the local Branch will be held on next Monday evening at 8:15. This is the regular meeting which would have been held last evening, but owing to Holy Thursday observance it was postponed until Monday.

Plans for a joint installation and initiation are to come before this meeting and it is hoped a large proportion of our membership will be present. Formerly our installation of officers has taken place jiontly with several of the other branches at an out-oftown location, but this year it is planned to have our own installation exercises here in Winchester and to combine the installation with an invitation for new members who have been on our waiting list.

Travesty on Coffee Served by Javanese

Java coffee is renowned the world over—in the bean. In the cup, as served in the Dutch tropical possessions, it is a frightful travesty on coffee, writes Samuel G. Blythe in the Saturday Evening Post.

They roast the bean until it is almost burned, and grind it. Then they let water drip through it or employ some other occult process, and produce a black, thick, acrid mixture they call coffee essence. This is served cold in a little pitcher, with a larger pitcher of hot water. The plot is to pour some of the essence into your cup, fill the cup with the hot water and revel in the murky combination.

It doesn't taste like coffee. It tastes like some sort of chemical solution used for cleaning rugs. That is a detail. There isn't a good cupful of coffee, or a cupful of good coffee, to be had outside of the United States anywhere in this world, so why impeach the Dutchman's idea of the brew?

Classes of Books

There are only two kinds of books, those we wish had never been started and those we wish went on forever.—G. K. Chesterton.

Grand Canyon Marvel of Peace and Beauty

We did not expect to love the canyon. Friends had presaged a deep, overwhelming round of earth's side. Colored postals and railroad folders had prepared us for crudely hued lozenges on the precipitate walls. We expected neat, zebra stripes of vermilion, ochre and cobalt.

Instead we looked into the beautiful soft gulch of the canyon and our hearts were won. The crisp Arizona morning was cupped there when we first beheld it—on the deep sunken plateau with its dotted firs, on the pale pastels of the irregular far walls. Truncated peaks wore crowns of melted azure light and lower wreaths of faded geranium. The immense peace of the great jagged bowl played over us, an unplumbed, unfathomable mantle of serenity.

We saw colors change, the pinks grow dull, the soft bands of azure break up, and etherize in the full noon, then brood together as the lights lengthened, and set in colder strands of petunia blue. On the slab side of the river walls we saw the sweetest pearls cling and the gulf brim with frostier blues, until it lost them in dusk and night. Then on the brim in the high, clean wind we walked by that invisible cavern, saw the stars, large, fringed and low, and knew that vast as a familiar place where we could be at peace.—Christian Science Monitor.

Ancient Industry Is That of Bread Baking

Baking is probably the very oldest industry man engaged in. Wheat and barley, the oldest cereals known to have been found, together with the plowshare fashioned of wood and the stone hand mill consisting of a hollowed stone and a stone bolt-shaped crusher, among the remains left by prehistoric man. The oldest bread was made in the form of cakes or fritters simply prepared by mixing wheat or barley to a batter with water and milk and baking these batter cakes of maybe the size and form of our present-day griddle cakes on hot ashes or over red-hot coals, or a hot stone, which represented the first bread pan and oven combined. Salt was probably the only other ingredient used besides the milk and water, as there was no baking powder and yeast was not used until brewing beer from germinated barley had become known. The Egyptians had perfected both baking and brewing 1,500 years before the beginning of the Christian era.

Rubbing It In

A well-known actress was appearing in a play with a certain actor who was noted for his irritability. He complained that the woman continually laughed at him during one of his most important scenes.

At last he wrote her a letter, in which he said: "I am extremely sorry to tell you that it is impossible for me to make any effect in my scene if you persist in laughing at me on the stage. May I ask you to change your manner, as the scene is a most trying one?"

To this the actress replied: "You are quite mistaken. I never laugh at you on the stage. I wait till I get home!"

New One

It was to blow out a match that John Helfetz speeded his automobile through North Broadway, Yonkers, at 35 miles an hour.

"I had three girls in my car and one of them tried to light a cigarette," he explained to the judge, adding: "I guess I'm a bit old-fashioned. I didn't want my girl to smoke, so I stepped on the gas. The breeze blew out every match she tried to light."

And the judge smilingly said that that was a new one and suspended sentence.

Fox Changes Color

The blue fox is a color phase of the Arctic, or white fox, which is circumpolar in range, being found particularly along the seacoast of Arctic and subarctic regions. Its normal winter coat is white, while the summer pelage is brown and tawny. The blue fox is dark bluish in winter and tends toward brownish in summer. There are intermediates in which the coat may be spotted blue and white, or the blue and white may be blended, producing a dingy or smoky white appearance.

Leading Languages

French is possibly the simplest language to learn. The German grammar is extremely complicated and English pronunciation is difficult for certain foreigners. The English language also contains a great number of colloquialisms used in everyday speech which takes some time to acquire. All languages do not contain the same number of words. The English language contains approximately 700,000 words; German dictionaries contain about 300,000 words; French, 210,000 words.

Fortune Close at Hand

Whatever is necessary for your improvement, your enjoyment, your usefulness, is close to you. Distance lends enchantment to the view, but when a man is wise he knows he is standing on enchanted ground. A man's star is never in the sky. It is in his brain. Your ship of gold is not on the high seas; it is at the quay waiting to be unloaded and discharged. Your fortune is not at the bottom of a rainbow; it is at your feet.—W. L. Watkinson.

DAILY PHILOSOPHY

Somebody did a golden deed,
Somebody proved a friend indeed,
Somebody said, "I'm glad to give."
Was that Somebody you?

What others think of you is your reputation, your community considers your case, and you are thus reckoned up.

Sooner or later the local weather prophet is bound to make a correct prediction. It does not seem possible but that sometime he must guess correctly. He has our sympathy in the unfortunate conditions which have prevailed during the past year and a half.

Police Headquarters was notified at 6.35 Monday morning that two men had been seen and frightened away while attempting to steal a baby carriage from the yard of a house on Lebanon street. The police were unable to locate the men and it was later discovered that they had been seen at 5.15 in the morning, one hour and twenty minutes before Headquarters had been notified. Calls for assistance must be promptly made, if the police are to accomplish much of anything. Few crooks will wait around over an hour to be captured.

An interesting experiment is to be tried out in this town by the State Board of Health in conjunction with our local board. For the first time in the history of the State a health survey, covering the seven contagious diseases and other important health factors, is to be undertaken. Winchester has been selected as affording an ideal location for the undertaking, both in size, location and environment. We are, as is generally known, a pretty healthy community, and the result of the survey here will be eagerly anticipated and carry much weight in the compilation of health data. Beginning the first of May, a group of five workers from the State Board of Health will visit every family in town. Data will be secured regarding the seven contagious diseases—diphtheria, scarlet fever, measles, mumps, whooping cough, chicken pox and german measles, together with other data regarding any sickness whatever experienced during the past year. An appeal is made to the residents of Winchester to return prompt and accurate answers to the questions asked and it should be born in mind that being wholly for census purposes, all answers are confidential. It may be taken as complimentary to Winchester that this town has been selected for the experiment, and it is hoped that the results derived therefrom will be such as to warrant satisfactory and far-reaching results.

The Selectmen it is learned this week, are having difficulty over the appointment of a Superintendent of Streets. The matter of the Town Engineer was settled on Monday night, Mr. Hinds being reappointed. Next Monday evening the Superintendency is expected to be settled. This is a matter which holds much interest to all of our citizens; in fact ever since the year one, Winchester residents have condemned and commended street superintendents. It is a difficult job in itself and a difficult job in the public eye. That the Selectmen are considering a change comes, in a way, as a surprise, although more or less talk was circulated at election time over the matter. At that time is was dismissed as political propaganda, and the fact that it is still a debatable point has been kept under cover. Of course the STAR as well as everyone else, understands that many matters are considered by our Selectmen which cannot be made public, but in days gone by it was the custom of the Board to publish in the STAR a summary of their doings and activities which was very eagerly read and which furnished much desirable and important information to the town at large. When this news was boiled down to pole locations and wire changes, it was felt hardly worth the space it occupied. Our last change in the street superintendency came some years ago in the uniting of the two offices—Town Engineer and Superintendent of Streets. At that time there was considerable discussion and the town at large watched the outcome with interest. It is our opinion that the scheme worked out very well. We feel that the Town has profited financially by the combine during recent years and that our streets have been well cared for. We have not had much new construction, but with our well-built roads, patching has served admirably in most instances. It is our opinion that the town can go much farther and fare considerably worse, and very possibly a further expression of the opinion of our citizens would aid the Selectmen in their considerations. A comparison of Winchester roads with those of neighboring communities leaves no regrets over conditions at home.

ELIZABETH HAMBLIN KENDALL

Elizabeth Hamblin Kendall, widow of William I. Kendall and a former widely known resident of Winchester, died Wednesday night at the home on Monument street in West Medford of her sister, Mrs. Mary M. Fitzhenry.

Mrs. Kendall was born in Melrose, the daughter of Mathew P. and Sarah E. (McNear) Hamblin. Her early life was spent at Wellington, near Medford, and in 1882 she married William I. Kendall who died in 1924.

Thirty years ago she came to make her home in Winchester and had since remained here with the exception of the past two years which she spent with her sister at West Medford. She was a member of the Parish of the Epiphany and of the Church Service League, the Fortnightly Women's Club and of the Winchester Visiting Nurse Association. Her gentle, pleasing manner and her spirit of service endeared her to a wide circle of friends who will learn of her passing with regret.

Besides her sister, Mrs. Fitzhenry, the deceased is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Fred H. Abbott and Mrs. Whitelaw Wright, both of Winchester. Five grandsons and one granddaughter also survive her.

Funeral services are to be held Saturday afternoon, April 16, at 3 o'clock in the Church of the Epiphany and are to be conducted by the rector, Rev. Allen Evans, assisted by the rector honorarius, Rev. John W. Suter of Boston. Interment will be in Wildwood Cemetery.

Two residents of Main street near Madison avenue west have complained to the police that boys on Lloyd street have been breaking windows in their barns which back up upon the latter roadway. Seldom has there been such an epidemic of breaking windows as has been the case this spring and the police are likely to make trouble for the offenders if they are successful in rounding them up.

Mr. Louis Pickerin of Mr. and Mrs. Harry J. Picke of Hemingway street left this for a trip to Washington, D. C

A boy's bicycle was stolen last Friday afternoon from in front of the Country Day School on Pine street. The police were notified.

CHARLES WEBSTER TARBELL

Charles Webster Tarbell, for more than 20 years a well known resident of this town, passed away Tuesday morning at his home on Prospect street, following a long illness. He was 71 years of age.

Mr. Tarbell was born in Boston, the son of Henry W. and Eliza Jane Tarbell. He entered the employ of the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York as office boy and spent the entire 50 years of his business life with that concern, retiring as cashier, an office he had held over a long period. He was twice married, first to Miss Jennie Crowninshield Appleton, who died in 1915.

Two years later he married Miss Lena Mae Yeaton of Swampscott, who survives him. He also is survived by a son, John Appleton Tarbell, two grandchildren, and by one brother, Henry A. Tarbell of East Providence, R. I. His Masonic affiliations included Soley Lodge of Somerville, Mystic Valley Lodge of Winchester, Somerville Royal Arch Chapter, of which he was a past high priest; Orient Council, Royal and elect Masters of Somerville and Cour de Leon Commandery of Charlestown.

Funeral services were held on Thursday afternoon in the Unitarian Church, of which the deceased had been a member, the officiating clergyman being the pastor, Rev. George Hale Reed

The honorary pall bearers included Charles T. Main, William M. Belcher, Daniel B. Badger, Preston Pond, William A. Lefavour, Orrin Hubbard, Paul S. Burns and William Henry Gleason. The ushers were Albert R. Partridge, Julius L. Whitlock, William H. Wallace, Theodore H. Chapin, Harold E. Melzar and Dr. Charles E. Montague, all of whom are presiding officers of the several Masonic bodies with which Mr. Tarbell was affiliated.

During the services the Unity Male Quartette sung, "In the Garden," "Crossing the Bar" and "Just Beyond the Hilltop." Interment was in Wildwood Cemetery.

FUNERAL RITES FOR MARY E. McELHINEY

Funeral services for Miss Mary E. McElhiney, 66, who passed away last Thursday night at her home on Baldwin street following a brief illness, were held on Sunday afternoon in the Second Congregational Church, and were conducted by the pastor, Rev. John H. Whitley.

Miss McElhiney was widely known in the Highlands district where she had made her home for the past 60 years, taking an active interest in the work of the Second Congregational Church there. She was a member of the building committee for the new church in the Highlands a member of the W. R. C. 84, of Woburn, and of the Woburn Women's Club.

Besides a sister, Mrs. Alice Curry and a nephew, Lawrence McElhiney, with whom she made her home the deceased is survived by three brothers, Andrew of Milwaukee Wis.; William of Cleveland, Ohio, and Winslow McElhiney of Winchester. She was born at Bornsville, N. B., and was the daughter of Andrew and Elizabeth (Floyd) McElhiney. The interment was in Wildwood Cemetery

NO MORE FIRE PERMITS

Chief David H. DeCourcey of the Fire Department has announced that no more permits to build fires are to be issued at the Central Station. All such permits which are outstanding are revoked at once and until such time as there shall have been heavy rains. The continued drouth has made the countryside extremely dry and the preponderence of grass and brush fires has moved the chief to take this action. Few realize the expense to which the Town is put in answering several fire alarms in the course of a day. In forbidding the citizens to build fires of any description the chief wished to be emphatic in his statement that fires in incinerators are not excepted. Few seem to understand the proper use of the latter and they are by no means infallible in preventing grass and brush fires, or worse

MISSION CLOSED SUNDAY

St. Mary's Church was filled last Sunday afternoon when the Mission which the Jesuit Fathers had been conducting for the men of the parish was brought to an impressive conclusion with the Benediction of the Most Blessed Sacrament. The Papal Blessing was given following the sermon. This year's mission has been universally well attended both by the men and during the previous week by the women.

WYMAN SCHOOL ADDITION COMMITTEE

The Wyman School Addition Committee organized on Wednesday with Mr. Charles R. Main as chairman and Mr. James S. Allen secretary. The committee has voted to employ the firm of Kilham, Hopkins & Greeley as architects for the work.

Sight of Animals

The biological survey says that the crystalline lens varies somewhat in the eyes of different mammals. Magnification of the object may sometimes result, but it is impossible to tell the comparative impression on the retina and the optic nerve. Should man appear three times his normal size to animals, all other objects would also be magnified three times

New Plants for America

The Department of Agriculture has sent plant explorers to the ends of the earth, and many new species are being adapted to this country. Until it became active in the matter only two plants, sorghum and alfalfa, had been added to the list since Colonial days.

REGENT THEATRE UNDER NEW MANAGEMENT

Winchester patrons of the Regent Theatre in Arlington will learn with interest of a change in ownership which will bring the new proprietor to that town to assume personal direction of his playhouse.

Mr. Corriarity, the new owner, has had a wide experience in the theatrical and motion picture field and is in a position to procure high class attractions for his patrons. He promises that the changes and improvements which he is to make will be so sweeping that only the name, "Regent will remain as a reminder of the playhouse as it has been.

On Easter Monday Mr. Corriarity announces a big gala opening show featuring the much advertised picture, "Butterflies In the Rain," with Laura La Plante and James Kirkwood. As a special attraction there is to be a big musical presentation and also the Louis Weir organists.

"Rose of the Tenements" with Shirley Mason and Johnny Harron is the attraction for Wednesday and Thursday doubled with Reginald Denny in "Take It From Me." Don't miss "Novelty Nite" Thursday evening.

"Bill" Cody in "King of the Saddle" and John Emerson and Anita Loos in "The Whole Town's Talking" bring Mr. Corriarity's opening week to a close Friday and Saturday, with a special matinee, "Bar C Mystery" on Saturday. The new manager announces "Candy for the Kiddos" at the Saturday afternoon show.

PHIPPEN AND MOBBS PLAYED 'EM CLOSE

As the result of a six weeks' auction bridge tournament which has just been completed "Bill" Phippen and "Stan" Mobbs have been crowned kings of the double and re-double experts who play the game at the headquarters of Winchester Post, American Legion.

Quite a delegation of enthusiasts entered the tourney when it got under way the first of March and by process of elimination the field was narrowed to the Phippen-Mobbs team and the combination of 'Dick" Parkhurst and "Doc" McKenzie. The resulting tussle was a cagey exhibition with "Bill" and "Stan' having the edge.

While the last named are undisputed winners of the tournament and theoretically champions of the house they are by all means subject to challenge and it is whispered that they will soon be called upon to prove their claim to the ermine.

Greek Sphinx Unlike Ideas of Egyptians

The Greek sphinx was not a monument, like the surviving sphinxes of Egypt. She was a creature of Greek mythology, having the body of a lion, the wings of a bird, the tail of a serpent and the head of a woman. She presented the Thebans with a riddle, according to the legend, and slew all those who were unable to guess it. Edipus solved it at length, and in chagrin she cast herself over a cliff and died.

Somewhat similar composite figures are familiar in Egyptian art bodies of lions with heads of other animals or of men. The Greeks called these representations sphinxes, and we have adopted their term. To the Egyptians, however, the figures were artistic conceptions of an imaginary animal believed to be a favorite incarnation of Re, the sun god. The pharaohs were held to be the descendants of Re, and his representatives on earth. For that reason the face of a sphinx was modeled after that of the reigning monarch, or sometimes from that of the queen.

Of the numerous Egyptian sphinxes the most celebrated and remarkable, of course, is the Great Sphinx of Gizeh, lying among the pyramids as a guardian of the necropolis. From inscriptions found on this famous monument when the dust of ages was cleared away from the front of it in 1816, the figure is taken to represent Harmachis, a special form of the sun god.

Species Not Popular on Railroad Trains

Fond fathers who carry pictures of their offspring sitting in their bathtubs.

People who borrow your magazine to hold over Toto's basket every time the conductor comes along Charming young men who insist on talking to you.

Nice old ladies who asked you, three minutes after the train has started and then every 20 minutes thereafter, whether you are positive this is the right train, why you are positive, whether you haven't ever made a mistake in a similar situation, and what you think Joe will think if they should arrive as expected.

Children who get all smeared up with chocolate and then identify you as dad-da.

Young married couples who rest their heads on each other's shoulders when the nearest shoulder you dare rest your head on is 280 miles away. —Boston Herald.

Man Not Only Harvester

Man is not the only animal engaged in harvesting. For example, says the Nature Magazine, how many of the following actually store food for future use so far as you can determine during October: Woodchucks, chipmunks, red squirrels, deer, muskrats, meadow mice, deer mice, skunks, dogs, cats, cows, horses, sheep and others?

Old-Time Food Production

After making various estimates the Department of Agriculture has decided that the time in our history when about half the people raised food and half the people bought it, was between 1820 to 1830. It would be safe to say that half of the people raised food for half of the population to consume at the end of the first quarter of the Nineteenth century, approximately 1825.

Riding a Camel

The geographies do right to call the camel the "ship of the desert." He is, indeed, like a ship that pitches, tosses and rolls, all at the same time, in a storm.

A little skeleton "howdah" is put on his back, while his master leads him by a long rope. The unfortunate passenger sits cross-legged on top of the camel's very bony backbone and endeavors to adapt himself to the rolling, pitching movement. It makes many persons seasick

The camel has a mean disposition, and is always trying to quarrel with the other camels in the party, biting and kicking them, grunting and making a general nuisance of himself

Climbing

His first surprise was to find the skies, not as he expected, within his reach, but still as far off as before; his amazement increased when he saw a wide extended region lying on the opposite side of the mountain; but it rose to astonishment when he beheld a country at a distance, more beautiful and alluring than even that he had just left behind. —Goldsmith, "The Citizen of the World."

Dickens' Clock

"Since my hall clock was sent to your establishment to be cleaned it has gone (as indeed it always had) perfectly well, but has struck the hours with great reluctance, and, after enduring internal agonies of a most distressing nature, it now has ceased striking altogether. Though a happy release for the clock, this is not convenient for the household. If you can, send down any confidential person with whom the clock can confer. I think it may have something on its works that it would be glad to make a clean breast of."

An Authority

A prominent London doctor says we should take food in the dark, but perhaps "Rastus" would be a better authority on this than a London doctor. —Charleston Daily Mail.

Poor Music

A very deaf old lady, walking along the street, saw an Italian turning a peanut roaster. She stood looking at it awhile, shook her head and said: "No, I shan't give you any money for such music as that. I can't hear any of the tunes, and besides, it smells as if there were something burning inside."

Humanity's Odd Trait

The world is full of faint hearts, and yet everyone has courage enough to hear the misfortunes and wisdom enough to manage the affairs of his neighbors.—Poor Richard

Old Table Utensil

The "nef" was used during the Seventeenth century and was a shiplike structure, usually of silver, but sometimes of pewter, which served to contain the saltcellar, towel or napkin of its owner. It was usually topped off with his emblem and also carried his coat-of-arms.

203.8 miles an hour on DUNLOPS

AT FLORIDA, on Daytona Beach, Major H. O. D. Segrave, in his giant Sunbeam car, shot over the ground at a rate of 30.8 miles an hour faster than any human being had ever done—203.8 miles an hour!

The tires formed the big question mark as to whether this could be done. Such speed attacks tires with the heat of a fiery furnace.

But they were Dunlops! They withstood the speed—they withstood the heat.

They were Dunlops! . . . Dunlop Tires and Dunlop Circular Tubes.

WINCHESTER TO PLAY IN TENNIS LEAGUE

Winchester High School boys' tennis team will compete this season in the newly formed Suburban Interscholastic Tennis League with Lexington, Melrose, Watertown and Winthrop. Such an organization has been under discussion for some time but it was not until this year that the interest was deemed sufficient to warrant its formation.

E. H. Whitehill, principal of the Watertown High School is the prime mover in forming the league, and it was at his invitation that meetings were first called and the league finally organized. Mr. Whitehill has been chosen the first president of the league. Kezar Nichols, a student of the Winchester High School, has been made secretary and treasurer.

Each of the five high schools in the league will meet the other four schools in the circuit twice during the season in home and home encounters. Thus teams will play 20 matches during the entire league season, which will get underway May 3, and end on June 7. The league will offer a championship cup to the school winning the most victories. The winning of the majority of matches in an afternoon's play will give the side leading one point. The matches will consist of three doubles and two singles. In the event of a tie, where darkness would make the finishing of the affair impossible, the league proposes that these matches shall be played off on neutral courts. The standing of the five schools in the circuit will be figured on points scored.

The league schedule follows:

May
3 Watertown High at Winthrop
3 Lexington High at Melrose
6 Melrose High at Watertown
[illegible] Winchester High at Lexington
10 Winthrop High at Melrose

MIXED BOWLING TOURNAMENT

The opening match of the week in the mixed tournament at the Calumet alleys produced excellent scores Monday night. Many of the ladies were in evidence for their accurate rolling, while several of the gentlemen piled up good totals for their respective teams. Team 3 won all three points from 13 in a close match. Team 1 got a like number from 11 and 6 took two from 1 with close figures predominating.

TENNIS TOURNEY FOR VACATION WEEK

The annual spring vacation tournament for high school boys and girls will be held on the town courts at Palmer street next week beginning Monday at 8:30 a. m. The tournament play is to be limited as far as possible to the forenoons, leaving the courts free for general use thereafter.

Those having the best interests of Winchester's tennis at heart realize that only by good instruction plus tournament and match play can the game here be raised to anything like a high plane. They are, however, anxious that everyone shall have an opportunity to use the courts and in limiting tournament matches to the morning are keeping well within the bounds of strict impartiality. That their efforts are bearing fruit is clearly demonstrated by the statement, credited to a competent judge, that at least six Winchester girls must be included among the 2 ranking junior players east of California.

Monday at 8:30 the first round of the girls' singles will get under way, the draw as usual to precede the play. Boys' singles start on Tuesday morning with mixed doubles on Wednesday, all to begin at 8:30. Entries are being received by the managers of the high school boys and girls' tennis teams, Kezar Nichols and Eleanor Healey, respectively. Arrangements have been made to have the scores of the matches placed in the window of the STAR office so that the progress of the tournament may be easily followed.

It is expected that Louise Packer, one of the best of Winchester's young players, will be unable to participate, due to an injured foot, the result of a nail wound. With Louise on the sidelines the competition for the girls' championship should be unusually keen and interesting.

For Clyde McArdle Testimonial

The greatest gathering of celebrated stage and radio stars ever assembled on any stage in Somerville will be seen at a mid-nite show on next Monday night at the Somerville Theatre as Somerville's part in the effort being made by the "Smilers" to raise a great testimonial for the late "Chief Smiler" and former popular manager of the Somerville Theatre, Clyde S. McArdle.

Practically every show playing in Boston will send stars to participate. The Vaudeville stage will be well represented as will the various stock companies of Greater Boston.

In addition to the above there will be sufficient home town talent as well as many celebrated "Radio" entertainers.

Johnny Gleason, the popular House Manager at the Somerville Theatre is in charge and he assures all that a wonderful time will be had by those who attend. Tickets are now on sale at the box office.

UNITARIAN NEWS

Please bear in mind that the Union Good Friday services will be held in our church tonight at 7.45. Rev. H. W. Hook of the Methodist Church will preach. Mrs. Barr will sing.

We shall have a special Easter program Sunday and the services will begin at [illegible]. Mr. Reed will preach and [illegible] has arranged for special music. The Durrell String Quartet will assist the Choir and Mr. Karl Switzer organist and director, will render several selections. Elsewhere we give the program in detail.

We always have a large attendance on Easter Sunday and this year we expect the church will be filled to "standing room only." The doors will be thrown open at the rear of the auditorium and all of the seating capacity of the main floor will be ready for [illegible]. Services begin at 10.45.

We shall have a special Easter service for the Sunday School at 4 p. m. and there will be no meeting at the usual time, 12 m. Children are requested to be in attendance at 3.45. A special Easter program has been prepared and we give it in detail [illegible].

Plans for the Cabaret of the Men's Club to be held on the evening of April 22 are progressing nicely. Those who have not reserved tables and desire to do so had better get in touch with the committee at once. We are informed that this will be a radio cabaret and music will be furnished by a broadcasting orchestra. There will also be a concert given by our Church Choir: Helen Barr, Soprano; Claramond Thompson, Contralto; Charles W. Ellis, Tenor. Mr. Karl Switzer, our church organist, will also assist and render several selections. Dancing will follow. The celebrated Greenlaw novelty trio, which has been heard over the radio so often will give a specialty program which, we understand, will be sure to please you. Stanley H. Greenlaw, musical saw artist, has a wide variety of selections including operas, ballards, folk songs, popular numbers, which he renders on a common carpenter's hand saw. Mr. Smithers is not only an accompanist but he contributes with readings, etc. Miss Boutelle is gifted with rare talent. Her selections on the saxophone and violin are varied and most pleasing. She also possesses a remarkable soprano voice. In addition to these there will be a mysterious dancer.

The "Ghost Hunters," the play given last week under the auspices of the Metcalf Union, was very well received by the large audience present. A fair amount was realized, which will be donated to expenses of the delegates of Metcalf Union to the Isle of Shoals this summer. The Union very much appreciates the work of the author, Mrs. C. H. Watkins in writing the play for them and Miss Frances Mason for her fine work in coaching.

Rev. Mr. Perdlewitz of the Woburn Unitarian Church spoke to the Metcalf Union last Sunday evening on the "Significance of Palm Sunday."

On April 20, there will be a Parish meeting to see if the standing committee will be authorized to proceed with the installation of the organ. As this is of much interest to the whole church organization, a large attendance is earnestly desired.

BOWDOIN SQUARE THEATRE

There will be another entertaining picture and vaudeville entertainment at the Bowdoin Square Theatre beginning Monday. The top feature for the week will be John Barrymore in his first United Artists picture entitled "The Beloved Rogue" which just bubbles with love, romance and real adventure. As the "rogue" Mr. Barrymore is all that could be desired as he is considered one of the outstanding stars of the screen or stage. Charlie Chaplin will be seen in a re-issue of his greatest comedy, "Shoulder Arms" and Mr. Chaplin has made more picture patrons laugh than any other star. Five vaudeville specialties will please in good measure. Another picture will be, "There You Are" with Conrad Nagel and Edith Roberts in the conspicuous roles. Every child attending any performance at the Bowdoin the week beginning Monday, April 18 will receive free of charge a useful toy or present. Bargain vaudeville is offered every Friday night. Concert Sunday at 3. The free parking service for suburbanites is much enjoyed.

Longfellow's Maine Home

There is a Longfellow house in Portland, the home where he spent much of his boyhood. It was built in 1785, by the poet's grandfather, Gen. Peleg Wadsworth, and was the first brick house in Portland. It stands on Congress street, next to the mansion of Commodore Preble, and it still exists in its original form except that Stephen Longfellow added a third story to it. This was Longfellow's home when he returned from college, from his trips abroad, and when afterward he made his visits from Cambridge. By the sister's will the house with most of its contents was left to the Maine Historical society, to be kept as a memorial to her distinguished brother. In it have been deposited by the family many interesting things associated with the Wadsworths and the Longfellows, and there the poet's admirers may see the desk where "The Rainy Day" was written, and mementos of his childhood and youth.

THE FORTNIGHTLY ART AND HANDICRAFT EXHIBITION

The Art and handicraft exhibition held in Fortnightly Hall under the auspices of the Art Committee was greatly enjoyed by a large number of visitors. This exhibition was a joint exhibition by members of the Fortnightly and resident artists, who very kindly exhibited a number of their finest pictures.

Among the artists exhibiting was Mr. Bicknell whose etchings were greatly admired especially, "The Old Strad." Mr. Herman Dudley Murphy exhibited some very beautiful landscapes, a winter scene was particularly fine; also his picture of the shore and his two smaller pictures drew much attention. Mrs. H. D. Murphy exhibited four very beautiful floral pictures in water color. The color in all her pictures was so clean and the subjects so beautiful. The "White Orchid" and the "Hybiscus" which was so gay was admired greatly. Her work is certainly of a very high standard. Miss Dondero exhibited six very lovely etchings. Just at present Miss Dondero is exhibiting in New York one of her most recent pictures is "Christ Among the Lowly" a wonderful work and is drawing a lot of attention. Mr. Philbrick's water-colors were also highly complimented. Mr. Magnusson, a young Winchester artist has been exhibiting in Belmont and Malden the past month. He is very earnest and sincere in his work, great success seems assured. His "Still Life" and his picture "The Newsboy" received much praise. The coloring of his still life appealed to many, the beautiful soft green in the background against a glorious rose. It was so effective.

Some of the out-of-town art chairmen seen at the exhibition were the State Art Chairman, Mrs. F. H. Stewart of Newton Centre; Mrs. Joseph Reynolds, Art Chairman of the Belmont Women's Club and Mrs. Chas. Richert, Art Chairman of the Arlington Women's Club. Eleven exhibitors have been asked to exhibit at the 35th annual meeting at Swampscott in May. The Art Chairman of the Fortnightly Mrs. Virgil Ghirardini feels very proud of this as only the very choicest pieces, from the various clubs are being asked for and eleven is one of the very largest contributions from any one club. Mrs. C. Dawes won the essay contest and Miss Nelson the poster contest.

Is Art Necessary to Civilization?

The Word Art is one of the most elastic in our language. To one person, it means a beautiful painting; to another, a graceful statue; to another, a noble cathedral.

Much has been written as to the relative merits of painting, sculpture, architecture, music, poetry. This, if it be not an unprofitable inquiry, is out of place here. All the Arts are one, each being but a division in labor.

In a very broad sense, Art stands for those things which are the creation of man, the product of head and hand and heart, and, its chief function is interpretation.

The march of Civilization follows a simple trail, well defined beyond dispute. It begins in a rather hazy thread stretching from Assyria into Egypt, from Egypt to Greece, Greece to Rome, widening throughout Italy and Spain, then centering in Venice, on to Amsterdam, again into Germany and across to England, and then brought in "Mayflowers" to America.

The most ancient works of Art we have are representations of animals found in caves. Next in point of antiquity come the sculptures and paintings on Egyptian and Assyrian Tombs and Temples. Later, in Greece Art reached a point of perfection which has never been excelled.

With the decay of Greece, Art sank and was only revived in the 13th century. But that early period did not pass until it had given to the world gifts so great that the world has ever been striving in vain to repay it—if only by plagiarism.

I would say that Art is the result of Civilization rather than necessary to it. The time to enjoy comes after the struggle for existence. Every human being has a part in Civilization though not everyone can produce or even appreciate Art. Its mission is, in some respects like that of a woman. It is hers not so much to do the hard toil and moil of the world as to surround it with a halo of beauty.

Today, Art touches us on every side. Industrial competition runs, in many cases, no longer exclusively or mainly on the lines of excellence of material and solidity of workmanship, but greatly nowadays on the lines of artistic charm and beauty of design.

How interesting to note the crude state in which each new invention comes from the hands of the inventor but is soon studied for artistic achievement. The first sewing machine, automobile, phonograph, radio and countless other inventions.

There is not an object of usefulness in our homes, from a musical instrument to a kitchen utensil, that has not passed through the process of evolution towards Art, not a cottage so humble without something more or less claiming to rank as Art—a picture, a photograph, a statuette.

Let us hope that, much as Art contributes to the happiness of life today, it will do so even more effectively in the future.

Again, I contend that Art is the result of Civilization and a never failing barometer of it.

PRESENTED DINNER SET OF DISHES TO MRS JOSEPHINE POWER

At the home of Mrs. John E. Hanlon of Cutting street, on Monday night, April 11, occurred the get-together banquet of the "Homestead Whist Club." And it was "Sun Night." First there was the banquet at 8 o'clock. Then came the speeches. Mae O'Neil, the newly elected president, was toastmistress, and Mae put them through their paces in rapid fire order. Anna M. Hanlon came to bat first and scored a home run when she presented a dinner set of dishes, in behalf of the club to Josephine Power, who we all know as the "Emblem Club Organist." The acceptance speech was made by the "Pseudo Toastmistress," Gertrude Prue, who said, "It is lovely, but I wish it was more." Others who spoke were Doris Fitzgerald and Ethel McPartlund.

The show started at 10 o'clock and the mock trial, which was written by Christina Crowley, was far superior to the general run of trials given at affairs of this kind. The characters were really good, every one of them furnishing plenty of laughs. Jessie Quirk, on trial for "Lawful Larceny" was ably defended by Nellie Moffett. Ellen Halligan, foreman of the jury, brought in a verdict of not guilty, much to the chagrin of Judge Shea, who is the better half of our good-looking Winchester Mounted Policeman.

Annie Lester and Gertrude Prue favored the club with an exhibition of "Black Bottom." Readings were given by Marion Adams, and Mae Fitzgerald the club's youngest matron, rendered several solos accompanied by Mae O'Neil at the piano.

The next meeting of the club will be held at the home of Ellen Halligan on Monday night, April 18. Plans will then be completed for the craft classes, which will take their initiatory step at the home of Nellie Moffett, on Monday night, April 25.

WINCHESTER BOAT CLUB

The Winchester Boat Club opens its season officially on Tuesday, April 19. The club has been fortunate in again obtaining the services of Mr. and Mrs. Charles K. Rogers as Steward and Stewardess, and they are already engaged in placing the premises in order for a very active season.

It is quite probable that the social season will be opened by a dance, shortly after the opening of the club house, though no definite plans have as yet been outlined. In any event, due notice will be given.

There are now eight canoes available to members, not owning boats but who nevertheless enjoy canoeing. With an increased club "fleet," no one should be disappointed when they feel the urge to enjoy an afternoon or evening on the lake this summer.

All indications point to a very active year, and even at this time a number of the members have visited the club house in an effort to rush the season on to its starting point.

Mrs. Walter Martin entertained the club, "The Sign of the Owl," on Wednesday afternoon at her home on Church street.

WINCHESTER LOST BASEBALL OPENER

Winchester High School opened its baseball season Monday afternoon at Belmont losing to Belmont High, 8—7, after a five run rally had tied the score in the 9th. The home team played the better baseball and deserved to win, Winchester tossing 14 errors into the matinee, many coming at inopportune moments.

When any club can have 8 runs scored against it in the face of the pitching the locals got Monday it goes without saying that the defense is very wobbly out there. "Lefty" Hatch, "Dick" Murphy and "Bobby" Callahan struck out just 22 men among them during the nine frames, 5 of them going for nothing because of faulty backstopping. "Arbie" Taylor was out of the game because of a faculty ruling and his absence was costly.

Winchester outhit its opponents, Smith, Knowlton and Montague all swatting for extra sacks, but the sour fielding glommed the deal entirely. The game was a repetition of many played last year when gilt edged pitching was thrown away by terrible work in the field. Not one of Belmont's runs was earned last Monday!

On their first game showing the locals are likely to have a decently good hitting club and they are sure to get good pitching. With the advent of something like baseball weather the fielding may look up.

BOARD OF SELECTMEN

HIGH SCHOOL PARENT-TEACHER ASSOCIATION

The meeting of the High School Parent-Teacher Association was held in the High School Assembly Hall last Tuesday evening, President Geo. S. Tompkins presiding.

The meeting was largely given over to the social side in order to allow teachers and parents to get better acquainted. There were four moving pictures shown from the State Department of University Extension entitled, "Future Greats," "Great Lakes," "Yellowstone Park" and "Top o' the World." All of these pictures were instructive and interesting and were given in line with the committee's idea to diversify the line of entertainment. Arthur Downer gave a violin selection accompanied by Miss Clark, and Miss MacDonald and Miss Clark gave a piano duet. Refreshments and a general social time followed.

According to new traffic regulations in the centre, left turns are allowed when passing from Main to Church street and from Main to Mt. Vernon street. This is reverting to the original rule. For some time it has been obligatory to round the traffic beacon on the east side of the centre when making these turns, but the necessary slowing up of cars to make the sharp corner has resulted in considerable delay.

ICE PATROL LANDS GUARD IN STORMY SEAS

With the beginning of March, one of the most picturesque sea patrols in the world takes up its cold duty—the covering of the steamer lanes of the north Atlantic by cutters of the United States Coast Guard which do the work for the International Ice Patrol.

Fifteen years ago April 14, the "Titanic," queen ship of the seas, carrying a precious cargo of some of the best minds of Europe and America, ran into an iceberg 350 miles south of Cape Race and sank with a loss of more than 1500 lives, says the bulletin. Ever since that catastrophe a guard has been kept each spring to protect the hundreds of ships and thousands of travelers on the world's greatest ocean ship lane.

No Ship Lost Since 1912

The annual "battle with the bergs" can be compared to some jungle tragedy in which the lesser animals stand watch and wait for a lion that has invaded their hunting ground, to sicken and die before they again take up their normal life. The International Ice Patrol, the work of which is entrusted to the seamen and ships of the United States Coast Guard, watches and waits for the icebergs to die. For four months, from March to July, the Patrol scouts for the ice monarchs which are impelled by the Labrador Current to invade the haunts of man. No successful method of attacking the "enemy" has been conceived, although experiments continue. But by watching the bergs like guardian crows in a cornfield, the "Tampa" and the "Modoc" are able to warn by wireless the whole flock of trans-Atlantic shipping of ice danger. No ship has been lost since the Ice Patrol began its guard in 1912.

To the laymen a report that a 32 degree cold wall is over the entire Grand Banks, means little. It is very significant to the Ice Patrol. Bergs will drift down the Banks practically intact as long as they are in the Labrador Current in which the water hovers near freezing temperature. But once they cross the "cold wall" into the Gulf Stream with its 55 or 60 degree water they waste away in a few days and disappear. Each spring the Labrador Current forces a cold tongue of water into the warm Gulf Stream which flows northeast toward England. The tongue reaches maximum toward the last of April and then recedes until it is confined once more to the Labrador Coast.

Like "Flying Dutchman"

Going on Ice Patrol with either the "Tampa" or the "Modoc" in early spring is like embarking on the "Flying Dutchman." That old legend of the Dutch skipper who was condemned to beat around Cape of Good Hope, is very real to the Coast Guard men on north Atlantic service. The Dutch ship and crew shuttled over the sea buffeted by gales because once the captain uttered a monstrous oath. For two solid weeks a Coast Guard crew lives amid the gales of one of the most storm-plagued spots on the seven seas because of a different sort of oath the nations made that the "Titanic" disaster should not be repeated. That oath redeemed, the "Modoc" can steam into the safe shelter of Halifax for two weeks respite while the "Tampa" takes her place.

PERNAMBUCO, BRAZIL

Pernambuco, first large city in South America reached by Commander Francesco de Pinedo, Italian flyer, after his recent trans-Atlantic flight, is the easternmost city of the Western Hemisphere, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. It is the capital of a Brazilian state of the same name.

Pernambuco and two other states make up the northeastern shoulder of their continent. The capital, Pernambuco, better known to Brazilians as Recife, occupies a small island—Antonio Vaz—and a portion of the mainland of Brazil, about 50 miles from the northern border of the state.

Shows Dutch Influence

If a line were drawn from Pernambuco due north, it would miss the western extremity of the Azores and intersect the latitude of New York City nearer to Portugal than to New York. Dakar, westernmost city of Africa is only half the distance from Pernambuco that Liverpool is from New York. Pernambuco noses into all direct transportation lanes from European and North Atlantic ports that do business with ports south of Pernambuco. Shipping from New York, Boston, or Baltimore, or Liverpool or Lisbon, reaches Rio de Janiero or Buenos Aires by passing Pernambuco's harbor.

Pernambuco is the fourth largest city in Brazil with a population about equal to that of Indianapolis, Indiana. Many of the people are descendants of the Dutch and Portuguese, both of whom once claimed the city and surrounding country. Pernambuco owes much of its progress to the influence of these races, who fostered agriculture and commerce.

The old section of Pernambuco shows its Portuguese origin in the vari-colored plaster-faced buildings that line some of the narrow cobblestone streets in the downtown section; while here and there steep gabled houses and business structures recall the quarter century of Dutch occupation that began ten years after the Pilgrims landed on Plymouth Rock.

One of South America's Gateways

Until a few years ago, large ocean-going boats had to anchor far out in the harbor. Up-to-date docks were constructed, and railroads were built, reaching into the productive hinterland. As a result, Pernambuco has become in a short time one of the important gateways to eastern Brazil.

Sugar, tobacco, lumber, fruit, cotton, rubber and coffee that once graced the backs of mules, now flow into the city by rail in vast quantities. More than 40 sugar mills in the capital city attest the state's sugar production. Textile mills shoe, soap and lock factories are also there.

Most of Pernambuco's business is carried on in the old section that occupies the island. The city market perhaps strikes the fancy of Americans more than any other feature. An abundance of rich, luscious tropical fruit is everywhere to be seen. On the ground are great piles of pineapples, alligator pears, melons and mangoes of enormous size. In contrast to many South American markets, Pernambuco has no noisy vendors.

"Sent to Coventry"

This phrase, which is in quite general use in English schools, means to ignore a person absolutely. The generally accepted explanation is that the citizens of Coventry objected at one time to the soldiers sent to the town. They treated them with silent contempt, and for a soldier to be ordered to the town meant little less than a mild excommunication.

Druggists' Mortar Old

The druggists' mortar, which has come down to modern generations almost unchanged in shape, can be traced back to prehistoric times. The mortar in its present shape was used centuries before medicine was known as an art, and was used to crush hard bodies. It was used by savages as well as civilized peoples.

No Poisonous Charcoal

Neither willow charcoal nor any other charcoal could contain an actively poisonous substance, since charcoal has necessarily been prepared at high temperatures, and all of the volatile and active materials have been driven off. In a chemical way charcoal is an inactive neutral substance.

Flower Fragrance

Fragrance in flowers is determined by laws which are beyond human comprehension. It is not a quality peculiar to a family, but to individuals or rather to varieties in that family. Old varieties of roses were mostly fragrant; many of the newer and most beautiful are not. The older peonies were rather unpleasant in odor, but many of the newer varieties are deliciously perfumed.

Not One

The story is told of two opposing English politicians who met in the parliamentary lobby and smoothed over their differences. But the opposition fangs did not remain in very long. "Why is it that you always heap coals of fire on my head, comrade?" asked the Socialist M. P. "I heap coals of fire on your head because I love the smell of a wood fire," was the Tory retort.—Boston Transcript.

SOCONY SERVICE STATION AT 667 MAIN STREET OPENS APRIL 23

The first Service Station in Winchester operated by the Standard Oil Company of New York, centrally located at 667 Main street, on the former vacant lot adjacent to the Whitney Machine Company, will open April 23.

Because of its attractiveness, it is a distinct addition to the community. The tapestry brick office building presents a facade of true Colonial design. The interior is neatly painted in buff against which the red Soconoy Motor Oil tanks call one's attention to the fact that good oil is as essential to an automobile engine as gasoline. Neat toilet facilities are provided.

The grounds are laid out in such a way that access is readily attainable. Ample drives invite one to enter, as does the Socony swinging sign. The shiny red pumps draw the motorist beside them for fuel. Socony Lubrication Service is available over a pit which the most timid driver would not hesitate to drive on, and which provides easy access to all parts of the car to be serviced.

The attendants are garbed in a natty uniform of gray with red piping and cap to match with Socony in red above the vizor. Black shoes and leggings complete the uniform. These young men are courteous, smiling, and efficient. They are carefully trained in their duties before being entrusted to the actual operation of a station, so that a motorist is assured of intelligent and courteous service.

STRIKE WAS OF SHORT DURATION

For just a minute or perhaps two, while Assistant Superintendent James Butler was walking across the square the situation looked a bit dubious and to none more so than to genial "Jim."

The latter, who makes his home in Atlantic but who for many years was a widely known resident of Winchester, had just arrived in the center Tuesday morning ready to commence the day's operations when his attention was called to his entire gang of men lined up in front of Lyceum Hall, apparently with no intentions of going to work.

"On a strike," Jim was informed by some self-appointed calamity howler. "They aint gonta work 'less they get what they want." Immediately Mr. Butler started across the square to talk it over and as he approached the men it seemed that their attitude was rather trucilent, augiring ill for any attempt at getting them to alter their prearranged plans.

When their assistant superintendent arrived where they were standing the men suddenly surrounded him and before he fully realized what it was all about presented him with a gold mounted fountain pen and pencil and a box of fine cigars in honor of his 70th birthday anniversary, falling upon that day. "Jim," who has been for 33 years in the employ of the Sewer Department, attempted to voice his thanks to his men but we doubt if many of them heard him. They were too busy joshing him about the "strike."

Besides being called upon to put out three grass and brush fires during the day the Winchester Fire Department answered two alarms last evening. At 8.25 Box 37 sounded for a smoking lamp in a home on Irving street and at 9.52 Box 41 for a fire in the loft of Mr. Charles Feinburg's barn on Middlesex street.

WINCHESTER CHAMBER OF COMMERCE DINED

About 100 members and guests attended the annual meeting and dinner of the Winchester Chamber of Commerce, held last evening in the Town Hall.

Dinner was served at 6:30. Seated at the speakers' table with the Chamber's president, George F. Arnold, were Hon. John C. Hull, Speaker of the State House of Representatives; Congressman Frederick Dallinger of Cambridge and Representative Thomas R. Bateman of Winchester. Others at the head table were Rev. H. W. Hook, pastor of the Methodist-Episcopal Church; Selectmen John H. Powers, Walter H. Dotten, J. Harper Blaisdell, Thomas F. Fallon and Joseph W. Worthen; and the Chamber's treasurer and secretary, respectively J. Albert Hersey and Ernest H. Butterworth. During the dinner selections were rendered by a ladies' orchestra and the Pilgrim Male Quartet.

At its conclusion a brief business session of the Chamber was held with the president, George F. Arnold, presiding. The reports of the secretary and treasurer were read and accepted and officers for the ensuing year elected as follows:

President George F. Arnold
Vice-President Charles F. Kendall
Treasurer J. Albert Hersey
Secretary Ernest H. Butterworth.
Directors John L. Cayting, George T. Davidson, Frank H. Elliott, George H. Hamilton, Oscar Hedtler, Daniel J. Holmes, Frank H. Knight, George H. Lochman, Nathaniel M. Nichols and Herbert B. Seller.

President Arnold introduced Representative Thomas R. Bateman as toastmaster. The principal address of the evening was delivered by Hon. John C. Hull, Speaker of the House. Mr. Hull is a big, easy going, pleasant man and his address proved of absorbing interest. His subject, "Legislation of 1927" gave him a wide range and touched briefly upon many of the problems which have confronted the Legislature this year.

The biggest single item of expense to the State is highway maintenance; against which is placed the greatest source of revenue, that derived from automobiles. The income tax is not, Mr. Hull said, a source of revenue to the State, which collects it, since it is returned to the individual cities and towns from which the money comes. The speaker touched briefly upon the bill providing for a 2c tax on gasoline which is now waiting the Governor's signature and felt that it provides a more just distribution of the debt which automobiles must pay, since with it a flat registration fee of $3 for all machines becomes operative.

Mr. Hull praised the State budget system and felt that it was even better than that of the National Government at Washington. He believes that the Sunday Sports Bill will be rejected by the General Court next year, but will appear upon the ballot by virtue of the referendum the year following. He praised the initative and referendum system as providing really representative government and producing legislation for the "average" citizen.

The State system of pensions was discussed at length by the speaker who explained that while in theory the State and the employee paid for the scheme upon a 50-50 basis, such an effect did not become operative for about 50 years, and that the ratio was about 75 per cent 25 per cent with the State paying the larger amount. Seven hundred and fifty thousand dollars was paid in pensions last year and the figure is ever mounting. Mr. Hull felt that Governor Fuller's opposition to pensions as likely to produce an intolerable tax burden in the future is not unjustified in fact.

In mentioning some of the recent important legislation passed Mr. Hull gave interesting figures on the Employees Compensation Bill which raises the minimum paid injured employees from $7 to $9 per week while lowering the maximum from $18 to $16. He considered the Boston Elevated Bill the most important to have been before the last session of the General Court and told of the difficulty in finding a solution for it. The taking of the Swift River Valley property, at a cost of $50,000, to be a Metropolitan District Water System he considered significant as he did the raising of salaries for judges.

The speaker did not favor compulsory voting and felt that the bill to provide a legislative committee with the power to investigate light rates as to their fairness would eventually pass. In closing he stated that all citizens should think less of their rights under the Constitution and more of their obligations to their government.

Congressman Dallinger deplored the fact that the old community spirit engendered in the days of the "Town Meeting" was gradually weakening in New England. He felt that as the towns grew larger and became cities the interest of the individual citizen became that much less with a resulting loss in governmental efficiency all along the line. He praised our National Government and that of our States, but felt that in our municipal government we are sadly lacking. Winchester, he hoped, would remain a town and maintain its Town Meeting form of government as long as possible.

CALUMET

CALUMET NOTES

The annual meeting, dinner and entertainment was a grand success. There was a large number present and considering the intervening holidays, the attendance was very satisfactory.

President John Hart Taylor was in the chair and handled the meeting in his usual efficient manner.

The annual report was read and accepted. Several questions were asked from the floor and apparently were answered satisfactorily by the president.

President Taylor in his speech spoke enthusiastically of the future of the Club, praised his various committees and believed the foundation had been laid for a successful year when activities start after the summer vacation.

WALTER J. BROWN
President Calumet Club

The following officers were elected for the coming year: Walter J. Brown, President; Ernest W. Chase, Vice-President; Vincent P. Clarke, Secretary; W. Maynard, Treasurer.

President-elect Brown enumerated some of the things he had in mind for the coming year and thought the efforts of the past administration had given him a wonderful foundation on which to work. He gave the club several things to think about, one of the most important being the consideration of a Community Club along the lines of the Old Belfry at Lexington. This idea, he wanted it understood, was just a suggestion, but he said he had talked the matter over with various members and found there was a favorable feeling in some quarters towards the plan.

ERNEST DUDLEY CHASE
Vice-President Calumet Club

Ernest W. Chase, the newly elected vice-president was warmly congratulated and spoke about the work of the past year and gave us an inkling of some of his plans for the future.

Remarks were also made by Vincent Clarke, the re-elected secretary and by Wallace Maynard, the new treasurer. Rev. H. Wm. Hook and Rev. Lisle Burroughs also favored us.

The three new directors elected were Edwin S. Merrill, Walter E. Chamberlin and Charles S. Barry.

It was voted to amend the by-laws so that the date of the annual meeting would come hereafter on the 4th Saturday of April.

A vote of thanks, proposed by "Bill" Kneeland, was voted the out going administration.

After the dinner moving pictures were shown by Ernest Chase and his assistant Guy Sargent, of the bowlers in action on the alleys under date of Feb. 22. Some of the antics as shown were decidely humorous and elicited much applause and laughter. Pictures were also shown of the children's party, and some of the pool and billiard players and of Fred Scholl and his assistant preparing the "eats," and also of Mr. Chase's recent trip to the West Indies.

McCUE—HILL

Miss Evelyn Hill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Hill of Madison avenue, Cambridge and Henry Joseph McCue, son of Mr. and Mrs. James P. McCue of Sheridan circle, were married in Cambridge on Easter Sunday by the Rev. James P. F. Kelley, according to advices received this week at the Town Hall.

MISS JEAN RYAN

WINCHESTER GIRL WINNER OF LATIN PRIZE AT SMITH

This prize awarded this year for the first time, represents the income from a fund of $2000 established in June, 1926, in honor of Professor Brady, then retiring from active duty as chairman of the Latin department, a position he had held many years.

Miss Ryan has been known as a fine student since her undergraduate days at the Winchester High School where she was Valedictorian of the Class of 1924. She entered Smith directly from the high school and has been on the Dean's List in college almost continuously since her entrance. She is also the holder of the Winchester Smith College Club Scholarship.

WARNING!

It would seem unnecessary to repeat the request that the citizens of Winchester heed the request of His Excellency, The Governor, to refrain from starting fires of any description until such time as the long drouth shall have been ended. Yet during the past week there have been many instances throughout the town where the warning has been disregarded, possibly through thoughtlessness. It would be well for those contemplating the burning of grass or rubbish to remember that they face prosecution by so doing, should harm come from their disregard of the laws pertaining to fire permits.

UNION MASONIC SERVICE SUNDAY

First Congregational Church At 5 O'clock

The annual Union church service of the William Parkman and Mystic Valley Lodges of Free and Accepted Masons will be held in the First Congregational Church Sunday afternoon at 5 o'clock.

At this service all the Protestant ministers of Winchester will take part in the worship. The address will be made by Rev. Allen Evans, Jr., rector of the Church of the Epiphany. The full choir of the First Church will sing.

This Union Masonic Service has grown in impressiveness and strength year by year until it has become one of the most important Masonic events in Winchester.

Seats will be reserved in the centre of the church for members of the Masonic Fraternities, but the public is cordially invited to the service, which it will find of great interest. The offering will be for the local Inter-Church Council.

TWO GAMES NEXT WEEK

Following vacation the Winchester High School baseball team will once more swing into action, playing two games during the next week. On Wednesday afternoon the team will journey to Somerville where they will cross bats at Dilboy Field with "Charlie" Dickerman's Red and Blue Somerville High Club. On Saturday afternoon Winchester opens its Mystic Valley League schedule when it entertains Melrose High on Manchester Field. Just whom Coach Mansfield will have in his lineup against Somerville is not known, but that he will be without several of his first-string players is certain. The locals have dropped their first three games in a row and unless Coach Mansfield is successful in whipping a patched-up outfit into top form in a short time the next few showings of the club are apt to be sour. If "Lefty" Hatch, "Bobby" Callahan an big Amico can pitch the team past its next two starts, they will be deserving of much praise.

Mrs. Rodger M. Tolman of Rochester, N. H., is spending the week-end with her parents Mr. and Mrs. Franklin E. Barnes of Bacon street.

Peter Foley, Winchester's 69-year old Marathon runner, started as usual on the holiday over the official course from Hopkinton to the B. A. A. Clubhouse in Boston. When the grand old man got as far as Natick his handler, "Charlie" Harrold, persuaded him to stop because of the excessive heat. Peter did not want to quit but we believe "Charlie" showed excellent judgment in insisting upon it. It is to be hoped that the veteran may be persuaded to be merely a spectator another year. There is little sense in taking the risk involved.

Mrs. Sarah A. Towle, 81, passed away this morning at the home on Swan road of her daughter, Mrs. J. L. S. Barton.

OCCUPANTS PINNED UNDER CAR

The occupants of a Chrysler sedan were slightly injured Easter Sunday morning when their machine was overturned at the junction of Main street and the Parkway following a collision in which it figured with a Cadillac phaeton which was going south on Main street and which was owned and operated by Thomas G. Bane of 4 John street, Woburn.

The Chrysler, which was owned and operated by Mildred E. Robinson of 48 Chipman avenue, Melrose, was headed north along Main street at the time of the collision, which broke one of the rear wheels of the sedan and overturned it, pinning the occupants under the wrecked machine.

They were extricated by Officer James Farrell of the police who removed them to the emergency room of the police station where they were treated by Dr. Milton J. Quinn. The operator of the Chrysler and one of the passengers, Jasper Hobbs of Melrose, were slightly injured. Mrs. Hobbs and others in the party escaped unharmed. The sedan was towed to the Metropolitan Garage, the Cadillac was only slightly damaged.

SUMMER TIME BEGINS SUNDAY

The change in time occurs on Sunday, the clocks in this State being moved ahead one hour at midnight Saturday.

WINCHESTER BOAT CLUB

The Winchester Boat Club was officially opened on Tuesday, April 19. Throughout the day members availed themselves of the clubhouse, many making good use of the summer-like weather by canoeing.

During the morning the tennis courts were in use and from now on club activities will be in full force. Steward Charles K. Rogers is now serving lunches to those desiring meals at the clubhouse or box lunches for canoe parties. His services in this capacity were in great demand throughout the day.

The new racing tandem shells have been tried out lately and they have proven to be satisfactory in every way, though not, according to some reports over-seaworthy. Several paddlers have narrowly escaped sudden and chilly baths. On the holiday five or six paddlers began practicing for the season's canoe regattas, though no regular call for practice has as yet been sent out. If the early season correctly forecasts, however, the year should be a successful one in the racing line, as interest is by no means lacking.

Several applications for membership have been received during the past few days and others are planning for making application soon. Persons wishing to join the club should do so early in the season, as indications all point to an early start for an active year. Applications may be made through any club member.

SOMERVILLE THEATRE

"Sure Fire," the sensational comedy by Rolph Murphy which opens next Monday night at the Somerville Theatre lives up to its engaging title in every line.

Said to have all the comic elements which make up the perfect laughing piece, it teems with suspense and thrills and has plenty of romantic incident.

The play deals with a young playwright who is sent to a small country town where he may work on a forth-coming production in peace and quiet. He is immediately thrown into a series of stirring events that rival the situations in the famous Cohan piece "Seven Keys to Baldpate."

Adopted by the post-mistress, he falls in love with her daughter, and is accused of having a hand in robbing the local postoffice. These things piling up make ideal situations for his play plot, which is turned out just in time for rehearsals. How he thwarts the robbers and clears himself makes up one of the stirringly humorous climaxes of the comedy.

As the general public look forward to a national holiday, so the theatregoers in this vicinity are anticipating, with much pleasure, the appearance of The Somervlle Theatre Players, during the week of May 2, in the new American song and dance show, "Little Nellie Kelly," which made all Boston, New York, and Philadelphia stand at attention and is now enjoying phenomenal success in London, England.

The distinctive feature of this show is its cleanliness; wholesome comedy with whistleable melodies, skillfully interspersed with varied dances that has made "Little Nellie Kelly" the best musical play in the whole wide world.

This presentation will feature a return engagement of Kay Corbett and her Revne of local Somerville girls in a singing and dancing chorus.

MAN INJURED IN FALL FROM ROOF

Frederick Dinsmore of 34 Summer Hill street, Stoneham, was taken to the Winchester Hospital on Monday morning, suffering from injuries sustained in a three-story fall from the roof of the home on Everett avenue of Clinton J. Warren. Dinsmore, who is a roofer, was at work on the house when the staging upon which he was standing gave way. He was picked up by Fred Fitzgerald of Winchester and rushed to the hospital in the Warren motor. He was unconscious when picked up and was found upon examination to have sustained cuts about the head and face as well as a badly wrenched back and side.

WINCHESTER ENGAGEMENT

The fine weather of the holiday attracted many to Mystic Lake where open house was held at both the Medford and Winchester Boat Clubs which opened officially for the season. A "night before" dance was held at the Medford Club.

NEW TIMETABLE ON RAILROAD

The time of the trains on the railroad will change on Sunday, coincident with the change to daylight saving. All persons using the trains should secure the new timetables and familiarize themselves with the new running time, as many changes have been made, they being too numerous to record herewith. New timetables of convenient size may be obtained of the following firms: Franklin E. Barnes & Co., Ernest R. Butterworth, Edward T. WALSH—BONIN

Miss Rita Bonin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Bonin of Russell road and John R. Walsh, son of Dennis C. Walsh of Franklin street, Woburn, were united in marriage Easter Sunday afternoon at 5 o'clock in St. Mary's Rectory by the Rev. Fr. George Quigley.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents where a wedding supper was served. The house was most attractive with Easter decorations of lillies, jonquils and ferns. Upon their return from a honeymoon trip to Poland Springs Me., Mr. and Mrs. Walsh will make their home in Winchester at 6 Russell road.

The bride has many friends among the younger people of both Winchester and Woburn and has been a popular member of the office staff of the Boston firm of Brown, Durrell. Mr. Walsh is widely known as a member of reportorial staff of the Woburn Daily Times and as a manager of several semi-professional baseball teams in that city.

JONES—SHEA

Many in Winchester were interested to learn of the wedding solemnized in St. Patrick's Church, Watertown, on the afternoon of Easter Day when Miss Elizabeth Vincent Shea, daughter of Mrs. Rose Shea of Watertown, became the bride of Edward Leroy Jones of Winchester, son of Edward Jones of Mystic avenue. The ceremony was performed at 4.30 o'clock by Monsignor Roche.

The bride wore a wedding gown of white satin and Spanish lace with a veil of Spanish lace held in place by a coronet of pearls. Her shower bouquet was of white roses and lillies of the valley. Accompanying her as maid of honor was Miss Margaret A. Davis who wore orchid georgette. The bridesmaid, Miss Ruth Rogers, wore a frock of peach georgette, while that of the little flower girl, Miss Iris King, was of white georgette. Albert King was ring bearer and Mr. Jones had for his best man Harold Sunberg. Milton Myers and Herbert Stone were ushers.

LOTTERIES AND GAMES OF CHANCE BANNED

Chief of Police William R. McIntosh has been notified by District Attorney Robert Bushnell that in the future the laws of the Commonwealth pertaining to lotteries, games of chance, prize wheels, and in short anything which may contain the element of chance or may be designated as gambling, are to be strictly enforced.

The District Attorney states that he is aware that many forms of gambling have been indulged in and tolerated because of the worthy cause for which the money was being raised. In the future no distinction is to be made and no matter for what purpose, gambling is to be proceeded against by those charged with the enforcement of the law. Mr. Bushnell further instructs the police heads that where convictions cannot be obtained in the lower courts, cases are to be taken for jury trial in the Superior Courts. The penalty for violation of the gambling laws may be a fine of not more than $2000 or imprisonment for not more than 1 year.

OBSERVED ANNIVERSARY

Patrolman and Mrs. Edward W. O'Connell observed the 6th anniversary of their marriage on Thursday evening, April 14, when they were hosts to a large number of relatives and friends at their home on Kirk street. An entertainment program was enjoyed featuring vocal solos by Miss Helen Healy of Cambridge and Mr. Archie O'Connell of Winchester and exhibition dancing by Miss Dorothy Moore of Woburn. Refreshments were served by a caterer during the evening. Patrolman and Mrs. O'Connell, who was Miss Helen Hamilton, were the recipients of many handsome gifts as well as the congratulations and best wishes of all present.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS

At 6.30 Monday evening as Eleanor G. Oldfield of Sargent road was driving her Chrysler automobile south on Main street and was making a turn into Highland avenue her machine was in collision with a Ford touring car headed north and driven by Louise E. Smith of 34 Decatur street, Charlestown. Both cars were damaged, but no one was injured. The Ford was owned by Robert J. Smith of King street, Wilmington.

A Franklin touring car owned and operated by Edward H. Gamash of 26 Newport street, Arlington, and a Dodge truck, the property of Piccalo Brothers of this town and driven by John Del Grasso of 33 Holland street were in collision in the spuare Monday evening at 7.45 o'clock. The Franklin was headed north on Main street while Del Grasso was going south and was making the left turn into Mt. Vernon street.

Mason of 25 Warren street, West Medford. The damage to the cars was slight and no one was injured.

The local police had 12 cases in the District Court at Woburn Monday of this week.

Only two fires broke the serenity of the local firemen on the 19th. At 11.45 in the morning the men made a run to put out a grass fire on Fletcher street and at 1.40 in the afternoon a motorist notified the station of a brush fire on Border road. Motorcycle Officer Edward O'Connell ordered several residents of Highland avenue to extinguish fires which they had started at their homes despite the fact that all permits for fires had been revoked.

Even Busy Bee Likes His Periods of Rest

Bees like to doze and sleep during the day time, and they do it unmolested, according to Prof. Karl von Frisch, eminent entomological worker of Germany. Not only does Doctor von Frisch find that honey bees enjoy daily siestas, but love of ease varies greatly in individual bees. Continuing his earlier researches in bee psychology, Doctor von Frisch devised a method of marking individual bees with indelible colors. Carefully placed observers were able to follow the movements of these marked bees even in flight. Through glass-inclosed hives they saw marked bees return to their particular spot on the comb, indulging, after moderate activity, in periods of inactivity ranging from minutes to hours, although their total span of life is approximately five weeks. It was not until the marking device was hit upon that Herr von Frisch fathomed some of the age-old mysteries of bee civilization. To attempt to learn these by watching at random 40,000 bees in the hive was a hopeless task, Doctor von Frisch asserted, adding: "It was always the bees we weren't loking at that moved."

Ireland's Middle Age Place of Pilgrimage

Ireland has a place of pilgrimage which has held its position for 14 centuries. It is on an island in Lough Derg, and is said to be the only pilgrimage of modern times conducted like those of the Middle ages. It is freely noticed in medieval literature, and still today is very much alive. It is visited yearly, beginning in the month of June, by all sorts of people, and despite its rigors, it is so popular that a new church has been built and the railway companies run excursions to it. The pilgrims arrive fasting and make their rounds of the stations in their bare feet. Three of the stations must be made each day of the three days of the pilgrimage. The first meal is of black tea and dry bread, and this has to last for 24 hours. A whole night is spent in prayer in the church. This is a trying experience, yet year after year hundreds return, and they include notable figures in public life. None but pilgrims are allowed on the island, and once there, all the strict regulations must be observed by all.

Insect's Home Is Sea

An insect belonging to the fly family that spends its whole life in salt sea water is the strange find reported to the Royal society by F. W. Edwards and Dr. P. A. Buxton of the British museum. Doctor Buxton, who recently returned from a voyage to Samoa, found the insect associated with related forms whose larval or infant stages are spent in the water, but whose adult life is lived in the normal aerial surroundings of most insects. This is said to be the first recorded case of an insect going through its whole life cycle in sea water.

New Orleans Creole Proud and Clannish

The ire of many a "Creole" has been provoked because the innocent tourist thinks the word means "of colored blood," say the Pendleton East Oregonian.

"Creole," the native Orleanian will tell you, means "of French and Spanish." The Creole is one who is born away from his country—whatever that country may be. The New Orleans Creole is considered the city's finest product. The women are lovely. The men are brave. They have charming manners. They are exclusive. They are clannish. They have their own language, their own society, and their own customs.

The New Orleans Creole speaks a pure French. The reason "Creole" has been misunderstood is because their slaves spoke a Creole dialect, bearing about the same relation to pure French as the southern Negro talk does to English purely spoken. Then, there was the Acadian French, or "Cujean" French, as spoken in the outlying districts of Louisiana. And "Gumbo" French that means simply French incorrectly spoken.

English Choir Sings to Old Hurdy-Gurdy

Barrel organs or hurdy gurdies were used in English churches in the early Eighteenth century to support the choir. The only elaborate specimen surviving today, and still in use, is to be found in the parish church of Trottiscliffe, near Wrotham, in Kent.

These barrel organs were quite as popular in rural churches that could not afford the luxury of an organ as were the music boxes of the period in European drawing rooms. Failing either an organ or a hurdy-gurdy, village church choirs usually relied on two or three-piece orchestras for Sunday services. These orchestras were placed in the gallery over the entrance.

Trottiscliffe's barrel organ must have been one of the finest in its heyday, for it has a repertory of sixty hymn tunes. It has recently been repaired and its handle is still turned by the sexton for Sunday services and weddings. The tone of this ancient instrument is unusually sweet.

Accounts for Fools' Day

But for the changing of the calendar in 1564, April 1 might never have become All Fools' day. Several explanations have been offered as to the fixing of April 1 as the date for perpetrating practical jokes, but the changed calendar appears to be most probable. In 1564 New Year's day was shifted from March 25 to January 1. Before the alteration, the New Year festivities lasted eight days, ending on April 1. This final day was one set apart for paying visits and making gifts. When the alteration was made, muddle-headed folk became confused and were easy prey for the sophisticated, who sent them out on fool's errands, making calls and carrying gifts, on the day of the discarded celebration. Thus the custom became the seed from which April Fool sprang.—New York Times.

Odd Rain-Making Device

As a pendant to the reaction of plants to weather the curious Seventeenth century belief in the weather's reaction to plants might be mentioned. Then it was the common practice to set fire to growing ferns in the belief that rain would follow.

Such implicit faith was placed in this expedient that when Charles I. arranged to visit Staffordshire, the earl of Pembroke and Montgomery wrote to the high sheriff of the county commanding him to stop the burning of ferns as his majesty was "desirous that the country and himself should enjoy fair weather as long as he remains in these parts."

Typewriting to Music

In a certain college in London, England girls learn typewriting to the accompaniment of fox trots and military marches. If a girl has a good sense of rhythm, this system hastens the early stages of training in a remarkable way. Gramophone records are used, and pupils first type words of three letters to a military march in four-four time, one letter to a beat and the space movement to the fourth. Progress is then made in words of different lengths, until finally whole sentences are typed. When speed increases, students type two letters to each beat. The idea behind this system is that regular rhythmic movements are less tiring than irregular ones, which waste the worker's energy.

Did Adam Die With Gout?

In the library at the Herald's college, London, England, is a queer Sixteenth-century document, the history of which is unknown. It professes to trace the pedigree of the early Saxon kings right back to Adam and Eve, among the names of those appearing in the genealogy being our Lord, Alexander, and Nebuchadnezzar. It contains some beautifully executed and well-preserved pen and ink drawings of subjects which include the fall, the building of the tower of Babel, and the ark. Adam is stated to have died from "gowte" and to have been buried at Hebron. The document has been in the possession of the Herald's college for 200 years.

Use for Oyster Shells

Oyster shells are used for five purposes—"shelling," chicken shell, fertilizer, lime and road building. By far the most important use is for shelling. By this is meant the planting of them in oyster beds, in order that the spat may fasten on them.

THE FORTNIGHTLY NOTES

The annual meeting of the Fortnightly was held Monday afternoon at 2.30 in the Town Hall.

The musical program for the afternoon was a delightful treat given by two of the talented members of the club, who for the artistry and beauty of their work and their gracious generosity are deservedly favorites among us. The following group of the Debussy songs and piano solos were given:

Beau Soir
Mandoline
Romance
Encore—The Market . . . Mollie Carew
Isabelle Winship
The Gallwogg's Cake Walk
Clair de Lune
Danse
Encore Fantasy . . . . . . Schubert
Mavis Graham Peterson

The speaker of the afternoon was Mr. E. E. Clive, director of the Copley Theatre, who talked very delightfully on various topics connected with the theatre and the public, plays and playwrights, actors and acting. It was all quite informal, but most interesting and provocative of thought and discussion.

To the director of a theatre the search for new plays is like prospecting for gold. It means long delving in barren places and the examination of much that proves but worthless ore; but the lure and excitement of the hunt leads one on, and great is the satisfaction in the finding of a rich vein of pure worth. The tragedy of the search lies in the fact that even after a successful finding, the prohibitive cost of the production of the really good play may necessitate its abandonment; or the uncalculable mind of the public may veer away from what had seemed its inherent attracting powers. Playwriting is in a class of its own, and is much the present vogue in America. Mr. Clive said that in response to an invitation of his, several years ago, he is now fairly deluged with plays of all degrees of dramatic merit; that anywhere from ten to fifteen plays come in to him each week to be read and passed upon. Yet in spite of much worthless material, he belives that play-writing is a coming profession in America, and that the dramatists of the next decade or so will be Americans. He sees no rising generation of playwrights in England to take the place of those who have already been in the ascendency in this line. The war cut off in their budding genius many young English play-writers of promise.

Play-writing calls for a particular type of the literary mind, as does novel writing also, and almost never are the two arts combined in one writer. The successful dramatist is rarely a successful novelist, and vice-versa. Arnota Bennett and Galsworthy are pre-eminently novelists, but poor writers of plays in Mr. Clive's opinion and experience; while Eugene O'Neil, Pinero, and George Bernard Shaw are not novelists in the same degree that they are writers of successful drama. Sir James M. Barrie is the shining exception to the rule, excelling as he does, in both lines of literary art.

As the world of play-wrights is crowded and ever increasing in numbers—albeit it holds much of promise here in America—so the world of actors is tremendously over-populated. According to the annual registration in the actor's guild, about 11,000 aspirants to the profession come in each year—over a thousand a month and about the same number of discouraged ones resign and drop out, while there are at present about 126,000 actors out of work. These facts, Mr. Clive believes, should be made quite clear to those of our young people who desire to enter the acting profession.

In tracing the contributing causes of the gradual replacement of the so-called legitimate theatre by the moving picture house, particular stress was laid on the high cost of theatre tickets and it was urged that the public might, with good effect, demand the reduction in the price of seats. The women's federated clubs might well agree to refuse to pay the current rates, in fact to boycott temporarily the high-priced theatre for the sake of bringing the spoken drama again within the reach of the great mass of would-be theatre goers.

That the radio is indirectly coming to the aid of the legitimate theatre, was made an interesting point. For 15 years or more under the sway of the motion picture, the American youth has grown up to be entirely eye-minded, the ears and imaginative faculties have had no demand made upon them in following the play. But the immense popularity of the radio has given new impulse to ear-training and the hearer's mental effort now is toward trying to imagine, or visualize the scene as a setting for the speaker, singer or actor, to whom he is listening so intently. And so later on, Mr. Clive believes, this modern public, doubly trained in eye and ear will be satisfied only with that form of dramatic presentation which combines the spoken word and the vision for the eyes, and there-upon the legitimate stage will come to it's own again.

There was a touch of the dramatic, when, with earnestness and effect, the speaker repeated the stirring and imaginative lines of Kiplings "L'envoi" and so brought his talk to a close.

While refreshments were being served, many took the opportunity of expressing to the President, Dr. Mary T. Maynard and the other officers and chairmen, the general satisfaction and pleasure felt in their election to office.

1st Vice-President—Mrs. Christine E. Hayden

Popular Russian Dish Elaborate and Tasty

Of Russia's many national dishes Solyanka is perhaps the most popular. This is a much more elaborate preparation than Vienna snitzel or Hungarian goulash. It is rich and piquant without being unduly heavy or greasy, as are most Slav dishes.

To make it the Russian housewife takes 2 pounds of cooked beef, veal, ham or chicken, either singly or in combination, 2 pounds of boiled cabbage, ½ teaspoonful flour, 1 onion, 2 pickles, 10 olives, 10 pickled mushrooms, a few truffles and ¼ pound butter.

The onion and cabbage are chopped fine and fried in butter until soft. The meat is cut into thin slices. Then the cook butters a deep pudding dish, making it inch deep with alternate layers of meat and cooked cabbage. The top layer should be of cabbage, and on this is placed slices of pickled mushrooms, olives, truffles and pickles.

White sauce or brown beef sauce is then poured over all and the dish is baked in an oven for one hour and served hot in the same pudding dish, with a sprinkling of chopped parsely on top.

France Has Absorbed Blood of Many Races

France is called a Latin country, but little save the language and some customs are really left over from Roman times. Racially, there is no European people more mixed. Two-thirds of the dwellers in ancient Gaul were Celts, the rest were Teutonic Franks.

This Celto-Teutonic admixture in the last 2,000 years has absorbed Romans from all parts of that heterogeneous empire; pure Celts, in Brittany; Scandinavian Normans, in the Seine valley; Teutonic Flemings and Walloons, in the north; Teutons, in Lorraine and Alsace; Italians, in Nice and Savoy; Greeks and Arabs, on the Mediterranean coast; Spaniards and Basques, in the Pyrenees; English and Scotch, in the southwest, which was held by English kings for more than a century.

After the Napoleonic wars came many Poles. Before 1914 Swiss, German and Belgian immigrants were being quickly assimilated. Such facts augur well for the present undigested contingents of Italians, Russians, Czechs and Poles. There has been talk, nevertheless, of establishing a quota system similar to that in force in the United States.

Built Fortune From Picture Post Cards

Sir Adolph Tuck was the picture post card pioneer, says the Boston Herald. His father, Raphael Tuck, founded a firm making cheap pictures for London only. The son rapidly extended the business to the British islands as a whole and then seized upon the coming of the ideograph as his opportunity for an enormous expansion of his slowly developing industry. He started with six sets of designs, the next year there were twenty, the third year fifty. He obtained the aid of professional artists and his competitive exhibitions of the paintings to be reproduced on his cards were attended by such crowds as nowadays throng the movies.

He went one year to every one of the royal academicians with requests for new designs and not a few found it consistent with their dignity to accept his offers. Famous poets wrote verses for his cards. But Tennyson had the fortitude to refuse an offer of 1,000 guineas ($5,255) for 1,000 words of verse. This indomitable and enterprising promoter of an industry which he had himself created spent many weary weeks in conference with the postal authorities over the size of his cards. His business success made him a baronet and a prominent British financier.

Cathedral's Fire Brigade

St. Paul's cathedral in London has its own private fire brigade and water service. The water service was installed shortly before the World war. Though the cathedral does not appear to the casual observer as being a building that would burn easily, being mostly of stone, there are hidden away in the thickness of its walls and elsewhere in its interior several hundred passages, corridors, rooms, staircases and cupboards composed largely of wood. The great outer dome, which is to be seen from the street, also is made of wood, encased with lead. Another reason for the fire brigade is the fact that most of the wood in the structure is many years old and unusually dry, making it excellent tinder in event a fire should start in the building.—London Tit-Bits.

Earliest Measurements

Parts of the human body formed the first units of measurement, the inch having developed from the length of the thumb joint. The old measurement called the "hand" was the four inches across the human hand, and the span, nine inches, came from the space from the end of the thumb to the end of the extended little finger.—Ex

Chats With YOUR Gas Man

THE WORLD WAR IS OVER

While political peace has lifted the necessity of many kinds of conservation, still the war on our natural coal resources continues. Now it's conservation of our national fuel supply that is occupying the thoughts of many of our greatest minds.

Science tells us that no other way of converting coal into power and heat is so conserving of our coal supply as by using its great potential energy in the form of gas. Gas represents the utmost fuel efficiency both from the standpoint of the manufacturer of gas and from that of the user of gas. In the first place, in making gas from coal, every particle of the mineral is utilized. In the second place when you, the user, buy gas instead of coal you get full efficiency from everything you pay for, there are no cinders, ashes or smoke left over,—a total loss on your books.

None of our treasure from under the earth is wasted if it's used in the form of gas. In conserving the rapidly diminishing natural resources of coal, as in the solution of many other modern problems, "you can do it better with gas."

Why we sell the DUNLOP TIRE

Take the hidden carcass beneath the tread. Dunlop owns its own cotton mills for no other purpose than to spin the best long-fibre cotton into the famous cable-twist cord that goes into this carcass.

The extra strength in these cords means an added factor of safety against constant load and pounding of roads—longer life and greater mileage.

The extra "stretch" enables the carcass to give under severe blows, and to come back into its original position without internal injury.

The Dunlop tread—the toughest rubber development known—wears slowly and smoothly, making sure that you get out of your Dunlops, all the extra mileage that added care and longer experience have built into them. We recommend that you put Dunlops on your car.

UNITARIAN NEWS

Tonight at 8 o'clock the Men's Club will give a Radio Cabaret under the management of Wm. B. Wood. We understand practically all the tables have been sold, but if there are any late comers, they may be accommodated. There will be many surprises. Proceds will go towards the payment of the new pianos.

Rev. Louis Dethlefs of Medford will preach next Sunday.

On Tuesday, April 26, the Executive Board of the Ladies' Friendly will meet at 11.30 a. m. Luncheon will be served at 1, Mrs. Willard Hudson, Chairman. Meeting at 2. Mrs. Nellie C. Haynes of Lowell will speak on, "Behold the Dreamer Cometh."

We had a large attendance at the Union Good Friday Service held in our Church last Friday evening. Rev. H. W. Hook of the Methodist Church preached the sermon and the other ministers who took part were Rev. John E. Whitley, Pastor of the Second Congregational Church; Rev. Lisle Burroughs, Assistant Minister of the First Congregational Church and Rev. Geo. Hale Reed.

Easter Sunday drew a large throng. Practically every seat was taken in the auditorium and the Sunday School room was nearly filled. A magnificent display of Easter lilies, tastefully arranged by Miss Andrews covered the platform and a spray of pinks paid silent tribute to those names appearing on our honor tablet. Mr. Reed preached an Easter sermon, taking for his subject, "The Conserving of God." The choir appeared in new vestments and much favorable comment was heard. The new collection plates were used for the first time. Eleven persons received the Right Hand of Fellowship.

It is the general opinion that rarely has the church heard better Easter music. A large share of the credit goes to our regular buartet and their director, M. Switzer. They were most ably assisted by the Durrell String Quartet who played not only before the service but also for two of the anthems which were written for voices, strings and orgun. Special notice should be given to the response "Sanctus" composed by Mr. Switzer. Devotional as well as musical it added much to the service.

The musical program for next Sunday will be:

Prelude Poco Agitato	Rheinberger
Anthems
Sing Into the Lord	Maunger
The Lord Is My Shepherd	Farren
Alto Solo Selected
Postlude Triumphal March	Liszt

A large number of children gathered together at the Easter Service of the Sunday School last Sunday. They evinced much interest in the various exercises. The recitations by the pupils of the different classes reflected credit on the pupils and teachers. Mrs. Livingstone's violin solo was much appreciated. Mr. Reed told them an Easter story which the children seemed to enjoy. Mr. Switzer officiated at the organ.

The personnel of the Sunday School Committee has been completed. This committee has been formed with the idea of acting in an advisory capacity. It has been felt for sometime that such a committee should be appointed to advise on the various problems which come up in the Sunday School. They will make suggestions regarding the broadening of the work of the school, both from a religious and and social standpoint.

The committee is composed of the following: Herbert E. Stone, Chairman, Wade S. Grindle, representing the Men's Club; Dr. A. V. Rogers, Geo. S. Cumings, representing the Standing Committee; Mrs. Harold Farnsworth representing the Ladies' Friendly Society; Robert Livingstone, Ronald Olmstead, representing the Metcalf Union; Herbert S. Miller and Rev. Geo. Hale Reed, representing the Sunday School.

At the special Parish meeting held last Wednesday evening, the Standing Committee was unanimously authorized to proceed with the installation of a new organ. The Standing Committee informed us that they expect to have the organ completely installed at the resumption of services in September.

A party of 56 young people journeyed to the Isle of Shoals on the holiday and report a good time. Before leaving, there was a short devotional service held in the chapel. Our coung people will please keep in mind the Isle of Shoals' Conferences June 25-July 9. A nice place and a fine time to spend your vacation.

REV. ALLEN EVANS HONORED BY MEN'S CLUB

Rev. Allen Evans, retiring rector of the Church of the Epiphany, was pleasantly surprised at the parish meeting held Wednesday evening in the Parish House to discuss plans for determining his successor.

Shortly after the meeting had been called to order by the Senior Warden of the church, Alfred S. Higgins, Past President Edward B. Smalley, at the conclusion of a splendid tribute to the service which the Rector has rendered the parish during the past four years, presented Mr. Evans, on behalf of the Epiphany Men's Club, with a handsome mahogany porcelain lined humidor with gold plate, bearing the inscription:

"Rev. Allen Evans, Jr.
from the Epiphany Men's Club
April 20, 1927."

Besides the humidor Mr. Smalley presented the Rector with a gold-monogramed cigarette case of ostrich leather and a richly gold-mounted fountain pen, also the club's gifts.

Mr. Evans was greatly pleased with the gifts and deeply touched at the spirit which prompted the men to present them to him. He expressed his appreciation, and the regret which he feels at leaving the Epiphany Parish which has done so much for him and where he has known so much of happiness.

Following Mr. Evans' departure the meeting voted to leave the selection of a new rector in the hands of the Church Vestry. Arrangements have been made to have substitute pastors assist Rev. William S. Packer and Rev. Carleton P. Mills who are to be in charge of the parish until the selection is made.

MR. HOLBROOK TO BE SUPERINTENDENT OF STREETS

Parker Holbrook, assistant Town Engineer, was appointed acting Superintendent of Streets by the Board of Selectmen at its meeting last Monday evening. Mr. Holbrook's appointment dates from April 20 and continues during the pleasure of the Board. The new superintendent who has been Mr. Hinds' assistant for several years is thoroughly familiar with the work and his acceptance offers a happy solution of the problem with which the Board has been faced.

Two back drops and a number of the accessories to be used in the production of "The Gondoliers" are the work of Ernest Dudley Chase, the well known artist of this town. These together with the work being done in connection with decorating the hall, by a number of other talented citizens of the Town, will give an Italian environment in keeping with the Opera.

CHURCHES THRONGED FOR EASTER

Special Musical Programs Arranged—Fine Weather Enjoyed

Winchester's churches were thronged last Sunday for the Town's observance of Easter, fine weather attracting many to the celebration of this all important day in the Christian Year. Everywhere the church interiors had been made doubly attractive with decorations in which the beautiful Easter lilies played a prominent part. Elaborate and appropriate musical programs were presented and pastors alike strove to bring home to their congregations the glorious message of the resurrection.

At the Unitarian Church Rev. George Hale Reed spoke upon "The Conserving of God." An especial musical program was offered by the church choir, including Helen E. Barr, soprano; Claramond Thompson, alto; Charles W. Ellis, tenor; and Robert H. Isensee, bass, assisted by the Durrell String Quartet, comprising Josephine Durrell, 1st violin; Edith Roubound, 2nd violin; Anna Golden, viola; and Mildred Ridley, cello. Karl Switzer was organist and director. Mrs. Charles Livingstone was the violinist at the Sunday School service in the afternoon.

"The Resurrection — the Crux of Christianity" was the subject of Rev. James Whitcomb Brougher, Jr. at the First Baptist Church where Miss Almira Newcomb, organist and musical director, was assisted by Mrs. Jane Sampson, violin; Miss Reba Harrington, cello; and the church quartet comprising Miss Anita Bancroft, soprano; Miss Stella Robertson, alto; T. Parker Clarke, tenor; and Winfield S. Hanson, bass. Mr. Brougher's evening topic was "The Power of His Resurrection."

"The Resurrection" from the scriptural passage, "Christ, the Lord, Is Risen; He Is Not Here," was the subject of the discourses at all masses in St. Mary's Church, the speakers being Rev. John Sullivan and Rev George Quigley. Father Quigley celebrated high mass at 10 o'clock and at this service St. Mary's children's choir sung the Children's Festival Mass by Stearns. Miss Margaret Mawn and Miss Frances Doherty were soloists and the choir was assisted by St. Mary's Mandolin Circle under the direction of Mr. Thomas Gigliotti.

At the first Easter Sunday service in the new Second Congregational Church, Rev. John H. Whitley spoke upon "The Key to the Future" and there was special music by the church chour choir, Miss Margaret Copland, accompanist. The Easter concert program was presented in the evening with Mrs. Florence E. Simpson as soloist. Mr. Whitley also spoke briefly at this service.

The musical program for the Easter service at the New Hope Baptist Church was held in the evening and presented by the ladies' quartet of the church. The pastor, Rev. William H. Smith preached upon "The Final Victory." Rev. Mr. Smith also spoke at the morning service which was at 10:30.

Rev. Allen Evans, rector of the Church of the Epiphany, took for his text the words, "That I May Know Him and the Power of His Resurrection." Rev. Carleton P. Mills and Rev. William S. Packer assisted with the service, and the vested choir of 45 men and boys under the direction of Organist and Choirmaster J. Albert Wilson sung an elaborate program of Easter music. The children's Easter Carol Service and presentation of plants took place in the afternoon.

"An Easter Message" was the subject of Rev. Hiram William Hook at the Methodist Episcopal Church. Mary H. French, organist, was assisted by the church quartet, including E. Lillian Evans, soprano and director; Josephine Reed, contralto; Arthur Terry, tenor; and Frederick Urquhart, bass. An elaborate Sunday School concert program was presented at 4 in the afternoon with Miss Imelda Mobbs as soloist.

Rev. Howard J. Chidley, pastor of the First Congregational Church, took as his subject of his Easter discourse, "The Undiscovered Country." He was assisted at the service by Rev. Lisle Burroughs. The chancel choir under the direction of Organist G. Wallace Woodworth was assisted with the Easter music by the Junior Choir of 40 voices. In the afternoon the choir joined with that of the First Parish Church (Unitarian) of Cambridge, Lowell P. Beveridge, choirmaster, in the singing of a special vesper musical service at 5 o'clock. Mr James Houghton, baritone, was soloist. The same service was repeated by the combined choirs in the First Parish Church at 7 o'clock in the evening.

Discovery Saved Millions

Theobald Smith, sometimes called the captain of American microbe hunters, solved the mystery of what gives Texas fever to northern cows and how southern cows carry this disease north. When he found that the disease was given to animals by a tick, he not only saved the cattle industry millions of dollars, he showed men an entirely new and fantastic way a disease may be carried by an insect, and only by that insect, says Paul de Kruif in his book, "Microbe Hunters." The developments of this scientific discovery have saved and will save countless lives. For example, David Bruce, British army doctor, discovered that the tsetse fly was responsible for the terrible African sleeping sickness. It was learned also that a mosquito, and only one kind of mosquito, was the carrier of malaria fever.

Faithfulness

Give us a man, young or old, high or low, on whom we know we can thoroughly depend—who will stand firm when others fail—the friend faithful and true, the adviser honest and fearless, the adversary just and chivalrous; in such an one there is a fragment of the Rock of Ages.—Dean Stanley.

DAILY PHILOSOPHY

John Ruskin said 'He who has truth at his heart need never fear the want of persuasion on his tongue."

Many call "ill luck" that which is only neglect to improve opportunity.

Most people get their share of justice but are short on mercy.

The man who distrusts everyone he sees probably spends some of the time in front of a mirror.

The failures of life are largely made up of complainers.

Those of us who dream of harvests should not neglect the toil that produces them.

The Highland School is not to be opened until next September, owing to "necessary repairs."

The well trained Congregational Church clock has been away off lately, but it is said that another Trainor is unnecessary.

We believe in signs—especially those of danger, and approve the warning notices placed each side of railroad crossings and school houses, but we do not approve the placarding of Highland avenue with school warning signs as has been done. A conspicuous sign either side of a school is a good thing, but if we are to placard our streets without rhyme or reason, automobile drivers will cease to heed any warning whatsoever.

The Committee recently appointed by the Moderator and known as the (Waterways Committee), met in the General Committee Room of the Town Hall Friday evening, April 15, and organized with Mr. Lewis Parkhurst as Chairman and Mr. George T. Davidson as Secretary. After some discussion of the matters referred to the committee it was decided to make a complete survey of the waterways of the Town, with the assistance of a competent Engineer. It was also decided to notify the Metropolitan District Commission of the sewage overflow that has been running into the stream all winter and to call their attention to the probable pollution of Mystic Lake especially as regards bathing this coming summer. The committee has been fortunate in securing the services of Herbert Kelloway, the noted landscape architect, and on Monday and Tuesday a complete inspection was made of the river and ponds, revealing deplorable conditions. A report on part of the project, the Mill Pond in the centre, is expected at an early date, and it is anticipated that a comprehensive program, covering a period of 10 years will be recommended.

It has been often claimed that the more one does for youth the less appreciative that youth becomes, and Coach Wendell D. Mansfield, faculty director of athletics at the Winchester High School, is one who would very probably subscribe whole heartedly to that view. Nor can we blame him. No coach whom we recall has had the interests and welfare of the boys here more firmly at heart than this same Coach Mansfield; none has been more truly their friend; none has given them a squarer deal. A capable coach and a fine fellow, he is deserving of the unrestricted co-operation of his charges; yet he has been far from getting it.

His troubles began during the football season when certain of his first string players were suspended from school for truancy and since that time the escapades of the athletes have continually kept the coach on the anxious seat, wondering whether disciplinary reprisals would prevent his having even a starting lineup for his scheduled games. Only Principal Grindle's inherent sense of justice to the coach and school, liking and understanding of boys, and avowed interest in athletics has prevented this contingency from becoming a lamentable fact. Mr. Grindle has overlooked much and has gone more than half way in every instance with the erring athletes.

The latest outrage could not be overlooked. Following the baseball game with Belmont High School a part of Coach Mansfield's squad returned to Winchester in advance of their fellows and to amuse themselves until the arrival of the coach and remaining players broke several of the big classroom windows in the high school building.

Nothing can be said to condone their act. The culprits were not children who might plead ignorance as an excuse for their vandalism. The sad part of the whole affair is the fact that within the group were included two major sport captains and the president of the senior class, supposedly leaders in the student life of the school. Three men to whom others in the school might well look up, being parties to the wanton destruction of the community's property.

The young men in question may consider themselves fortunate that they are not facing prosecution for vandalism. Many a high school principal, tired with repeated offenses against the regulations of his institution, might well have decided in such an instance to allow the law to take its course. The result would not have been especially pleasant since the names of the group of boys who broke the windows were known and it would have been comparatively easy for the police to have determined the guilty ones.

At the first questioning but one boy admitted his part in the mischief and later one other confessed. As a result the entire group was barred from participation in the Reading game last Saturday, and Winchester was badly beaten. Only four of Coach Mansfield's regulars were able to play.

No coach enjoys seeing his team defeated when he feels in his heart that mustering his full strength he might have won. At the very beginning of the baseball season three potential first string players were lost to the team for a while because of infractions of training rules and truancy. No one could feel worse than does Coach Mansfield at the failure of his boys to keep faith with him, and to him should go the Town's moral support and sympathy. The boys deserve none of either. Should they be expelled from school for the destruction of that school's property, they would be getting no more than their just deserts. We hardly believe Mr. Grindle will act in this summary fashion, yet none could blame him if he did.

It is to be hoped that the disturbance can be satisfactorily ironed out and that the innocent need not too long suffer for those who are guilty. Especially do we hope that Coach Mansfield may hereafter get the even break to which he is entitled. Winchester has always been justly proud of its athletes, yet in the light of recent developments it might seem that this pride is sadly misplaced. The burden of proof rests with the boys. No one has any use for a rowdy.

WINCHESTER CHAMBER OF COMMERCE DINED

Mr. Dallinger praised the Chamber of Commerce as a common ground upon which citizens might meet for informal discussions of civic affairs, thus maintaining their interest in their community. He disagreed with Mr. Hull in the matter of the National Budget System being inferior to that of Massachusetts and pointed out that under the former the operating expenses of the Nation have been reduced from seven or eight billion dollars yearly to three billion, two billion of which are necessary for the payment of debts contracted in war.

In closing Mr. Dallinger condemned as wholly indefensible the present system of filibuster in the Senate, by which action upon worth while bills is prevented by the privilege of unlimited debate. We are the only country in which any such privilege is granted a legislative body and the speaker hoped that the time may come when a Senate might be elected pledged to end this practice.

Following Mr. Dallinger President Arnold called upon Chairman John H. Powers of the Selectmen who spoke briefly, urging the citizens to support the Board in its efforts to abolish the present grade crossing nuisance.

Consolation

They were on their way home from the football game. He broke the silence by remarking sadly, "Well, too bad we lost the game." "Isn't it," agreed the girl. "But never mind, Bob; we had the best looking cheer leaders."—Boston Transcript.

They Live on Tree Gum

How should you like to live on nothing but gum from a gum tree for a period of about six weeks? If you were in certain parts of Asia and Africa you would probably enjoy this as the natives do. This gum is from the gum arabic tree and is said to contain a goodly amount of nourishment. During the harvest season the natives eat it instead of other food.—Grit.

Gyroscope on Railroads

During the year 1926 the gyroscope was first used in the railroad field. It is now used by railroads to bring about more comfortable riding over the rails, it being explained that in this application it "functions as the heart of an extensive recording device to measure and locate uneven spots and other irregularities in the track."

Spiritualization

Like builds like and like attracts like. In the degree that thought is spiritualized does it become more subtle and powerful in its working. This spiritualizing is in accordance with law and is within the power of all.—Exchange.

UNIVERSITY THEATRE

Sunday, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday—"For Wives Only." Marie Prevost has the lead in this thrilling farce comedy, the scenes of which are laid in Vienna. A popular society physician leaves his wife under the protection of three of his best friends, while he makes a business trip. What happens causes all the excitement—and the picture tells it better than words can.

"The Fourth Commandment." A powerful dramatic story, true to life and full of situations that stir to the depths. Belle Bennett is at her best in the portrayal of the young wife and mother who longs for material things. Others in the cast are Mary Carr Henry Victor June Marlowe, Wendell Phillips Franklin and Robert Agnew.

Thursday, Friday, Saturday — "Jim the Conqueror." From the sensational Western story by Peter B. Kyne. Jim Burgess started out by conquering a woman's heart, and ended by taming bad men of the Western frontier.

"McFadden's Flats." Of course any picture which featured Charlie Murray and Chester Conklin would be expected to be funny. This one is a scream from beginning to end with "Murray" playing the "Irish hod carrier" and Conklin the "Scotch wad carrier."

MOTOR CRASH AND RESCUE ENLIVENED SATURDAY'S FIRE PROGRAM

A motor crash in which a pleasure car and a piece of fire apparatus figured and the rescue of a woman from a burning home on Main street were added features of last Saturday's program of fires which began at 8:17 in the morning with a call to a grass fire on Fletcher street. Previously at 7:02 the chief's car answered a telephone call from Mrs. N. L. Cushman of Sheffield road who had discovered broken gas pipe in the cellar of her home. The firemen cut off the gas at the meter and expressed surprise that the inmates of the house had not been overcome by the fumes.

At 10:20 Mr. M. J. England telephoned the Central Station that there was a bad brush fire in progress in the rear of his home at Ledgewood road. The blaze spread quickly to the land included in the estates of Preston Pond and Lorene Lacker, giving the firemen a hard fight for several hours before it was finally extinguished. About two acres were burned over and at one time it appeared as if the fire might cause more serious trouble by getting into the Fells. Two alarms were sounded for the fire and while the firemen were busy there Box 26 sounded at 12.42 for a fire in the home of Mr. Nelson Seelye on Main street. Engine 2, Combination A, Ladder 1 and the Chief's car answered the alarm and had a stiff fight with the fire which started from some undetermined cause upon the second story of the house. The estimated damage was $2000.

During the fire Mrs. Bessie P. Stokes, housekeeper at the Seelye home, was found wandering about on the third story of the house by officer James E. Farrell of the police who escorted her to the street. The woman was in a dazed condition from the heat and smoke of the fire.

Meanwhile, in attempting to back the combination to a vantage point at the fire driver Harry Brown was in collision with a Ford touring car, owned by George W. Hayden, Jr. of 11 Mt. Pleasant street and containing Robert and Francis Hayden, Thayer Richardson and Mrs. Marion Powers of Mt. Pleasant street. The heavy ladders protruding from the rear of the fire apparatus crashed through the windshield and top of the Hayden machine and its occupants were fortunate to escape serious injury. Had any of them lost their lives, there would have been no one to blame but the operator of the machine who was well within the limit prescribed by law from which automobiles are to keep from fire vehicles going to fires. In setting his emergency brake at the first warning of the collision driver Brown broke the key upon the jack-rod of the combination and the machine had to be towed back to headquarters for repairs.

Saturday's final run came at 4 o'clock in the afternoon for burning grass at Washington street opposite Harvard street.

NEW OWNER AND MANAGER AT THE REGENT THEATRE, ARLINGTON

Mr. Louis J. Coraity assumes control of the Regent Theatre Arlington and his supervising director, Mr James Donovan is on the job going over the little playhouse and fussing it up so it will assume an atmospheric condition pleasing to the eye and make you feel at home the moment you step into the lobby.

Mr. Coraity in an interview with this paper said he will try to fill your entertainment system full of good photo plays, good music and novelties on the stage each and every time he has the pleasure of seeing the theatre filled and judging from his offering the past week he has started right. On Easter Monday of last week the theatre was filled to capacity and those who saw the show agreed that it had been a long time since they had really seen it's equal and Mr. Coraity has just started. So the Winchester public should get together and show their appreciation by patronizing the Regent often.

Navigational Authority

One of the extremely old organizations in England is the Corporation of Trinity house, the history of which, some authorities say, goes back to the days of Alfred the Great. Trinity house has a long arm, reaching all around the coasts of Great Britain, embracing the Channel islands and extending to Gibraltar. Within this extensive area it is the supreme navigational authority. It runs the lighthouses, buoys the channels, lays down the navigation marks and licenses most of the pilots. There are approximately 1,000 persons in its employ and all of them are engaged in some way or another in lessening the risks incidental to seafaring. Every American traveler who visits Europe is dependent upon Trinity house for reaching harbor safely on the other side. Christian Science Monitor.

Toothless Era Seen

Scientists state that certain changes in the structure of man are going on at the present moment, and one of the most marked of these is that we're losing our teeth. They are certainly decreasing in number. The third molar is doomed, and other teeth may follow until the normal state of man is toothlessness. When that happens the square chin will no longer be a sign of strength of character, for there will be none. As the teeth recede or disappear the chin will recede also.

Tell-Tale Walls

It is said that Chinese families at one time commemorated the deaths of their relatives by putting up a strip of wall paper every time a death occurred. Families with the largest number of dead relations naturally possessed the greatest quantity of wall paper on the walls and ceilings of their homes.

Chandler has hit a stride that is making them all talk!

WHENEVER something better comes along—something actually, visibly, intrinsically better—the world quickly welcomes it.

Witness the great spontaneous success of the magnificent new Royal Eight and new Sixes by Chandler—here, there and everywhere!

Pressing Rapidly Ahead

In every state, every city and town, motor car owners are shifting to Chandler.

The good and ample reasons for this success are very apparent.

In Eights and Sixes alike just see how Chandler has glorified the present trend of motor car design.

See how Chandler has embellished the customary standards of luxury.

See how Chandler has surpassed all ideas of modern performance—with the mighty power of its marvelous Pikes Peak Motor!

A Company of Strength

The cars themselves reflect the fortified stability back of the cars. And this stability of Chandler is important to bear in mind—for everybody wants to be sure the car he buys is backed up by an organization of strength and permanence.

Chandler owns two modern large-volume plants—"lock, stock and barrel"—and not a penny against them on paper or in fact.

Chandler Really Builds a Car!

Chandler cars are Chandler-built, not assembled—built in practical entirety in Chandler's own plants—all the way from the raw products to the final operations.

Chandler's distributing and dealer organization not only blankets the United States and Canada, but extends throughout the world.

And as a direct result of the leaping increase in Chandler sales more new dealers are applying for the Chandler franchise than in any other period of Chandler history.

The Line is Complete

Twenty-five custom body styles—the Sixes ranging from $945 to $1895, the Eights $2195 to $2295; (f. o. b. Factory).

All models have the famous Chandler "One-Shot" lubrication system. We proudly ask you to look at these cars—drive—compare them with anything else on wheels!

READING HIGH BEATS REVAMPED LOCAL NINE

Winchester's second string En[illegible] proved no match for Reading High last Saturday morning on Manchester Field and was defeated 10—3 after leading 2—0 at the end of the third frame.

Six of Coach Mansfield's regular players were unable to play due to their connection with the breaking of several windows at high school following the return of the squad from Belmont. First base, second base, shortstop and the three outfield berths were wide open as a result of temporary suspensions until the matter should be finally cleared up. With no even ordinarily experienced second stringers available to fill these positions the coach was away up against it for a defense against Reading but went through with the game like a sportsman.

"Bobby" Callahan started upon the mound for Winchester and went along alright for three frames though it could be seen that he had little or nothing on the ball and was minus his usual good control. The locals put over a couple of tallies in the third and had "B[illegible]" [illegible] effective fork [illegible] might easily have won the ball game. As it was, however Reading [illegible] the count in the 4th and drove Callahan to the showers in the 5th when they piled up 7 runs on a combination of hits, passes and wierd plays.

Amico took up the pitching burden where Callahan laid it down and looked very good out there. Reading got one in the 5th, but thereafter was shut out in most approved fashion.

In the 9th with one away Amico got hold of a Doherty offering and banged it on the first hop into the river for a sure fire home run. Ambrose was retired, but Franklin doubled lustily to left center and the crowd shouted to Callahan to bring him over. "Bobby" ran the count to three and one before grounding out, Latham to Conti, ending the agony.

Winchester's batting strength was shot all to pieces by the loss of so many of its first string players. It is doubtful if Doherty would have been able to keep the local hits to a total of 6, had the boys mustered their full strength. Franklin and Amico got four of the six between them, showing how impotent the remainder of the batting order happened to be.

WINCHESTER BOYS ADMITTED TO DARTMOUTH

Announcement was made this week by Dean Bill, Registrar of Dartmouth College, that three Winchester boys are among those who are to be admitted to the freshman class at Hanover next fall. Frederick Hamerstrom, Thad Smith and Howard Smith are the boys in question and it is distinctly to the credit of the local high school that all three of its candidates for admission should be accepted, since Dartmouth has decided to admit 500 less freshmen next year.

Few Women Without Hunger for Romance

Women crave the ideal in seeking a mate. But to a woman in love the roseate halo which she herself placed about the head of the adored one may make the most commonplace man seem a very Parsifal before her gaze. And even with a quickening sense of the mistake she has made the woman seeks to justify her own belief in her ideal.

That [illegible] reality is at the bottom of most of the marriage [illegible]. The woman believes that somewhere in the man are those glowing qualities she believes exist, though they may be latent.

With repeated failure to arouse them she grows restless, impatient, is discouraged, not with mankind, but with her man. She is still seeking and still believes. For a time she may be able to see in some other man the qualities she desires. But once she has entered into a new [illegible], how often does she discover [illegible] itself!

The sort of hero worship [illegible] at the crowded matinees of favorite artists, actors, violinists, pianists, is to be explained, not only by the love of the arts, but often by the fact that women who flock to these performances are hungry for romance.—Jane Cowl in Liberty.

Queer How Some Men Attain High Position

When George F. Baer was president of the Reading railroad, he was sitting on the porch of his home one Sunday afternoon when a man carrying a suitcase approached and said:

"Is this where the president of the Reading railroad lives?"

"Yes," answered Mr. Baer.

"Are you the president of the Reading railroad?"

"Yes," said Mr. Baer again.

"Well," said the man with the suitcase, "how much does an excursion ticket to Niagara Falls cost?"

"Sorry," replied Mr. Baer, "but I don't know."

"What?" exclaimed the inquirer in astonishment, "you don't know the price of an excursion ticket to Niagara Falls? Say, you're a fine railroad president!"

Their Death Not in Vain

Probably the most disastrous Arctic expedition in history was that of Sir John Franklin of the British navy. Of the 129 confident and courageous explorers who sailed with him from England in the summer of 1845, not one returned. Yet this attempt to discover a route to the Pacific cannot be branded as a failure, for while the adventurers who set forth so hopefully in the Erebus and Terror perished wretchedly a few years later, disaster and death did not overtake them until they had achieved the main object of their voyage, the discovery of a channel of communication from Baffin bay to Bering strait. Thus did Franklin's volunteers realize the centuries-old dream of European navigators, the finding of a northwest passage. They were conquerors, even in death.—Dearborn Independent.

Royalty Rebuked

The phrase "There is no royal road to learning" is merely a modified form of Euclid's famous reply to King Ptolemy I of Egypt. It is said that Euclid founded the school of mathematics at Alexandria when that city was just becoming a center of learning. According to tradition, Ptolemy once asked the great mathematician whether there was not some easier way for him to learn geometry than by studying the "Elements," a work prepared by Euclid himself. Euclid replied: "There is no royal road to geometry."—Pathfinder Magazine.

Road Signs Old Idea

Road signs date back to the early history of the world. Many monuments have been unearthed by archeological expeditions in Crete, Asia Minor and the Greek Peloponnesus which show that the directional signs were in use even in the time of the legendary heroes of the Hellenic world. In the Roman forum is still preserved the "golden milestone," a pillar which was erected by Augustus, on which were carved the names of roads together with distances from Rome.

Rolls Up Like a Ball

A queer little animal from Australia is known as the echidna. Scientists claim that this curious creature is a link between the birds and true mammals. As an anteater it is a fine specimen of a porcupine, being completely covered with a coat of large spines, which serves as an armor.

When the echidna is attacked where digging is impossible, it immediately tucks in its head and feet and rolls itself into a ball. If the ground is soft the echidna disappears rapidly and suddenly.

First Tea in Europe

Though reports of tea as a Chinese beverage had been received from Portuguese sources as early as 1517, the credit for its introduction from China into Europe belongs to the Dutch East India company, which imported a few pounds into Holland in 1610, and into England in 1645, says the Newark News. Apparently it was not until 1669 that the English East India company brought its first consignment, two canisters, weighing in all 143 pounds, from Bantam.

Famous Garden Pride of New England City

The greatest garden in America is the Arnold Arboretum of New Bedford, Mass., says the Pathfinder Magazine. Not only is it America's greatest, but it ranks among the most famous and important gardens of the world. James Arnold, a New Bedford merchant, died in 1868 and left a part of his estate to three trustees. They were instructed to apply the funds to the promotion and maintenance of agricultural or horticultural improvements, or philosophical or philanthropic purposes, at their discretion. Two of these men were interested in trees and thought it important that knowledge of that subject be disseminated in America. So a scientific station for the study and cultivation of trees was decided on.

Of course this garden is a baby in years when compared with the great gardens of other nations. Its future, however, is assured. At present it consists of 250 acres of varied natural features of hill, valley, meadow and [illegible] are growing [illegible] shrubs and trees. They [illegible] between 5,000 and 6,000 species and varieties.

Old Problem Leaves Room for Argument

The question of whether the bachelor or the married man lives the longer is one which has been discussed for a long time but the problem today is still unsolved. After weighing the arguments of all investigators and comparing the bewildering array of statistics gathered in many countries under varying conditions, it is impossible to reach a conclusive answer. Many statisticians and other investigators who may qualify as experts on the subject hold views diametrically opposed to one another.

The answer to this question has a general and far-reaching influence. If it is established that the chances of long life are greater for bachelors than for the married, both men and women will naturally be influenced in choosing between the two states. The moralist finds such statistics the basis for argument. For the insurance companies the question is a very practical one. Before millions of dollars are risked upon the expectation of life, the most reliable figures obtainable are gathered, regardless of trouble or expense.

Memento of Covenanters

An historic document recalling the struggles of the Covenanters was recently sold in Edinburgh. The document in question is signed by such historical figures as Rothes, Montrose, Cassilis, Lothian, Wemyss, Yester, Boyd, Elcho, Lindesay, and Melville. The Linlithgowshire copy of the Covenant remained in the hands of the descendants of the laird of Dundas until 1924 when the document was purchased by Messers. Baxendine from the late Sir Charles Dundas. The document, which is written on old parchment, is in a wonderful state of preservation. The owner has presented this framed copy to St. Giles' cathedral, and it has been accepted by the board of management.

Hoarding Not Thrift

There are people who enjoy saving money for no other reason than the pleasure of saving money. It is a passion like drink, and a hobby like collecting china. This is the old-fashioned view of thrift. Such saving is at best no more than a defense against life's uncertainties, but it provides nothing for a richer and more fruitful living that money wisely saved and wisely spent can give. Mere hoarding is not enough. It is as unproductive as reckless spending. Between the two extremes lives the course that is profitable to the individual and the state equally. Every act of spending encourages some form of human activity.—Glasgow Herald.

Wyoming Fossil Land

Wyoming may become the Gobi desert of the United States. In search of the fossils of the gigantic mammals and reptiles of prehistoric ages, five universities have sent scientists and students to delve into the rocks of practically every part of the state. Wyoming was once a huge sea and recently there were uncovered a dozen fossils of huge prehistoric eels, fifty to seventy-five feet long. They resembled the fabled sea serpents. Huge fossils of animals of the Jurassic period in the Mesozoic era have been discovered in central, northern and southeastern Wyoming.

Hair Tells Nationality

Scientists place a high value on hair as a guide to racial characteristics, the hairs having numerous variations of structure under the microscope, which can be clearly defined and classified like finger and other skin prints.

The hairs of a negro, a Chinese, an American Indian, and a Caucasian differ in quantity, color, structure, and growing habits, and so we are enabled to tell a man's nationality simply by studying his hair.

Sincerity Imperative

To make people believe what you say you must say what you believe. Sincerity is absolutely essential to successful pleading. Insincerity is certain to create doubt in the minds of others. Better say nothing at all if you cannot speak from honest convictions.—Grit.

WOMAN'S CHRISTIAN TEMPERANCE UNION NOTES

The April meeting of the local W. C. T. U. held at the Home for Aged People was well attended.

Mrs. Ella A. Gleason, Honorary State President led the devotional service. At the close of the business meeting Miss Harriet Long from the Leland Powers School delighted the ladies by reading several humorous selections, these combined with the violin solo by Arata Monradian, and the cheerful songs rendered by Mrs. Arline Fields accompanied by Mrs. Wm. LeFavour, all contributed in making the afternoon one long to be remembered by those present. At the close of the meeting Mr. George Arnold and Mrs. George Osborne, Vice Presidents representing the Episcopal Church, assisted by their committee served refreshments. The President, Mrs. Geo. Hamilton spoke of the New England W. C. T. U. Conference which will be held in the Old South Meeting House, Washington street, Boston on May 3, 4 and 5. Many notable speakers will take part and on Thursday the 5th, Governor Fuller will hold a reception in the Hall of Flags. This will be followed by a luncheon held at Hotel Bellevue. Mrs. Ella A. Boole, National President will be the speaker.

Before the days of prohibition, Peoria, Ill., was the center of the distillery business, and paid one-half of the total Federal internal revenue taxes. It was feared that prohibition would be the ruin of Peoria, but the city today is far ahead of what it was in the whiskey days. They are building a new 16-story $1,500,000 hotel, have made a 60 per cent increase in factory payrolls during the last two years, have gained more population in the five years since 1920 than in the preceeding decade, are two and seven tenths per cent ahead of the peak time of the war in the employment of labor, and have developed their trading area to Chicago on the north and St. Louis on the south.

BOWDOIN SQUARE THEATRE

Beginning Monday, April 25 and continuing for the entire week the management at the Bowdoin Square Theatre will offer, the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer offering, "The Fire Brigade" with the leading roles taken by Charles Ray and May McAvoy. It is a picture of genuine worth, with many thrilling moments and was the sensation of the movie world in New York for months. The soldiers of peace are viewed doing their duty, amid the heat and the fury of the flames. They seek not their own safety but the safety of others and in the course of the story a girl of wealth falls in love with a dashing young fireman. It is true to life in every detail and the fire horses of yesterday will be seen with the motorized divisions of today. Great fire scenes are portrayed such as never before shown on the screen. An impressive spectacle is that showing gold star mothers of heroic fire fighters. Another picture will show Dorothy Phillips in, "Remember," a story of a man who forgot and of a girl who remembered. "Busy Lizzie" will be the Mermaid Comedy and the Pathe News together with five vaudeville specialties will please. Bargain night Friday with Concert Sunday at 3. Free parking service to suburban patrons.

POLICE OFFICER CAUGHT WOBURN DRIVER AFTER CHASE

Lawrence A. Boudreau of 7 Pickering street, Woburn, was arrested by Officer James E. Farrell of the police last Sunday evening after a thrilling motor chase which led from the center up Washington street to Swanton street.

Officer Farrell was on duty in the center when he saw Boudreau driving through town in a machine the numbers of which he recognized as belonging to another car. Commandeering an automobile the policeman gave chase, and caught the fleeing motorist at the Main street extremity of Swanton street. The latter was charged with operating a motor vehicle with number plates registered to another car, with operating an automobile not insured and with driving without his license in his possession.

Boudreau appeared in the District Court at Woburn Monday morning. The first two charges against him were filed by Judge Morton who levied a fine of $10 for the no license.

PETER ROGERS

Peter Rogers, widely known resident of Winchester and a retired town employee, passed away Saturday morning at his home on Bleod Bridge street after a year's illness.

Mr. Rogers was 80 years of age and had been for 30 years a valued and trusted employee of the Town before his retirement several years ago on a pension. His years of service and long residence in Winchester had won for him a large number of friends throughout the community. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Ellen Rogers, by one daughter, Mrs. Benjamin Manzie of Winchester; and by two sons, William and James Rogers both of this town.

Funeral services were held from the late residence Monday morning with a Solemn High Mass of Requiem celebrated in St. Mary's Church at 9 o'clock. Rev. Fr George Quigley was celebrant, Rev. Fr John Sullivan, deacon; and Rev. Fr Nathaniel J. Merritt, sub-deacon. Interment was in Calvary Cemetery.

Clifford Thompson, of Malden whose arrest not long ago on Highland avenue by Officer John Noonan arroused such favorable comment in police circles, was arrainged last week in the Superior Court at East Cambridge, charged with the theft of an automobile from Medford. Thompson, who was the possessor of quite a record, pleaded guilty without trial and was sentenced to from 4 to 8 years in prison.

ARTHUR BLACK'S FLAMINGO MADE FINE IMPRESSION

Flamingo, a beautiful chestnut, owned and ridden by Arthur Black of Winchester, was the talk of the annual horse show given under the auspices of the New Riding Club on the evenings of Monday and the holiday. Appearing on the opening night in the class for saddlers not exceeding 15.2 hands, Flamingo was the only mount considered for the blue and it was the general opinion that he will score heavily during the meets to be held during the outdoor season. Mr. Black's Red Roberts won a blue in the class for novice saddle horses over 14.2 hands and a red in Class 2 for saddlers 15.2 hands and over.

On the holiday evening Flamingo won another blue for his owner when he was adjudged the best of the park hacks in the show by Alden S. Blodgett. The victory was a notable one, inasmuch as the class included Miss Betty Bird's Chocolate Soldier, Frank B. Hopewell's Irma Denmark, Miss Miriam Winslow's Mimi, Miss Elizabeth Loring's Volcano and Miss Anna C. Danforth's new chestnut mare, Miss LaSalle.

PAINT YOUR CHEEKS FROM THE INSIDE

Have you the kind of a complexion that can withstand the April showers? Every woman naturally attempts to improve her looks and most often she relies upon cosmetics. Dr. Merrill Champion of the State Department of Public Health says, "that a far better effect, which is also more permanent and less expensive can be produced by painting the cheeks from the inside.

A good complexion is one of the indications of good health. It is one of the results of regular health habits. Proper food, plenty of sleep and daily bathing help the complexion immensely. A diet consisting of at least a pint of milk a day, green vegetables, dark breads and cereals and plenty of water is excellent. Fried foods and an excess of sweets should be cut out.

Some people naturally have much higher color than others yet the complexion can be improved by outdoor exercise. This puts the blood into better circulation and some of it is bound to stray up into the cheeks.

So check up on your health habits when attempting to improve the complexion - remember that paint applied from the inside cannot be washed off in the April showers."

Cremona Old City of Loveliness and Music

Lombardy, where the silver poplars grow and music is in the air . . . and the yellow sunlight falls upon you —in Lombardy, fabled and sung by a thousand praising tongues . . . there brooded and hummed, worked and dreamed, a busy thriving town four centuries ago . . . the town of violins. Its name was Cremona, and the heart of music was the heart of the world to the men who worked there . . . .

On one side was the River Oglio, on another the Adda; on the south the Po swept by, blue-purple under the warm sky, running down, down, down to where the Adriatic waited for it. On the other side of the Po were Parma and Placenza, dreaming the year away; one could cross over by a bridge if one liked.

It was very old, this town of violins, and its name . . . from the Greek, meant "Alone upon a rock." . . .

A very pretty, happy Italian city it was, with . . . golden light splashed upon roof and street, the . . . music of children's voices and magical southern skies filtering through . . . This from the year 1520 was the center of violin making, the town of violins. Alice Chapin in "The Heart of Music."

Commandments That Are Worth Observing

Honor your friends by taking a daily bath; for cleanliness is a part of godliness.

Honor your family by having your life insured; for life insurance guarantees the co-operation of the insurer in the prolongation of the life of the insured.

Honor your stomach by having your teeth examined by a dentist at regular intervals; for bad teeth are an abomination to the system.

Honor your fellows by obeying the law; for it is a mark of good citizenship to obey a law whether one likes it or not.

Hard-Working Novelist

Undoubtedly the hardest working woman author in history was Armadine Lucile Aurore, the French novelist, better known by her pen name, George Sand. She was born in Paris June 8, 1804, and is credited with being one of the first writers to demand liberty for women in all things. Though her novels enjoyed wide popularity during her lifetime, and were translated even into Russian, they are now somewhat old fashioned, and not much read, says the London Chronicle. She wrote daily from 10 p. m. to 5 a. m., and if she finished a novel a quarter of an hour before the appointed time had elapsed, she at once set to work upon another.

Calculated Remark

A carver at the head of a table in an Irish inn, noticing the large number of guests, remarked audibly that the goose set before him might have been eaten a week ago.

Those who heard him ordered cuts from the joint, while he helped himself liberally to goose. A diner, noticing this, remarked that he had understood him to say that the goose was not good.

"Oh, no," he replied.

"But you said that it might have been eaten a week ago."

"Yes, and so it might, but it wasn't." —London Tit Bits.

Butterflies Travel Far

The Monarch butterfly of the northern United States and southern Canada, though common in north temperate latitudes, is unable to stand the winter north of the subtropical portions of the southern states. Though it does not establish the fact that the entire journey from Florida to the Arctic circle is made by individuals, the annual appearance of the insects proves that a considerable northward movement goes on each year. It may, of course, be the result of the successive efforts of several generations.

"The Latch String Is Out"

The first example to be found of the use of the phrase, the latch string is out, dates from 1887. It was the creation of some journalist who wrote for the Pall Mall Gazette, London, January 8, page 6, column 2: "We have hung our latch-string out to you and yours." In 1893 the Advance, of Chicago, for March 16, page 209, wrote: "Our latch-string is out has become a classical expression of cordial hospitality."

Tiny Testaments

The smallest Testament in the world is owned by a lady at Hemel Hempstead, Herts, England. It measures only ⅝ of an inch square and ¼ of an inch thick. The next smallest is ⅞ by ½ inch. The owner states that her New Testament, dated 1895, and published by David Bryce, of Glasgow, contains 540 pages, and is printed "on the very thinnest Oxford paper ever made. It is inclosed in a small metal case fitted with a magnifying glass in the lid."

CALUMET NOTES

President Taylor was the recipient of much praise for his administration work. John well deserves every bit of it, for he has performed very efficient work for two years and those who have sat with him in board meetings can testify to his executive ability.

We were sorry to lose Kenneth Caldwell as Treasurer. "Ken" has a marvelous mind for figures and always had them at hand readily when needed. Our new treasurer comes highly recommended.

Walter Brown is one of the older members (in point of service) and the club is fortunate to have a man of his calibre for president. We think he knows enough about the needs of the club to give it a successful administration. He may rest assured that he will have the hearty support of all the members.

The Club is to be congratulated on Ernest Chase's willingness to take charge of the chairmanship of the Entertainment Committee for another year. Every club member knows that his work has been most efficient the past year and he has given us plenty of entertainment of the first order.

Two of the three directors, "Ed." Merrill and Walter Chamberlin (Walter says the last "a" in his name is silent) made witty speeches. The other, "Ed" Barry, was out of the room when called on, but like Finnegan was back again when the speech-making was over.

We were pleased to see our ministerial members, Rev. Mr. Hook and Rev. Mr. Burroughs. Members after the meeting voiced the opinion that they were good fellows. We hope they will come often.

"Dan" Kelly officiated at the piano in the absence of the one we had engaged. "Dan," however, was a worthy substitute. Harry Peterson led the singing. "Ed" Smalley made a very pleasing speech in which he praised the work of the out-going administration and made a plea for members to support the incoming officers.

Ex-President John Maddocks spoke also in appreciative terms.

Members have been advised that the annual monthly entertainment for members and ladies scheduled for tonight has been postponed to May 6, when a dancing party will be given at the close of the mixed bowling dinner.

On Saturday night, the usual Calumet social will take place with bowling, cards, billiards, pool and a general good time. Regular Saturday night lunch.

The two bowling tournaments are drawing near to a close. In the mixed tournament, team 11 seems to have a comfortable lead followed by 2—6 and 11 closely bunched. In the men's spring bowling tournament, team 6 has a big lead and with only a few more games to roll, looks good for first place.

We note that Mrs. Arthur Dickson had a two string total recently of 194, her strings being 100 and 94 respectively. It is also worthy of note that she trimmed her better-half by a wide margin.

Anticipating Weather

In the headquarters offices of most electric service companies are barometers. When these register the approach of storms, crews of linemen and electricians are marshaled so that possible storm damage may be remedied quickly.

European Standard Time

Most European countries use standard time based on one of the even-hour meridians as reckoned from Greenwich. This custom is followed by all European countries, except Ireland, Holland, Russia and Greece, which base their time systems on meridians of their capitals. In Russia railways are run on Pulkowa time and in Holland on Amsterdam time.

March of Progress

A mechanical dryer, in use in the West, does away with the necessity for making hay while the sun shines. It is understood experiments are also under way which will enable one to strike the iron while it is cold.—Detroit News.

Cause of Thunder

It is not believed that thunder is caused by the inrush of air into a vacuum, but by the violent heating and disintegration of the air along its path, which produce a sudden and great expansion of the same nature as an explosion

Experience

Think not that I have been obliged for this reformation of manners to reason or reflection, but to a severer schoolmistress, Experience. One has little merit in learning her lessons, for one cannot well help it; but they are more useful than others, and imprint themselves in the very heart.—Gray's Letters.

EMBLEM CLUB INSTALLATION

Before a large gathering of members, Elks, and representatives of other Emblem Clubs, Winchester Emblem Club's incoming board of officers were installed at the regular meeting held Wednesday evening in Lyceum Hall. The ceremony was performed by P. E. R., Fred H. Scholl and Suite, of the local Lodge, B. P. O. E. and each of the following was inducted into office with all due formalities:

President Emily A. Scholl
Vice-President Annie M. Hanlon
Past-President Anna W. Lochman
Recording Secretary Frances Sullivan
Financial Secretary Lillian B. Nicholson
Treasurer Caroline L. Coakley
Trustee for 3 Years Mary E. O'Neil
Guards Mary A. Fenton, Eva M. Johnson

The appointive offices were filled by Marshall, Edna M. Gilchrist; Chaplain, Katherine E. Fallon and Organist, Josephine Power. These officers being the selection of President E. A. Scholl to serve for a second term.

Before retiring from the chair, President Anna W. Lochman, presented each of her fellow officers with a gift—the same being samples of her own beautiful handwork. Arm bouquets were presented to Mrs. Allie E. Davidson, Mrs. Clara Morrison, Mrs. Ethel A. Horn and Miss Frances Dineen who had finished their respective terms in office.

On behalf of the Club, President-elect Emily A. Scholl presented the retiring President, Anna W. Lochman with a beautiful fitted leather suitcase, while Exalted Ruler Geo. H. Lochman expressed the sentiments of Elks towards his very popular better-half with a gorgeous basket of cut-flowers. Presentations being in order, Vice-President-elect, Annie M. Hanlon, gave the retiring Vice-President, Emily A. Scholl the shock of her life by handing her an alligator leather hand bag, remarking at the time that she was taking no chances of having the recipient dissatisfied with this gift from the Club as Mrs. Scholl had selected it herself, thinking it was meant for someone else.

As her first official act on taking the chair, President Emily A. Scholl conferred upon Past-President Allie E. Davidson the title of "Honorary Life Member," and voiced the sentiments of the Club towards our pioneer President, who had served two years in the chair when the task of serving was at its hardest. On being escorted to Secretary Sullivan's desk by Marshal E. M. Gilchrist, Mrs. Davidson was presented with a solid gold membership case, containing a life-membership card from the Club. Not to be out done by Mr. Lochman's floral attentions to his wife, P. E. R., Fred Scholl presented his spouse with a boquet, remarking that by this act of propitiation he hoped his Elk activities would not be curtailed this year.

Remarks for the good of the Order were made by its founder, P. E. R., Geo. T. Davidson, T. F. Fallon, E. L. K., and Mr. Joseph N. Shafer, Editor of "The Eastern Elk." Exalted Ruler, Geo. H. Lochman announced a joint Anniversary night for the Elks and Emblem Club, scheduled for May 11, in Lyceum Hall. On being installed as Vice-President, Mrs. Annie M. Hanlon announced plans for forming a Degree Staff, and was given full power to proceed with her plans. Visiting Emblem Clubs were present from Pawtucket, R. I., Lawrence, Newton and Somerville and member of each contributed remarks for the good of the Order. An invitation to attend Installation Exercises of Providence Emblem Club, May 9, has been received by the Secretary. Those wishing to make the trip should call Win. 1149 M.

RED CROSS CALLS ON WINCHESTER TO HELP

Local Committee for Mississippi Flood Relief Fund Already Functioning

The dire need of thousands of flood sufferers in the Mississippi valley is beyond comprehension. Our country has never before known so great a flood. On April 23, at Washington, the Central Committee of the American Red Cross, in joint conference with the cabinet officers, (Herbert C. Hoover, Andrew W. Mellon, Dwight Davis and Curtis D. Wilbur named by President Coolidge to assist Red Cross) estimated that a minimum of $5,000,000 will be required for relief, and immediately launched a national campaign, assigning to each chapter a quota.

Winchester's quota is $1500, and the Board is confident that the full amount will be raised with the speed necessary in such an emergency. A committee, appointed by the board and headed by Mr. James Nowell, is in charge of the campaign.

Winchester people are showing the ready and generous response that is always to be expected for Red Cross. Already over $800 has been received by Mr. William E. Priest, treasurer of Winchester Chapter.

Everyone wants to help. Please send your contribution to Mr. Priest at Winchester Savings Bank, Mt. Vernon street. Any amount will be gratefully received. For the sake of the sufferers give all you can. A letter of April 23 from Red Cross headquarters says in part: "If the floods reach the heights engineers predict, the number whose most primary needs must be cared for will jump to double or treble the present estimates. In other words, we must obtain funds to feed, cloth, and shelter from 75,000 to 150,000 or 200,000 men, women and children from 30 to 120 days."

Headquarters states that it is impractical to accept local donations of clothing or supplies.

DR. HENRY ISAIAH DORR

Simple funeral services for Dr. Henry Isaiah Dorr, veteran of the Civil War and emeritus professor of anaesthesia in the school of dentistry at Temple University who died on Sunday, April 24, were conducted on Tuesday afternoon at his late residence, 17 Ridgefield road, by Rev. George Hale Reed, pastor of the Unitarian Church. An "In Memoriam" which has been incorporated into the college records at Temple was read during the services, it having been brought to Winchester by the Dean of the University who came to attend the funeral. The remains were cremated at Mt. Auburn and later taken to Washington, D. C., for interment in Arlington Cemetery.

Dr. Dorr was born in Ipswich Dec. 28, 1841, the son of Jerathan and Lydia Clark Dorr. In 1862 he enlisted as private in Company D, 17th Infantry, and served during the Civil War. He took part in all the battles of the Potomac.

After the war he entered Harvard College. Later he transferred to Philadelphia and in 1876 was graduated from the Philadelphia Dental College with the degree of D. D. S. He served for 20 years as a professor and in 1883 received the degree of M. D. from Jefferson Medical College at Philadelphia. In 1924 Temple University of Philadelphia conferred upon him the degree of Sc. D.

The deceased was a member of the American Medical Society, the American Association for the Advancement of Science, the Royal Societies Club of London, England; the Philadelphia County Medical Society and the Harvard Club of Boston. He was the author of several medical books on anaesthesia. He retired several years ago and has made his home in Winchester for the past seven years. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Sarah J. Dorr.

PLEASE

The need is tremendous and instant. Give generously.

UNITARIAN NEWS

The Men's Club Radio Cabaret last Friday evening, under the management of Wm. B. Wood, was a big success. About 40 tables, each seating four persons, were scattered around Metcalf Hall. The program included entertainment, dancing and refreshments.

The entertainment was in the form of a Radio Cabaret, broadcasted presumably by a WEEI official announcer. The microphone occupied the center of the stage through which the artists worked. A line was strung through the hall, and, as we thought, to an outside station connection. The program was timed in the form generally used by broadcasting stations, starting at 8 p. m., with an address of welcome by President Watkins. His adress was unique, as only C. H. W. can give, and our only regret is that the million or more invisible audience could not have received the full effects.

The Greenlaw Trio, composed of Elmer J. Smithers, Miss M. Jean Boutelle and Stanley H. Greenlaw furnished most of the entertainment. This trio is deserving of much praise and their numerious recalls gave sufficient evidence that their work was appreciated. Miss Boutelle was versatility personified. Her lone specialty of a duet on the saxophon and the piano was remarkable, while her violin solos and vocal groups in various costumes added materially to the program. Mr. Greenlaw, the "Musical Saw" artist, rendered selections on a common carpenter's handsaw, which proved to be marvelous and most appealing to the audience.

We were greatly disappointed when it was announced that Mrs. Barr, on account of illness, could not be present, but soon after, she appeared and gave us several selections in her very pleasing manner. Her renditions of "An Indian Love Song" from Rose Marie and "Only a Rose" from the Vagabond King, were exceptionally fine and the audience gave her much applause.

It was a pleasure also to have Charles W. Ellis with us. His solos were much appreciated and added lots to the entertainment.

Rev. Mr Reed and Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Watkins were escorted to the front of the stage. Mr. Reed presented the retiring president and Mrs. Watkins with a large bouquet and Mr. Watkins, not to be outdone, presented Mr. Reed with a bouquet to take to Mrs. Reed who had been detained at home on account of illness in the family. Mt. Watkins also presented General Manager, Wm. B. Wood with a humidor in which were enclosed a box of cigars. "Bill" did not make a speech. This was of course, only a slight token to "Bill" for his efficient work in the past but the Men's Club wanted his ability and good nature recognized in some way.

We had a special orchestra for the dancing during the evening and refreshments were served by the young people of the society.

Great credit is due to Wm. B. Wood for his work in staging this cabaret, proceeds of which will go towards the payment of the new piano. Credit should also be given to "Bill's" assistants who were not much seen by the visible audience.

The newly elected members of the Men's Club are Edward H. Kenerson, President; Theodore R. Goodwin, Vice President. Geo. B. Cumings was again elected Secretary-Treasurer, and Wm. B. Wood was unanimously re-elected chairman of the culinary department.

The Metcalf Union will hold a meeting next Sunday evening. There will be refreshments at 6.30 p. m. followed by a discussion at 7 p. m. led by Robert Williams and John Robinson.

There will be a meeting of the Sunday School teachers' committee, on Monday at 8 p. m. in the church parlors. It is hoped that all teachers will be there in order that certain business may be talked over in regard to the Sunday School.

The contract for the new organ has been given to the Austin Organ Company of Hartford, Conn. The new organ will be a three manual with 43 stops. The tone has been planned to meet the acoustics at the church. Professor John T. Marshall of Boston University drew up the specifications and will supervise the installation.

ENTERTAINED VETERANS

West Roxbury Veterans Entertained By Disabled Veterans Welfare Group of Winchester

Fifty-four men from the Veteran's Hospital at West Roxbury were the guests of the Disabled Veterans' Welfare Group of Winchester at a luncheon given at the Epiphany Parish House on Friday, April 22. The affair was under the direction of Mrs. Mae R. Hoey, Chairman of the Group.

Rev. Allen Evans, Jr., Rector of the Church of the Epiphany and Mrs. Evans were honorary host and hostess for the occasion, while Mesdames R. K. Miller, Preston Corey, William Kneeland, J. W. Moran, Harold Simon, F. W. Aseltine, Charles Watkins, A. C. Jordan, John Maddocks, C. A. Burns, Fred Pattee, R. G. Garner, E. H. Kelley, Walter Chamberlin, B. L. Gale, Phillip Hammond, H. T. West, J. C. Kerrison, H. C. Hildreth, C. C. Ramsdell, George Apsey, W. H. Balche, M. M. Nichols, Joseph Fessenden, I. E. Gamage, W. S. Emerson, Thomas Freeburn, Sewall Newman, George Goddu, E. R. Randlett. Mrs Abbie Weeks, Mrs. Florence Scales, Miss Mary Richards and Miss Betty Fessenden were the active hostesses.

With Mrs. Ernest Dudley Chase as Chairman of Transportation the boys were brought from West Roxbury through the courtesy of Mesdames C. F. Winship, F. C. Sargent, J. R. Cove, Henry Crowley, George Dutting, Charles Corey, Harry Cox, Albert Comins, Mr. Herbert Underwood and Mr. Rufus Clark who loaned their cars for the purpose.

Preparation of the luncheon, which consisted of fruit cocktail, meat loaf, scalloped fish, new potatoes, butter beans, strawberry shortcake, rolls and coffee, was supervised by Mrs. Edward Smalley.

All the shortcakes were donated by Mrs. Melinda Foster and all the smokes by a Winchester druggist whose name is withheld from publication at his request. To these two generous contributors the Group extends grateful acknowledgment.

Following the luncheon, which was served at long tables tastefully decorated with graceful sprays of forsythia, general singing was enjoyed under the leadership of Mrs. Idabelle Hathaway Winship. The enthusiastic response of the boys to this feature was unanimous, one after another suggesting his favorite tune to be sung.

Under the friendly, understanding guidance of Mr. Evans the boys then staged a surprise entertainment. Several of the boys told humorous stories, while others danced to the rollicking music made by one lad upon the harmonica. Zest was added to the story telling by Mr. Evan's competitive tales which brought hearty laughter. Mrs. Corthell was also pursuaded to tell the story of Peter's wife which amused the boys greatly.

An interesting program which had been previously arranged for followed the impromptu story telling. Miss Martha Tibbetts, whose dancing has delighted many Winchester audiences, presented a Polish National Dance called "The Maid of Honor" and responded to a round of applause by dancing a Hungarian Czar Dasch. Miss Tibbetts has a fine appreciation of technique, giving verve and color to her interpretations.

Mrs. Marion Pelham Gale rendered two old favorites in informal manner, "Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms" and "In the Gloaming." Mrs. Gale has entertained the boys at the West Roxbury Hospital in like manner before but to many present her vocal appearance was a surprise.

Two classic dances, Mignonette and Columbine were then interpreted by Miss Ruth Aseltine with delicate feeling. The men evidenced particular pleasure in the work of this youthful dancer whose sweet simplicity and natural grace is wholly captivating.

After a period of general dancing which was enjoyed by those of the boys whose physical condition would permit of this exercise and which included a good old fashioned Virginia Reel, Miss Tibbetts presented a toe dance Rose Buds, and a final number, "The Water Lily," an adagio. In these two numbers Miss Tibbetts exhibited a finished grace and faultless rhythm. Her poise at all times is sure and unaffected. The work of both dancing artists reflects much credit upon their teacher, Mrs. Cora C. Phelps. All of the musical numbers were accompanied at the piano by Mrs. A. B. Corthell who also supplied the music for the general dancing.

Among the boys were many who are greatly incapacitated. The smiles that wreathed the faces of these men were sufficient guarantee to prove the worth of the undertaking. Wheel chairs were loaned by the hospital for the boys' comfort who required them. The blind were tenderly administered to by the women in charge. Mrs. Hoey's understanding presence walked among the men throughout the entire afternoon, praising here, comforting there, always bestowing her contagious smile which is at once both the smile of the friend and mother.

Much praise is due Mrs. Edward Smalley for her efficient management of the kitchen. Through her untiring efforts a menu consisting entirely of home-cooked food was made possible. Those whose privilege it was to serve at the tables know with what appreciation the tastey dishes prepared by Mrs. Smalley and her helpers were received.

The 28th annual meeting of the Winchester Visiting Nurse Association was held in the Epiphany Parish House on the evening of April 26. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mr. Robert W. Armstrong.

The minutes of the last annual meeting, being omitted the secretary, Mrs. Gardiner D. Pond gave a most comprehensive report of the past working year, covering all fields of hospital and district nursing activities.

The treasurer, Mr. Mark R. Jewett, Jr., showed in his report the new method he has installed in the past year, giving accounts on an accumulative basis, rather than a cash basis, as has been customary. The trustees' report was read by Mr. H. Wadsworth Hight.

The district nurse, Mrs. Gormley gave the 28th annual report of that work. It was a most interesting and enlightening report; 4579 calls were made on the district a gain of over 388 last year; 1053 calls were made for the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company and 247 for the John Hancock Life Insurance Company.

For the finance committee, Mrs. A. Miles Holbrook reported concerning envelope day and sustaining memberships.

Miss Ryder, Superintendent of the Hospital, in her report, laid especial stress upon the work done for the Training School for Nurses and showed the benefits resulting from the full time theoretical instructor. In closing she expressed her thanks to the doctors for their lectures and their care of sick nurses.

The chief business presented to the meeting was the plan of reorganization of the board and of the executive committee and of the arrangement of meetings. The amendments to the constitution was read by the secretary. It was voted to adopt the same.

CALUMET

On Saturday, April 30, we shall have the regular Calumet Social night with bowling, cards, billiards, pool and a general good time. Refreshments.

The Mixed Bowling dinner will be held on Friday, May 6. Any member of the club with their lady friends may attend the dinner by paying $2.50 per person, and notifying Fred Scholl not later than next Wednesday night. After the dinner, there will be dancing to which all members are invited without charge. The dancing will probably begin about 8.15. As this will be the last mixed social event of the season, we expect there will be a large turnout.

We have received quite a few compliments about the annual meeting, dinner and entertainment. It seemed to be the consensus of opinion that it was one of the most pleasant annuals we have ever had. The dinner was fine and plenty of it and the entertainment was interesting and much enjoyed. The Club is to be congratulated on the calibre of the new officers and directors. It is pretty difficult in these times to get busy men to serve in an official capacity in a social club and the fact that we have obtained such able men for the coming season is a fore-runner of a successful and busy year ahead. We think the ground work has been laid for the acquisition of new members and Calumet will welcome the application for membership of new comers or older residents who desire to join a real live social club.

Pictures sometimes flatter and sometimes do justice but we think the pictures of our new President and Vice-President as printed in last week's Star came out true to life and showed them to be just what they are fine looking fellows.

TENNIS RESULTS

Florence Watters and Herbert Ross won the final match of the mixed doubles Saturday morning in the vacation tennis tournament for high school pupils held last week on the Palmer street courts. Their opponents were Cecile de Coriolis and James Donlan who won their way into the finals by defeating Helen Bidwell and Earl Watters on Friday. The score of the final match was 6–4, 4–6, 6–2.

In the finals of the girls' singles played on Tuesday, Barbara Boucher defeated Cecile de Coriolis 6–4, 6–4. The former defeated Mary Louise Carpenter in the semi-final round while Cecile was winning from Frances Pettingell.

Herbert Ross won his way into the finals in boys' singles yesterday afternoon when he defeated Earl Watters 6–3, 6–2. He is to meet the winner of the Thad Smith–Murray Mercer match which is to be played today.

TRAFFIC BEACON SMASHED

The traffic beacon north of the railroad tracks was badly smashed about 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon when it was struck by a truck driven by John J. Manning of 915 Dorchester avenue, Dorchester.

According to the police account of the affair the truck, a big 5-ton Mack, heavily laden with baled wool, was heading south on Main street approaching the square, when its driver attempted to drive between the beacon and another machine which was stopped near it.

LEGION NOTES

Winchester Post, American Legion, will be without the services of its Commander, Arthur S. Harris, for the next four weeks. Commander Harris has been granted a four weeks' leave of absence from his duties as office manager of the Boston Chamber of Commerce and left Wednesday night for Washington where he is to assist at the National headquarters of the American Red Cross with the relief activities during the present floods. He was called to Washington by Howard J. Simons, director of accounts of the Red Cross because of his familiarity with the organization's procedure. Commander Harris was a former division accountant of the New England Division of the American Red Cross with headquarters in Boston. In speaking to the Star reporter before leaving for Washington he stated that he would be back in Winchester in time for the Post's observance of Memorial Day.

The auction and bid-whist experts at the Legion House have been brushing up on their game in anticipation of defending their laurels against 20 members of Roxbury Post who will invade Winchester this evening to "throw 'em around" with the local Legionnaires. The card competition is the result of a challenge from Roxbury which was promptly accepted by Winchester Post.

Winchester Post is planning to run a carnival sometime in June, the following committee having been appointed by Commander Harris to take charge of arrangements: Vincent P. Clarke, chairman; Richard Parkhurst, Daniel E. Lynch, William S. Phippen, Harry G. Bigelow, Russell Carroll and Holbrook E. Ayer.

Commander Harcis has announced the appointment of the committee for the Post's observance of Memorial Day as follows: Stanley W. Mobbs, chairman; Marshall England, Daniel E. Lynch, Louis E. Goddu and Theodore W. Lawson.

Once again the Legionaires are to have entire charge of the Memorial Day arrangements and in general the observance will follow those of former years. An added feature will be the dedication of the Memorial Room in the Legion House with appropriate exercises just before the parade forms for the march to Wildwood Cemetery in the afternoon. The Memorial Room has been entirely produced by the Legion boys themselves from funds raised at carnivals, fairs, etc. It contains a handsome stained glass window, a beautiful silk flag and large size framed photographs of those Winchester men who lost their lives during the World War.

MASONIC SERVICE LAST SUNDAY

One hundred and twenty-five members of William Parkman and Mystic Valley Lodges attended the annual Masonic service held last Sunday afternoon under the auspices of Winchester's Interchurch Council in the First Congregational Church.

The Masons met at their apartments and marched in regalia to the service, occupying specially reserved seats in the auditorium. Rev. Howard J. Chidley, pastor of the church, presided at the service which was opened with prayer by the assistant pastor, Rev. Lisle Burroughs. Rev. John H. Whitley, pastor of the Second Congregational Church read the scripture lesson and the benediction was pronounced by Rev James W. Brougher, Jr., acting pastor of the First Baptist Church.

The address was made by Rev. Allen Evans, rector of the Church of the Epiphany, who took as his subject, "The Master Builder." Mr. Evans traced the work of the world's builders from the pre-historic time of the cave dweller through the days which witnessed the erection of the stately and marvelously ornate cathedrals of Rome and elsewhere throughout the modern world. The great structures of man are after all but transient and only the soul of man, the work of "The Master Builder," remains enduring through all time.

Mr. G. Wallace Woodworth, organist and choirmaster of the First Congregational Church, played as his prelude "Passacaglia in C minor" by Bach. During the offertory he played Bach's "Fugue on a Theme by Legranzi" and as a postlude the "Finale" by Franck. The Chancel Choir under the direction of Mr. Woodworth sang "Death, Where Is Thy Sting," from "The Requiem" by Brahms.

EMERY—HILL

The Unitarian Church was the scene of a very pretty wedding last Saturday afternoon when Miss Frances Warner Hill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Gilman Hill of Hillside avenue, became the bride of Malcolm Sawyer Emery, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Walter Emery of Fletcher street. The ceremony was performed at 3:30 o'clock by the pastor of the church, Rev. George Hale Reed. Effective decorations of Easter lilies and palms were used to bank the pulpit.

The bride wore a white taffeta wedding gown of robe de style mode, the full skirt being scalloped at the bottom and edged with white tulle. The tulle was repeated at the neck which was edged with a dainty design done in rhinestones and the rhinestone pattern was again used to edge the tulle bertha. Her veil of tulle was caught and held in place by a wreath of orange blossoms and she carried a shower bouquet of valley lilies and white roses.

Miss Eleanor Hill of Winchester, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a dainty gown of peach colored georgette and a large brown hat of transparent material. Her bouquet was of orange tea roses. Mr. Emery had for his best man Philip Hight of Winchester and the ushers who were all from Winchester included John Sawyer, Daniel Fletcher Barnard, Henry Roberts and Robert Hart.

A reception was held immediately following the ceremony in the church parlors which were made attractive by a skillful arrangement of Easter lilies, palms and cut flowers. In the receiving line with the bride and bridegroom were Mr. and Mrs. Hill and Mr. and Mrs. Emery. Following a honeymoon spent at Nantucket Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Emery will be at home after the first of May at 186 Lowell street, Reading. The bride was graduated from Wheaton College in 1924.

NO HIT, NO RUN GAME FOR TANSEY

Francis has gone and done it. Monday afternoon, while playing for Eastern Maine Conference Seminary against Castine Normal School at Bucksport, Me., Francis Tansey of this town, former crack twirler on Winchester High School's championship ball teams, pitched a no hit, no run game, the big ambition of every hurler from the sand lots to the big time. In accomplishing his feat the great little southpaw set down 19 of the Castine boys on strikes.

An alarm from Box 55 at 12:57 Tuesday summoned the Fire Department to the residence of Mr. Alonzo P. Weeks on Pine street. Paint removal by means of a blow torch had set the house afire and the blaze got into the partition. The firemen arrived in time to extinguish the fire with but little damage.

ARRESTED AFTER LONG CHASE

Arthur McVey and Harry Destramps, both of Woburn, landed in durance vile at the local station house Sunday afternoon as the result of the running prowess of officer James E. Farrell of the police.

Headquarters was notified at 2:30 o'clock that two young men were creating a disturbance near Swanton street and Sergeant Rogers and officer Farrell started off in the Department's Ford to investigate. Coming upon the men in question the policemen ordered them to leave town at once.

Apparently the advice was acted upon at once but later in the afternoon Sergeant Rogers and officer Farrell encountered the young men again, this time rather the worse for wear.

Immediately upon getting sight of the officers McVey and Destramps started to vacate but one of them was quickly siezed by officer Farrell and turned over to Sergeant Rogers for safe keeping.

This bit of byplay gave the other fugitive a fair start and he made the most of it, heading in the general direction of Middlesex Fells and neither picking nor choosing his route thither.

Officer Farrell took up a stern chase and after traversing Swanton and Washington streets ran his quarry to earth on Stone avenue where the latter struck his colors while leaning against a tree, exhausted.

McVey and Destramps were booked at the station house charged with drunkenness. Appearing in the District Court at Woburn Monday morning they were found guilty by Judge Morton and fined $5 each.

O'CONNOR—McCARRON

Miss Mary Elizabeth McCarron, daughter of Mrs. Catherine McCarron of Princeton street, Medford, and James W. O'Connor of Winchester, son of Mr. and Mrs. William O'Connor of Cross street, were married last Saturday evening at 6:30 in St. Joseph's Church, Medford, by the Rev. Dennis A. O'Brien.

The bride wore a wedding gown of white Canton crepe, trimmed with rhinestones, and a large white picture hat. Her shower bouquet was of white roses and lilies of the valley. She was attended by her sister, Miss Catherine McCarron of Medford, as maid of honor. Miss McCarron's frock was of peach georgette. With it she wore a large picture hat of a similar shade and carried a bouquet of pink tea roses. Roger O'Connor of Winchester, brother of the bridegroom, was best man.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's mother, a catered wedding supper being served to more than 100 guests. After a wedding trip by motor to New York and Washington Mr. and Mrs. O'Connor are to make their home in New York where Mr. O'Connor has accepted a position with a large automobile concern. His bride is a former Woburn young lady and is widely known in Winchester, having formerly been employed at the local plant of the Winchester Laundries.

BOY SCOUT NOTES

Winchester Boy Scouts have always taken much interest in forestry in the Fells, particularly in the planting and prevention of pine tree blight. This has been particularly true since the opening of their new headquarters building at the Fells and there was a large turn-out Saturday at the call of Water Commissioner Kendall. About 35 Scouts in uniform reported under the leadership of Scout Commissioner Dwight B. Hill, and planted 165 young pine trees in the vicinity of the Water Reservation.

Among the Scouts present were Charles T. Main, 2nd, from Scoutmaster Francis E. Smith's Troop No. 1; Frederick A. Belden, Herbert M. Brooks, Richard B. Caldwell, Bradford Hill, Eugene Reddy, Richard F. Riley, Nils M. Swanson, Paul B. Shiverick, Benjamin F. Wild of Scoutmaster Edward R. Grosvenor's Troop No. 3; and John Blank, Henry C. Dorsett, Hayden Esty, Max Sidman, George Burns and John Lates from Scoutmaster James Fitch's Troop No. 4.

Troop 4 also distributed a large number of posters for the Near East Relief on a recent date. Several new boys have been admitted to membership in the various troops. In Troop 1 Robbie Smith is the new patrol leader of the Silver Fox Patrol. George Philbrick and Wallace Fay are the officers (Patrol Leader and Assistant Patrol Leader) of the new Pine Tree Patrol. The new Stag Patrol has reached its full size (though not its full age). It is under the direct supervision of Senior Patrol Leader Kezar Nichols. Charles Main and David Tafts are the present acting officers.

Treasurer Dwight D. Elliott of 16 Stevens street reports that a generous number of subscriptions to the annual budget is being received. It is hoped that the funds paid in or promised will be sufficient to allow formation of an additional troop, which is much needed if the benefits of more personal supervision by adults are to be obtained, also to allow a four weeks summer camp in place of two weeks. Those who are able pay their own expenses, but several needy boys are always assisted, and much benefit is derived from intensive study and wholesome recreation in the interests of character-building and future citizenship.

Mrs. Winfield F. Prime and Miss Ruby Fontaine, who have been spending the past two weeks at Eliot, Me., returned to town Wednesday and opened their home on Propect street. They spent the winter with Mrs. Prime's son, Mr. Selwyn Prime, at Melrose Highlands. Mrs. Prime's daughter, Mrs. Raymond E. Pinkham of West Orange, N. J., is visiting her with her two children.

MIXED BOWLING TOURNAMENT

Although the schedule was officially ended Wednesday night, postponed matches were rolled in addition to the match listed, and further matches are to be rolled this Friday evening, when all the games are to be finished. Wednesday night's matches were not productive of serious results except in the case of team 14, which by dropping all three points to 10, may lose first place. This was a serious set-back. Team 8, by winning two matches, one from team 5 and the other from 13, now stands just under the bread line, and has a good chance to top it. Team 10, by its win from the leaders, is just over the border. The ladies far excelled the gentlemen in the excellence of their rolling.

WINCHESTER PLAYS MELROSE TOMORROW

Winchester plays its first baseball game of the season in the Mystic Valley League tomorrow afternoon at 3.15 when it entertains Melrose High on Manchester Field.

The locals showing to date has been rather sketchy, due to the fact that many of the squad's first string players have been for one reason or another ineligible to represent the school.

Five players who had been under faculty ban since the breaking of several school windows following the Belmont game were exonerated and returned to good standing by Principal Grindle this week. They included "Charlie" Doherty, president of the senior class; "Dick" Murphy, captain of this year's basketball team; "Howie" Smith, veteran infielder; "Pete" Coss and Gnazio Amico, football men. Murphy, Doherty, Coss and Smith played against Somerville along with "Livin" McNeil, "Freddie" Cobb and "Arbie" Taylor who had also been under suspension, though for a different reason.

The poor showing of the boys against Somerville should not be taken too much to heart. Several of the players were in the game for the first time this season and others were out of position. Naturally everyone was more or less nervous and under a strain out there and with the brand of umpiring they were getting it is only to be expected that something would crack.

Tomorrow is another game again and with "Lefty" Hatch on the mound it wouldn't surprise us to see the nine come through with its first victory. Let the rangey southpaw turn in another exhibition such as he showed against Medford and Melrose will have plenty fun winning that ball game. The boys seem to have more confidence behind the pitching of Hatch and given a couple of runs the latter is a hard man to beat.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS

The Winchester Elks and the Emblem Club will hold a joint anniversary celebration in the form of a dinner, entertainment and dance Wednesday evening, May 11, to which the public is cordially invited. Tickets are $1.50 and may be procured from Wm. H. Vayo, 7 Mt. Vernon street or from any Elk. Attractive and useful souvenirs will be given to each lady attending.

Members of the Girls' Glee Club of the Winchester High School are to present an Operetta, "Miss Caruthers Returns" on Friday evening, May 13, in the Wyman School auditorium. Miss Marion Knightly, supervisor of music in the Winchester Schools, is directing the music for the production while Miss Marion Bailey, teacher of English and Expression in the High School is coach.

Marriage intentions have been filed with the Town Clerk by Rose John Granlund of 3 Holton street and Bertha Erica Borgstedt of 15 Calumet road.

It is reported that officials of the Boston & Maine Railroad were in town Wednesday in connection with a proposal by the road to erect a tower in the center from which the railroad gates will be operated by electricity, eliminating the gate and crossing tenders. At present there is a crew of six men working in eight hour shifts at the gates.

ENTERTAINED VETERANS

The Rev. Allen Evans, Jr., was an outstanding figure throughout the affair. He was not at any time "a man apart." He was "one of the boys," a comrade and a brother. He linked arms with the boys, gave them a friendly tap on the shoulder, laughed with them, listened to them, earnestly interestedly. Three rousing cheers at the close of the afternoon gave proof that every man had his stamp of approval upon the Rector of the Church of the Epiphany. As if to mark the permanency of their tribute one lad whose condition permitted, made the trip alone on Sunday from West Roxbury to Winchester to hear Mr. Evans address the people of his congregation.

Every member of the Group came away from Friday's luncheon lifted by the knowledge that they had joined hands in giving at least a small measure of happiness to these men who risked their all for their country's sake.

Reverse Publicity

Amos Skinner, the leading deacon of his church, was chuckling in high glee when he ran into another deacon on the village green.

"Got it at last, by heck," he cackled to his friend.

"What you cal'late you got Amos?" asked the other.

"Just a little dee-vice, Ezry, but it's a-going to make me rich. Every meetin' house in the hull caounty'll want one."

This Changing World

The adage has it: "He laughs best who laughs last." But too frequently in this day and generation, he laughs last who probably intended to tell the same funny story a little later. How the world changes!—Grit.

Work to Know

Properly thou hast no other knowledge but what thou hast got by working; the rest is yet all an hypothesis of knowledge; a thing to be argued of in schools, a thing floating in the clouds, in endless logic vortices, till we try to fix it.—Carlyle.

VERA CRUZ: MEXICO'S FRONT DOOR

Vera Cruz, Mexico, struck by a West Indian hurricane hard on the heels of that which devasted Miami, is the subject of the bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

The immediate coast country near Vera Cruz, like that at Miami, is low, offering no physical resistance to the sweep of the wind, says the bulletin. And as at Miami there is little to prevent the water being driven inland with the rush of air.

Cortez's Landing Place

Vera Cruz is Mexico's front door, and has been such ever since Cortez land there in 1519 to march on to the West and conquer Mexico for Spain. But the city does not constitute a very attractive portal in so far as its immediate surroundings are concerned. To both sides and even behind it are sand dunes: it seems set down in a very desolate country.

This is true only superficially, for a few miles back begins one of Mexico's richest agricultural sections. Rice fields and banana and cocoanut groves occupy the lowlands beyond the sand dunes. As the ground rises rapidly first into foothills then into true mountains the crops and natural vegetation run the gamut from tropical to Arctic. One needs to advance inland barely 50 miles in order to see successively the plants of the hot plains, then pineapples, oranges, vanilla beans, cacao, sugar-cane, coffee, corn and small grain. The tangled mass of vine-tied tropical trees gives way at the same time to oaks, and conifers, and soon one has passed timberline itself.

Northward of Vera Cruz there are no breaks in the coast for a considerable distance, and at about 40 miles in this direction the inland hills draw very close to the sea. Southward after a few miles, are breaks leading to lagoons lying behind the sandy coastal ridge, which receives the flow of rivers from the hills. Here are situated some very large sugar mills —one the largest in Mexico—they may have suffered from the storm.

Like its site, Vera Cruz is a low lying town. A few government buildings and churches rise for several stories, but most of the houses are one-storied structures of adobe or stucco, many of them with tinted walls.

Improvements Bring Healthfulness

A generation ago Vera Cruz had an unsavory reputation as a pest hole; every year there were hundreds of deaths from yellow fever. When boats landed, travelers rushed out of town as rapidly as possible seeking to reach the high, healthful country inland. Thanks to efficient, modern engineering and sanitation, however, the city is today a safe place of residence for peoples of the temperate zone. There is a filtered water supply brought from a considerable distance inland; an up-to-date sewer system; and many of the streets have been paved.

In the old days of unimproved streets and open sewers, the only scavengers were buzzards. Hundreds of these ugly birds were constantly busy hopping about in search of morsels of food. There is a garbage collection system now, but the "volunteer scavenger brigade" has not been entirely disbanded; the birds are still to be seen perched on the roofs of the market buildings and at other promising locations ready to claim any morsels of food that may be tossed aside.

Fortress 400 Years Old

The grim old fortress, San Juan de Ulua, which dominates the harbor of Vera Cruz, epitomizes the past of the port, and the past, too, of Mexico. It is a great, rambling medieval stronghold built on a rocky island about a mile from shore. This massive pile, at once fort and prison, has brooded over Vera Cruz for four centuries, for it was begun approximately a hundred years before the Mayflower landed at Plymouth.

The 18-foot-thick walls of San Juan have hidden cruel and ghastly incidents from the days when Spanish treasure ships assembled there down to recent times. Political prisoners were confined there, the little parade ground has been the site for many a firing squad, and personages whose existence proved an embarrassment for some one or other in power have disappeared mysteriously—probably into shark-infested waters that lap against the sheer outer walls.

When American sailors and marines captured San Juan in April 1914, the place received its first cleaning in nearly 400 years. Prisoners, little more than human skeletons, were found and liberated, who had not been exposed to sunlight and the open air for nearly a quarter of a century. Since this time the old dungeons below sea level have been sealed up, windows have been opened to other rooms, and San Juan's horrors seem at an end.

Occasions Which Make Silence a Sacrament

There was a whole world of wisdom in the words a wise man of old, in the ages of faith ascribed to his Creator: "Be still then and know that I am God!" A later philosopher has remarked that no two men can be said to be truly friends unless they are content to bask in each other's company without expression of words. There are occasions when silence is the sacrament of faith and reverent joy, the seal and sign of a living union with the Infinite and confident fellowship with our fellow man. It is in the practice of this silence that we learn how to discipline life, and recognize the profanity of the glib commonplaces of mere passing companionship, of formal religion and the useless volubility of controversy. We refrain from words because they are inadequate to express our experience, and the certitude of faith and confidence surpasses the powers of speech. "The truth is best spoken not by us, but through us," says a philosopher writing to another big journal. "The witness of true discipleship has its own silent testimony to the truth."

Your Banker's Advice Is Often Useful To You

We want our depositors to feel that just as they go to a lawyer on questions of law and to a physician on questions of health, so they ought to consult their banker on questions of business.

Power of Thought

Thoughts are forces, in that they have form and quality and substance and power, that they are the silent, unseen, but subtle agents at work, that they are daily and hourly producing and determining, and with almost absolute precision, the conditions in our lives.

Author of Fairy Tales

The great writer of fairy tales, Hans Anderson, was a very sensitive and nervous person. The story is told that once while the train in which he was traveling was running at full speed, the writer suddenly remembered that he had a box of matches in his bag. They might become lighted, and catch fire, or perhaps his papers might burn, and the baggage of other passengers catch fire.

Hans was so troubled by the thought of these possibilities that nothing would serve him but to have the train stopped. Then, the matches being removed, he had to pass the time away at a lonely railway siding until the next train arrived.

Architecture is the most ancient of the fine arts. The earliest dated architectural remains are those of the Babylonians, from as far back as 6000 B. C. Their building material was brick, and they were the first to construct vaults and arches.

Slow to See Value of Ocean Bathing

Sea bathing for pleasure may be said to have been popularized by Doctor Russel, of England, about 1770, although for 30 or 40 years previously a few brave souls had made a custom of splashing about in the waves. Soon sea bathing was all the rage and Margate became the first fashionable seaside resort. Out of respect for the modesty of "refined ladies," says the American Review of Reviews, a Quaker named Benjamin Beale invented a bathing machine with an awning over the back so that the blushing bathers were concealed even while entering and leaving the wagon.

The Germans were the first on the Continent to get the seaside habit, and by 1812 the craze began in France. At Dieppe one bathed in a basket, secure against the waves and tides. But not until the adventurous little duchesse de Berry actually learned to swim in 1782-'25 were the fashionables of France really won. She was always attended by the director of the beach, an elegant person clad in evening dress and white gloves, who took her by the finger and walked with her a little way into the water, when a loud gun went off, announcing to those on the beach that her royal highness was really in.

Age of the Earth

Blood in Human Body

Experiments have shown that the total blood volume of a series of healthy men averaged 4.9 per cent, or approximately one-twentieth of the body weight. There were individual variations of from 4.2 per cent to 5.9 per cent.

The police received a complaint about boys stoning the 5.51 train as it was passing the tower last Saturday afternoon. Officers went to the vicinity of the trouble but the culprits had left hurriedly.

Mr. Louis Tranford of 142 Clark avenue, Chelsea, notified the police on Sunday that after he had brought his Pontiac car to a stop on Cambridge street where the new construction is in progress the machine was struck by an electric car headed toward Winchester Square. Mr. Tranford, who was accompanied by Arthur C. Capitelli of 8 Fordham street, Arlington, and three children, reported that none of the occupants of the vehicle were injured. The right rear mudguard of the Pontiac was bent.

Winchester's Fire Department was called upon for assistance last Friday night at 11.55 at the fire in the Oliver H. Robinson leather factory on Eastern avenue in Woburn. A general alarm was sounded bringing help from Stoneham and Winchester. The flames were visible for miles around and the four story frame plant was practically destroyed. The loss was estimated at $50,000. The local department sent its big pump, chief's car and deck gun, the men remaining in action for about two hours.

Officer Hogan discovered what he thought was an abandoned Maxwell coupe without lights on Forest circle at 1.15 Saturday morning. Investigation disclosed it to be the property of an Arlington party who was visiting in that vicinity.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lee Higginson 2d (Betty Bird) of Brookline, will probably occupy the bungalow at "Sunset Hill," West Manchester, the coming summer. Mr. Higginson's grandmother, Mrs. Henry L. Higginson of Boston, expects to go to "Sunset Hill," which is her country place for the coming season.

"Art" French competing for Harvard last Saturday in the dual track and field meet with Technology at Cambridge, won the broad jump with a leap of 22 ft. 8½ inches and placed second in the 100 yard dash, won by Miller of Harvard in 10 1-5 secs. Marshall Fay, also of Winchester competing for Tech, placed fourth in the half mile after looking like a sure winner 60 yards from the worsted. A strong head wind seemed to affect him more than the others in the race.

C., and Annapolis, being guests while in Baltimore of John Herbert Gregory, professor of civil engineering at Johns Hopkins University and a former resident of this town. Mr. Webster reported that the winter at St. Petersburg was unusually warm this year and that on but three occasions was an overcoat necessary.

A ROYAL PRINCESS COOKS WITH GAS

The former Princess Astrid of Sweden, now Crown Princess of Belgium, is not only one of Europe's most beautiful royal daughters, but she is like-wise, perhaps, the most accomplished. In addition to her many other talents Astrid is a very good cook, having completed an advanced course in domestic science at Housekeeping School in Stockholm.

And she learned to cook with gas, which is just another evidence of the universal favor with which this fuel is accepted, for only the best is good enough for a royal princess! Many years of service in many countries have proved gas to be the most practical fuel known for cooking, to say nothing of its innumerable other uses in home and industry.

Even royalty respects gas, considers gas service a privilege, and yet this pure concentrated fuel, is available to you at an unbelievably low cost and in any quantities, always ready at the tip of your finger.

THE FORTNIGHTLY NOTES

The regular meeting of the Fortnightly was held Monday afternoon at 2.30 in the Town Hall.

The subject of the program was, "The Music, Legends and Dances of Our American Indian," a lecture by Miss Mabel F. Knight,—or, as she has been christened by the Indians—Ta-de-win. The talk was one of absorbing interest, not only from the wealth of anecdote and description that Miss Knight brought to it from her experiences, but from the charming personality of the speaker herself.

Miss Knight was dressed in a beautiful Indian costume which had been especially made for her by one of the Comanches. She explained that the Comanche dress was made longer on the sides because the women of that tribe were riders, and that the long moccasins and leggings in one were designed for the same purpose. The head-dress was worn without the usual feather—the emblem of so many other tribes.

The audience was made to visualize the ceremonial dances of the different tribes of Indians by the exhibition of the musical instruments used, and by the singing of some of the accompanying songs — chants which never vary from one generation to the next. The flute, the rattle, the whistle, and the drum are used by the Indians today, just as they were many hundreds of years ago. A rattle given as a symbol of good will at a christening ceremony is worth to the Indians as much as a horse, and the one owned by Miss Knight is highly valued by her. This is true as well of a tobacco pouch. When presented as a gift, it is a pledge of devotion, and a valuable gift is expected in return.

Miss Knight touched briefly on the services of the Indian to our country, and the slight gratitude that the white man had showed for it. A descendant of Massassoit had made a miniature basket " to hold the gratitude of the Pilgrim Fathers to her ancestor." The Indians were of assistance to the white men in the Revolutionary War, and no less than 14,000 of them took active part in the Great War. Today they are gradually being absorbed by the white race—in many cases by intermarriage. Many of them live like the rest of us, but are averse to giving up all their ancient dances and customs.

For this reason they meet on their reservations every year at the end of August when the farming season is almost over and have a celebration Miss Knight was permitted to live with the Omahas during one of their encampments in Nebraska. She dwelt at some length on the manner in which they served their feasts and on the dances and games of the men and the women. War dances and solider dances were followed by gift-giving. It was at this time that she was publicly named Ta-de-win, because she had come the long distance from Boston to Nebraska to learn the truth about the Indians and to carry it back to the white people.

The truth that she had to tell was that the Indians are a people of deep religious feeling, and given to kindness and hospitality. They worship a Heavenly Father, believe in immortality, and try to live by the Golden Rule. She says they are clean in their ways of living, although easy-going by temperament.

The whole talk was colored by many humorous anecdotes, and by little tales of Indian belief and legend. During the hour and a quarter of her lecture, Miss Knight held the closest attention of her audience. It was altogether a most delightful afternoon.

SARAH AUGUSTA TOWLE

Funeral services for Sarah Augusta Towle were conducted last Sunday afternoon by Rev. George Hale Reed, pastor of the Unitarian Church, at the home on Swan road of her daughter, Mrs. Joseph L. S. Barton, with whom she had lived for the past 22 years. Mrs. Towle, who was the widow of Edward Bass Towle of Newburyport, passed away early Friday morning, April 22. She was 83 years of age and a native of Newburyport, the daughter of Enoch and Elizabeth Ellenwood (Drake) Tilton. Following the funeral services the remains were taken to Newburyport for interment at Oak Hill Cemetery.

SPRING BOWLING TOURNAMENT

Semi-final matches in the spring bowling tournament were rolled at the Calumet Club on Tuesday evening, resulting in team 6 winning all four from 1, 7 three from 4 and 5 three from 3. This left the winners open to the final matches last night. No exceptional scores were made, but two of the matches were marked by close figures and all of the bowling was keenly contested.

START THE DAY RIGHT

"A good beginning, that is carefully planned and thoroughly carried out bears a relation to the extent of the day's success" says Dr. Merrill Champion, Massachusetts Department of Public Health.

"Eight hours of sleep is a most significant forerunner of this right start. Waking up with a rested feeling is essential. Sufficient time should be allowed for the carrying out of the beginning-day-duties.

Do not tumble out of bed at the sound of the alarm. Remember the sleeping body maintains a lower vitality and such a rapid increase of body action is most upsetting. Stretch every muscle in your body—the arms, legs, neck and try to increase the length of the body! Then try the crosswise stretch, extending the left arm and the right leg and vice versa. After exercising in one position roll over and yawn and stretch and then stretch and yawn.

A few exercises before the morning bath which should be accompanied by a brisk rubbing, stimulate the circulation. Of course, you should have had a large glass of water immediately on getting up.

Now you can appreciate a good breakfast of fruit, cereal, egg and dark toast and are in tip top shape for that walk to work."

MUSIC MEMORY CONTEST

National Music Week will be celebrated in several towns and cities of the United States, next week, from May 1 to 8. The purpose of this nation-wide observance is indicated by its slogan: Give more thought to music. Provision should be made that every man, woman, and child may be able to hear the message of music and to realize that at least some form of music has an appeal to, and a meaning for him or her.

Special musical programs will be carried on in the schools, during next week. One feature which will be of interest to the parents and friends of the community will be the Music Memory Contest to be conducted in the High School Assembly Hall on Monday evening, May 2. The Wadleigh School pupils have been preparing for this contest for several weeks, under the direction of Miss Marion E. Knightly, supervisor of music. The list contains 25 selections of standard music, the composer and nationality of each. It is hoped that many townspeople will show their interest by attending this music memory contest.

Persian kittens are not often trespassers on private premises in the heart of Boston's business district. An attractive one appeared about 10 days ago at the window of the banking establishment of George A. Fernald, 19 Milk street, second floor, and it has remained there ever since, a subject for wonder to many visitors to the place whose attention has been called to it.

The appearance of the kitten is an unaccountable phenomenon because it is not a living one but a picture of a kitten's face, plainly showing ears, eyes and nose, all the details properly proportioned, and its appearance on the outside of a pane of glass has not been accounted for.

Mr. Fernald in looking out of the window one day was surprised to see in the middle of one of the panes what might have been regarded by superstitious persons in earlier days as a materialization in picture form of a kitten's spirit, which had been floating about in space.

The impression on the glass, which measures about 1 by 1½ inches, is of a blueish smoky appearance, such as conceivably might have been made by firing a blank cartridge in a pistol rather close to the glass. That would have been impossible, as the window is in the second story.

It is conceivable that it might have been made by a wet and rather dirty wad of paper blown in a high wind against the window-pane. No one has been able to suggest any more likely origin.

Small as the imprint is, the kitten likeness is the most striking at a distance of from three to 10 feet and no matter from what angle the observer contemplates it the kitten's eyes appear to be turned in that direction and never lose an expression of marked gentleness.

THE SIGNIFICANCE OF THE GONDOLA

To the Editor of the Star:

The approaching operetta to be given at the Town Hall by the young people of the First Congregational Church brings to mind some interesting facts concerning gondolas, that I picked up while in Venice three years ago.

During the plague centuries ago, as an act of mourning, all gondolas were painted black and never has the custom been changed, although everyone admits, that color would add greatly to the picturesqueness of the gondola.

We had seen the small iron horses' heads on either side of each of the gondolas, but did not know until some time afterwards that they symbolized the sea horse which was the Venetian trade-mark for centuries.

The peculiar design of the prow of the gondola, which is made of metal, is emblematical of the city. The very top typifies the Doge's crown. The indented opening directly beneath is the Lion's Eye and then there are six prongs facing up-stream, representing the six islands of the city and one pointing backwards which represents the Jew's Island, for in the olden days it seems that the Jews were made to live all on one island.

It is gratifying to know that in these days of enlightenment this segregation has been abolished.

Very truly yours,
Ernest Dudley Chase

GRANADA ATTRACTIONS

A splendid program of 100 per cent entertainment value will be presented at the beautiful Granada Theatre in Malden today and Saturday. The photoplay attraction is, "The Mysterious Rider," starring Jack Holt. This is an adaptation of Zane Grey's novel of the same name and makes an ideal vehicle for manly Jack Holt. The Five Mongadors is one of the five big acts now being presented. This is a French team who are making their first appearance in this country. They do a comedy juggling act that is entirely different from the general run.

"Children of Divorce," starring Clara Bow and Esther Ralston, will be shown for three days at the Granada starting next Monday. This picture was not intended for release this season but after Clara Bow's sensational hit in "It" the public and press alike begged for another picture with Miss Bow in a big part. It is though provoking, a picture that will linger long in the memory. Five acts of vaudeville will be presented in addition to the photoplay feature.

Adolph Menjou in "Evening Clothes" will be shown at the Granada next week on Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Well, there is a way to find out. And the answer is Regent Theatre, Monday and Tuesday. BOWDOIN SQUARE THEATRE

At the popular Bowdoin Square Theatre beginning Monday the management will offer a bill of unusual excellence comprising pictures of the highest type coupled with selected vaudeville. The top feature for the entire week will be the Jules Verne's mighty melodrama, "Michael Strogoff" a thrilling picture in the extreme of the most adventurous type. This courier of the Czar certainly had a strenuous time of it. The thrilling journey across the wilds of Siberia with 4000 wild Tartans in warfare is certainly most exciting. The cast is made up of 6000 persons and in fact is considered one of the big pictures of the year. The career of Michael Strogoff is familiar to many and to others it will surely afford a fund of interest. Another picture of moment will be that showing Jackie Coogan in "Johnny-Get-Your-Hair-Cut," a story that shows the youthful star at his best. He rises to the occasion when he rides the great handicap and turns in a winner. Another picture will be Billy Dooley in, "Sailor Beware" while the Pathe News and five big acts will please. Bargain night Friday. Concert Sunday at 3.

The free parking service is much enjoyed by suburbanites.

Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Jones of Harvard street entertained Mr. Jones's sister, Mrs. Julia Walker of Atlantic City over the past week-end. During the 36 years of her life Mrs. Walker had never seen her brother and a reunion was held at the Jones home on Sunday, another brother, Mr. Thomas Jones, formerly of this town, a nephew, Spencer Jones, and a niece, Miss Marion Jones, being among those present.

MIXED BOWLING TOURNAMENT

While no exceptional rolling developed, the team scores were good, every member working hard to win.

PLANS FOR WINCHESTER HEALTH SURVEY COMPLETED

"State health authorities hope to enter at least 80 per cent of the 2538 homes of Winchester to get information for the most complete health survey ever conducted in this country" reports Dr. George H. Bigelow at a meeting called at the State House this afternoon.

Four special workers have been chosen by Dr. Clarence Scamman, Director, Division of Communicable Diseases to aid Dr. Herbert L. Lombard, Epidemiologist of the State Department of Public Health, in this survey. Dr. Florence Hopkins of Newton; Miss Anna Crivello of Everett, Social Worker, specially employed to take statistics in the foreign districts; Miss Mary Cronin of Boston and Mrs. Filip Fersbeck of Boston.

The questions that will be asked each adult will cover the following points:

Position in household (father, child, maid, etc.)

Is individual a wage earner?

Is this individual sick at the present time?

If so, what is the complaint?

What method of treatment is being used? Doctor. One of the cultists (such as Christian Science Healer, chiropractor, etc.) Self-treatment.

Did individual have any form of illness between May 1, 1926 and May 1, 1927?

If so, what was the complaint?

How much time was lost from work?

The questions that will be asked concerning children only will cover the following points:

What contagious diseases has the child had?

How long ago did he have the diseases?

Did a doctor see the case?

A personal letter from the Commissioner of Health explaining the project and asking each family to cooperate with the health authorities by giving the survey workers as accurate information as possible is being sent out today.

Reports of the progress of this survey will be made to the Commissioner of Health at the State House each Saturday.

ELKS TO OBSERVE ANNIVERSARY

On Wednesday evening, May 11, in Lyceum Hall, Winchester Lodge of Elks will observe the 5th anniversary of its inception. An appropriate program has been arranged and it is expected that there will be a large attendance, especially since in connection with that of the lodge anniversary the observance by the organization of "Mothers' Day" will be held. In past years the Elk's Mother's Day service has been open to the public but the lack of any general interest has prompted the officers of the lodge to keep their beautiful and impressive ritual for the members of the order.

Mr. M. P. Stevens and daughter, Miss Elinor Stevens, of East Orange, N. J., former well known residents of Glengarry, were in Winchester calling on old friends over the week-end, motoring over and back. During their stay here they were the guests of Mrs. West D. Eldridge of Webster street.

Members of the Sewer Department reported to the police on Saturday that sometime during the previous night two stilson wrenches, a pair of pliers, a cylinder head wrench and four gallons of oil were stolen from the Department's tool-box on Sargent road. The lock on a compressed air tank was also taken.

Frank Melly and "Nicky" Fitzgerald were in the Tufts Freshmen line-up against Dean Academy at Franklin last Saturday afternoon, the former getting 2 of the 4 hits allowed by Crossman, the Dean twirler. Melly started the game behind the bat and Fitzgerald was at first base.

THIRTY-NINE YEARS of tube-building experience has proved to Dunlop that "cheap tubes" do not pay.

That is why Dunlop tubes are made casing shaped. It costs a little more than to build them on a straight pole, as cheap tubes are built.

But a casing-shaped Dunlop tube is strong everywhere. The outside edge is not weakened by excess stretch. The side next to the rim has no wrinkles to crack with age and blow out. A Dunlop tube protects your casing, because it fits. And your casing is worth ten times the cost of the tube.

We strongly recommend a Dunlop tube for every casing

SOMERVILLE AN EASY VICTOR

Winchester High had not recovered from the slump which characterized its work against Reading last Saturday and fell an easy victim to Somerville High School, losing 9—0, Wednesday afternoon on Dilboy Field. To show how demoralized the locals were it is only necessary to remark that the battle slid along for but seven frames. The team has slipped plenty since its showing against Medford two weeks ago.

"Bobby" Callahan started on the mound for Winchester. The little fork-hander was hit hard, was wild and received poor support. That about tells the story of the ball game. The locals were able to do little with the slants of "Jim" Hall, sophomore twirler, who toiled for "Charlie" Dickerman. Winchester got only one man as far as third. In the 7th inning "Lavin" McNeil singled cleanly and went around to the hot corner when "Pete" Coss punched out a safety. McNeil, Coss, Cobb and Taylor, all playing their first game of the season for Coach Mansfield accounted for Winchester's entire hitting strength. Isenstadt, Somerville's second sacker, led the batters with a home run and two singles. His home run, hit off Callahan in the first inning, had a lot to do with the latter's ineffectiveness. At that, this blow would have been a routine putout on Manchester Field. The umpiring of Dondero was very sour. No official is expected to get them all, but those which he missed were very bad. Unfortunately nearly all his lapses were particularly costly to Winchester. Twice he allowed men to score from third on foul strikes which Taylor naturally lost, since both struck the ground behind the plate. Again a Somerville man was called safe when he failed by two feet to touch second on his way to third. Not once did Winchester get a break, and Coach Dickerman of Somerville and several Boston newspaper men condemned the official's work after the game. We aren't trying to say that Winchester might have won the game with decent officiating, but we do say that a good umpire would have restored much of the boys' lost confidence. No team can do its best while feeling that it isn't slated to win.

WINCHESTER BOAT CLUB

The first of a series of club dances, will be held on Friday evening, May 6, in the Clubhouse dance hall. Arrangements are now being made to secure the services of an orchestra and it is expected that many members and their friends will atend this opening function, which is scheduled to properly usher in the season of 1927.

On Saturday evening May 21, a special subscription dance is to be given. The proceeds derived from this dance will be used to pay for the new racing canoe which the club purchased this spring. This dance is to be run in addition to the regular club entertainments given throughout the season, and plans are now being made to insure its success, by a special committee.

On Thursday evening of this week a meeting of the Board of Directors was held at the club house. A general plan for the season's activities was outlined and committees were appointed to arrange for further entertainments, and plan a series of canoe regattas.

The tennis court is now in daily use, and is in good condition for so early in the season. The Tennis Committee will take all necessary steps to keep the court in good shape throughout the season, and if wanted by the tennis players, a tournament may be run later on, similar to those run in years past.

The first regular crew practice was held on Monday evening, April 25. In spite of a rather disagreeable and cool sample of weather, eight paddlers reported and worked out in the club-four shell, and in the tandems, under the direction of Fleet-Captain Edward Sandberg. Several new members are interesting themselves in water sports and will no doubt greatly strengthen the crews for the canoe meets. In years past, the club has concentrated on entering a war canoe crew in the larger meets. This year, plans seem to indicate entering two, four-man crews of single and double, each tandems, and the races, single and double blades, rather than to center all effort on just the war-canoe event. In this way, all of the paddlers will have an apportunity to race in some event. Regular practices will be held from now on.

WINCHESTER GIRL WINS HONOR AT MT. HOLYOKE

Miss Georgia Fowler Locke of this town, daughter of Mr and Mrs. F. C. Locke of Winthrop street, has been elected by the student body to serve as one of the two representatives of the sophomore class in the Community Government of Mt. Holyoke College. This is a much sought honor and the members of this organization occupy a prominent place upon the campus, since through it the various college activities are coordinated and by it the conduct of the students is regulated. Miss Locke is also among those who have been awarded scholarships at Mt. Holyoke for the coming year.

PLEASE

The need is tremendous and instant. Give generously.

The item appearing in last week's Star stating that Mildred B. Kuyper of this town had purchased from Charles S. McDowell the property at 5 Wildwood street contained an error. The property purchased is located at 5 Wildwood terrace and not on Wildwood street.

At the last regular meeting of the Court plans were completed for the whist which is to be conducted on Wednesday evening next, May 4 at the home of Sister Abby McDonough on Glenwood avenue.

The fact that Sister McDonough is to be the hostess assures the success of the party as she has on many previous occasions conducted very successful parties at her home.

Many members of the Court have been among the luncheon and dinner guests at the Port Arthur, Providence R. I., this week, where one of our talented members, Sister Mollie Maguire, is the soloist for the week.

The Court will observe its annual communion on Mothers' Day, Sunday May 8.

Charles Murphy of Clark street, employed at the automobile accessory shop of Oscar Hedtler on Church street had a narrow escape from serious injury last Saturday afternoon. While engaged in pumping up a tire under heavy pressure the tube burst, the light wedge of demountable rim striking him in the face badly bruising and breaking his nose. Murphy was hurled several feet by the force of the escaping air and suffered injuries to his wrist and side. He was picked up in a dazed condition and later treated by a physician. He considers himself extremely fortunate to have escaped with his eyesight for had the flying rim struck him in the eyes he surely would have been blinded.

CAST AND CHORUS OF "THE GONDOLIERS"

GILBERT AND SULLIVAN OPERA PRESENTED

"The Gondoliers" Pleased Large Audiences in Town Hall

"The Gondoliers," an opera in two acts by W. S. Gilbert and Arthur Sullivan, was presented under the auspices of the First Congregational Church in the Town Hall on last Friday and Saturday evenings. More than 1500 tickets were disposed of for the two performances and large audiences were present on both nights. The larger and by far the more enthusiastic audience attended the show on Saturday, no seats in the small hall having been on sale for the preceeding evening.

Nothing which has been produced in the Town Hall has been done with more painstaking attention to detail than was "The Gondoliers," and the atmosphere created for the show had much to do with its success. Beautiful scenery, clever lighting effects, attractive costumes, splendid principals, an adequate chorus and orchestra, all contributed their respective parts to the general excellence of the performance; but those having the production in hand went further than the mere mechanics of the show and transformed the hall itself into a fitting environment for its staging.

The galleries with their hangings of tapestries and colored scarfs became arched Venetian balconies, the inevitable clock was hidden, the stage was banked with attractive flowers and palms. Ushers garbed as swarthy gondoliers moved noiselessly about the hall; dainty candy and flower girls dispensed their wares in gypsy costume; and as a final touch, a sturdy young musician strolled slowly through the aisles playing upon an accordian. Small wonder that the audience was in a receptive mood at the curtain's rising.

From beginning to end the production was notably good. The cast was excellent, while the chorus, despite its size and lack of space, sung and danced well. The music of "The Gondoliers" is light and tuneful and the score contains several "catchy" songs and chorus numbers.

The plot centers about the disappearance of the heir to the throne of Barataria and his subsequent appearance, according the Grand Inquisator, in the person of one of two gondoliers who have just taken unto themselves wives. To complicate the situation the youthful heir had been bethcothed in infancy to Casilda, the daughter of the Duke of Plaza-Toro, a Spanish Grandee, who has arrived in Barntaria to witness the wedding of the twain. Meanwhile the problem is to decide which of the gondolieri is the king. Until Inez, the foster nother of the king, can be made to tell which is the royal heir the two gondoliers are to reign jointly. Affairs are badly scrambled by the fact that neither of the candidates for the kingly office wishes to part from his wife to marry Casilda, while the latter is madly in love with her father's attendant, Luiz. Naturally Luiz turns out to be the missing crown prince and is crowned king, the gondolieri returning to their picturesque if less lordly calling.

TEN MILLION DOLLARS NEEDED

Red Cross Relief Fund Doubled—Winchester's Quota Now Three Thousand

The increasing devastation in the Mississippi Valley makes necessary, the American Red Cross finds, $10,000,000 for relief instead of $5,000,000 as estimated a week ago. It has therefore doubled the quotas of local chapters. Three thousand dollars is the amount Winchester is now asked to raise. It will be done, for never have our townspeople more eagerly and promptly responded to a call for help. Fifteen hundred dollars was our original quota, and over that amount was subscribed before any word of an increased quota was received. The chapter has voted $500 from its treasury.

The local Red Cross committee for Mississippi relief, headed by Mr. James Nowell, will continue to carry on its campaign by telephone and through the press, since this method is proving effective. Do not wait to be asked by telephone—you may have been called when you were out. It will help the committee greatly if, without solicitation you will send your money at once to Mr. William E. Priest, Winchester Savings Bank, Mt. Vernon street.

Any amount will be greatly appreciated. Sums have varied from $100 to 25 cents—the latter brought by a boy so small that he had to be lifted to the teller's window. He wanted "to help some little boy who has lost his home." Everyone help. It is sorely needed. Such a stupendous and widespread calamity the United States has hitherto never known.

On May 3, Mr. Priest forwarded $2000 to Washington. We are now working for our final thousand. Already, at time of going to press $282.25 of it has been raised. If those who wish to help will "do it now," the whole quota will be raised by this Saturday night.

OBSERVED 25th ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. Hans Martinson of 49 Sheridan circle were completely and pleasantly surprised on Tuesday evening of this week when a large group of friends gathered at their home to offer congratulations and best wishes upon the 25th anniversary of their marriage. The evening passed pleasantly with an entertainment program and orchestral selections, a dainty collation being served during the festivities. Many beautiful gifts were received by the host and hostess of the occasion.

Mr. and Mrs. Martinson, who was Miss Augusta Lund of Woburn, were marcied May 3, 1902, at Woburn by the Rev. Senning Jacobson, pastor of the Swedish Luthern Church. They have since made their home in this town.

TO SPEAK ON CHINA AT FIRST CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

Sunday Evening at 7 O'clock

Mr. Victor K. Kwong, who was born in China, and is now a student at Harvard University and the President of the Chinese Young Men's Christian Association, of Boston, will speak at the First Congregational Church Sunday evening on "China's Righteous Fight for Freedom."

All those who are interested in getting the real news on China, and also a definite impression as to what it is all really about, and what the Chinese are fighting for, are invited to this service. An opportunity to ask questions will be afforded at the close of the address.

At the Mothers' Day service on Sunday morning, Mr. Chidley will preach a special sermon on, "The Influence of a Mother." The Junior Choir will assist at the morning worship and the whole service will be in keeping with the celebration of Mother's Day.

Winchester was represented at the meeting in Arlington Monday evening to discuss plans for forming an amateur twilight baseball league by "Jomma" Dolan and "Jocko" Prue. In view of the support accorded Saturday ball in Winchester last summer the Star is a bit skeptical about the success of such a circuit so far as a local entry is concerned. The Legion team met with but scant success in a similar venture several years ago. Fans soon tire of seeing the same teams in action against each other unless the lineups bristle with high-class talent.

WINCHESTER MEETS WOBURN TOMORROW

Winchester High School will go to Woburn tomorrow afternoon for a baseball game with Woburn High at 3:15 on Library Park. Neither team has won all its games to date and Winchester's showing has been particularly dismal. Nevertheless the usual crowd will be on hand for the meeting of these two long-time rivals who can always be depended upon to put on a real scrap no matter how weak one or the other may appear before the battle.

On paper Woburn has by far the stronger batting team and its fielding can't by any worse than that which the local boys have been showing. In the box, however, Winchester has a decided edge, especially if "Lefty" Hatch is back in his real form. The rangy southpaw suffered an arm injury on the day before the Melrose game last Saturday and had nothing on the ball but the cover as a consequence. If he is right out there tomorrow, the Woburn bats will not run riot by any means. "Bobby" Callahan and "Archa" Amico are fully as good pitchers as the best Woburn can show.

Local fans should soft pedals their criticism of the local team just a bit, and should remember that only three of the men who are regularly starting ball games for Coach Mansfield are letter players and that the team is woefully shy of experience.

Many of the costly mistakes which the boys have made in the games so far this season, con be directly traced to faulty baseball judgment which only experience can remedy. The loss of so many good players for disciplinary reasons has affected the morale of the entire squad as well as lowered its batting strength materially. Three of the five boys at present under faculty ban were among the best hitters on the team.

Winchester at its ful strength might well have enjoyed a fairly successful season. After seeing several of the other teams in action, it is not a rash statement to say that it might have been a Mystic League contender. Its present lineup is not so strong as it might be but the boys are giving their best. As the players develop the confidence which comes from actual competition they will look up a lot. Give them a chance.

MUSIC CONTEST WON BY ARRIA GLIDDEN

Arria Glidden has been declared the winner of the Wadleigh School Music Memory Contest which was held on last Monday evening in the Assembly Hall of the high school under the direction of Miss Marion E. Knightly, school supervisor of music. About 50 pupils participated. All were expected to learn 25 selections of proven musical excellence, 20 of which were played during the contest.

Three participants, Helen Barry, Dorothy Bidwell and Arria Glidden submitted perfect papers in the first test, each scoring 200 points. Katherine Chamberlain, Ruth Dodge, Barbara Grant, Virginia Smalley and Sally Parsons scored 199 points; Carolyn Abbott, Loretta Carleton, Barbaca Chidley, Edna Foley and Margaret Marchant, 198 points; and Sterling MacDonald and Mabel Tompkins, 195 points.

The contest was repeated on Thursday afternoon and on this occasion Arria Glidden, Carolyn Abbott and Katherine Chamberlain submitted perfect papers. As a result of the former's having been he only participant to have perfect scores in each of the contests, she was declared the winner.

A perfect scoce meant not alone recognizing the musical selection played with its composer and his nationality, but also entailed the correct spelling of the words involved; a difficult feat.

The selections were played by a quartet comprising Aram Mouradian, violin; George Smith, oboe; Frederick Sanborn, saxophone; and William Higgins, piano. Additional numbers were played upon a phonograph. Mrs George H. Lochman, Mrs. A. K. Hayden and Miss Mary H. Barr were judges. Miss Frances Hayward, Miss Cecelia Freeman and Principal Arthur F. Crowell of the Wadleigh School corrected the papers for spelling. The contest was held in connection with the National observance of Music Week.

Dr. Frederika Moore, a former resident of Winchester and at one time school physician here, is one of the doctors who have volunteered for service in the Southern flood area.

CALUMET

CALUMET CLUB NOTES

Tonight occurs the Mixed Bowling dinner at 6.30 to be followed by dancing. Dancing is open to all members and their lady friends and any desiring to attend the dinner might possibly find room if they will telephone Fred Scholl at once.

We understand Ernest Chase will show some of the movie pictures taken on Washington's Birthday at the Clubhouse. You may be in them.

The Mixed Bowling Tournament is closed. It should have ended last Friday night but there were some upsets when three teams were found to be tied for the bread line—teams 10, 4 and 8 with 21 won and 18 lost. They fought it out on the line last Wednesday night and teams 8 and 10 won.

The finals last Friday night were exciting. Team 6 had a chance to go into first place and many expected they would at least tie 14 for first honors. Arthur Pitman of team 6 tried hard to stem the tide with a string of 120 and Mrs. Stryker had a total of 175 with 83 and 92. Team 2 was not to be outdone and took three from 6. Mrs. Barnard of team 2 had a total of 171, Mrs. Purrington also of team 2 had 165 and Mrs. Taylor 164, the combination helping out immensely towards the honors. That left 14 in first place with 26 won and 13 lost, team 2 in second place with 25 won and 14 lost and team 6 in third place with 24 won and 15 lost. Team 8 took two from team 3 and therefore went into the bread line. Team 3, however, had only three members there, which must have considerably handicapped them. Team 4 took two from team 7, and they also went into the bread line. Mrs. Parish of team 4 had a high total of 181 with 101 for one of the singles.

The mixed bowling has been full of excitement and interest all through the season and many are sorry that the tournament has come to a close. There were 14 teams with 8 to a team so great credit is due the bowling committee for getting out such a large number.

	Won	Lost
Team 14	26	13
Team 2	25	14
Team 6	24	15
Team 1	23	16
Team 11	22	17
Team 8	21	18
Team 10	21	18
Team 4	21	18
Team 9	19	20
Team 13	18	21
Team 7	16	23
Team 3	12	27
Team 5	11	28
Team 12	11	28

The Men's Spring Tournament came to a close last week. Team 6 had a remarkable record with 22 won and 2 lost. Final scores are as follows:

	Won	Lost
Team 6	22	2
Team 7	16	8
Team 1	15	9
Team 5	11	13
Team 2	10	14
Team 3	7	17
Team 4	3	21

DAN IS THROUGH

To the Editor of the Star:

Dan, the Board of Health horse, is through. One morning last week he was found cast in his stall and at first it was thought that it would be necessary to end his earthly pilgrimage then and there. Through the combined and ingenious efforts of the men at the Town Stable, Dan was restored to his feet without serious injury. Since that time he has been convalescing in a box stall and, although still confined to his home with contusions and general lameness, it is with satisfaction that the Board of Health has been able to reply to numerous inquiries that he is doing as well as can be expected.

With all deference to the Oxonian horse lore of the Finance Committee, Dan's working days are over. In view of his quarter of a century of service to the town it seemed fitting to the Board of Health that he enjoy a few months at pasture before journeying onward to his permanent rest in the Elysium fields. With that end in view it has been arranged with the Animal Rescue League to have Dan pass the summer at their farm in the country without expense to the Taxpayers.

Bowing in humble acquiescence to the will of the sovereign voters the "Headless Horseman" now finds himself in all truth the Horseless Headman as chairman of the Board of Health. It would appear that the householders have their choice of increasing the capacity of their garbage pails or paring their potatoes a little closer to the rind.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS

Mr. Charles A. Lane, noted disciple of Isaac Walton, left town Tuesday for two weeks of fishing at Camp Comfort, Rockwood, Me.

Monday forenoon Officer Farrell, from his post in the police sentry-box noticed a Ford sedan passing to the left of the traffic beacon. As he signalled him to stop the man's position at the wheel excited his suspicion which was soon confirmed. At headquarters the man gave his name as Ross Coolen of Woburn and was booked for drunkenness and for operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor. He appeared in court Tuesday morning and was found guilty on both counts, being assessed $10 for drunkenness and given a suspended sentence of one month in the house of correction on the operating charge.

Sunday night at 11.20 as Irving Newcomb of 293 Walnut street, Manchester N. H., was driving his Franklin sedan off Bacon street onto the Parkway at Wedgemere Station the machine collided with a Ford sedan which was turning from the Parkway onto Bacon street, and which was driven by Agnes Kennedy. The Ford was owned by Stanley Dynskowski of the U. S. S. Childs, Navy Yard, Boston, who was with Miss Kennedy at the time of the accident. No one was injured but the cars were somewhat damaged.

Mrs. Edith Moore popular matron at the Home for Aged People, returned to her duties last Sunday evening after spending two months in California.

Russia Has Most Coal

Russia's total coal deposits are estimated by the Soviet government at 350 billion tons, which is said to be the largest in the world. Of this amount 250 billion tons are located in the Altai mountains.

Daisy Queen of Flowers

Asked to name the queen of flowers, the average person probably would designate the rose, but the botanist would do no such thing. To him the stamens and pistils are the real flowers, and the petals, only the flower's clothes. The make-up of the rose and all its family shows an early stage in flower development. The real queen of the flowers is the daisy. In the daisy the botanist finds the stages of development of all other flowers. There are about 250 flowers or florets on each daisy. Even the white or pink-tipped rays are not petals but whole flowers and the yellow boss of the shield consists of many other perfect little flowers, each making seed.

Iodine From Seaweed

The first factory for the manufacture of iodine from seaweed was established in 1820 at Conquet in Brittany. To make a pound of iodine it takes approximately one ton of fresh seaweed.

Artist's Inspiration

The English painter, Sir Joshua Reynolds, was the first artist to represent a scene from the "Divine Comedy" in his picture of Count Ugolino della Gherardesca, whose horrible death is recorded in the twenty third canto of "The Inferno."

NEW CONSTRUCTION HARD ON TIPSY DRIVERS

The new construction job which is being done on Cambridge street is proving particularly trying to drivers attempting to manoeuver their cars while carrying a quantity of liquid gloom dispeller sufficient to scamble their judgment of distances.

Friday afternoon John E. Kemp of Lowell figured he had plenty of room to squeeze by and landed his machine in the ditch, with the result that he was taken into custody by Special Officer John F. O'Brien who held him until the arrival of Motorcycle Officer Edward O'Connell. The latter escorted Kemp to the station house where he was booked for driving while under the influence of liquor.

At 8.15 in the evening Officer Charles Harrold arrested Joseph B. McDermott of Cambridge street who had also calculated erroneously and had landed the car he was driving in the ditch. Both McDermott and Kemp appeared in the District Court at Woburn Saturday morning. Kemp was found guilty as charged and sentenced to serve one month in the House of Correction with sentence suspended for one year. McDermott, who was charged with drunkenness and with operating while under the influence of liquor, had his case continued until Friday, May 6.

At 1.45 Monday morning, Headquarters was notified of trouble on the State road and Officer Regan was dispatched to investigate. He found upon arrival that Special Officer W. Kelley had become suspicious of the occupants of an Oakland touring car which he had seen approaching the section of roadway which is torn up. Upon halting the car he found it contained four young men and was being driven by George F Carroll, 21, of 205 Fletcher street, Lowell. The latter, Officer Kelley took into custoday while two of his companions, Thomas Greenhalge of 147 Broadway Lowell, and Raymond Higgins of 241 Broadway, Lowell, were arrested by Officer Regan. At Headquarters, Carroll was charged with drunkenness and with operating a car while under the influence of liquor. Greenhalge and Higgins were charged with drunkenness.

All three appeared in the District Court at Woburn Monday morning. Greenhalge and Higgins were found guilty and fined $10 each. Carroll was found guilty and fined $50 on the operating charge. The charge of drunkenness was filed.

At the same session of the court Motorcycle Officer Edward O'Connell was the complainant against a Reading and a Winchester motorist, both of whom were found guilty of speeding and fined $5 and $10 respectively.

Officer Farrell also appeared against a Winchester man whom he and Officer Regan had arrested in a North End house last Saturday night at 11.20. The police were sent to the house in question as a result of a telephone call reporting a disturbance in progress there. The defendent was found guilty of drunkenness and assault and fined $10 on the first count. The assault count was ordered filed.

WOMAN'S CHRISTIAN TEMPERANCE UNION NOTES

The Babson Statistical Institute of Wellesley, founded by Robert Babson, the world authority on economics, formed and sent out a questionaire to manufacturers in an effort to determine the effect of prohibition from an employer's standpoint. Seventy-five per cent of the large number of employers in the country, representing thousands of workers, stated that companies from their own viewpoint and also from that of their employees.

Labor has been so frequently put on the wet side that it is interesting to read the statement by the "Union Labor Advocate." Chicago, putting the American workman unreservedly among the drys, claiming that "Labor is through with the people who used to ring up the workingman's pay check and then send him home penniless." This Chicago labor publication believes the wets use the personal liberty argument because they have no economic grounds in the face of the tremendous prosperity of the American workman since the saloon was outlawed.

The enthusiasm with which the "Union Labor Advocate" endorses the claim the W. C. T. U. has been putting out under the caption, "Prohibition Promotes Prosperity," is based on a good taste of better times, better homes, better food, better clothes. As an extra bit of information the article calls attention to the 36 labor owned banks, (all started since prohibition) now holding $111,000,000 in deposits; and with resources of even larger figures.

"From time to time individual labor unions will side with the enemies of prohibition," says the article," but as a whole the laboring people have been more than satisfied. No single class of people have benefited more from prohibition than the laboring people.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel J. Rushforth of 17 Glenwood avenue have announced the engagement of their niece, Mary J. Kelley to Mr. James A. McLaughlin, son of Mr. and Mrs. A B McLaughlin of Hudson street, Woburn. The announcement was made on Sunday evening at a luncheon given in Miss Kelley's honor at the Rushforth home. Miss Kelley is a telephone operator attached to the local exchange and is widely known in the field of amateur theatricals and as a vocalist. Mr. McLaughlin is a former commander of Woburn George A. Campbell Post, 101, American Legion. No date for the wedding has been announced.

Mrs. Louisa Wendte, formerly of this town, the mother of Miss Frederika Wendte, died at her home in Cambridge last Thursday, services being held on Saturday. Mrs. Wendte and her daughter moved to Cambridge last September.

LOCAL RALLY FELL TWO RUNS SHORT

A desperate last ditch rally in the ninth fell two runs short last Saturday afternoon and Winchester High dropped its first Mystic Valley League baseball game of the season to Melrose High School, 10—8. The visitors were leading 10—1 when the struggle slid into the final frame.

The game lost much of its interest when Melrose piled up six big runs in the opening inning and few of the fans braved the icy blasts that swept across the diamond during the remainder of the matinee. The day was much too cold for baseball, especially such baseball as that which Winchester displayed in the first four innings against the opposition.

While the casual observer would find little cause for encouragement in the showing of Coach Mansfield's charges, there were nevertheless glimpses of light among the clouds. The pitching of big "Archa" Amico was a pleasing feature, even though wasted on a lost cause. Relieving Hatch in the 4th inning the big football star allowed only two hits during the remainder of the game, settling the invaders down in order in three of the five frames. A little tighter baseball behind his hurling would have shut out Melrose and resulted in an 8—8 tie at the ninth.

For the first time this season Winchester showed in the last inning something which resembled a batting punch. Helped by Simpson's unsteadiness the locals batted around and scored 7 runs before "Livin" McNeil ended the fun by failing to touch second base on his way to third.

Coach Mansfield's boys played some very dumb baseball during the early innings, showing some poor judgment in the matter of throwing the ball to the proper bases. Seven errors were charged to the local nine, but counting those of omission the total would have been considerably higher. Such lapses are due to inexperience and are to be expected in a team as green as that representing Winchester this season.

Hatch, star southpaw, started on the rubber for the locals and it was easy to see after he had passed two batters, allowed three hits and tossed him in a wild pitch, that it was not his day. Eight runs were garnered by Melrose during the three frames he toiled upon the rubber, though they were by no means all of them earned.

Amico went in cold and passed the first two batters to face him in the 4th. Ross fanned for the first out and Harris rolled to McNeil. "Livin" fumbled long enough to allow everyone to make his base and there were three on and only one away. Delaney rapped to Smith and the latter attempted to get Keady at the plate instead of making sure of the runner at first. He failed to head off the run and the sacks were still occupied. A little fast thinking might have resulted in a double play here, retiring the side without a run since Delaney is by no means a Mercury. Pipe fouled to Franklin but McHugh hit past 3rd to tally Armstrong before Simpson fouled out to the local backstop.

Thereafter Amico held Melrose safely, and Winchester scored in the 5th. Amico singled off Pipe's glove and was sacrificed to second by Franklin. Doherty popped to Harris, but Smith tripled to right to score Amico. Harris took Murphy's hoist.

Simpson hit McNeil to start the 9th and Halwartz drew a pass. Callahan forced Ray at second and went right down. Cobb doubled to left scoring "Bobby" and "Livin," making third while Harris was retiring Amico at first. Flemming, who had replaced Franklin, walked and went down on the first pitch. Simpson hit Doherty, filling the sacks. Successive singles by Smith and Murphy scored Cobb, Flemming and Doherty, and when Dwyer mussed up Murphy's drive "Smitty" counted. Murphy made third when McHugh's throw was off the mark and McNeil drew a pass. Halwartz lined a single to center, scoring Murphy, but as McNeil was going from first to third Umpire Walsh ruled that he did not touch second, Harris the visiting shortstopper noticing the omission. This put the kibosh on Winchester's chances and ended the ball game with victory in sight. The fielding feature was the catch of Halwartz's foul in the 6th by McHugh, the Melrose catcher going clear to the Winchester bench to make the clutch.

GRANADA ATTRACTIONS

"Evening Clothes" starring Adolph Menjou, now being played at the Granada Theatre in Malden, has proven to be one of the most popular screen hits this beautiful playhouse has offered in weeks. Prominent in the support of Mr. Menjou are Virginia Valli, Noah Beery and Louise Brooks, a trio of seasoned artists who add mightily to the charm of the picture. "The Meyakos," a Japanese troupe, are one of the five high class acts on the bill for today and Saturday. They do a very beautiful act which they describe as "From Cheeryland to Broadway." Arthur Nelson's "Katland" is a unique oddity on the current bill. Three other acts combine to make up a smart and snappy show.

Gilda Grey, a young lady who knows her night clubs as does no other, comes to the Granada next Monday in "Cabaret." Tom Moore and Chester Conklin head the supporting cast in this great screen attraction. "Cabaret" her new vehicle treats a phase of life with which the star is right at home, having won her reputation as a cabaret performer. It gives Gilda Grey several chances to strut her stuff which she does as no one else can. Chester Conklin turns in another great comedy performance as a taxi-driver, while Tom Moore's infectious Irish grin helps put the picture over in fine style.

Miss Ruth Poland of this town, athletic instructor at Stoneham High School, was chaperon during the past week for a party of Stoneham young ladies who spent their school vacation in camp at Franklin.

FIRE IN MAIN STREET BLOCK

Last Sunday evening shortly after 8 o'clock the Central Fire Station was notified by phone from the Jenney Gasoline Station that there was a fire in the block at 612 Main street occupied by the market of Ralph & Smith. At almost the same time Officer John Regan, on duty in the square, pulled in Box 21 for the same fire.

Upon arrival the firemen found a hot fire in progress at the rear of the block in a back entry adjacent to the ice chest of the market. The fire had apparently started among some kerosene cans which had been stacked under a flight of stairs leading to the second story of the building.

The men made a good stop and prevented the fire from spreading from the entry. Considerable damage was done the stock of the market by smoke, the amount being estimated as high as $1000.

Quite a traffic tie-up resulted and Sergeants Cassidy and Rogers with Officers Hogan and Regan were kept on the jump seeing that the firemen were given an even chance to work at the fire. Several spoke of the efficient way in which the machines were handled by the police.

At 2.10 Sunday afternoon the Department was called by telephone to put out a chimney fire in the residence of Mr. Francesco Scatturro at 30 Oak street.

Three alarms were sounded on Saturday, the first at 12.23 p. m., for a brush fire in the rear of the Russell farm on Cambridge street. At 1.47 o'clock the men were called to put out a grass fire on the Parkway near Sandy Beach and at 5.20 the final run was made to extinguish a fire which had started in a pile of railroad sleepers near the Boston & Maine Station at the Highlands.

MARION DAVIES AT THE BOWDOIN SQUARE THEATRE

The Bowdoin Square Theatre is one of the most homelike theatres in Boston and beginning Monday the energetic management will put forth a gigantic picture and vaudeville show which will be of rare interest. The big feature for the entire week will be the romantic offering, Marion Davies in, "The Red Mill" considered that star's greatest comedy triumph. The love story is replete with rare comedy of the most wholesome variety and as Tina, the little Dutch girl she has an opportunity to display her many charms. The picture is alive with action too and is sure to prove a most attractive card at the Bowdoin. The cast contains apart from the star such notable screen favorites as Owen Moore, Louise Fazenda, Karl Dane and George Siegman. Another screen offering will be, the William Fox picture "Stage Madness" with the leading roles taken by Virginia Valli and [illegible] Tellegen. It unfolds a story of Paris studios and gay life on the white way. The Our Gang [illegible] will be, "Seeing the World" [illegible] Pathe News together with [illegible] selected vaudeville acts will round out a clever bill. Bargain vaudeville is offered every Friday night. Concert Sunday at 3. Free parking service to suburbanites.

THE FORTNIGHTLY NOTES

There will be a program of unusual interest for the final meeting of the season on Monday, May 9, at 2.30 o'clock in the Town Hall.

The music committee has been very fortunate in securing Mr. Joshua Phippen to furnish the musical part of the program. Mr. Phippen is the organist at the First Church of Christ, Scientist in Boston and is widely known as a teacher and composer. He has studios in Boston and Salem as well as in Winchester.

The speaker of the afternoon will be Miss Edith Margaret Smaill of the faculty of Wellesley College. She will give an informal talk on, "The Habitant of Old Quebec" and a recital of the habitant poems of the Canadian physician-poet, Dr. William Henry Drummond.

Miss Smaill understands and loves the French-Canadian farmer and therefore gives a sympathetic interpretation of his varying moods, grave and gay, rejoicing or sorrowing, as revealed in the picturesque poetry of Dr. Drummond. One critic says of her, "Her heart is in the recital as well as her brain and voice. In her rendition of the French-Canadian dialect she does the most beautiful work I ever heard on any platform."

ANNUAL LOBSTER SUPPER

Next Thursday, May 12, Mystic Valley Lodge is to have its annual lobster supper. This will be followed by a very high class entertainment furnished by an artist who has become noted throughout New England. The suppers which Mystic Valley Lodge have conducted for the past three months have been most enjoyable, and it is the hope of the officers that a good attendance will turn out at this annual event. The meeting will also be the last of this Masonic year.

The summary:

Dr. John R. Wallace had the misfortune to fall and injure his knee to the extent that he was unable to be at his office the greater part of the week.

FLORENCE CRITTENTON LEAGUE MEETING

The last meeting of the Florence Crittenton League proved to be a very interesting one, being held at the Home in Brighton on April 21. About 40 members of the Winchester Circle took advantage of the perfect spring day and motored over to the meeting.

After a short business meeting at which Mrs. Apsey, the President, presided, Mrs. Boynton sang a group of songs accompanied by Miss Wilcox. The speaker of the afternoon was Mrs. Wm. Healey who spoke on education in citizenship and its relation to delinquency. Miss Hyde, the Superintendent of the Home also spoke to the Winchester group and told of the educational work which the Home does for the girls.

After the meeting, an inspection of the Home in general was made and the Winchester members had an opportunity to see the Reception Room which their circle is maintaining and furnishing; thus they had first-hand information about the Home which they are supporting.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED

Mr. and Mrs. Nathan A. Johnson of Medford announce the engagement of their daughter, Lavina Allen Johnson, to Ralph E. Carlisle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph E. Carlisle of 14 Mt. Pleasant street. He is a member of the Delta Sigma Tau and the Alph Tau Omega fraternities. No date has been announced for the wedding.

THE WATER HEATER BEAUTY HINT

"For a beautiful skin, soak 20 pounds of strawberries and 2 pounds of raspberries in a bath tub filled with warm water, and bathe. Sponge off afterwards with milk, followed by perfume. This will give the skin the softness of velvet, the color of a rose, and leave a delicious scent."

Thus we read an old French beauty secret of the days of Napoleon. Strawberries and raspberries and creamy milk seem extravagant luxury for the bath, yet our annual expenditure for cosmetics, soaps and perfumes today rivals the national debt in proportions.

Most great skin specialists will tell you that beauty begins with absolute cleanliness—with hot water for the nightly complexion rites, followed by cold water or an astringent. The convenience of ready hot water when you want it and when you should use it, seldom fails to improve and preserve any skin. A gas water heater in your home is a good beauty hint.

GILBERT AND SULLIVAN OPERA PRESENTED

Lisle Burroughs and Arthur Howe as Giuseppi and Marco, "the Gondoliers" were excellent and the former was easily the life of the show. He made the very most of his part, singing and dancing well while carrying off his humorous lines in an easy, off-hand way which was wholly natural. We have seen few to excell him in Winchester productions. Mr. Howe added to a handsome stage presence a sweet tenor voice and a pleasing personality. His singing of the song "Take a pair of sparkling eyes" while seated before the footlights was splendidly done and we fancy many a feminine heart skipped a beat when he appeared in his scarlet jacket and white satin knee breeches.

Playing opposite the gondoliers were Gertrude Nason and Annette Hughes, and they proved in every respect equal to the merry pace set by their very active stage husbands. The former sung very sweetly and was excellent in her bi-play with Mr. Burroughs. Mrs. Hughes' singing and dancing were as fine as ever.

Alden Symmes made much of the comedy role, the Duke of Plaza-Toro, giving to the financially unsound nobleman real life. He was ably abbetted by his stage spouse, Jane Hill, who was excellent as the head-of-the-house, the Dutchess of Toro. The latter was obliged to respond to an encore after singing her song, "On the day when I was wedded," near the end of the show.

The leads, Casilda and Luiz, were played by Helen Barr and Paul Bennett. Both were entirely adequate. Mrs. Barr had little opportunity to display her lovely voice, but she brought to her role all the skill and charm for which she has been long admired by Winchester audiences. Her duet with Mr. Bennett, "There Was a Time" was the finest musical gem of the show and had to be repeated. The voices blended admirably.

Without question the finest bit of character acting in the entire production was that of Dorothy Fuller in the part of Inez, the king's foster mother. Her entrance into the glittering ring of the court, her hesitancy and peering glance into the footlights, her dramatic disclosure of the king's identity were splendidly done. And to her credit she remained completely within her role throughout the rolicking finale to the production's very end. Her make-up too was excellent while her singing in the brief passage allotted to her was all that could be desired. The minor roles, Fiametta, Giulia, Vittoria and Francesco were well played and sung by Olive Page, Estelle Simonds, Idabelle Winship and Oscar Crowers.

A word of praise for the conducting of G. Wallace Woodworth. Not only did he have the production well in hand throughout, but in the matter of balance between singers and orchestra and in omitting tiresome encores he displayed a commendable discretion. As musical director of the show a major portion of the credit for its success is rightfully his. Mr. Henry Dale, the coach, is also deserving of great praise. His fine reputation in his field was more than borne out in the general stage excellence of the "Gondoliers." Miss Edith Jewell's Orchestra of Boston was assisted at both performances by John Wills, flute; and T. Parker Clarke, trombone. The beautiful back drop used in the first act was the work of Ernest Dudley Chase of this town. Several of the colored drops were painted by Ruth D. Elder. The flowers and palms were donated and arranged by John C. Haartz and Jere A. Downs. The work committee on costumes was headed by Mrs. G. Murray Coville.

Much of the credit for the success of the entire production belongs to the general chairman, Mrs. Howard J. Chidley, who in combining the efforts of the many committees and sub-committees into an effective operating force did a tremendous job exceptionally well. She was assisted by the following committees:

Coach Mr Henry Dale
Costumes Mrs William H Smith
Lighting Mr Temple Newell
Music Mr G Wallace Woodworth
Personnel Mrs William H Gilpatric and Mrs Walter W Winship
Properties Mr Henry Simonds Miss Charlotte Brooks and Mrs John Wills
Scenery Mr Ernest Dudley Chase and Miss Ruth D Elder
Arrangements Mrs Florence R Scales.
Finance Mr James Sidney Allen
Program Mr Lisle Burroughs
Publicity Mr George S F Bartlett
Tickets Mrs. Maurice F Brown, Mrs William I Palmer and Miss Cassie Sands
Candy and Flowers Mrs Walter Wadsworth, Mrs Benjamin Morgan

Charles E. Greene, head usher, was assisted by Henry Mitchell, Robert Comfort, George DeCamp, Henry Bridge, Donald Tucker, Kezar Nichols, Kenneth Caldwell, Harry Bigelow, W. H. Smith, S. J. Barthelemew and Samuel Elder.

The flower and candy girls under the direction of Miss Rosamond LeFavour included Marjorie Ordway, Frances Downer, Clytie Brooks, Alice Mitchell, Marion Ladd, Hilda Parshley, Frances Denison, Rosamond Martin, Rebecca Barrett and Evelyn Toppan.

Albert DeVolpi of Woburn was the accordian player. The box office was in charge of Albert K. Huckins on Friday night and of Rupert F. Jones on Saturday evening

Lodges and Their Names

A writer in the Nation has collected some astonishing particulars of American fraternal secret societies. He reports that their membership exceeds 23,000,000. They have almost exhausted the animal kingdom in their search for titles. There are Orders of Bears, Beavers, Blue Geese, Buffaloes, Bugs, Camels, Cooties, Deer, Dogs, Eagles (Red and Golden), Elks, Fleas, Goats, Go-Hawks, Larks, Lions, Monkeys, Moose, Mules, Orioles, Owls, Red Roosters, Reindeer, Serpents, Shriners, Stags, Western Bees, White Rabbits and White Rats.

It is mentioned that the order of the Elks would have been the Moose if some of its founders had been better versed in nature lore. They received their name from a large moose head in Barnum's museum, which some of the members mistook for that of an elk.

Origin of Buttercup, According to Legend

The buttercup is said to have its name from the old belief that cows which had fed on the flower gave the best milk for butter making.

This is obviously a fallacy, however—at least, so far as the early variety, known as the bulbous buttercup, is concerned, as cattle, in consequence of a bitter juice which is supposed to serve as a protection against animals, leave the plant severely alone. In the days when legends were woven around many of our flowers, the existence of the buttercup was ascribed to elfin vengeance on a miser. It happened, supposedly, in this way, says Mrs. Vivian Thompson:

The miser was carrying a sack of gold across a field, when fairies stopped him and asked for alms. He refused, of course, and the mischievous little folk then secretly cut a hole in his sack. As he walked on the coins fell one by one to the ground, and were thus scattered over the field. Under fairy influence they were immediately transformed into golden flowers we call buttercups.

Victoria Model of Truth

Queen Victoria shares with George Washington the tradition of never having told a lie. She never pretended to be what she was not; never intrigued; never practiced any of the arts of a Macchiavelli, as did Queen Elizabeth. Queen Victoria steered a straight course. Therefore she never was brought to shame by any disclosures. "The blush of Sigismund" never colored her cheeks, for the very good reason that she never prevaricated or went back on her promises. There were no light words in her vocabulary; no double meanings in her phrases; no intent to deceive in her thoughts. She had plenty of faults, but no baseness of mind. Therefore, her fame is more secure than that of hundreds of sovereigns who far surpassed her in brain power. — The Forum

UNIVERSITY THEATRE

The feature pictures for the first four days of next week at the University are "Children of Divorce" with Clara Bow and "Too Many Crooks" with Mildred Davis. "Children of Divorce" is from the senational story by Owen Johnson which ran serially in the Red Book magazine before it was published in book form. Esther Ralston is the co-star with fascinating Clara Bow in this powerful picture. Others in the cast are Garry Cooper, Einar Hanson and Norman Trevor. The whole story points out the greatest problem in these days of American and European divorces.

Mildred Davis, the star in "Too Many Crooks" is the charming wife of the famous comedian Harold Lloyd. With her are featured Lloyd Hughes, George Bancroft and El Brendel. Its a rattling good farce with El Brendel funnier than ever in the role of a private detective.

For the last three days of the week is showing the inimitable Buster Keaton in his funny Civil War picture, "The General." Buster as a locomotive engineer with the Southern Army pulls off some wonderful stunts in and out of the cab. At on time he proceeds to chase the whole Northern Army with his dilapidated old locomotive. Come and laugh with this prince of comedians. The accompanying film is "Fashions for Women" with Esther Ralston and Raymond Hatton. The women folks will be thrilled with the wonderful display of gowns and lingerie. Everybody will be delighted with the outstanding performance of Raymond Hatton who made such a success of his role in "We're in the Navy Now." The University Specialty Act, comedy reel and Pathe News appear on every program,

WINCHESTER PROTESTED WATERTOWN WIN

Winchester High School lost its baseball game in the Mystic Valley League series to Watertown High at Watertown Tuesday afternoon, 8-3.

Coach Mansfield elected to start "Dick" Murphy upon the rubber and in the second frame Watertown fell upon his offerings for 6 runs, enough to sew up the game. Winchester scored one run in its half of this inning and counted twice in the fourth. Watertown tallied in the 4th and again in the 6th. "Bobby" Callahan and "Lefty" Hatch who finished up for Winchester held their opponents safely, the latter fanning 6 men in two frames.

The game was a very unsatisfactory exhibition due to the wretched officiating of Umpire Lonegan and Coach Mansfield allowed his boys to continue the game after the second inning only under protest.

The locals contend that Watertown scored its winning runs after three men were retired, the final out hinging upon a decision by the umpire which was incorrectly given. With one man away Watertown had a man on second base, the count being three and two on the batter. Murphy struck the batter out, making two away, and on the play the base-runner attempted to reach third. Franklin's peg to Halwartz caught him flat-footed about 10 feet from the bag. There wasn't any question about it, the play wasn't close.

Umpire Lonigan, however, ruled the man safe, and after considerable parley Coach Mansfield allowed the game to continue under protest. Winchester's poise was gone and a combination of hits and errors allowed the Watertown boys to salt the game away. This was not the only poor decision which Umpire Lonigan made during the matinee, and nearly all of them hurt Winchester's chances.

BADLY CUT AS AUTO STRIKES TREE

About 10.45 Tuesday morning Police Headquarters was notified of an automobile accident at the corner of Wedgemere avenue and Foxcroft road. Officers Edward O'Connell and James Denaghey were dispatched to the scene in the Police machine and upon arrival found a man lying upon the grass in front of the residence of Mr. C. H. Lampee, bleeding profusely from multiple cuts about the head and face.

Officer Donaghey applied first aid and so far as possible staunched the flow of blood. Meanwhile Dr. Allan R. Cunningham, who had been summoned, arrived and he and Officer Donaghey took the injured man to the Winchester Hospital in the Doctor's machine. There he gave his name as A. Alten and his address as 181 Chestnut street, Chelsea. He was very weak from loss of blood and had sustained several bad cuts about the head and face.

According to the story which the police were able to get of the accident Alten was injured when he was thrown through the windshield of a Ford sedan being operated by Henry Wolensky of 36 Border street, East Boston, after the latter had lost control of the machine, allowing it to strike a tree. The car was badly damaged.

BOY SCOUTS' HEADQUARTERS

WINCHESTER SCOUT HEADQUARTERS

It is believed that many in Winchester, while appreciating the splendid work which the Boy Scout organization is doing among the youth of the town, are not aware of the wonderfully increased facilities for scout work which the local Council has in the recently acquired headquarters on the outskirts of the Middlesex Fells.

The splendid little stone cabin pictured above is being loaned indefinitely to the scouts by the Metropolitan District Commission, giving to the Winchester Council a headquarters unequalled, so far as is known, in the State.

Its acquisition has removed one of the objections to former scout gatherings in Winchester; the necessity of holding the meetings in the business section of the community. With the present headquarters the boys meet by themselves on the outskirts of the town at the very edge of the woods, an ideal condition.

The new headquarters is gradually being renovated and made adaptable to the many uses to which the Scouts will put it. So far as is possible the work is being done by the boys themselves and already considerable improvement is noticeable. New plumbing, a sink and toilet have been installed, the walls have been whitened and the wood work done over. A huge stone and brick fireplace has been built in the main room of the building which is being utilized for meetings while a former entrance has been closed up with masonry to make two attractive windows. More than $1000 has been spent in the headquarters since it was taken over by the scouts and there still remains much which must be done.

As funds are available this work will be gotten out of the way and many added facilities for scouting acquired by the local council. This work at headquarters is but one phase of the local scouts' activities, but it is one of importance. Your check sent to Dwight D. Elliott of 16 Stevens street, Treasurer of the Winchester Council, Boy Scouts, will ensure its continuance with the other worth while work which the council is doing.

Only Way Little Gray Man Could Figure It

The big blue car, driven by the big red man with the big black cigar, hurtled round the turn at a dizzy clip. The little gray car was meandering along in the hands of the little gray man, who glanced around only in time to shrink from the menacing radiator and a great windshield sticker which bellowed genially:

"Howdy! Half the road's yours!"

Wildly he spun the wheel, but too late. With a neat, crunching "swish" the big blue car sliced off his rear wheel, mudguards and running boards. The poor remains floundered crazily to a dusty flop. The little gray man crept forth, peering after the rapidly vanishing juggernaut. Shading his eyes, he made out another cordial sticker which flaunted its message of cheer from the shining rear window. This, too, beamed:

"Howdy! Half the road's yours!"

The little gray man pondered as he surveyed his machine. It looked like a busted birdcage. At length he nodded, reassured.

"I reckon," he observed slowly, "that I was just on the wrong half."—Kansas City Times.

FORMER WINCHESTER WOMAN NOW REFUGEE

Writes Home of Experiences in China

The following article from the Boston Globe will prove of interest to friends of Mrs. William P. Roberts, formerly Miss Dorothy Mills, the daughter of Rev. Carleton P. Mills of Lagrange street.

A vivid close-up picture of the harrowing experiences that Americans suffered at the hands of invading Chinese troops in Nanking has come to the Globe through the personal account of a former Winchester woman, now a refugee with her missionary husband and four children in Shanghai.

Mrs. William P. Roberts, formerly Dorothy Mills, has written her parents, Rev. and Mrs. Carlton P. Mills of Winchester, of her own and her husband's experiences.

Rev. William P. Roberts was one of the Episcopal missionary group in Nanking. His family were with him until the approach of the Cantonese army caused the missionary authorities to order women and children moved down to the safety of Shanghai. He told of the invasion of his house by troops who stripped him of his clothes, turned the populace loose upon his household goods and at the points of bayonets compelled him to give up all money in the house.

Refuge at University

Mrs. Roberts tells how he watched the ransacking of their home for an hour, "and as he watched he said he almost smiled to think how little things matter, compared to life." His life, however, was far from safe with his home destroyed.

After leaving his looted home he went with other foreigners who had been similarly treated to one of the buildings of Nanking University, where the motley gathering spent the night. In the morning they worked their way to the river bank and boarded a United States destroyer.

For days after newspaper-reading Americans knew of the rescue of the Americans, Mrs. Roberts was in ignorance of her husband's fate. Her letter plunges into the tale that he told upon reaching Shanghai and rejoining his family.

Chinese Lent Him Clothes

"I am going to tell you, as nearly as I can, our part in the Nanking affair. You will have heard by now that Billy is safely in Shanghai, so that you will feel as I did when he just told me the tale that nothing really matters as long as he is safe and sound, and we are all together again.

"He walked in last evening dressed in Chinese clothes which Mr. Tang, one of our Chinese clergy, lent him—borrowed socks, white canvas shoes and no hat. He came down on the destroyer Preston from Nanking with the last 67 foreigners evacuated from Nanking.

"On Monday the Northern soldiers began to retreat in an orderly manner, much to the surprise of everyone. It is said that the Nanking Chamber of Commerce offered them $3.50 a man, if they would leave without looting.

"Monday night Billy slept down in our living room with all his clothes on, in case he might be needed in the night. At 6 o'clock Tuesday morning he got up, and, seeing that the Southern troops were going by the gate, he went down to get a look at them.

"Hearing one of the soldiers call him 'Yang kwei tz' (foreign devil), he thought he'd better go back out of sight. In a few minutes he looked out and saw eight or 10 soldiers coming up the walk.

"He went out to meet them and found them in a very ugly mood. They had come to find Northern soldiers, British and White Russians. They went all over the house, but took nothing, and departed. Billy went to the telephone and notified the Consul of what had happened.

"In about half an hour he looked out to see 8 or 10 more soldiers without any officer. Again he went out to meet them. This time he saw they meant business. Mr. Ridgely came out at that time. The men wouldn't believe that Billy was American, and they declared that Dr. Ridgely was Russian.

"They said they had come to kill them, and, with bayonets pointed at them, and rifles, they stripped them of all their clothes, except their union suits. This includes shoes and stockings. They then demanded any money that they had in the house. Billy opened up the safe and gave them everything—some hundreds of dollars.

"By this time a crowd of the populace had surged in and were told by the soldiers to take everything out of the houses. Billy, in his union suit, cold and barefoot, watched them for about an hour, and as he watched he said he almost smiled to think how little 'things' matter, compared to life.

"They continued to threaten him and as they led him from room to room with bayonets always within three inches of him, they made him open all locked drawers, or if he had no keys they pried them open with their bayonets.

"When they had gone all over the house and all the houses on the compound, and were starting to threaten Billy again unless he produced more money, an officer rode in on horseback and ordered the men out. After they had gone he made a pretense of apologizing, but since exactly this same order of events was followed at every foreign compound in the city it was of course evident that the whole thing was systematically planned.

"When Billy returned to the house he realized that every single piece of furniture had gone, except the piano, which was thrown on its side and butted in with rifles. Every picture, all clothes—books, jewelry, had disappeared.

Chinese Christians Wept

"He burned all scattered letters, except one or two of very personal nature, which he brought here, with two neckties. These are all our worldly goods except what I brought down here when the children and I came to Shanghai.

"As I said before—it doesn't really matter in the least. But as I realize that every wedding present, the gate leg table and Windsor chair, all our pictures, curtains, rugs—are no more—it certainly makes me feel a bit hollow!

"From this point on all went fairly easily. The Chinese Christians began to arrive and helped in every way possible. Mr. T'ang lent him clothes and some others with Kuomintang arm bands, kept off the soldiers while others got the orphanage carriage. The Christians were very anxious to have them go as quickly as possible, and Billy said that their grief was very sincere. They were in tears as he rode away.

"They went to Nanking University, where about 100 foreigners gathered, according to agreement. There they were hidden in the third floor of a University building, as they arrived just as the looting began there. Billy spent an hour in the rafters. Here they spent the night and meanwhile events had occurred as in this account which Billy and another man wrote up at the request of the consul (referring to a clipping from the English paper published in Shanghai). It is a very restrained account, but shows, even so the suspense that everyone felt.

"From our side of it we heard, of course, that homes had been looted and people trapped in the city, and that some had been killed. But not until Saturday did a message come through saying that all Americans were accounted for with only one killed and one hurt. Then of course, I knew that Billy was all right. And on Sunday at 6 o'clock he walked in!

"Fortunately he can wear Donald's clothes (his brother's), so today he looks very elegant.

"What it all means for the future no one can know. Possibly a conference of the bishops may take place before long and we may know what is to happen next. St. John's has closed for the term.

"Of course, we realize that this may mean our coming home sooner than we supposed."

The clipping that Mrs. Roberts mentions is a statement that Mr. Roberts gave to a Shanghai newspaper. In it he declared:

"It was the opinion of all the foreigners who were molested in Nanking that the attack was premeditated and was guided by persons acquainted with foreign interests in the city. It was obviously under official control and was directed at all foreigners, irrespective of nationally.

"Those who resisted were shot, and some who did not resist. Some soldiers made distinction between Americans and other foreigners, but most of them said definitely that they were out to kill all foreigners.

"The foreigners were saved in three ways: by fleeing and hiding until rescued, by the help of officers who finally appeared, or by their Chinese friends who interceded in their behalf and were able to keep the soldiers from shooting."

Mr. Roberts describes the invasion of the American consulate and of the withdrawal of the little party of Americans there, under fire, to the Standard Oil Building. To the protests of the American Consul that Americans were friends of China, he reports, the soldiers replied "that Americans were the same as other foreigners, that they had got rich drinking Chinese blood, and that they too, would be killed."

A Cantonese officer, Mr. Roberts declares, fired at the Consul's party, as they fled through a hole in a fence and across fields to the waterfront. Mr. Roberts' statement reveals that the Consul countermanded his first order to signal for the destroyers to open fire, fearing that the shells would mean massacre for all foreigners left in the city. He renewed the order only when it appeared that they would all be killed, anyway.

"It was learned later," he says, "that the firing from the destroyers instead of causing further loss of life was the direct cause of the rescue of the rest of the foreigners in the city.

"Immediately after the firing had begun bugles were sounded all over the city calling off the marauding Southern troops. Within a short time Southern officials appeared at the waterfront with a flag of truce. Evidently they realized the gravity of the situation and were willing to arrange for the evacuation of the remaining foreigners."

Have you ever made good on one job.. for 39 years?

THE extra mileage you get from Dunlop tires starts with the fact that Dunlop has had thirty-nine years of tire-building experience—more than any other tire-maker.

These cords mean extra strength—an added factor of safety against constant load and pounding of roads—longer life and greater mileage.

They mean extra "stretch"—so the tire carcass will give under blows, and come back to its original shape without the slightest injury.

Every Dunlop you buy has extra miles built into it because Dunlop knows each part of its job. That is why we recommend you put Dunlops on your car.

Conformably to the By-Laws of the Corporation, the Directors of the Home submit the following as their report of the management and of the condition of the Home during the fiscal year ended April 30, 1927.

The property is in good physical condition and is being ably and economically managed.

The capacity of the Home is, as stated in the last annual report, 18 residents.

The 15 residents at the present time are Mr. Hiram Folsom, Miss Ella G. Abbott, Miss Delia Randall Bates, Mrs. Susan Caroline Brazer, Miss Mary L. Cobb, Miss Abbie Frances Cutter, Mrs. Elizabeth D. Davies, Mrs. Harriett Trundy Hosea, Miss Augusta Peach, Mrs. Ella Cressy Perry, Mrs. Viola Richardson, Miss Lillian Ross, Miss Lydia Jane Sanderson, Mrs. Mary Emma Smith and Miss Della G. Wood.

With the increase from 14 a year ago to a maximum of 16 residents this year, the operating expenses have naturally grown larger but willing contributors have enabled us to meet these added costs.

Estate of Alice L. Symmes, a former Director of the Home	$2,532.82
Previously received from the same Estate	1,500.00
Making a total of	$4,032.82

This bequest was made in memory of her father and mother and is to be known as the Luther Richardson Symmes and Elizabeth Ayer Symmes fund.

This legacy, as others have been, will be a real help to the Corporation and we are sincerely grateful for it. We cannot refrain from here expressing the hope that many more of the friends of the Home will find in this substantial gift a worthy example and a real stimulus to come to our aid at such time and in such amounts as may best meet their own desires and convenience. Until such time, however, as these permanent funds have attained an amount well in excess of $100,000, sustaining and contributing memberships as well as generous donations from friends will have to be relied upon as heretofore to supply annually about $6000.

The outstanding event of the year was probably the creation of a Medical Board of Service for the Home. This Board consists of three of the Town's physicians, Drs. Dennett, Brown and Burgoyne to whom your Directors are deeply grateful for this contribution of gratuitous service.

The matron, Mrs. Edith J. Moore, was on March 1, 1927, granted a leave of absence. We hope that she is enjoying a good rest from her labors and that she will return shortly to and with a renewed interest in the Home which she has played an important part in establishing on its present high plane. In the meantime the work is being efficiently carried on by our assistant matron, Miss Colburn.

The directors feel that their records of the year of the accomplishment of the Home would be incomplete without an expression of deep appreciation of the services rendered by those who live in and create and maintain the spirit of happiness and contentment that is dominant in a real home.

The responsibility of the directors is purely executive, that of the matron and assistants is administrative; and that office in a home made up entirely of the aged calls for wisdom, sympathy and devotion even to the point of self-sacrifice beyond that which mere money can pay for. The directors feel deeply, and are sure that they express the gratitude of all members of the corporation as well as that of the members of the Home, to Mrs. Edith J. Moore, the matron, Miss M. H. Colburn, the assistant matron; and to Miss Jeannette Haggert, the nurse, and Mrs. Stella G. Morey, the cook, for their untiring efforts to make our Home as nearly ideal, in every sense of the word, the choicest in the English language, as it is possible.

For the Directors,
Preston Pond, President
G. R. Ferguson, Secretary

REGENT THEATRE ARLINGTON

Hitting the bulleseye of entertainment satisfaction, giving the people a dandy show every time they attend is placing the Regent Theatre, Arlington in the first division of theatres.

For Monday and Tuesday of next week, Mr. Coriaty, the new proprietor and owner offers a carefully selected program headed by David Belasco's wonderful stage play, "The Auctioneer" featuring George Sidney. The added feature will be "Man Bait," featuring Marie Prevost, a sizzling screen comedy. On Tuesday only a big special presentation will appear on the stage in addition to the regular picture program.

On Wednesday and Thursday, the famous character star of the screen Lon Chaney will appear in his sensational picture, "The Trap." The other feature will be "Bachelor's Baby," a laughter first, so be prepared for a long, hearty laugh. On Thursday evening the big novel surprise will happen on the stage.

On Friday and Saturday one of the greatest bills ever shown in any theatre. The main attraction will be, "The Fourth Commandment." Belle Bennett and the screen's greatest little mother, Mary Carr, appear in the featured parts, a straight to the heart story, a wonderful child's picture and one that will make the grown-ups sit back and think. The added attraction will be none other than Hoot Gibson, the great outdoor star in his latest action photoplay, "The Silent Rider." The extra added feature "Melting Millions" with Arlene Ray and Walter Miller in their sensational melodrama. The get-acquainted ticket is given free to all who attend on Wednesday, giving you a free ticket for Monday night.

Tonight, Friday $10 will be given away to the person giving the best answer as to what they would do if they had a million dollars. Write it and leave it at the Box Office.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS

Mrs. Lora G. Bond was in Winchester this week spending a few days with her mother, Mrs. A. V. Graves.

Mme. Gladys Fogg Benedict, last week, gave a most delightful song recital at the Memorial Parish House at Concord, N. H., the affair being in honor of the Concord Musical Club. Mrs. E. Maud Ferguson, of Bristol, N. H., who was a member of the House of Representatives at the last session of the legislature, assisted Mme. Benedict with the program. Many very flattering comments were published of the recital, especially of Mme. Benedict's singing. She was accompanied by her husband at the piano. For many years she made her home in this town, being the daughter of Mr. and the late Mrs. George O. Fogg. Her musical success is all the more remarkable through the marvelous work of memory revealed, as the sweet singer walks in perpetual darkness, and all her songs must be learned through the eyes of others, she having been blind since birth.

Mr. and Mrs. Seth B. Cole of Portland, Me., were guests over the past week-end of Mrs. Cole's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Richardson of Cambridge street.

Dr. William H. Gilpatric of this town was re-elected secretary of the Massachusetts State Dental Society at the 63d meeting and convention held at the Hotel Statler this week.

THE RUN OF THE GHOST TRAIN EXTENDED

Owing to the enormous business and because hundreds of playgoers were unable to obtain seats for "The Ghost Train" at the Copley Theatre, Boston, E. E. Clive announces that this thrilling mystery comedy will continue for the coming week, and as a consequence of this extension the production of "No. 17" has been postponed.

The coming week will mark the 20th week of "The Ghost Train," a record for the season and one that is likely to stand for some time. The demand for seats for this spirited play has never been so great as now and it seems quite safe to predict that capacity audiences will rule throughout the nine performances scheduled for the week.

Several new faces will be seen in the company in Gaby Fay, an English beauty, David Clyde and Margaret Mullen, each of whom has been assigned to important roles, while the remainder of the cast will include the same players that have contributed such excellent work during the long run of this sensational success.

The usual Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday matinees will be given.

SOMERVILLE THEATRE

The Somerville Theatre will present next week one of the brightest, cheeriest and snappiest musical comedies on the American stage, featuring Ray Mae, with a chorus of dancing loveliness, glorifying the charm and peace of youth.

Beginning next Monday evening, May 9, Mr Viano of the Somerville Theatre will present the cyclonic musical farce, "Six Little Taylors" with Ray Mae, the most imitated comedian in the musical comedy field, ably assisted by such nationally known stage illuminaries as Russell Howard, a Cambridge boy considered the greatest hall room modern dancer developed in Great Boston in the past decade, Mr. Howard's sweet little wife, Kitty Tobin—and Lillian Green, Marie Rosselle, the Grant Twins, the Whirlwind Bolins, Thomas DeLay, Grayton Drake, Florence Pippin and a Sparkling, Vivacious Ensemble of Beautiful girls.

WINCHESTER SALE

Through the office of Walter Channing, Caroline H. Dow conveyed the property at 6 Lawson road to the Misses Alice and Minnie Belle Joy of Washington street, Winchester. The Town of Winchester has recently voted to take the Joy property for the expansion of its public library and town buildings. The Lawson road property is a large, pleasant home of nine rooms, two baths, on high sunny location and convenient to the centre, yet in a quiet spot with many shade trees and flower garden. After some alterations the Misses Joy will occupy permanently.

Odd Pillar Formation the Work of Nature

Columns of pillars of various mineral matters, sometimes of great size, have been found by geologists. They are said to have been formed by unequal weathering.

Similar ice pillars are sometimes seen on the surface of a glacier, due to the protection of the ice from melting under the heat of the sun by the shadow cast by the rock mass.

There are rain-made columns containing many large stones near Antelope park in a small tributary of the Rio Grande. The stones protect the portion beneath them from the rain. When the waters descended, the walls being made first, they formed the columns shown. Some of the columns are 60 or 80 feet high, and some 100 feet high.

In certain districts sandstones have been split and left in fragments, resembling huge single stones that so closely cover the surface that in many places one can leap from stone to stone without descending to the ground. These stones are frequently of considerable size, many of them being from 20 to 25 feet across and 12 feet in thickness.

Stones of this character have been employed for the formation of the so-called druidical circles, and are therefore called the druid stones. Sometimes stones of this character, from their resemblance at a distance to a flock of sheep, are called gray wethers.

Highest Quality in Proper Self-Esteem

Humility is not always a grace, and sometimes is a close approach to hypocrisy. Lord Bacon was right when he warned public speakers to avoid excuses and professions of humility. "Though they seem to proceed of modesty, yet are they but bravery," he said.

There are people who seek to lash themselves into virtuous living by reminding themselves that they are poor worms of the dust. It is not always the best way. It was not the way Nehemiah held himself true to his principles.

There was a time of danger, and the leading men of Jerusalem were holding terrified counsel behind closed doors. "Let us meet together in the house of God, and let us shut the doors of the temple," they counseled. But Nehemiah would not heed their warning, though he was the man whom danger threatened most. "Should such a man as I flee?" he demanded. "And who is there that, being as I am, would go into the temple to save his life? I will not go in."

He was ashamed to disgrace as good a man as he knew himself to be!—Youth's Companion.

WINCHESTER GIRL WINS WELLESLEY SCHOLARSHIP

Miss Dorothy Brown of Winchester, a freshman at Wellesley College, has been awarded the Presser Foundation Scholarship in Music at that institution. Miss Brown prepared for college at the Winchester High School and was the ranking scholar and Valedictorian of the graduating class a year ago. She was playing manager of the high school girls' tennis team and, continuing her interest in sports, is stroking the freshman crew at Wellesley this spring. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice F. Brown of Rangeley.

M. C. W. G. NOTES

The local branch held a joint initiation and installation on Wednesday evening in K. of C. Hall.

The degree staff from our local Guild had charge of the reception and initiation. Monitor Susan Quigley as Chairman of this staff carried out the exercises with all the dignity and charm which the occasion demanded.

Following the reception of new members, District Deputy Rose Meehan of Newton Branch presided as Installing Officer assisted by Mrs. Alice Naviens of Waltham while the officers for the ensuing year accepted their several offices.

Visitors included State Regent Alice Hall of Watertown; Vice State Regent Marcella McKinnon of Watertown and State Director Elizabeth Blake of Woburn as well as members from other Guilds throughout the diocese.

Sister Mary Carroll was Chairman of the reception committee to which much praise is due for the delicious collation planned to be last, but by no means least, on the evening's program.

Next Sunday, May 15, is Guild Sunday at the Working Boys' Home. Members and their friends are all welcome on this occasion.

WATERFIELD LODGE, No. 231, I. O. O. F.

There will be a First Degree in the lodge rooms, Monday evening, May 16, put on by Harmony Lodge of Medford. Come and bring a brother.

THE LEAGUE OF WOMEN VOTERS

The annual meeting of the Winchester League of Women Voters was held at the home of Mrs. Ernest Dudley Chase, Wednesday, May 11 at 2.30 o'clock. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President, Mrs. A. Beatrice Thompson.
Vice President, Mrs. Roy W. Wilson.
Vice President, Mrs. John L. Lobingier.
Treasurer, Mrs. Ernest Dudley Chase.
Recording Secretary, Mrs. Alice P. Bodman.
Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. Joseph T. Low.
Directors—Mrs. Theodore A. Dissel, Miss Karen Ekman, Mrs. Nickels B. Huston, Mrs. Louise W. Hunt, Mrs. Milton J. Quinn.

Mrs. Emma Fall Schofield, Assistant District Attorney for Suffolk County, spoke of the "Need of a Uniform Marriage and Divorce Law." There are as many varying standards as there are states in the Union. Boys and girls may marry in some states at the age of 12, in others at 14, in others at 16. A few states set no age limit. The law of one state makes a child legitimate, the law of another state makes him illegitimate. A legal standard of one state will constitute bigamy in another state.

Busy Divorce Courts effect on an average 50 divorces a day and millions of children are being deprived of their right to a happy childhood because of the ease of obtaining divorces in many states. If something is not done the family life of the nation will be decimated. During the last 20 years efforts have been made to secure uniform laws in the states without success. There can be but one alternative, a Federal marriage and divorce law if the American stock is to be protected and improved as it should be.

Mrs. Lois B. Rantoul contrasted the day when clothes were made either in the home or at the village dressmakers' where sanitary conditions were not questioned, with the present when clothes are bought ready made and investigation has proved that they may have been produced under most unhygienic circumstances. She demonstrated the value of the "Pro Sanis" Label which if demanded by customers in the garments they purchase will guarantee that they have been manufactured under sanitary conditions.

The meeting was well attended, informative and instructive. The social hour which followed was enjoyed by all and the hospitality of Mrs. Chase was much appreciated.

CHURCH OF THE EPIPHANY SERVICE LEAGUE

The last activity for the working year will be the luncheon-bridge party next Tuesday at the Parish House Hall. All members of the League are invited and guest tickets may be obtained from Mrs. Charles Kelley, Oxford street or Mrs. Kenneth Young Central street, Chairmen for the afternoon.

The work meetings are over and much has been accomplished since the completion of the Parish House extension. At the annual meeting, two weks ago, all reports showed decided gain during the past five years when the women's work was re-organized and the outlook for the future is a bright one, with many avenues for increasing growth and service.

President, The Rector.
1st Vice President, Mrs. George Lord.
2nd Vice President, Mrs. Eugene [illegible].
Treasurer, Mrs. Dunbar Carpenter.

EMBLEM CLUB AFFAIRS

At a meeting of the Entertainment Committee held at the home of Mrs. Albert Horn, 45 Vine street, last Tuesday evening, Chairman Annie M. Hanlon outlined her program for the year's social events. Rehearsals for the degree staff will commence at the first meeting in June.

A musical comedy, under the direction of Mrs. Frances Sullivan, will be staged early in the fall and the events leading up to it will be a number of home socials, the first of which will be held at President Emily A. Scholl's house, 51 Vine street, on Wednesday evening, May 18. Members and their friends are cordially invited.

The home social to be given by Mrs. Bernice F. Gorman will be for the benefit of the degree staff.

The next regular meeting will be held Wednesday evening, May 25, in Lyceum Hall. President Emily A. Scholl announces an initiation for waiting candidates at this session. Members having candidates in view should bring in their papers at this time in order to be ready for the June initiation, which will be the last one held before the summer vacation.

WINCHESTER WON FROM ARLINGTON

An effective batting punch behind the sterling pitching of "Archa" Amico and "Lefty" Hatch gave Winchester its first baseball victory of the season on Manchester Field Wednesday afternoon when it defeated Arlington High in a Mystic Valley League contest, 7—2.

There was nothing flukey about the locals' win, Coach Mansfield's boys being on top all the way. The team was on its collective toes from the start and refused to toss in the usual bad inning which has been losing ball games all spring.

The victory was doubly gratifying, not alone because Arlington and Winchester have long been keen rivals but also becaus it came as a reward for the splendid spirit which the local squad has manifest in the face of a most unsuccessful season.

Winchester broke away to a 2 run lead in the first. After Smith had fanned, Franklin punched out a single and went to second on McNeil's one-shot to left. Hilliard and Sumner got Halwartz but Franklin and McNeil advanced on the out, and both scored on Amico's single. Murphy went out, McNamara unassisted.

A base on balls to Doherty, a stolen base and Cobb's long sacrifice fly to Baisley scored another run in the second while successive singles by Halwartz and Amico sandwiched with some effective base running by the former accounted for one in the 3rd.

Two more came over in the sixth. McNeil was safe when Morine lost his hoist in right and he at once stole second. Halwartz rapped to Simonds whose throw to get "Livin" at third was wide, allowing the runner to tally. Halwartz made second on the play and held up on Amico's fly to Donahue. "Ray" made third on a passed ball and was "squeezed" in on Murphy's sacrifice bunt to Sumner. Hatch who had replaced Amico on the rubber singled to left but Ambrose hoisted to McNamara for the final out.

Cobb drew a pass to start the 7th, but was out stealing, Anderson to Hilliard. Smith reached first when McNamara lost his hopper and advanced to 3rd on singles by Taylor and McNeil. On Halwartz's rap to Hilliard, McNeil was forced at second but Smith scored on the play. Amico rolled to Sumner.

Arlington got a cheap run in the third. Morine got a life when McNeil lost his roller and he went to second unmolested. Halwartz threw out Hilliard and Morine seing third uncovered started for the hot corner. Cobb's throw got away from McNeil and the runner scored. McNamara fanned to end the frame, Baisley, first up, having hoisted to Murphy.

The visitors scored a real one in the 8th. Hatch made one too good for McNamara and to show his appreciation the latter slapped the apple for a long triple to the bandstand. There was one away at the time and "Lefty" fanned Donahue but Sumner singled to left, scoring McNamara. McArthur fanned for the final out.

Both Hatch and Amico pitched great ball for Winchester, the former fanning seven men in four frames while allowing four hits. "Archa" allowed only three hits in five frames while fanning five and should not have been scored upon. Neither hurler walked a man.

Hilliard, Arlington's second sacker, was easily the fielding star of the matinee, accepting 11 chances without the semblance of a slipup. His catches off Franklin and McNeil in the 3rd were nothing short of highway robbery. Cobb, Winchester's southpaw first sacker contributed a couple of circus catches to the fielding features of the game while "Livin" McNeil continued his effective hitting. The game had to be halted for about a half-hour because of rain.

JUNIOR SERVICE LEAGUE DANCE

WINCHESTER EXCEEDS ITS RED CROSS QUOTA

Winchester never fails the American Red Cross. Last Friday the local Chapter, its quota for Mississippi flood relief doubled to $3000, announced over $2000 already raised and urged the necessity for further contributions to complete the amount. By Saturday night the full $3000 had been received. Thus Winchester responds. The Winchester Chapter, regretting the impracticability of thanking contributors personally, here extends its appreciative and heartfelt thanks to all who so generously contributed with such quick sympathy.

Our full quota has now been forwarded to Washington. Nevertheless, contributions are still in order, for headquarters reckoning $10,000,000, the obsolute minimum needed for flood relief, urges all chapters to exceed their quotas if possible. With storms now striking across the already stricken Mississippi Valley, need still increases. If you have not yet contributed, your opportunity to help is still open. Send your money, please, to Mr. William E. Priest, Winchester Savings Bank, Mt. Vernon street.

Can you picture what conditions would be in the Mississippi Valley today without the American Red Cross? In so widespread a calamity, only such an organization, efficient through training and experience, could steady the people against panic and despair. It is caring for the tremendous total of over 323,000 persons, this including not only those actually gathered in refugee camps established by Red Cross, but those who are sheltered and cared for in public buildings, and others marooned in second stories of flooded homes.

"Never in its history," says Henry M. Baker, National Red Cross Director of Disaster Relief, "has the American Red Cross been called upon to care for the needs of such an army of refugees in any one catastrophe. With every indication that other thousands will be added to this homeless army, it must be perfectly clear to the people of our nation that the $10,000,000 relief fund asked for by the President of the United States and the Red Cross must be considered the absolute minimum needed to meet this record emergency situation."

The Red Cross now has 61 relief offices in operation. There are 826 power boats, each flying the Red Cross flag with its crimson emblem, plying the flood waters to rescue the marooned and keep the food supplies moving. Twenty-seven airplanes are on daily duty, sweeping over the entire flood area to watch for danger points, to do rescue work, and to carry supplies to points that are isolated and where the need is too great to wait the slower progress of boats.

Thirty radio stations are in operation maintaining continuous communication between points in the flooded territory and the general relief headquarters in Memphis where Director Baker is located. Most of the radio stations are located on boats.

Forty Red Cross physicians and 78 Red Cross nurses are on duty. A total of 95,000 persons have been given typhoid immunization, 85,000 have been immunized against small pox, and 120,000 have been given quinine doses in the preventive campaign against malaria—a total of 300,000 who have been given treatment in the health campaign inaugurated by Dr. William R. Redden, Medical Adviser of the Red Cross and the national and state health officers and members of the American Medical Association.

All this work of rescue, relief, and prevention you are accomplishing through the American Red Cross. It is your agent, and it appreciates your confidence and support.

WINCHESTER TO MEET WAKEFIELD SATURDAY

Wakefield High School, conqueror of the fast stepping Woburn High outfit, will be the attraction on Saturday afternoon at Manchester Field. This will be a Mystic Valley League engagement and Coach Mansfield's boys are out to win their second game in a row at the expense of the visitors. "Lefty" Hatch is going to start on the rubber and from the way the tall southpaw pitched against Woburn and Arlington, Wakefield will be very fortunate to collect many bingles.

The game will start at 3:15 and a part of the new stands will be available for the fans. The School Authorities art asking everyone to co-operate in the care of these much needed seats and report promptly to the police any breakage which they may witness.

TO PRESENT OPERETTA TONIGHT

Indications are that there will be a large attendance at the operetta, "Miss Caruthers Returns," which is to be presented this evening at 8 o'clock in the Wyman School auditorium by the Winchester High School Girls' Glee Club under the direction of Miss Marion D. Knightly, school supervisor of music. There is to be a large cast and chorus. Miss Marion Bailey of the high school faculty is dramatic coach of the production. The accompanist is Miss Elizabeth Clark.

WINCHESTER MAN KILLED AT MEDFORD

Joseph Duran Struck by Fellow Townsman's Car

The unknown man who died as a result of being struck by an automobile on the Mystic Valley Parkway in Medford Tuesday night was identified Wednesday afternoon by Sergt. William Rogers of the Winchester Police as Joseph Duran of 11 Middlesex street, Winchester.

By a strange freak of fate the machine which knocked Mr. Duran down was owned and driven by a neighbor, Harris W. Parker, 23, of 723 Main street. The accident occurred while Mr. Duran was crossing the Parkway at Main street near the Craddock Bridge in Medford. The victim was taken in an automobile by John O'Brien and James Gillis, both of Medford, to the Lawrence Memorial Hospital where he died without regaining consciousness.

The body was removed to Gaffney's undertaking rooms on High street in Medford where for some time it remained unidentified. Meanwhile Parker was arrested by the Metropolitan Police on a technical charge of manslaughter. He was released in bail of $1000.

Mr. Duran was born in Ireland 60 years ago but came to this country as a young man. For more than 30 years he had made his home in Winchester and had been a member of the Town's street department for 25 years.

A wife, Mrs. Ellen Duran, survives him with three daughters, Mrs. Frederick Callahan and Mrs. George Sargent, both of Woburn, Mrs. Edward Mahoney of Billerica and one son, Joseph Duran, Jr. of Winchester.

Funeral services will be held from the late residence Saturday morning with a requiem high mass in St. Mary's Church.

OBSERVED 102nd BIRTHDAY

Winchester's oldest resident, Miss Anne Dodd, observed on Thursday, May 12, the 102nd anniversary of her birth at her home on Mystic avenue.

A flood of letters and cards occupied Miss Dodd during the day, several callers also being personally received. Among the latter was little Miss Patricia Dunn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund L. Dunn of Maxwell road who in observing her fourth birthday shared the day's festivitity with her elderly friend. A beautiful bouquet of cut flowers was received, the gift of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church of which Miss Dodd is the oldest living member.

In the evening an informal birthday party was enjoyed, several neighbors whose birthday it was jointly with Miss Dodd being present. A handsome birthday cake, made by Mrs. Walter B. Stewart and decorated by Mrs. Margaret C. Cummings was particularly admired. Dainty refreshments were served.

Miss Dodd, according to the town records, was born in England in 1825. Last summer, however, a birth record discovered by relatives at Prince Edward's Island, placed her birth a year earlier, making her 103. At all events she is among the oldest residents of New England and Winchester is justly proud of her. The Star offers its congratulations upon the passing of another milestone.

SPECIAL SESSION ON PROPOSED ZONING CHANGE

The Board of Selectmen held a special meeting Wednesday evening at the Town Hall with the Planning Board, the Finance Committee and the newly created Committee on Town Waterways.

The meeting was primarily called to discuss whether a special Town Meeting should be called to amend the present zoning by-laws so as to extend the business center of the town to include the former Prince School lot. The sentiment was advanced that the lot could be disposed of to much greater advantage should such an amendment be made. After considerable discussion it was decided, 14 to 3, that such a special Town Meeting should not be called.

Members of the Waterways Committee spoke of several projects which they are getting in hand but did not feel it necessary to call for a special Town Meeting to discuss them as yet.

BOWDOIN SQUARE THEATRE

The management at the popular Bowdoin Square Theatre has arranged another good program which will be offered for the week beginning Monday. The big feature will be the United Artists' production, "The Night of Love" with Ronald Colman and Vilma Banky in the outstanding roles. The story is based on the old feudal law and it is a most amazing story, a theme well handled by capable artists. The hero is robbed of his bride and he seeks revenge on another's bride. Around this is written a story of genuine worth. Another picture of merit will be "The Show," with John Gilbert and Renee Adoree as the leading stars. Lionel Barrymore, too, has an important role. It tells a story of the strange figures of the side show and their connection with the underworld behind the scenes. A lurid tale of a rogue and a girl whose love was sincere. Al St. John will be viewed in the comedy, "High Sea Blues" and the Pathe News and five selected acts will make up the program. Bargain vaudeville is offered Friday night. Concert Sunday at 3. The free parking service for autoists is a treat for out-of-town patrons. Returns of the Sharkey-Maloney contest Thursday evening at the Bowdoin Theatre.

FLORENCE CRITTENTON BRIDGE PARTY

The annual bridge party of the Florence Crittenton League held in the Town Hall on May 6 was a great success due to the efforts of Mrs. F. C. Alexander and her efficient committee. There were 82 tables sold, the proceeds of which will go towards the bazaar which the Winchester Circle aids in the Fall. The general color scheme and decorations were yellow.

Those assisting Mrs. Alexander were Mrs. Geo. W. Apsey, President; Mrs. W. H. Balcke, in charge of tickets, assisted by Mrs. Florence Scales; Mrs. Bowen Tufts, in charge of tables; Mrs. Geo. Goddu, in charge of prizes; Mrs. E. C. Grant in charge of refreshments, assisted by Mrs. Thos. Green, Mrs. Walter Wadsworth and Mrs. Vincent Farnsworth; Mrs. Carl J. Sittinger in charge of press notices; and Mrs. Sylvester Taylor. Mrs. Harold F. Meyer had charge of the candy table which netted considerable profit for the affair. Those assisting her were Mrs. Morris Kerr, Mrs. Chandler Symmes, Mrs. Ralph Ackerman and Mrs. Guy Howe. The young ladies who helped sell the candy and serve refreshments were the Misses Amy Merrill, Helen Bottger, Mary Agnes Holbrook, Jean Merrill, Elizabeth Kennedy, Laura Buff, Dorothy Aseltine and Helen Moran.

An appeal for Red Cross contributions was made as the Winchester quota has been doubled, and over $19 was collected.

FINAL MEETING, HIGH SCHOOL PARENT-TEACHER ASSO.

WHITTEN—SARGENT

Miss Josephine Sargent, daughter of Mrs. Jane Sargent of Pond street and Frank Whitten of Chester, Vt., were united in marriage on Sunday evening, May 8, at St. Mary's Rectory by the Rev. Fr. John Sullivan.

The bride was attended by Miss Mary Humphrey of Woburn, as bridesmaid. William Boudreau of this town was groomsman. Following the ceremony a reception was held for relatives and a few intimate friends of the couple at the home of the bride's mother on Pond street. A dainty collation was served.

The bride is well known in Winchester and has been employed as forewoman at the H. L. Hildreth Company, Boston. Mr. Whitten has been associated with the lumber business in Vermont and plans to open a branch establishment in Boston. Mr. and Mrs. Whitten are to make their home at 32 Pond street.

BROODER HOUSE DESTROYED BY FIRE

At about 3:45 Tuesday morning while officer John Hogan was patrolling his beat at the Highlands he discovered a fire in the hen house at the home of Mr. H. P. Nielson, 9 Holton street.

His alarm from Box 34 brought the fire department to the scene but the small frame building had gotten too great a start to be saved. Mr. Nielson was using the building as a brooder house for raising chickens and it is thought that some defect in the heater may have caused the trouble.

Mrs. W. A. Mitchell and her mother, Mrs. A. F. Tait, have reopened their Winchester home at 8 Cambridge street after spending the past six months in Los Angeles, Cal.

HOWARD D. NASH

Howard D. Nash, a Boston attorney who had for more than 40 years been a resident of Winchester, died Monday, May 9, of heart disease at his home on Wildwood street.

Mr. Nash was 75 years of age and a native of Addison, Me. He was graduated from Dean Academy and from Tufts College in 1877, later receiving his degree in law from Boston University. After taking up his residence in Winchester he became active in town affairs. In 1894 he served as Road Commissioner; from 1899 until 1908 he was a member of the Appropriations Committee (now the Finance Committee) and in 1909 was Town Moderator. He was one of the incorporators of the Winchester Co-operative Bank, serving as a member of the Board of Directors and as vice president until 1901 when he was elected president, a position which he filled until his death. Under his administration the local institution grew from a small bank, handling a limited amount of money to one now dealing with $2,000,000. Aside from his interest in the Co-operative Bank he was director in and attorney for a number of corporations. His Boston offices were at 18 Tremont street. Some years ago he served as president of the Calumet Club.

Mr. Nash was a widower and is survived by a daughter, Miss Dorothy Nash and by one son, Curtis W. Nash, associate judge of the District Court at Woburn.

Funeral services were held on Wednesday afternoon from the late residence and were conducted by the Rev. George Hale Reed, pastor of the Unitarian Church. The Middlesex Bar Association was represented at the services by Charles N. Harris, Judge of Probate; Jesse W. Morton, Judge of Woburn Court; Ralph E. Joslin and Addison R. Pike. John Challis, Walter E. Chamberlin, George A. Fernald, Charles A. Gleason, Franklin W. Hunt and Samuel S. Symmes were bearers. Interment was in Wildwood Cemetery.

ALICE KIMBALL MILLS

Alice Kimball Mills, wife of Rev. Carleton P. Mills, passed away Saturday morning, May 7, at her home on Lagrange street after a long illness. She was 65 years old.

Mrs. Mills was the daughter of Benjamin F. and Harriet (Dyer) Wilson. She was born in Boston and received her education in the schools of that city. From 1906 until 1920 she had made her home in Winchester, returning to resume her residence here last fall.

She was married in 1896 to Rev. Carleton P. Mills, an Episcopal clergyman, who survives her with two daughters, Mrs. Margaret Mills Badger of Paris, France, and Mrs. Dorothy Mills Roberts who was living in Nanking, China, until forced to flee to Shanghai. A sister, Mrs Albert G. Morse of Jamaica Plain, also survives her.

Funeral services were held on Tuesday afternoon in the Church of the Epiphany and were conducted by Rt. Rev. William Lawrence, Bishop of the Diocese of Massachusetts, Rev. James T. Addison and Rev. Norman B. Nash, both of the Episcopal Theological School at Cambridge assisted with the service. There was choral music by members of the vested choir of the church. Rev. John W. Suter, Rev. George A. Strong, Rev. Ernest J. Dennen, Rev. Robert B. Parker, Rev. George F. Smythe, Rt. Rev. Frank T. Touret, Rev. Edward E. Drown and Rev. Warren C. Herrick were honorary pallbearers. The bearers were Alfred S. Higgins, John S. Higgins, Dr. Winsor M. Tyler, William D. Sullivan, Herbert H. Albee, Erastus B. Badger, Francis S. Dane and J. Roe Webster. The remains were taken to Mt. Auburn for cremation and later were interred at South Williamstown.

UNUSUAL ACCIDENT AT CONVERSE BRIDGE

A rather unusual auto accident took place at Converse bridge on Main street at 10.50 o'clock Monday forenoon. The accident occurred when Miss Ethel E. Jewett of 89 Mystic Valley Parkway, in attempting to prevent a passenger from falling from her Chrysler roadster, lost control of the machine which swerved and struck a Chevrolet coach which was parked on the east side of the bridge on Main street, facing the square.

The Chevrolet, which is owned by H. W. Godfrey of 18 Everell road, had been left on Main street by Mrs. Marion B. Godfrey. Miss Jewett was leaving the plant of the Winchester Laundries and was driving out of Converse place onto Main street. The door of her roadster had not been securely fastened and as the machine turned left into Main street it suddenly came open, causing Katherine J. McCormack who was riding with Miss Jewett to lose her balance and lunge outward. In preventing her fall to the street the driver momentarily lost control of the car which swerved sharply across the street into the Godfrey machine. Both automobiles were somewhat damaged, but no one was injured.

WINCHESTER JUNIORS LOST

Winchester Juniors were defeated in a Bay State Junior Soccer League game last Sunday afternoon at Quincy, losing to the Fore River Juniors in a nip and tuck battle, 5—4. Fifteen minutes from time Winchester was leading 4—1, and the game looked like a local victory. At this point, however, Fore River launched an offensive which the Winchester men could not stop, scoring 4 goals in succession to win the game.

The score:

Score, Fore River Juniors 5, Winchester Juniors 4. Goals, Bell, Allison, Leith, McGeer, Heggie, Shalline 2, Ronson, Dahlson. Referee, G. Haworth, Dorchester. Linesmen, J. Brown, Quincy, J. Eklund, Winchester. Time, two [illegible] periods.

Mrs. Manlino G. Moffett of Watson place has been visiting in Providence the past week with Mrs. Moffett's mother.

WINCHESTER GIRLS LOST TO SARGENT

The Sargent School girls' tennis team was hard pressed to win from the Winchester High School girls' team on the Palmer street courts Tuesday afternoon, the score being 2 matches to 1. Under the Sargent arrangement of tournament play there were only two matches in singles and one doubles match.

Louise Packer of Winchester won the number one singles from Katherine Sitterly, Sargent, in a hotly contested match and Winchester's Virginia Merrill gave Harriet Van Burgen of Sargent a stiff argument before she yielded in the second singles engagement. Cecile de Coriolis and Mary Louise Carpenter of Winchester ran the doubles to three sets before they were taken by Hortense Day and Margaret Hammett of the visiting team.

It is unfortunate that due to a misunderstanding Bara Baugher, regular number two player on the high school team, was not available to play against Sargent. She had been led to believe that the match was not to be played and could not be found at starting time. With Bara in there the team would have been much stronger, though Virginia Merrill put up a splendid game against her older and more experienced opponent.

The locals' showing against players of college grade was most encouraging to their coach, Miss Priscilla Wheeler, and augurs well for the success of the team against opponents in its own class.

The summary:

Louise Packer (W) defeated Katherine Sitterly (S), 6-1, 8-10, 7-5; Harriet Van Burgen (S) defeated Virginia Merrill (W), 4-6, 6-1, 6-3; Hortense Day and Margaret Hammett (S) defeated Cecile de Coriolis and Mary Louise Carpenter (W), 3-6, 6-0, 7-5.

"ASK DAD, HE KNOWS"

Musical Comedy at Somerville Theatre

Featuring Russell Howard and Kitty Tobin, well known Cambridge dancing stars. After playing all season on the Keith Vaudeville Circuit Bob Ott's musical comedy stock comedy featuring Ray Mar opened a two-weeks' engagement at the Somerville Theatre last Monday evening.

The company arrived with an excellent reputation and to say that it lived up to all the good things said of it is putting it mildly. The entire company proved to be pleasing entertainers, the musical score exquisitely melodious. Ray Mar with his breezy rapid fire comedy is a fun maker with a style all his own. He has played in some of the biggest New York musical successes including the "Greenwich Village Follies" and "Listen Lester." From the minute he stepped onto the stage, he had his audience in gales of laughter. Russell Howard who is the personification of "pep" and his partner, the petite and vivacious Kitty Tobin, both of whom are from Cambridge, received wild ovations of applause with their singing and tempertuous dancing. They are considered the greatest ballroom modern dancers developed in Greater Boston during the past decade.

The work of Florence Pippin, the Whirlwind Bolins, Messrs. DeLax and Drake was of an outstanding nature.

A sparkling, irridescent ensemble of beautiful girls comprised a peppy and scintilating chorus of dancing loveliness that glorified the charm and grace of youth, adding much to the company.

Next Monday night Ray Mar and his company will be seen in the cyclonic musical farce, "Ask Dad, He Knows" with an entire change of scenery, costumes and musical numbers. Somerville Theatre-goers are in for a treat.

SCHOOL DEPARTMENT NOTES

The elementary schools will close on Thursday, June 16. High School graduation will take place Tuesday evening, June 14. The High School will close officially for the Freshmen, Sophomores and Juniors on Tuesday, June 21.

The amount of money deposited by school children in the School Savings division is nearly $30,000 with a very high percentage of the pupils banking each week. The record is not only commendable from the point of view of a large amount saved in a very few years, but the very high percentage of pupils habitually banking is especially noteworthy.

The annual exhibition and sale of handwork done by the special classes of Winchester will be held on June 3 and 4 in the Assembly Hall of the Lincoln School. The articles represent one year's work of the classes.

There will be demonstrations of caning, weaving and woodworking on Friday afternoon at 3 p. m. and on Saturday evening at 7.30 p. m.

CLUB NIGHT AT FINAL MEETING, WADLEIGH P. T. A.

The final meeting of the year of the Wadleigh School Parent-Teacher Association, which has been set for the evening of Thursday, May 19, in the high school gymnasium has been designated as "Club Night" in that the entire program will be furnished by the several student organizations of the school. Among those groups which will take part are the Boys' and Girls' Glee Clubs, the Orchestra, Red Cross Chapter, and the French, English and Latin Clubs. These so-called "Club Nights" have been very popular in the past and a good attendance is expected. A cordial invitation to attend is extended those parents of sixth grade pupils who will enter the Wadleigh next year. By so doing, a good understanding of many of the school's more important extra-curricular activities can be obtained. The meeting will begin at 7.30 o'clock.

A six pound eel, one of the largest seen in this district for many years, was caught Tuesday evening in the waters of Wedge Pond by "Al" Doucette and "Roy" Nowell. The big squirmer gave the two fishermen a stiff fight before he was finally landed.

REGENT THEATRE

The Regent Theatre, Arlington, presents for their week-end show with performances today and tomorrow, Belle Bennett in the big super picture, The 4th Commandment," also Hoot Gibson in the story of the great out-doors, "The Silent Rider." The ever interesting, "Melting Millions," continued feature story, with Allen Ray and Walter Miller. Also the special attraction for the children on the stage, a "Girls' ice cream contest." All girls can enter the contest and three prizes will be given to the winners.

On Monday and Tuesday, May 16 and 17, Virginia Valli and Lou Tellegen in "Stage Madness" will be shown and on the same program, "Ship of Souls" featuring Bert Lytell and Lillian Rich. "Ship of Souls" is a story written by the famous author who wrote the never-to-be-forgotten "Covered Wagon." A comedy and news weekly completes the bill.

On Wednesday and Thursday, May 18 and 19, Mr. Coriaty offers his patrons a picture that will be the talk of everyone, "Michael Strogoff," a spectacular melodrama from the pen of Jules Verne, and a cast of 6000. Words fail to describe this wonder production. The added picture attraction will be Viola Dana in her latest, "Homestruck."

On Friday and Saturday, May 20 and 21, Fred Thomson and his horse with the human brain, Silver King, in the screen production that has been officially endorsed by the Boy Scouts of America and named, "A Regular Scout." The special added attraction will be "Race Wild," a story of the turf and was photographed in the Kentucky hills. "Melting Millions," the screens continued story and the big contest staged for the Boy Scouts and all boys. Three big capital prizes will be given by the Regent Shoe Store and will comprise a pair of Boys Athletic shoes a Babe Ruth baseball bat and a baseball will go to the winners.

FLORENCE CRITTENTON LEAGUE MEETING

The next meeting of the Florence Crittenton League will be held on Thursday, May 19, at the home of Mrs. Bowen Tufts, 7 Stratford road, 2.30 p. m. This will be the annual meeting at which time the new officers will be appointed. The speaker for the afternoon will be Miss Frances G. Mayer, the Executive Secretary of the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children. She will speak about the work in the Little Wanderers Home and will probably show pictures illustrating this talk.

Charles M. Vanner of this town has been elected to membership on the Tree Committe at Worcester Academy.

DAILY PHILOSOPHY

Tomorrow never comes, yesterday is not worth bothering with, but today is of great importance.

If a man does not make new acquaintances as he advances through life, he will soon find himself left alone.

It is necessary to economize in order to appreciate liberality.

Quiet deeds are more productive than loud prayers.

A sad feature of the death of the junior high school boy at West Medford's grade crossing last week was the safety talk given the day previous at his school.

When the first news of the agitation to create separate heads for our Engineering and Street Departments leaked out, the Star gave its opinion that the Town could go farther and fare worse than under the existing circumstances. It felt that our streets were very well cared for in view of the expenditure made, and that the hinted separation would immediately call for more money. The separation now having been made, it is interesting to note the increased cost over a year ago. We are now paying $3640 more! It may be that we shall receive better service—we undoubtedly will receive as good—but it remains to be seen whether the increased cost con'inues to stand at $3640.

UNIVERSITY THEATRE

Next week starts in with Marie Prevost in "Getting Gertie's Garter" and Patsy Ruth Miller in "What Every Girl Should Know." "Getting Gertie's Garter" is in the same class with that screamingly funny screen farce, "Up in Mabel's Room." It is produced under the [illegible] and Marie Pre[illegible] y best in the role of [illegible] ory is all about a [illegible] ys what he believes [illegible] for his fiancee but which proves to be a garter. The engagement is broken and all seems to be over between them. In the succeeding events there is much comedy and fast action and the bracelet, or garter, plays a very important part in the development of the plot.

The accompanying feature of the first four days beginning Sunday is "What Every Girl Should Know." Patsy Ruth Miller plays the lead and she makes a charming working girl who wins her way to the front as the tennis champion.

For the last three days of the week, the pictures are "No Control" and "Held by the Law." When you are told that the same Harrison Ford and Phyllis Haver who played in "The Nervous Wreck" are featured in "No Control" you know what to expect. Whether the control which he didn't have, referred to the girl, the raging lion, the dancing horse or the radio you will have to find out for yourself. Be prepared to laugh. The other feature picture is "Held by the Law" with Johnnie Walker, Marguerite de la Motte and Ralph Lewis.

C. D. OF A. NOTES

At the last regular meeting plans were completed for the social which the court will conduct at its regular meeting on Friday evening, May 20, in Lyceum Hall. This month's social will take the form of a Poverty Party with prizes for the most unique costumes.

Mrs. Annie Hanlon will have charge of the affair with a competent committee on hand to assist. The entertainment will be in charge of Past Grand Regents Elizabeth C. McDonald and Frances T. Conlon and Organist Mabel M. Coty. This social will be open to the public of both sexes.

A large attendance of members was noted at our annual communion on Sunday at St. Mary's Church at the 8 o'clock mass.

The Memorial baskets for the graves of our deceased sisters will be in charge of Mrs. Harry E. Brown this year as they have been in the past.

Mrs. Mollie Maguire will be the soloist on Monday evening at the Stoneham Catholic Women's Club. She will be assisted by Miss Bernice Connell.

Mrs. Maria McCauley will entertain the members and their friends tonight at her home on Elm street. A fine social may be anticipated as Mrs. McCauley is a delightful hostess.

THE FORTNIGHTLY NOTES

The last regular meeting for this season was held Monday afternoon at 2:30 in the Town Hall.

The club was given a musical treat by Mr. Joshua Phippen and is greatly indebted to his generosity. He presented a very interesting program of piano selections. The first group consisted of:

Etude	Schuloff
Shepherd's Dance	Godard
Minuet	Boccherini

(Transcribed by Joseffy)

The second group was a suite of four pieces composed by Mr. Phippen himself. It consisted of:

Bacarolle
Canzonet
Pastoral
Bolero

Mr. Phippen's finished technique was very marked throughout the entire program. The "Etude" showed his delicate touch in the runs that characterized this selection. "The Shepherd's Dance" was a descriptive piece expressing the free abandon of the shepherds in their dancing. The artist's ability as a composer was shown in the second group as well as in his encore which was a left-hand study, "Isolee" by Ravina, which he had rearranged. He very generously played a second encore, the "Sextet from Lucia" which he had transcribed.

The speaker of the afternoon was Miss Edith Margaret Smaill of the faculty of Wellesley College. Her subject was "The Habitant of Old Quebec" and included a recital of the poems of Dr. William Henry Drummond.

When Miss Smaill appeared on the platform, she won her audience at once by her striking and charming personality. She prefaced her recital by an informal talk on the habitant of Quebec. The first settlers of the province arrived under the leadership of Champlain, as he is generally known, in 1608. By 1680 there were about 10,000 people, all pure French. At present the population of the province is about equally divided between English and French although the city of Quebec is two-thirds Feench. People often say that the pure French language is not spoken in Canada. The truth is that the people speak the same French that their ancestors brought with them and of course that differs from the modern French of France.

The farmes class took for themselves the name "habitant" meaning "independent." The old-time habitant wore homespun clothes, a sort of high Indian moccasin, a wide sash of gay color, and a small pointed cap. His wife worked at the spinning wheel and loom. This type is passing now but can still be found in some remote villages.

Dr. William Henry Drummond has gathered up the spiritual aspects of these people and preserved them for us. He writes in the language the habitant would use in talking to an English-speaking person who was conversant with the French language.

For her first selection Miss Smaill very fittingly chose "De Habitant" which shows the peasant's love for the life on the river farm where his ancestors had lived for generations before him. The farm doesn't net him much money but brings large returns in health and happiness which money can't give. Therefore he says:

> So I'm worrkin' away dere, and happy for stay dere
> On farm by de reever, so long I was leev'

The rest of the program was well-balanced and illustrated the outstanding traits of the habitant. His devoted pride in his family appeared in "De Nice Leetle Canadienne" and "Little Bateese" and his pride of race in "When Albani Sang." "Pelang" showed a quiet pathos quite in contrast with the rollicking fun and humour of "Johnnie Courteau" and the swinging rhythm of Johnnie's First Moose" which described a boy's first moosehunt with his grandfather and ended with the wholesome advice:

> "Don't matter w'at you're chasin',
> Doesn't matter w'at you're facin',
> Only watch de t'ing you're doin',
> If you don't, ba gosh! you're ruin!
> An' steady, Johnnie, steady kip your > head down low."

A pleasant feature of the program was Miss Smaill's singing of a group of folk songs. The first of these, she said, might be called the national song of the French-Canadian and is sung in different kinds of rhythm according to the work the singer is doing, paddling on the river, spinning yarn, chopping wood and so forth.

Miss Smaill's skillful rendering of the difficult dialect and her sympathetic interpretation of the spirit of the poems aroused in her audience something of her own appreciation of the truly admirable qualities of the habitant of Old Quebec.

The Conservation Committee will continue the health walks on Thursday mornings throughout the summer. If Thursday is stormy, the walk will be taken on Friday morning. The program for the rest of this month is as follows:

May 12, meet at new school at head of Kenwin road on Highland avenue at 9.30 and hike to Bear Hill.

May 19, meet at Highland avenue, corner of Lincoln street at 9.30 and circle the Middle Reservoir.

May 26, meet at Highland avenue, corner of Mt. Vernon street and go around South Reservoir and visit old silver mine.

The group will wait for those who come on the car that leaves Arlington at 9 o'clock. Wear comfortable clothes and forget home cares for two hours. For further information telephone Mrs. F. H. Higgins, Win. 0606.

There will be a trip to the Arnold Arboretum May 24. Meet at the Winchester Station at 1 o'clock. Those who have automobiles and are willing to go, please telephone to Mrs. Higgins.

Bat's Peculiar Cry

The bat's cry is perhaps the shrillest sound that human ears can appreciate. Most people over forty lose the power of hearing this creature's cry, for it is too high-pitched for any but the keenest hearing.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS

A number of Winchester ladies have been spending the week at Marshfield. The outing has been held at this season for a number of years, the ladies being the guests of Mrs. W. Allan Wilde. They will be joined for the week-end by their husbands. Included in the party are Mrs. W. Allan Wilde, Mrs. Loring P. Gleason, Mrs. Marshall K. Berry, Mrs. Harold Smith, Mrs. Chesley R. Whitten, Mrs. Dwight B. Libby and Mrs. Arthur A. Driscoll.

Mr. Albin Benson of this town sailed Wednesday on the Scandinavian-American liner Frederick VIII from Commonwealth pier for Christiansen, Oslo and Copenhagen. His final destination is Hogannas, Sweden. On the same liner were Mrs. Charles Housen and son, Fred, en route to Malmo, Sweden.

D.. Arthur L. Brown is leaving Saturday for Washington, D. C., on a week's trip. He will attend the joint convention of the American Medical Association and the American Association of Physiothurapy, going as a delegate from the New England Association of Physiothurapy. On Tuesday he will discuss a paper to be given by Dr. Harold D. Cobussier of Plainfield, N. J.

Superintendent Harry T. Dotten of the Water Department had a curiosity yesterday morning taken from the South Reservoir by one of his men in the shape of a pickerel which had choked to death by swallowing a black bass. The pickerel was about three pounds in weight. He attempted to digest a bass which must have weighed over a half pound, and while he got him down all right, he could not dispose of the tail.

The Rotary Club of Winchester held its regular luncheon at the Calumet Club yesterday noon with a large attendance. President George T. Davidson presided and J. Churchill Hindes led the singing with James McGrath of the Woburn Club at the piano. There were several visitors from Woburn. Roscoe G. Wallace of the New England Laundries, a member of the local club, was the speaker, giving an interesting talk on the modern laundry.

Chief David H. DeCourcy has been granted permission by the Board of Selectmen to purchase 200 feet of chemical hose and 800 feet of two and one-half inch cotton hose for the use of the fire department.

HOW WE BOW TO WILLIAM THE CONQUEROR

France and England this year will honor Robert and Arlette when they celebrate the 900th anniversary of the birth to them of a son, William the Conqueror.

Departure of William's fleet from Dives-sur-Mer, Normandy, for England in 1006 will be re-enacted. From Dives the vessels will proceed to Le Havre and up the Seine to Rouen, the old Norman capital, where other ceremonies will take place.

If all the world loves a lover, Robert, Count of Hiesmois, is entitled to much affection this year, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

Springtime In Normandy

It was spring and a rare sunny day in Normandy, apple blossoms scenting the lazy air, when Robert, then in the ardent age of 18, rode up from the hunt to his castle Falaise. As he passed the spring where women of Falaise still wash their clothes he heard a lilting song, so the legend goes, and saw that the singer was beautiful. Robert wooed Arlette, the tanner's daughter. Lochinvar-like he carried her into his castle.

The son born of this romance was William, who molded the British Empire and the English-speaking peoples of the world. William must be compared with some geographic force like the Gulf Stream to gauge the greatness of his deeds.

Although William the Conqueror never in his life went more than 250 miles from home, although the scene of his decisive victory at Hastings, England, lies but 150 miles from his birthplace, Falaise, he diverted the whole course of English life. His 700 open boats that sailed from Dives-sur-Mer with 6000 knights and archers carried as invisible cargo many of the words in this bulletin. Three-fourths of the words in our present English language crossed the Channel in William's train. Of the 83 common words (omitting articles and numbers) in this paragraph 23½ or one-fourth, followed the Norman conquerors into Britain. If William had never crossed the Channel our speech might be a mixture of Scandinavian and German.

Where Our Words Came From

The arithmetic of the foregoing paragraph seems slightly awry. One sentence declares three-fourth of the words in the English language came from France. The next points out that only one-fourth of the words in one typical paragraph have such origin. Both figures are correct. For explanation of the paradox we must look into the Conquest itself.

After William had been crowned in Westminster Cathedral, London, he rewarded his lieutenants with grants of land. Norman French lords ruled the shires and the Anglo-Saxon and Danish peasant farmers. For 300 years the language of the court and the nobles remained French. The common pople contined to speak Anglo-Saxon. But a remarkable thing happened. The two languages merged. Anglo-Saxon supplied terms for simple, everyday acts and things; Norman French coming from Latin and Greek roots, supplied terms for complicated thoughts and for science. When a scientist writes he uses many words from south Europe. But for common speech and plain English we fall back on Anglo-Saxon words from north Europe.

Tourists In William's Country

Americans going to France pass through William the Conqueror's country whether they land at Cherbourg or Le Havre. The Cherbourg boat train to Paris passes through Valognes, where young Duke William, awakened by the court fool, fled from assassins in the dead of night; Bayeux, where the 230 foot tapestry gives a motion picture record of William's conquest in eight colors; Caen where two abbeys built by William and Matilda, his wife, contain their tombs; and Lisieux, whose archbishop wrote the Conqueror's official biography.

The Le Havre-Paris boat train skirts Lillebonne, where William got the assent of his barons and the church prelates to his expedition, passes through Rouen where the Viking pirate Rollo, William's great, great, great, grandfather, set up his capital and where William died, and Mantes, where William, fat and fifty, fell off his horse upon embers at the scene of his last conquest and was mortally injured.

An Abbey and a Book

Two important survivals of William's times in England are the Battle Abbey, which he erected on the hill near Hastings where he gained his famous victory, and the Domesday Book.

In Chancery Lane, London, stands Tudor House and within the house a studded ancient chest. No treasure is more precious to England than the Domesday Book and its chest. William the Conqueror ordered his aides to go through England and write down every lord, every peasant, every acre, every ox, every plow and every pig. Domesday Book comes down to us as the Western World's first thorough census. To England it gives basis for land deeds and, what is more important to Englishmen, it tells the Englishman whether his ancestors came over with the Conquerors. The Domesday Book is to England what the Mayflower Log is to America.

First Horses in America

The first horses were brought to the West Indies and Mexico by the Spanish explorers. The story of the first horse ever brought to America is not known.

Conscience No Guide

No man's conscience can tell him the rights of another man; they must be known by rational investigation or historical inquiry.—Johnson.

Mohammed Used Both Precept and Example

He wore a golden ring until he noticed that all the people were beginning to follow his example, whereupon he went into the pulpit, pulled the ring off with the words: "By the Lord I will not wear this ring ever again." and then prohibited the use of such adornments.

A friend who had sent him a present in the form of a steaming dinner was much chagrined when it was returned uneaten and even untouched by his fingers—for he "used to eat with his thumb and his two forefingers," and "after he had finished eating, he licked his blessed fingers: first the middle one, then the prayer finger, and last the thumb," but he was pacified when the prophet explained that he had not tasted it because onions had been cooked with the food; for Gabriel, he went on to say, strenuously objected to the odor of both onions and garlic. Furthermore, he abstained from tasting lizards, for he feared that they were descended, by some inexplicable metempsychosis, from a certain tribe of Israel.—From "Mohammed," by R. F. Dibble.

Visibility After Storms

The weather bureau says that high visibility occurs on land just before a storm, but the highest visibility occurs just after certain storms. The explanation of increased visibility just before a storm is as follows: One of the things that spoils visibility is the glare in the atmosphere, due to sunlight scattered by dust between the observer and the object in view. Now when the sky becomes clouded, as it does before a storm, the sunshine is cut off and with it the disturbing glare. Immediately after many storms the air is exceptionally free from light-scattering dust—washed out by the rain—and visibility is correspondingly good.

LEGION FAIR

The local Post of the American Legion is planning a wonderful outdoor Fair to be held on the Legion House and Town Hall grounds, Saturday, June 11, afternoon and evening. There will be carnival features, decorated booths, full brass band, and many interesting features of interest to young and old.

It is already planned to have a Baby Show with suitable prizes for best baby and best decorated carriage. This was a very popular event at the Legion Carnival three years ago. Another attraction will be an old fashioned auction sale, with a corps of Winchester Legionaires acting as auctioneers. This will be a Rummage Auction, and the Post will be glad to accept any articles the townspeople may care to donate, and will arrange to call for the articles. Telephone Win. 1390-J or Win. 0927-M anytime or Win. 1270-W, the Legion Home, evenings, if you have anything to give to help out at this auction. Everything accepted from baby's old clothes to automobiles.

One half of the profits of the Legion Fair are to be placed in the permanent Welfare Fund of the Post, the income of the Fund being used for Welfare Work among Legionaires everywhere and Post members in particular.

Watch the Star each week for announcements of other contests and features.

HIGH SCHOOL SENIORS DANCED

Grindle of the high school and Mrs. Grindle, Superintendent of Schools James J. Quinn and Mrs. Quinn, Chairman Robert M. ELKS' AND EMBLEM CLUB ANNIVERSARY NIGHT

Wednesday night, May 11, being the fifth anniversary night of the Elks and the third anniversary of the Emblem Club it was thought best to have a joint celebration. Everyone and his wife turned out and filled Lyceum Hall to the doors and enjoyed one glorious soiree that will go down in the annals of both Clubs as the banner event of their establishment.

The banquet, served by Fitzpatrick Bros., was in line with the usual good provision made by this firm. As Toastmaster, Exalted Ruler, George H. Lochman was at his best, and his humorous manner of evading the usual formalities in introducing the speakers, put a happy, home-like atmosphere into the proceedings. Mrs. Fred H. Scholl, President of the Emblem Club spoke to the Good of her Order, voicing the Club's desire to aid the local Lodge in all its undertakings. Past Grand Exalted Ruler, James R. Nicholson, lauded the ideals of Elkdom, and, seemingly surprised that there were no female agitators among us, complimented our President on her ability "in being able to express so much in so few words." A wonderful tribute was rendered to the important role women played in the World War by Past Exalted Ruler Andrew J. Casey of Newburyport. Past District Deputy, H. Wesley Curtis, remarked the conservative line taken by the local Lodge, with ultimate success in view.

A special feature of the entertainment program was a group of songs by a noted contralto, Mrs. Benjamin Derby, wife of Past Exalted Ruler Derby of Concord. In addition to her "golden" voice Mrs. Derby possesses a charm of manner that is nothing short of inspiring and the applause of an appreciative audience greeted each number. Songs by Mr. Frank R. Larson, tenor soloist of Somerville, were most enthusiastically received also, and encore demanded. Mrs. Anna W. Lochman, Past President of the Emblem Club, accompanied both these artists on the piano. At the close of Mrs. Derby's performance she was presented with an arm bouquet of rose buds by the Emblem Club. The remainder of the entertainment program was furnished by the "Buddy" Shepard troupe, with Mrs. Shepard announcing, and was fully up to his usual high class line of performances.

General dancing followed the entertainment and the alluring jazz and romantic waltz music enticed the young and old to mix and be merry. During intermission a short session was held in the Elks' room by the Emblem Club for the reading of application papers. Plans for the class initiation will be published in the next issue of the Star.

Vanity case souvenirs were presented to each lady attending by the Elks and cigars were given to the men by the Emblem Club.

CASABLANCA, MOROCCO

Casablanca, Morocco, where the Uruguayan flyers found refuge after they were robbed and imprisoned by Moor tribesmen near Cape Juby, is the pride of the French in Africa, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

The Moroccan city was founded by the Portuguese about a decade before Columbus discovered America, but the newcomers held it only a short time when the natives routed them and set up a Moslem stronghold. Casablanca was occupied by the French in 1907 and began improvements that have made the city the show city of Morocco.

As Large As Kansas City

A fortune was spent to improve the harbor, modern houses and buildings were constructed, streets were broadened, and are kept clean, and the hotel accommodations attain European standards, continues the bulletin.

From a city with a population equal to that of Elgin, Illinois, Casablanca has grown by leaps and bounds until it now has nearly as many inhabitants as Kansas City, Missouri. The pedestrian could easily imagine himself in a European city were it not for the Africans of midnight black, chocolate brown and tan complexions. One half the inhabitants are Moslems; slightly more than a third are French, Spanish and Italian, and other Europeans, and the rest are Jews.

A Medley of Life

The price of a room in one of Casablanca's hotels not only affords European comforts but also the equivalent of a ring-side circus seat. An automobile rolls by with a prosperous French business man or a fez-bedecked Turkish merchant; wealthy sheiks stroll along in their flowing white garments and tightly wound turbans holding each others' hands; dignified French officers in medal-bedecked uniforms are ousted from the paths of little grain-laden donkeys with barefoot Moors astride, and now and then, plodding along in awkward fashion, three or four moth-eaten, cud-chewing camels pass by, oft times followed closely by a small future "ship of the desert."

Thickly sprinkled among this seething mass of humanity of various breeds and blends, are the ever-present noisy street hawkers, darting here and there with their home-made rugs, sweet-meats, hammered brass-ware, and "what-nots."

French Questioned Investment

Why France poured a fortune into Casablanca was a mystery to Europe. It had one of the worst natural harbors on the coast. The low, rocky shore lay open to the strong west winds and the lashing waves of the Atlantic. No river runs through the city to the ocean. But the appropriation was partly used for the construction of breakwaters and harbor improvements that have been dominant factors in the city's development to the second largest city in the protectorate. Ocean-going vessels that anchored periously off the coast can enter Casablanca's port today.

Casablanca also has electric lights and power and modern water works. Railroads now connect the city with Morocco, (Marrakesh) the capital of the protectorate and North African points. Daily air service is maintained between Casablanca and Toulouse, France, and planes fly every two weeks to Oran.

The market place, perhaps, impresses one more than any other feature as an illustration of French influence. It is spacious, well ventilated, and nearly odorless. Inspectors are constantly on the watch. The buyer knows that any article exposed for sale has already been examined by experts who are not slow to condemn food that has fallen under suspicion.

Brick, lime and phosphate manufacturing, printing and shipping comprise the major industries of Casablanca while the natives in the surrounding regions are successful farmers and herdsmen.

Chats With YOUR Gas Man

HEROES OF THE INDUSTRY

They don't wear flowing plumes in their hats, nor carry burnished crested shields, nor ride milky steeds with fittings of scarlet and gold, but they're heroes just the same. Many times in the "gas house" there are performed deeds of valor as noble as those of the Knights of King Arthur's Round Table.

Each year at the national convention of the American Gas Association, the heroes of the gas industry are awarded medals of honor for saving lives. These are not the men who sit in the swivel chairs and do the brain work, but those who make the wheels go round, those upon whom the service really depends. One of the men who received this highest honor recently is recognized to have saved the city of Santa Barbara from the disastrous fire that usually follows in the wake of an earthquake. He acted in a great emergency with foresight, judgment, intelligence, at the risk of his own safety. And there were many others whose bravery and good judgment saved the lives of others.

It is fitting that the gas industry so fully dedicated to serve the public should be as concerned with the protection of customers as with their convenience. The readiness with which gas men respond to the call to save a life bespeaks more eloquently than words the spirit of the service.

TIME not WORDS proves a tire's value

EVERY NEW TIRE LOOKS GOOD.

Dunlops not only look good, but they make good—over rocks and gravel, and ruts and sand.

Thirty-nine years of experience has shown Dunlop how to design a tread that gives maximum traction and slow, smooth wear.

You get the full benefit of all this extra tread-mileage because each Dunlop is built with the famous trouble-free cable-twist Dunlop carcass, to provide the high-strength and elasticity so vital to long tire life.

BOWLING DINNER

Prizes Awarded at Mixed Tournament Banquet and Dance

The annual mixed bowling tournament dinner was held at the Calumet Club on Friday evening with a big attendance, practically every member of the 11 teams engaged in the tournament being present. The dinner as usual was donated by the seven leading teams from the foot of the list as designated in the final standing, and the competition over this hase of the affair was very keen, the dividing line being so closely drawn that it was nip and tuck right up to the last minute.

The club hall was most attractively decorated for the affair with streamers of colored crepe. Favors and noise-makers were distributed, together with varied colored hats, and nothing was omitted in providing for the comfort and entertainment of the gathering. Fitzpatrick catered for the banquet in his usual excellent style, and the concert and dance program was furnished hy a group of lady musicians under the direction of Buddy Shepard.

At the close of the banquet, Chairman Al Snow of the bowling committee, after introducing the newly elected president of the club, Mr. Walter J. Brown, invited his fellow committeeman, Wallace Blanchard, to read the summary of the season's bowling, together with the list of prize winners. The prizes were then awarded by Chairman Snow as follows:

Won Roll Off.

Mrs. J. E. Stryker was in line for five of the six individual prizes awarded the ladies, but being allowed but one individual prize, holders of the next following records received the honors. In the case of the high two string total, three ladies were tied for third postion, and as Mrs. Wolfe, in second place, received the flat average prize, and as Mrs. Kelley, in the tie, received the high single, Mrs. Dickson and Mrs. Cove were left to roll the tie off. This was done after the dinner program before a large and enthusiastic gathering, Mrs. Dickson winning by just one pin.

At the conclusion of the banquet, the gathering adjourned to the billiard room, where Vice-President Ernest Dudley Chase entertained for a half hour with some very interesting moving pictures of the bowling at the club which took place Feb. 22, together with equally interesting movies of the children's party.

General dancing, cards and games were enjoyed until a late hour, and the evening was unquestionably the most successful terminus of the bowling experienced at the club in years.

WOBURN 6—WINCHESTER 1

Winchester lost the first of its 1927 baseball games with its old rival. Woburn High School last Saturday afternoon, being defeated 6—1, in a Mystic Valley League tilt on Library Field, Woburn.

The game was close and interesting for five frames, the locals showing up to that time their best all around game to date.

Winchester was leading at its half of the fifth inning and with Hatch going along nicely it really looked like any one's ball game. Doherty fanned to start the frame but Murphy was hit by Weafer and stole second. Hatch rolled to Dunnigan unassisted sending Murphy to third from where he counted on Smith's one-shot to right. Burns threw out Cobb.

The Orange and Black salted away the battle in the same stanza. After Donahue had fanned, Weafer drew a pass and was safe at second when McNeil mussed up Burns' hopper, the batter also reaching first safely. Fields, Woburn's dusky shortfielder, smote a lusty triple to left, scoring Weafer and Burns. Keating rapped to Hatch who got Burns at the plate, the batter making second Costello hit to Halwartz whose wild peg allowed him to reach second, Keating scoring. Carey's double scored Costello, but McNeil took Dunnigan's hoist to end the inning.

Woburn counted again in the 7th. Burns, first up, fanned but Fields singled to left and went down to second unmolested. On Keating's rap to Smith, Fields was caught at third, "Smitty" to Halwartz. Keating stole second and scored on a passed ball. On an over-throw of second Costello, who had reached first on a missed third strike, attempted to make third and was out, Amico to Halwartz.

The final run of the matinee was made by Woburn in the 8th. Carey reached second when Doherty lost his fly in left. He went to third on a passed ball and scored when McNeil bobbled on Dunnigan's hopper. The latter was out stealing, Taylor to Smith, and Daley met a similar fate after reaching first on McNeil's second error of the frame. Smith threw out Donahue, but Hatch dusted off Weafer. On Burns' rap to Smith, Weafer was forced at second, Smith to McNeil.

Winchester went out in order in its half of the ninth. "Archa" Amico lined to center, Taylor popped to Burns and the diminutive Woburn second sacker also tossed out McNeil.

Three safe hits and eight errors just about tells the story of Winchester's defeat which should not by any means be laid to the pitching of Hatch. Woburn, admittedly a hard-hitting ball club, was able to find the latter's shoots for but four safeties and the tanning city lads were loud in "Lefty's" praises.

It looks like Coach Mansfield will have to shake up his club somewhat in an effort to obtain more batting strength. No team is going to get very far on the hitting which Winchester has shown to date. It isn't expected that high school boys will hit safely a majority of their times at bat, but the fans have a right to figure a player to bust one out of the infield at least occasionally. Coach Mansfield took a step in the right direction when he put big Amico in the outfield, though why Callahan was removed in place of Doherty is a puzzler. The latter is woefully weak with the stick while "Bobby," though getting away to a poor start thus far this season, is a good hatter. As we have said before Coach Mansfield is away up against it for capable performers and is striving his hardest to make the best of a tough situation. The boys have improved in their last two starts and may get somewhere yet. If they could dig up a batting punch to go with the pitching they are reasonably sure to get, they would win a good many games.

CROSSING WATCHMAN GOES

Electric Switches Supplant Man in Centre

The State department of public utilities granted the petition of the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway Company Friday for the removal of the railroad crossing watchman in the centre. The department has approved the installation of automatic electric switches at the cross-over, thus removing the need of a switchtender, and with the two gatemen maintained by the railroad and the traffic officer stationed in the centre by the Town, it deems this dangerous place securely guarded.

AN APPRECIATION

Winchester takes rightful pride in the achievements of Miss Elinor Barta, director of the Barta Camp at Casco, Me. Educated in the Winchester schools and later returning to them as an experienced teacher her success with children has always been notable. Her cheery ways and responsiveness have only been equalled by her wise direction of children's activities and by their acceptance of her as a leader. With the great development of summer camps which has occurred during the past 15 years it is only natural that she should step into the fore of this movement and should become known as one of the most capable of camp directors in the country.

This year finds her erecting her own new camp on a sunny hillside near Casco, the main hall being almost completed and small bungalows continually surprising the surrounding pine trees by springing up almost over night. Besides, there is great excitement among the pine trees because they know a good deal about summer styles in camps and are certain they have never seen such model bungalows before!

Although the buildings may be new the Barta Camp is celebrating its second birthday for it was born last year in a different, though nearby, leased location. Now, having had this situation approved by parents and girls, it is settling down by its own fireside and building its own permanent home.

The buildings consist of a main bungalow, 15 sleeping bungalows, infirmary, councilor's house, cook house, ice house and wood shed combined, pump house and stable. There are canoes, row hoats, tennis courts and all other equipment for land and water sports.

The councilor staff is practically the same force which was so popular and efficient last year. Many of the campers themselves are returning but the new buildings will accommodate 10 more girls than last year, and applications are rapidly being received.

Anticipation plays as important a role in camp life as on any other stage and the girls who have made application early are getting two distinct "thrills"—the thrill of planning for their summer experience and the thrill of the actual participation in anticipated joys.

Anxious parents can leave all fear behind when children enter here for adequate superivision of all camp pastimes is the director's "hobby." It seems as if a girl couldn't have an accident even if she wanted to! Miss Barta's 16 years of experience in many camps, ranging from councilor to director, have given her a fund of knowledge of girls and their ways. Moreover,—let us whisper it so the girls will not hear,—she succeeds in making them do what they ought to do while believing they are doing what they want to do!

If adequate supervision is Miss Barta's hobby it might be said that cooperation is her watch word. She makes of a summer camp a miniature world and of each camper a citizen of that miniature universe,—a citizen who can bear her own burdens and share those of others, in other words, —can co-operate.

Children who have heen fondly watched over by inches, and hy devoted elders, often develop into responsible individuals in the twinkling of an eye, while astonished parents and sisters and cousins, not to mention aunts — like myself — sing halleluias for co-operation plus supervision and sign on the dotted line of the next year's application blanks.

Why
Firestone
GUM-DIPPED TIRES
Wear Longer
WE recently were given the tremendous advantage of having the mammoth Firestone factories brought to us. In Tire Educational Meetings we were shown, by means of motion pictures, charts, tire samples and complete engineering data, the details of Firestone tire design and construction—and how Firestone and Oldfield tires and tubes are made in the world's most efficient and economical rubber factories.
Firestone pioneered the original low-pressure tire and made it practical by Gum-Dipping. The motion pictures showed us how the cords of the carcass are dipped in a rubber solution, thoroughly saturating and insulating every fiber of every cord with rubber. Simple demonstrations and tests illustrated the great advantage of this process, which supplies the extra strength to withstand the extra flexing strains of low-pressure construction—one of the reasons why Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires are establishing such unheard-of mileage records.

We learned why the Firestone Balloon Tread gives extra safety, comfort and long wear. We were shown why Firestone, from the very beginning, designed and continue to use the round Balloon Tread, minimizing "shoulder breaks", so destructive to tires. Excess rubber at the edges of a Balloon Tread is wasted—actually detrimental to tire mileage. In the Firestone Tread the small units and sharp projections are scientifically placed to permit easy flexing, resulting in extraordinary riding comfort.
Come in and let us put a set of these Gum-Dipped Tires on your car—you can forget about tire trouble. Quality is higher than ever before—prices are lowest in history. Buy now!

BEETHOVEN'S DEATH MASK AND THE NEANDERTHAL SKULL

March 26, 1927 saw the opening of the Beethoven music festival held in many countries in honor of the master composer. During a severe thunderstorm on that day, Ludwig van Beethoven died.

While the centennial ceremony is on, Bonn, a Rhine town 15 miles above Cologne, will be a center of world interest, because Bonn is the birthplace of Beethoven. At Bonn is the Beethoven House, rich in mementos of the composer's tragic life.

All in Your Point of View

The two most significant things in Bonn are described by Melville Chater in a communication to the National Geographic Society.

For a day my companion and I wandered about the quaint streets of near-by Bonn, in and out of its famous university, and along its Rhine esplanade. We separated for awhile, and when we met again my friend announced:

There's only one important thing in Bonn. A musical student just now told me so. He said not to bother about the museum, but to see Beethoven's death mask.

Yes, I countered, according to an anthropologist I met in the university, there is only one important thing. He said not to bother about Beethoven's death mask, but to see the Neanderthal skull in the museum.

So we saw both.

The mask is enshrined in the little house where, in a mere garret whose door lintel is so low that one must stoop to enter, the great composer was born in 1770.

Tragedy of Ear Trumpets

Among the adjacent Beethoviana you may see the tragic progression of ear trumpets, each one larger than the preceding, whereby the master sought in vain to circumvent deafness; the many manuscripts, including that of the "Moonlight Sonata," written in hastily jotted notes and headed by the direction, "With feeling," written in emotionally tremulous handwriting.

And there is the death mask—a face as noble as its brow is broad, a face stamped with human kindliness, sad to the depths yet serene to the heights—an epitome of man's mental struggle upward.

Twenty minutes away, across the town, in a museum case environed by an exhibit of stone hatchets and spearheads, lay the skull of one of the earliest-known men, he of the Neander Thal, near Dusseldorf. In that big cranial expanse, protruding into heavy ridges at the brows, there is something almost terrifying. One imagines the complement of a semi-gorilla face, with bared teeth tearing at raw meat.

MRS. GEORGE E. PRATT

A host of friends mourn the death, which occurred at the Winchester Hospital early Tuesday morning, of Mrs. Lizzie A. (Webster) Pratt, wife of Mr. George E. Pratt of 15 Wildwood street. She had been in poor health for some time, and last week underwent an operation at the hospital.

Mrs. Pratt enjoyed a wide circle of warm friends, having made her home in Winchester for many years. She was a native of Woburn, being born in that city Sept. 10, 1856, the daughter of Madison S. and Mary L. (Rand) Webster. Following her marriage to Mr. Pratt she came to Winchester, where she had since made her home. She was active in the Unitarian Church and in the work of the Alliance connected with it.

She is survived by her husband, one daughter, Miss Barbara Pratt, and one son, Mr. Kenneth Pratt.

The funeral services, conducted by Rev. George Hale Reed the pastor, were held at the Unitarian Church on Thursday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock, largely attended by many residents of this town and Woburn.

The interment was in Wildwood Cemetery.

AMERICANIZATION FILMS AT THE LINCOLN SCHOOL

On Thursday evening, May 12, a very successful meeting was held under the direction of the Lincoln Chapter of the Mothers' Association in the Lincoln School Auditorium.

Mrs. Thomas MacPartlin, chairman of the Chapter, spoke a few words of welcome to the audience which numbered over 130, most of whom were parents and relatives of the Lincoln School pupils. Following the singing of one verse of "America," two motion picture films, "The Land of Opportunity," and "The Making of America" were shown. These films are loaned by the Massachusetts State Department of Education to be used in Americanization work. During the intermission between films, Miss Grace Hushen, assisted at the piano by Mrs. William Lefavour, sang two songs which were very much enjoyed as shown by the applause. Mrs. Lefavour also played the music during the films.

Through the kindness of Mrs. Harry Sanborn, and a committee of mothers from the Central Mothers' Association, ice cream and cake was served. The singing of one verse of "The Star Spangled Banner" brought the meeting to a close.

As the Lincoln School district includes a large percentage of foreign-born parents, many of whom do not speak English, the Mothers' Chapter has done a splendid piece of work for Americanization in presenting these films to such a large audience.

JUNIOR SERVICE LEAGUE NOTES

Throughout the entire year, the Junior Service League has progressed rapidly until now it has reached an ideal club. Meetings have been well attended and everyone has appreciated them.

The president, Miss C. de Coriolis; vice-president, Miss M. L. Carpenter; secretary, Miss C. Nutter, and treasurer Miss E. Boyd, have accomplished exceedingly good work. Entertainments during the winter were of great fun.

The dance on May 28, promises a great success. Everything looks like a good ending, after a few more meetings and as though we will open in the fall with a bang

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Hartwell who have been registered at the Hotel Sheridan in Boston for several months returned to town the past week and opened their home on Yale street.

WEBER MALE QUARTET

To Sing at Rev. Mr. Braugher's Last Evening Service at the Baptist Church

As next Sunday evening is to be the last evening service that Rev. James Whitcomb Brougher, Jr. will be at the Baptist Church, this spring, before he leaves for the Northern Baptist Convention at Chicago and after that to California, the men of the church are arranging for a big service to mark the event.

They have engaged the Weber Male Quartet who will sing the following numbers:

Jubilate Deo	Shackley
The Rugged Cross
Tell Me the Story of Jesus
Gloria	Buzzie Peccia
Follow Me	Palmer

Rev. Mr. Brougher will preach the sermon and he has chosen for his topic, "A Great Man. But ——." Those who have heard him since he has been here in Winchester will not want to miss this. Those who have not heard him, will want to avail themselves of this last opportunity to hear this brilliant preacher. It is suggested that the women should come and bring the men, but the men can escort the women if they prefer.

CHARLES F. FRENCH DEAD

A telegram received this morning from Grand Rapids, Mich., announces the death, which occurred yesterday, of Mr. Charles F. French. He was widely known in this town, where he made his home for many years. Following the death of his wife he moved to Arlington and later to the West. He was for a time employed on the Highway Department, being engineer of the Town's first road roller. The remains will be accompanied here by his daughter, Mrs. Horace Hazeltine, and will be intered in Wildwood cemetery on Sunday.

MISS HELEN COTTON RECITES AT PERKINS INSTITUTE

At the sociable given for the blind boys at the Perkins Institute in Watertown, on Saturday, May 14, Miss Helen Cotton, age 11, daughter of Mrs. W. D. Cotton of 29 Wildwood street, gave recitations. There were other entertainers, both professional and amateur on the program arranged by the Boston Committee for the Blind, of which Mrs. Robert E. Naumburg, 71 Church street, Winchester, was in charge of entertainment.

It is hoped that any persons willing to assist in future entertainments at the Perkins Institute for the Blind, or who wish to act as readers for the blind outside of the Institute, will communicate with Mrs. Naumburg, phone Winchester 0564-J.

LEGION AND CHAMBER UNITE FOR FLAGS

Winchester Post, American Legion and the Chamber of Commerce have united in a determined effort to have a more general display of the National colors in town on holidays and other occasions calling for the appearance of the Country's flag.

In general the plan is to have wherever possible a flag displayed before business houses and homes throughout the community.

Arrangements are being made for the installation of these flags and both the Legion and Chamber believe that as many as possible should be in place before Memorial Day. This, of course, leaves none too much time and it is urged that those interested in procuring the flags or in learning more fully of the details and cost of installation communicate with Vice President Charles E. Kendall of the Chamber of Commerce at once, preferably by phone.

Mr. Kendall is directing his efforts toward beautifying the town for the coming holidays: Memorial Day, Flag Day, June 17, and Independence Day. No better or more significant way to attain this end can be found than in the appearance in large numbers of our country's flag.

Already much has been done toward beautifying the business section of the town with flags, but there is still room for improvement, while the town as a whole does not make an especially good showing.

Perhaps all that has been needed to improve conditions is a definitely planned campaign such as that which the Legion and Chamber is now sponsoring.

MRS. ROBERT C. WHITTEN

Mrs. Elizabeth B. Whitten of Stoneham, wife of Mr. Robert C. Whitten, a former well known resident of this town, died at the Winchester Hospital on Wednesday following an operation. The funeral services, to which friends are invited, will be held at the residence, 477 Main street, Stoneham, this Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

MAURICE DINNEEN APPOINTED

C., May 24 to 27. At their meeting Monday evening the Selectmen granted Mr. Dinneen permisison to attend the conference. His expenses are donated by the Massachusetts Association.

TWO NEW POLICE OFFICERS APPOINTED

The appointment of two additional police officers by the Selectmen, which has been anticipated for several weeks, was made on Monday night, John F. Dempsey, a member of several years' standing of the State Constabulary, residing at 907 Main street, and Robert J. White of 29 Loring avenue receiving the appointments.

Word has been received of the death on Wednesday night at Welfleet of Jennie M. Freeman, wife of Alvin M. Freeman and formerly for many years a resident of Winchester. Mrs Freeman was a native of Welfleet, but following her marriage came to make her home in Winchester on Mystic avenue where she remained until Mr. Freeman's retirement from active business about five years ago when she returned to Welfleet. She is survived by her husband, by a daughter, Mrs. John Charles Daniels of Detroit, Mich and two sons, Oliver F. Freeman of Providence, R. I., and Dana M. Freeman of Somerville.

JOHN CHALLIS PRESIDENT

Co-operative Bank Elects Officers and Passes Resolutions

A special meeting of the Directors of the Winchester Co-operative Bank was held at the banking rooms on Tuesday night, at which time Mr. John Challis was elected president of the institution to fill the vacancy caused by the death of the late president, Howard D. Nash. At the same time Judge Curtis W. Nash was elected a member of the board of directors and was appointed attorney for the bank.

The following tribute to the late president was passed by the Board:

> "Howard D. Nash passed from this life May 9, 1927. He was one of the applicants for the Charter of this Bank in 1893, was a Director from its start in 1894, Vice President 1898 to 1901 President 1901 to 1927. Through his term as President the Bank grew from one of small deposits, to one of over two million dollars, much of this growth being due to his careful guidance.
>
> He gave to the Bank, unstintedly of his time and ability, his loyalty and devotion to the interests of the Bank made him a force which will be greatly missed.
>
> We, as Directors, mourn the loss of a close associate and dear friend."

WINCHESTER LOST TO BELMONT

After scoring four runs in the first inning and running the visitors 6—3, Winchester High lost to Belmont High on Manchester Field Wednesday afternoon in the fifth and sixth inning 9—6. The local boys started out as though they were going to make easy work of a decisive win, but Belmont's rally quickly turned the tables. Hatch went in for Winchester in the sixth and held the visitors, but the task of making up the necessary three runs to tie proved too much for his team.

Miss Carolyn MacKenzie of Washington street played one of the leading roles in the operetta "H. M. S. Pinafore" given by the Whittier School girls for the Men's Club at Rye Beach, N. H., May 18.

"One thing I wish the Observant Citizen would do for us," the young woman attendant of the Natural History museum said, "is to say something about people letting their dogs run loose on our lawn. They don't think of doing that in the Public Garden around the corner, and they'd probably not do it on their own lawns," she went on, "but somehow they seem to think that our little plot offers them special privileges." The Observant Citizen hereby keeps his promise, hoping that the cannines' owners will read this and govern themselves accordingly.

Members of the Board of Selectmen, under the guidance of Superintendent of Streets Holbrook, viewed the working of a new sand spreader and a catch-basin cleaner this week Messrs. Fallon and Dotten viewed the demonstration.

SCHOOL DEPARTMENT NOTES

The annual exhibition and sale of handwork done by the special classes of Winchester will be held on June 3 and 4 in the Assembly Hall of the Lincoln School. The articles represent one year's work of the classes.

There will be demonstrations of caning, weaving and woodworking on Friday afternoon at 3 p. m., and on Saturday evening at 7:30 p. m.

The Department calls the attention of the parents to the days and hours for the special mental tests given to pupils who are under age. The Department's ruling is that a child to be admitted to the kindergarten must be 5 years of age on or before Jan. 1 following the opening of school in September. A child to be admitted to the first grade must be 6 years of age on or before Jan. 1 following the opening of school in September.

If the parent has a child who is not of age to enter, but who believes that the child is more advanced mentally than his age would indicate, he may arrange with the office of the Superintendent of Schools for an appointment for a special mental examination.

The only days upon which the examinations will be given will be as follows: Sept. 1, 2, 3, 6 and 7. Appointments will be made from the hours of 9 to 12 and 1 to 5. The School Department must insist that the tests be given on these days.

All pupils must be vaccinated before entering school

LEGION FAIR

Plans for the American Legion Post 97 of Winchester, fair and outdoor carnival are progressing rapidly. The date, June 11 will find the grounds of the Town Hall and Legion House transformed into a veritable wonderland for the children and grown-ups too. Colored lights, countless flags, gaily decorated carnival booths and a real performing clown will all help those who come to have a good time.

Already several of the public-spirited local organizations have manifested their desire to help in any way they can to make the fair a success. The baby show is attracting an unusual amount of interest, as is the nail driving contest for ladies.

UNIVERSITY THEATRE

Wallace Beery. Whenever you see this name you get ready to laugh, and whether you are ready or not, you will laugh when you see this irresistable comedian in the famous "Casey at the Bat." The poem of the same name made De Wolfe Hopper famous and the picture bids fair to do the same for Wallace Beery. It appears at the University for four days beginning Sunday. The cast includes, in addition to Wallace Beery, Ford Sterling and Zazu Pitts. The companion feature film is "Arizona Bound" starring Gary Cooper and his white horse, "Flash." The comedy is a Mabel Normand entitled, "Should Men Walk Home."

For the last three days of the week the pictures are "Husband Hunters" with Mae Busch and Walter Hiers, and "The Gay Old Bird" with Louise Fazenda. The comedy is Van Bibber in "The Tennis Wizard."

M. C. W. G. NOTES

Last Sunday was Donation Day at the Working Boys' Home in Newton Highlands, and the day was also Visitors' Day for the various Guilds throughout the State. Due to the stormy weather many members were unable to be present, but those who were able to attend were indeed very much edified at the splendid work which is being carried on at the home and it was also very gratifying to hear the reports of the work which has been accomplished through the financial assistance rendered by the Guilds. To any member or other friends of this worthy charity, the Home, its Superiors and inmates extend a most hearty welcome to call upon them at any time without any formalities.

The first regular business meeting for the coming year will be held in K. of C. Hall Thursday evening, May 26. Members keep this in mind! There is much of importance to come before this meeting.

WHEN TO PROTECT CHILDREN FROM THE COMMON COMMUNICABLE DISEASES

"Every child should be protected against diphtheria before it reaches its first birthday," says Dr. Clarence L. Seamman, Director of the Division of Communicable Diseases of the State Department of Public Health, "as toxin antitoxin is a safe and sure method of prevention and the majority of deaths among small children."

Unfortunately there are no sure methods of controlling whooping cough, chicken pox, mumps and german measles.

There is an antitoxin for scarlet fever that is of unquestionable value when the child has the disease, but it is not recommended as a general preventive measure yet.

In the case of measles, postpone the disease until the age of three or four years, if possible. Protection by means of measles serum has been used successfully, to prevent and modify this disease. It should be given within seven days after the child has been first exposed.

Smallpox is a preventable disease. The best time to vaccinate a child is when he is two years old as he can lie quietly in his bed and not injure his arm in play. The arm will not be so sore at this time. The improved methods of vaccination leave scars so small and superficial that they are rarely unsightly.

It is not necessary for children to "have any of these diseases." Children under five years of age should not be intentionally exposed to any kind of disease, even the common cold. More than 50 per cent of the deaths from diphtheria, measles and whooping cough take place in children who are sick with these diseases before they reach their fifth birthday. Protection is not enough. It must be done at the proper time if the child is to reap the full benefit."

MANY SONG BIRDS IN FELLS

People living near Middlesex Fells have been awakened these past few days, on pleasant mornings, by sweet bird songs. The happy trills and full-throated warblings that have trembled on the air were obviously made by real songsters; such songs as our ordinary Northern birds are incapable of singing.

No wonder people could not understand such songs. Yesterday and today the identity of the singers was discovered. Hundreds of small yellow birds with black-tipped wings and tails were observed in the trees and brush thickets of the Fells. They were identified as yellow warblers and wild canaries, ordinarily Southern birds.

Capt. Edward Woods, Superintendent of the Fells Reservation, said he had noticed large numbers of these birds and was of the opinion they are wild canaries. The only explanation of their presence so far [illegible] is that perhaps they had been driven out of Louisiana and other States of the Mississippi Valley by the floods and had come North. Great numbers of scarlet tanagers, Baltimore orioles, swallows, starlings and crows have been seen in the Fells. The tanagers and orioles are Southern birds and do not usually come North so early in the year.

According to Charles Clarke of Summit road, many of the birds are the yellow warblers of the South. A few days ago large numbers of canaries were reported in New Jersey.

DISPLAY THE FLAG

Campaign Under Way For Showing of Old Glory Here

The Winchester Chamber of Commerce has undertaken, in combination with Winchester Post No. 97, American Legion, to farther the display of the flag of our country in this town, and invites its citizens and residences to see to it that the colors are shown prominently throughout the town on all patriotic occasions.

It is felt by the two organizations that Winchester is lagging behind its neighboring communities in the display of the flag. While a number of the merchants and business houses in the centre have installed the sidewalk flags, so-called, many of the residences fail to display the colors. Stanley Mobbs of the Legion has been appointed to head the committee from that body in this matter, and he announces that sidewalk flags will be installed at $5.75 each upon notification, either to the Legion or the Chamber of Commerce.

Those who do not care to instal sidewalk flags are urged to make provision for others display, especially on June 14, which will be the 150th anniversary of the adoption of our flag, and on which day President Coolidge asks for a special display of the colors.

An automobile accident occurred on Monday between a sedan driven by Mrs. Lillian E. Lockwood of Walnut street and a coal truck of the Parker & Lane Company driven by Antonio Tamuzzi of Irving street. The accident occurred at the corner of Cross and Forest streets and both automobiles were damaged.

The First New England Washday

Three hundred years ago on the shores of Cape Cod a woman, whose housewifely instincts had suffered during a long sea voyage, hastily set up tubs brought from England, and washed the personal linen of one Myles Standish.

Soon that gentleman's illustrious shirt tails were waving in the brisk east wind, as millions of shirt tails have waved since, for thereby, Blue Monday was bequeathed to every New England woman as a hated inheritance.

In many homes Blue Monday is as much an antique as are other relics of those distant years, for modern housewives have found a new New England Way that solves the problem.

Sending us all your laundry, or any of the more difficult parts of it, will put an end to the problems of keeping clean.

DAILY PHILOSOPHY

Now-a-days it is the man who thinks of new ways of doing old things and makes them successful that is in great demand.

There is scarcely anything more impudent than a grin given in place of a smile.

Everything comes to the man who lets the other fellow do the waiting.

Greatness is not a teachable thing but is obtained by sincerity, generosity, a kind heart and an open mind.

If the convicts at Sing Sing have gone on strike for better beans, as is reported, why not move Sing Sing nearer Boston? These poor convicts should be properly taken care of.

The Supreme Court of the United States has handed down an opinion that bootleggers, classed as criminals in society and for the capture and suppression of whom our Government is spending millions, must file income tax returns. Is it any wonder that we have a wave of crime or that some of our "native" citizens are a little pessimistic. Why have the hold-up men been omitted? It is rank injustice!

Registrar of Motor Vehicles Goodwin states that about 75 per cent of the automobile truck brakes are not in proper adjustment, but that it is a difficult matter to secure a court conviction for this neglect. It lays, therefore, with his department consisting of ten men to enforce this factor of safety on our highways. His department should be increased as he asks—and so far as can be ascertained practically every law abiding citizen backs up his request.

IGNORED THE OFFICER

To the Editor of the Star:

Wednesday morning on the Medford section of the Mystic Parkway a motorcycle officer was stopping cars for the traffic survey. Some drivers evidently thought they were being held for overspeeding and ran by the officer while he was getting the departure and destination of others.

If a sign had been made specifying "Traffic Survey" probably more chauffeurs would have stopped and the survey would have been more complete.

Very truly yours,
George A. Barron

Cold and rainy weather of the past month brought another storm to this section late Sunday afternoon, when lightning and thunder were the heaviest thus far. A heavy downpour of rain accompanied the electrical display, although not enough to cause any damage. The lightning is reported to have struck in the hill district, where a telephone pole was hit, and at the home of Harry D. Locke the storm was responsible for extinguishing the electric lights. With the exception of a warm spell in March and a few days of seasonable weather during the middle of April, the spring thus far has been rather a failure, daily rain, with cold and raw east winds, being the regular program.

Mr. F. L. Cox of High street complained to the police Wednesday night of auto petting parties parked in his neighborhood. Although the feminine members of the groups were doing considerable screaming, Mr. Cox stated that he did not consider them in any particular danger, but the noise was quite annoying. Officer Regan restored peace and quiet to the neighborhood.

Another automobile accident occurred on Cambridge street on Wednesday, when cars driven by Patrick Doherty of Holland street and Forest Shea of Forest Hills came together. No injuries were reported.

HOW CHINA'S WAR AFFECTS U. S. "PAINT-UP WEEK"

Many Americans may have wondered recently why the United States maintains a fleet of gunboats at Hankow, 600 miles up the revolution-popping Yangtze River.

Tung oil, a substance vital to the American varnish and oilcloth industries, is one answer. American gunboats have been convoying merchant ships loaded, in part, with tung oil.

When the paint store clerk explains that varnish is up in price because of civil war in China, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society, "do not scoff."

Fine For Children

Tung oil, or Chinese wood oil, has skyrocketed from its normal price of 12 cents per pound to 30 cents per pound. The cost of China's civil war to the American manufacturer and to the consumer on this one item is startling. Manufacturers are paying the increase on imports which total more than 100,000,000 pounds of tung oil annually.

Perhaps you have wondered what the woman in the magazine advertisement who pours boiling hot water from the teakettle onto the dining room table thinks about. She ought to be giving thanks to tung oil trees that the table escapes damage. When Johnny and Mary play "rainy day" in the parlor and the floor shows no ill effects, praise goes to weary oil pressers living in the mountains of Szechwan Province. Oilcloth sheds water better than a duck and varnish brushed on the bedroom floor one evening can be walked on next morning, because of the magic oil in a green nut which grows in southwest China and Florida.

Civil war in China five or ten years hence will not bring such a flurry in tung oil because Florida, Georgia, Mississippi and Louisiana will then be producing. Plant explorers of the Department of Agriculture saw the problem facing the American paint and varnish industry, and 18 years ago introduced the first tung oil tree. If Florida today had 50,000 acres of producing tung oil trees she would be enjoying an extraordinary burst of prosperity, but there are only 3000 acres of trees in all the South. Few farms have trees older than saplings, so civil war in China has played hob with tung oil prices.

Keeps the Junks Afloat

Boats, as any boat owner knows, demand constant attention: calking, painting and refitting, so it is natural that a water-wise people like the Chinese would discover an efficient preservative for boat hulls. Chinese junk float because tung oil seed pulp calks their seams and tung oil soaks their timbers. The strange thing is that the Western World did not appreciate the magic of the Chinese wood oil before 1860. Now it takes a favored place beside such other Chinese contributions as silk and gunpowder. Tung oil shares its field of service as a dryer and waterproofing agent with the more widely used linseed oil.

To find the source of China's wood oil a traveler must journey into the stark mountain valleys of Hunan and Szechwan Provinces. If he expects to find orchards he will be disappointed for tung oil trees, like American hickories, grow where Nature plants them. The Chinese farmer depends on vegetables and grain, not nuts to feed his family. If good fortune blesses him he will own also three or four tung oil trees to supply a pin money crop.

Buyers move through the valleys in the fall, purchasing small stores of tung oil tree nuts. Removal of the green flesh releases the seeds, five in each nut. After being roasted and cleaned, the seeds are ground by patient bullocks turning a stone roller, and the resultant pulp is mixed with straw. Cakes of tung seed pulp the size of Swiss cheese disks are inserted in a hollowed log. A pile driver squeezes 40 per cent of the oil out of the cakes.

Shooting the Yangtze Gorges

Tung oil itself helps to solve the difficulty of getting a liquid to market in a region where wheeled vehicles are useless. The Chinese make a serviceable container out of a bamboo basket lined with 16 thicknesses of paper coated with tung oil varnish. This container is light but it will bear the weight of 120 to 380 opunds of sloshing tung oil. Coolies swing the baskets on poles and carry them down to a river shipping point. Still in baskets, tung oil shoots the Yangtze gorges in junks. A rudder in front as well as in back does not always prevent a junk piling up on a rock and releasing an $8000 cargo to the muddy river. Huge storage tanks for receiving tung oil have been built at Hankow, which is today a revolution storm center.

In the past oil was brought to the United States in white oak barrels. The American demand is now so great that tung oil comes across the Pacific in tank ships at the rate of 12,000,000 gallons per year.

THE SCILLY ISLES, LONDON'S HOTHOUSES

The Scilly Isles, lying about 30 miles off the southwestern tip of England, are the hothouses of London, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

Before London's trees and shrubbery begin to show signs of life in the spring, tons of Scilly lilies, narcissi, tulips and daffodils are for sale in florist shops of the British capital.

The climate on the isles is always temperate, the Gulf Stream never letting the thermometer drop below 46 degrees, although the isles are in the same latitude as the northern tip of Newfoundland.

Old Shipping Hazards

The Scillies form an archipelago of about 200 islands and isolated rocks, all of which lie within an area of 50 square miles. They are the rugged summits of the same granite ridge that forms the backbone of Cornwall on the mainland. Tradition has it that the isles are remnants of a lost territory which sunk beneath the sea. While geologists refuse to be convinced of this, the old fishermen of the Scillies still tell of great buildings seen under the waves on calm days and of bringing up bits of ancient furnishings on their gear.

A theory once held that the Scillies were the "Tin Islands" of Herodotus, but it is now known they were not. The Scillies have no known mineral wealth. They might have been, however, the trading center where the Phoenicians, 3000 years ago, met with the Britains and bartered for tin from the Cornwall mines.

Until the building of the lonely Bishop Light on an outlying rock to the southwest, and placement of numerous other lighthouses and lightships, the Scillies were hazards to shipping between Europe and the west coast of England. Before the flower business enriched the inhabitants, salvaging goods from wrecked ships was an important vocation among some of the islanders.

Five Islands Inhabited

Only five of the islands, St. Mary's, Tresco, St. Martins, St. Agnes, and Bryher, are inhabited. More than half the total population of about 2000 are on St. Mary's, the largest of the group, which is slightly more than four square miles in area. Hugh Town, the capital, a village of about 200 houses, is located there.

Scillians were fisher people until an enterprising islander sent a few flowers to London. The blossoms attracted such attention that the flower business was organized and now several hundred tons of about 200 varieties of flowers are sent to London annually. From December to June practically all the inhabitants are employed in picking, packing, and dispatching flowers which are sent by boat to Penzance, Cornwall, and then by fast train to their ultimate destination.

Once the haven of pirates and ne'er-do-wells, the Scillies now boast of the prosperity of its inhabitants due to their new industry, and assert that poverty has been eliminated.

Tourist Trade Increasing

The boat trip from Penzance to Hugh Town, a distance of 40 miles, was so rough and the Scillies so desolate that tourists formerly seldom wasted time in the neighborhood. Now the balmy climate, beautiful gardens, the boating under expert pilotage for which the islanders are famed, and excellent sea fishing are lures to the increasing tourist trade.

Except for the trees at Fresco Abbey, the residence of the lord proprietor of the isles, the whole area is nearly timberless. All lumber and manufactured products are imported.

Ended Humane War

"The invention of gunpowder," said Hi-Ho, the sage of Chinatown, "put an end to our comparatively humane era, when war consisted largely of wearing false faces and throwing bombs of evil odor.

THE ANNUAL MEETING OF THE WASHINGTON SCHOOL CHAPTER OF THE MOTHERS' ASSOCIATION

The Washington School Chapter of the Mothers' Association held its annual meeting in the school assembly hall on Wednesday, May 11.

The speaker of the afternoon was Mrs. John H. Powers, the subject of her talk being the "Mosquito Problem in Winchester." The mosquito survey which was carried on in Winchester some time ago, Mrs. Powers said, revealed the fact that 10 different kinds of mosquitoes are breeding in town. These are mostly of the ordinary summer pest variety, although the malarial mosquito was found breeding here.

Mosquitoes will breed anywhere where there is still water—in tin cans or water barrels, in stagnant pools or the undisturbed margins of rivers or ponds where the weeds and grasses prevent much agitation of the water. It takes only 10 days at the longest for the development of this active little pest, so that all who would help prevent the propagation of so many mosquitoes must be constantly on the lookout for water where they might breed.

Preventative measures include the filling in of holes where water could stand, the removal of barrels and tin cans, the heavy oiling of places which can not be drained, or the digging of ditches where draining would be effective.

The Metropolitan Park people have expressed themselves as glad to co-operate if any active work of this kind is carried on in Winchester.

Mrs. Powers' talk brought this interesting and timely subject before the minds of many of the women who had not hitherto given this matter much serious consideration, and it is imaginable that many fertile breeding places for mosquitoes will be disturbed and destroyed in consequence.

The annual report of the Chapter's work for the year showed active interest in many lines, and was, in substance, as follows:

"This year, making seven years since the Washington Chapter was organized, has been one of great interest and advancement, and of many changes. The greatest change was, of course, the uniting of the Washington and Highland Chapters in our new school. Then also during the summer months, Mrs. Mayo formed and held meetings with four groups under different chairmen to plan meetings and discuss money-raising plans. These groups have in turn, acted as hospitality and refreshment committees, and have formed a most helpful factor in the smooth running of the organization.

"In November 1926, through the proper authorities in town, Mrs. Draper, from the Middlesex County Extension Service, came three times to the Lincoln School, and gave instruction in furniture renovation. In March she came again for a class in millinery. Members of the Chapter who were interested attended these classes with great satisfaction.

"On October 28, a Hallowe'en food sale was held in the upper hall of the old Washington School, netting a sum of $43.75, which helped materially with our year's budget.

"On November 17, Miss Lillian Shaler of the Middlesex County Extension Service gave a demonstration lecture on 'The Making of Dark Bread,' in the Lincoln School sending home all who attended, enthusiastic to try the recipes given.

"On the opening day for the new school, after the Christmas vacation, some of the mothers who live very near the school provided a lunch for the teachers, leaving it prepared in the teachers' room just before noon. The teachers expressed great appreciation, especially as several of them were returning from a distance from their vacations.

"The Chapter has provided magazines for the various school rooms, and milk and crackers for underweight children who otherwise would be unprovided. After coming to the new school two additional magazines were provided for the two extra rooms. The members of the Highland Chapter have very kindly subscribed a sum to the treasury to cover the amount needed for these two subscriptions.

"At different times during the year, we have had interesting speakers, including Miss Pratt, Mr. Quinn and Mr. Greenwood.

"Music and refreshments have formed an enjoyable part of all our regular meetings and we feel a deep sense of appreciation to all the various friends who have lent their talents and services.

"A subject of great interest to every member of the Chapter has been 'Safety.' Much time for the discussion of this matter has been given, and finally a committee was appointed to convey to the town authorities our ideas and convictions with regard to the need for more adequate signs and closer supervision of traffic in the areas seeming most dangerous for the children.

"In addition to these measures, the children themselves are receiving constant reminders in the school and in many homes, to get them to feel the consciousness of the need of safety.

"Thus, looking backward, we see a year full of activity and interest; and so looking forward, we can not but picture a future of greater interests and larger activities, as these formerly two chapters become thoroughly amalgamated into one."

C. D. OF A. NOTES

Tonight the Court will conduct its annual costume party in Lyceum Hall. The affair this year will take the form of a poverty party with some fine prizes for the most unique costumes. Judging by the great success of past costume parties the affair this year, should go over big.

At 8 o'clock there will be a grand march so that the judges may be able to select those who are entitled to the prizes.

Following the march there will be a "rube vaudeville" with the following artists contributing songs, dances and sketches:

Miss Mabel M. Coty, Mrs. Mary McGrath, Mrs. Mollie Maguire, Mrs. Frances T. Conlon, Mrs. Helen Studley, Master Thomas Cassidy and the Misses Mary Murphy, Peggy O'Brien, Constance Titilah, Mary Jaqueline King and Marion McLaughlin.

The vaudeville is in charge of P. G. R. Elizabeth C. McDonald, P. G. R. Frances T. Conlon and Organist Mabel M. Coty.

At the conclusion of the concert refreshments will be served and dancing will be enjoyed until 12 o'clock to the strains of Mr. Michael Reilley's old-time fiddle with Miss Coty at the piano. Virginia reels, Money musk and the Portland fancy will attract both old and young with an occasional fox trot for the ultra modern.

Tickets may be had at the door or from the chairman of the general committee, Mrs. Anna Hanlon, Cutting street.

OLD UPSALA: WHERE PAGAN KINGS RULED SWEDEN

Old Upsala, one time pagan capital of Sweden, recently came into the spotlight, after centuries of slumber, when a Christian church which is more than 800 years old was re-dedicated, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

The church stands on the same site formerly occupied by the famous golden pagan temple of Upsala where worship of the Norse gods, Odin, Thor and Frey, drenched the sacred building with the blood of human sacrifice.

Pagan Rites Practiced

Tradition has it that King Homald was slain at Upsala as a sacrifice to the pagan gods to end a famine, after the people had offered other human beings and an ox without success, continues the bulletin.

King Aun, another early Swedish king was promised additional years of life by the gods if he would offer up his sons. He lived to sacrifice nine, but was stopped by his subjects before he attempted to slay the tenth and last. The old king is said to have died shortly after he failed to comply with the gods' commands.

Visitors to Old Upsala today who are not familiar with its history, would not be apprised of its ancient glory. Except for three huge mounds, the traditional tombs of the three gods, and a natural amphitheater where the ancient assemblies of Sweden were held, few suggestions of the old capital remain.

Ostra Aros, two miles south of the capital on the Fyrisa River, was the royal landing place. Otherwise it was insignificant compared with the royal town. But when the first Christian cathedral was destroyed by fire in the 13th century, the Archbishopric was moved to the port city, and shortly afterward the royal household migrated to Stockholm. Old Upsala was soon deserted when stripped of its royal and religious leadership and Ostra Aros even usurped its name. The old capital later became known as Gamla Upsala.

Modern Upsala Educational Center

Modern Upsala, now a city of nearly 30,000 inhabitants, is about 40 miles north of Stockholm with which it is connected by both water and rail transportation. Its principal industry is education, for Upsala University is the largest state educational institution in Sweden. The University was founded in 1477.

Crowning the highest point in the city is the Upsala Castle founded by King Gustavus Vasa nearly 400 years ago. It was the scene of Queen Christina's abdication.

The castle windows afford a splendid view of the "college town." The Fyrisa, crossed by eight bridges, quietly flows southward toward Lake Malaren. The city is spread out on both banks. The east bank, save for a few houses, and streets that are laid out in checker-board fashion, is the site of numerous University buildings, campuses and gardens. One of the gardens was laid out by Linneaeus, the founder of modern botany, who became a professor at Upsala in 1741. Emanuel Swedenborg, mystic philosopher and founder of the religious sect called the "Swedenborgians" was graduated from the University in 1710.

"Fraternities" Called "Nations"

Wherever seen, Upsala students are distinguished by their white velvet caps. Each of the some 2000 students are obliged to become members of the student unions known as "nations." There are no Greek letter fraternities. Members are chosen by accident of birth for each nation represents one or more Swedish "lans," or provinces. The "nations" have their own houses and conduct their own affairs.

The University library is, perhaps, the most important in the country, containing more than 350,000 printed volumes and 14,000 valuable manuscripts. The chief treasure is the famous Codex Argenteus, a fourth century translation of the four gospels into Moeso-Gothic. The work includes 187 leaves of parchment in gold and silver letters on a red ground. There is also a collection of letters of Luther, Linnaeus, Mozart, and Goethe.

Upsala Cathedral might be properly called "Little Notre Dame," although it is the largest in Sweden. The cathedral is situated in the center of the city, close adjoining the University campus. Here the graduation exercises of the University are held. In its burial vaults lie the remains of some of Sweden's foremost educators, among whom are King Gustavus Vasa, Linnaeus and Swedenborg. One of Notre Dame's architects, Etienne de Bonneuil, drew the plans of the cathedral which accounts for its resemblance to the Paris church. Construction began in 1287 and it was 150 years before the building was completed.

AUSTRALIA BATTLES AMERICAN PRICKLY-PEAR

While the United States and most other modern countries are keeping strict watch, at a cost of many thousands of dollars, to prevent plant diseases and plant pests from entering their territories, Australian government scientists are elated over the discovery of a plant disease which will be carefully introduced into the Commonwealth, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. It is a disease which attacks the prickly-pear, and it has been discovered in the Bermuda Islands after a world-wide search.

Prickly-Pear Is Fearsomely Made

The prickly-pear, which Australians are eager to make sick, is well known to those who have visited the plains in the West and Southwest of the United States, continues the bulletin. It is rather an awe-inspiring plant to the city dweller whose most unpleasantly armored vegetation probably has been a rose bush. The prickly-pear is made up of flat, green segments like stiff, fat, elongated pancakes, set on edge and frowing out of one another. The layman would call them thick leaves, but to the botanist they are flattened stems or segments. They vary from the size of the palm of one's hand to that of a palm-leaf fan.

The prickly-pear might be called the hedge hog of the vegetable world, so fearsomely is it armed. From the edges and faces of each segment protrude sharp thorns about the size of a common pin; and between these are tufts of tiny thorns, finer than the most delicate needle, and little longer than a grain of wheat. These smaller thorns are loosely attached to the segments, and come away at the slightest touch. It is not pleasant for one's leg to brush against a prickly-pear; and it was to guard against these and the thorns of other plants of the semi-arid region that the American cowboy evolved his characteristic "chaps" or leather extra trousers.

Spaniards Introduced Cactus to Europe

In our West and Southwest and in Mexico prickly-pears grow usually in stony ground in rather dry regions. In some sections they grow to a considerable height, but for the most part they are scattered and have not proved exceedingly troublesome to stock growers and farmers. The plant was a curiosity to the Spanish explorers who followed Columbus to the New World. They promptly introduced it into Europe along with the much more desirable potato and tobacco. Soon patches of prickly-pear were growing on the waste lands of Spain and in other Mediterranean countries. In Sicily the cacti are actually of economic value, for their figlike fruits are eaten extensively. The fruits are rarely eaten in the United States but are used to a certain extent in Mexico.

In Europe, as in America, prickly-pears have been confined to waste lands and have not proved troublesome. In Australia, however, these American plants found conditions exactly to their liking, and they have run riot over millions of acres of valuable land, choking it with a veritable jungle of fleshy segments and thorns, which the would-be Australian settler has found it impossible to eradicate. The region in which the prickly-pear flourishes in Australia is the semi-tropical plains country of southern Queensland. A generation or so ago an agricultural experimenter brought in a single plant, carefully packed in cotton, and set it out on a Queensland down. From this single plant, the gray-green curse has today spread over more than 15 million acres of land, an area almost as great as that of the State of West Virginia.

Trial to Motion Picture Producers

Digging up the prickly-pear is out of the question. Any segments left on the ground, promptly take root and form new plants. It is a very practical case of Hydra's heads. A disease that will spread through the mass seems the only hope, and this weapon is believed now to have been found in the Bermuda malady which extends over a plant in hot weather, quickly destroying it by a sort of soft rot. One important fact remains to be investigated. Will the disease attack other and perhaps valuable plants? Australia has had too tragic experiences with off-hand introductions—notably prickly-pears and rabbits—to take any chances.

The fact that America was the original home of the prickly-pear, and most other members of the cactus family, has given a little trouble to motion picture producers who failed to dig into historical botany, and to whom desert is just desert. Many Biblical stories have been filmed in the accessible deserts of southern California. As a result spectators who know their botany have been amused to see the Children of Israel making their way to the Promised Land across sandy wastes studded with various American cacti, or the Holy Family fleeing to Egypt through clumps of prickly-pears. These aggressive American emigrants have now made their ways around the world, but in Biblical days they were as unknown in Syria and the Sinai Peninsula as the Australian Kangaroo or the Polar Bear.

Lake Michigan's Distinction

Early Prohibition Move

Prohibition was first tried in America in 1733, when the trustees of the colony of Georgia attempted to prohibit rum, says an answered question in Liberty.

Two Counties Honored

Virginia is known as the mother of Presidents because eight Presidents of the United States were born within her borders, says the Pathfinder Magazine. Washington, Jefferson, Madison, Monroe, William H. Harrison, Tyler, Taylor and Wilson first saw the light of the day in the Old Dominion. Two counties had the honor of giving birth to four of these distinguished men. Washington and Monroe were born in Westmoreland and Harrison and Tyler, born in the same county. It is an interesting fact that Harrison and Tyler, born in the same county were elected President and vice-president, respectively, at the same time. So it happened that when Harrison died a month after taking oath of office he was succeeded by a man born in the same county.

Chats With YOUR Gas Man

FROM FATHER TO SON

The third generation in the gas industry . . . quite a record for one family, isn't it. A young son recently born into a "gas family" is predestined to follow in the footsteps of his father and grandfather according to them, both prominent in the gas industry.

This attitude on the part of gas men is not uncommon. There are many companies over the country where fathers and sons and even grandsons work together in the service. And that tells a lot about this business of supplying gas to the homes of the nation. It must be a mighty good profession to be worthy of the third son of the name! It explains, too, why the gas industry is noted for its stability and solidity—its members form the very backbone of the country. They are the sort of people who have helped make the nation, as well as the industry, what it is today.

It is not hard to understand how loyalty and the spirit of the service have become traditions in the gas industry, passed down from father to son.

You can't look at a tire and tell how far it will run

YOU CAN'T SEE a tire carcass because it is covered by the tread. Yet the way this carcass is built tells how far the tire will run.

Dunlop has had 39 years to learn all the hidden points where tires wear. Dunlop carcasses are built from the best long fibre cotton, spun in Dunlop's own mills into the famous Dunlop cable-twist cord.

These cords are elastic, so they give and take as your tire runs; strong, so they resist constant load and pounding. They build the best possible foundation for the Dunlop tread—the toughest rubber development known.

Thus Dunlop's extra years of experience build added value into every vital tire-part. That is why, not one Dunlop—but every Dunlop—gives you more service than you can reasonably expect.

WOMAN'S CHRISTIAN TEMPERANCE NOTES

At the luncheon given by the W. C. T. U. on May 27 at 12.30 in the Methodist Church vestry, Dr. Henry H. Crane, pastor of the Methodist Church, Malden and Mrs. Alice G. Ropes, State President of the W. C. T. U. will be the speakers.

William C. Hollister, President of the Employing Law Printers of United States and Canada tells in the following article how prohibition has benefited the printing industry:

Until the outbreak of the war and immediately thereafter, it frequently happened that 20 per cent of printing house employees in the great industrial centers were absent from their employment the morning after Sundays and holidays. Today and for the past several years, it is unusual for us to have three per cent of our employees absent; and many employers in all lines report every man and woman in place with unfailing regularity. Not long ago, standing in the government printing office in Washington, the largest establishment of its kind in the world, public printer George D. Carter said to me, "Hollister, before prohibition this institution was surrounded by gin mills large and small; we had difficulty all the time with liquor drinking among certain classes of our employees. The prohibition law put them all out of business and now, look at those automobiles belonging to employees of the government printing office." There are literally hundreds of cars, many of them of fairly expensive make, Mr. Carter said. Before prohibition only a mere handful of our employees owned their cars. And while printing house employees have been buying homes and cars, since they stopped spending their wages over the saloon bar, these workers have not neglected to open savings accounts and to add their deposits reguarly. When the prohibition law went into effect on Jan. 16, 1920, the total deposits in the savings banks of Chicago, amounted to $350,000,000. Seven years later these same banks had on deposit $742,000,000, an increase of exactly 112 per cent. Will any sane man or woman claim, if beer and wine were restored, that the next seven years will show, for Chicago workers alone, an increase in their savings deposits of nearly a half-billion dollars.

To sum up the case for the people, why modify a law that has been of such vast benefit to humanity.

WADLEIGH SCHOOL TENNIS

The 6th annual tennis championship of the Wadleigh School opened on Saturday, the girls' singles being completed and won by Mabel Tompkins after a hard fought battle with Carolyn Nichols over a large field. The boys' singles went to Roger Pettingell, who won the finals from Richard Riley. There yet remains to be played the boys' doubles, girls' doubles, mixed doubles and consolation single.

The tennis this year has been more popular than ever, thanks to the initiative and painstaking work of William S. Packer, who has spared no effort to promote the sport among the boys and girls. There was an exceptionally large entry among the Wadleigh girls, many of whom are expert players.

The top feature for the week beginning Monday, May 23 will be the Metro-Goldwyn offering, "The Demi Bride" with captivating Norma Shearer in one of the biggest roles of her career. In the cast will be found that talented star, Lew Cody. The story is one of real value and tells of a girl who fell in love with the greatest heartbreaker in Paris and won him. Another picture will bring to view, charming Olive Borden in, "The Monkey Talks" which was the sensational novelty stage hit in all the large cities both in this country and abroad. Raymond Hitchcock and Jane Winton are also in the cast. It is a William Fox offering and a mystery drama of intense interest. ADVERTISING THAT LIVES LONGER

When you lock the doors of your store tonight, will your business remain at a standstill until you reopen tomorrow morning?

Your salesmen go home for a night's rest. You try to forget your business cares for a few hours. But there is no reason why you should not be storing up sales for tomorrow.

An advertisement in the weekly newspaper will cause hundreds of people to think of your store tonight, will prevent your business from being forgotten while the doors are locked. People who are reading advertisements tonight will make purchases tomorrow. Night doesn't bring stagnancy in the store whose owner advertises in the weekly newspaper.

You can't send salesmen to local homes at night. They wouldn't be welcomed. But you can have an efficient personal representative in local homes every night in the year. An advertisement in the weekly newspaper goes into homes you and your salesmen have never visited. It works for you while you and your salesmen are asleep.

Locked doors need not mean suspended activity on your part. The weekly newspaper will find customers for you while your store is dark. People read the weekly newspaper at night as well as in daylight. Let the weekly newspaper prevent people from forgetting you at night.

Advertising in the weekly newspaper LIVES LONGER—therefore it is the most profitable form of newspaper advertising.

The STAR is a WEEKLY NEWSPAPER.

GRANADA ATTRACTIONS

The beautiful Granada Theatre in Malden continues to draw big crowds despite the approach of summer weather. People who have visited this theatre realize that no where else do they get such show value for their money. In addition to the pick of pictures and vaudeville the Granada offers daily a symphony orchestra, under the direction of Chester Mason, and also Roy Frazee in special organ novelties.

"The Fourth Commandment," a picture that stands out like a beacon against a season that is noted for great screen attractions, will be shown at the Granada today and Saturday. It gets away from the tinsel and froth and presents a slice of life that gets right down under the skin. Belle Bennett and Mary Carr give portrayals of the age-old conflict between mother-in-law and daughter-in-law. It is without question one of the greatest dramatic hits ever released and a picture that is highly entertaining. The vaudeville program for today and Saturday includes Joseph Griffin, the famous Irish-American tenor. Four other acts appear in addition to Mr. Griffin.

"The Yankee Clipper," a thrilling page from the most glorious era of American history, when romance and adventure rose high in the rigging of white-winged greyhounds of the seas, comes to the Granada for three days starting next Monday.

The theme of this picture deals with the historic race between an American and British ship from Foo Chow, China, to Boston. The winning by the American crew established the supremacy of America during the clipper ship period. The love of an American skipper for the daughter of an Englishman, vests the story with its warmth.

There is an abundance of wholesome comedy so that the laughs, sighs and thrills follow one another in rapid succession. The picture was held over for a second week at the new Roxy Theatre in New York, and smashed all attendance records in this house which is the largest theatre in the world.

Next week Thursday, Friday and Saturday, the Granada will present Corinne Griffith in, "Three Hours."

Too Much Care

The human body is good for only about 70 years anyway. Why keep it too much wrapped up in cotton wool? You won't succeed in living forever. If you are healthy use your health even to the point of wearing it out; that's what it is for. As Bernard Shaw says, "spend all you have before you die." You cannot use your cake and have it, and the worst of all is to let it mold on the shelf. Don't outlive yourself. A master word is work.

ELECTRIFICATION OF FRENCH RAILROADS

France is making a strong bid for leadership in mileage of electrified railroads, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

More than 500 miles of French railroads, formerly traversed by the steam engine, have been electrified. This is about one-third of the mileage of electric railroads in the United States.

Paris to Orleans Line Completed

Almost simultaneously with the celebration of the electrification of a portion of the Illinois Central in the vicinity of Chicago, recently, came the report from Orleans, France, that the first through electric train arrived from Paris 75 miles northeast of the "City of Joan of Arc." The train was drawn by an American made electric locomotive.

Electric trains are not new to the inhabitants of either Paris or Orleans for the P.-O. (as the Paris- Orleans railroad is familiarly known to the Frenchman) has been electrified for 60 miles in the dense traffic sections in the neighborhood of both cities for several years, corresponding to the sections of the New York Central, the Pennsylvania, and the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroads running into New York City. The completion of the remaining 15 miles and purchase of new equipment was made possible by loans from the United States.

Cheap Electricity for Paris

The rapid increase in electrification in France is largely due to the scarcity of domestic fuel and the high cost of transportation, particularly to the railroads and industries of the south and west. France imports large quantities of coal.

In Germany, Switzerland, Norway and Sweden, where electric railroads are owned by the government, power is generated for the road's use only. France plans to install equipment which will also supply light and power to cities and villages along the right-of-way, thus saving the enormous tonnage of coal used in electric plants.

Paris has long desired to bring about economies in coal consumption by making use of the water supply of the central plateau. This desire dominated the movement to hasten the completion of the Paris-Orleans line.

It is doubtful whether the roads in the north and east will adopt the change that is going on in other sections of the country. Their coal supply is near-by and no sources of water supply for the cheap generation of electricity are available, while the roads in the south and west are far removed from coal fields but have sufficient water power facilities in the Pyrenees Mountains and the central plateau regions.

Only Six Railroad Systems

France has 21,000 miles of railroads. Each of the six systems serves a different region, therefore, there is no competition.

While an American stands in one of our huge Union Stations scanning time tables of several roads which will take him to his destination, the Frenchman has no choice, for there is only one route for him.

A tourist soon learns, upon landing at Cherbourg, that the State Railroad provides the only rail transportation to Paris. When he reaches Paris, he learns that to tour the Rhine country, he must patronize the Est; while the Paris-Orleans and Midi runs to the Spanish frontier; the Paris, Lyons and Mediterranean to Marseille and the Riviera, and the Nord to Calais and Belgian points.

World's Fastest Trains

The Nord boasts the fastest trains in the world. The Golden Arrow Express, running between Paris and Calais, which was inaugurated several months ago, covers 186 miles in 180 minutes while the Paris-Brussels express trains travel 230 miles in 225 minutes.

More than 1400 miles of Nord tracks fell into the hands of the Germans during the war. Eight viaducts, 811 bridges, five tunnels, 338 railway stations, and 115 water reservoirs along the right-of-way were destroyed. But through skillful management, encouraged by the French government, all lines of the railroad were again in operation four months after the armistice was signed.

As a part of its reconstruction program the railroad provided communities for its workers. Eleven thousand homes were built by companies for its employees. The largest community is at Tergnier, France, where there are 1300 homes, a library, halls, theaters, schools and other facilities for the health and happiness of employes and their families.

Fossils Unrecognized

Fossilized footprints of three-toed prehistoric animals were found in New England over 100 years ago, but were considered ordinary bird tracks.

GUM-DIPPED TIRES
(This Year Compared With Same Period Last Year)

THE demand from car owners for Gum-Dipped Tires has given Firestone Dealers a large increase in volume enabling them to sell these tires to you at the lowest prices in history.

On the cars of motorists everywhere, these wonderful tires are delivering unheard-of long mileage with greater safety and comfort.

The Firestone Balloon Tread, scientifically designed three years ago, and unchanged today, follows the contour of the tire carcass with no excess rubber at the edges to cause "shoulder breaks". Narrow rider strips permit the tread to yield to depressions and cling to the road, preventing skidding. This tough, pliable tread has the wear-resisting qualities for thousands of extra miles.

Such a tread must be placed on a carcass with the qualifications to withstand the terrific flexing that this design permits. The Firestone carcass is made of cords dipped in a rubber solution which not only saturates and insulates every fiber of every cord, but unifies sidewalls with carcass, avoiding separation under the extreme flexing.

Many Firestone Dealers are prepared to offer you a liberal allowance for your old tires, on a new set of Gum-Dipped Tires to start the motoring season.

To meet a demand for a low price tire and tube, Firestone designed and manufactures, for Firestone Dealers only, Oldfield Tires and Tubes, which carry the Standard Manufacturers' Guarantee.

WHAT PRIMITIVE AMERICAN INDIANS BELIEVE

Nearly 100,000 Indians in the United States are untouched by Christian doctrines, the Board of Indian Commissioners recently estimated, and remain to all intents and purposes pagans, presumably still holding in large measure the beliefs of their ancestors. What these primitive Indian religious beliefs are is told in a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

Poetic fancy and a natural tendency to describe newly encountered beliefs and customs in terms of those already familiar, have given white people many false ideas in regard to the religious beliefs of the American Indians, says the bulletin. Some enthusiasts have pictured the typical Red Man as noble and ethical beyond his white brother, believing in a fatherly "Great Spirit," and striving to live the good life that he may go after death to the "Happy Hunting Ground." This is a fallacy.

No Single Religion of Indians

There is no single religion of the American Indians. Instead the beliefs differed widely in different sections and among different tribes. There was, however, a general similarity of views, and these were about what could have been expected from people of a relatively primitive degree of culture. Nowhere does what could truly be called the conception of a "Great Spirit," an overruling deity, emerge. There were greater and lesser spirits, to be sure, but the characteristic Indian belief is in a multitude of spirits animating animals, objects, and the various forces of nature. Nor were these spirits inherently good or bad, morally. They might help or hinder the individual in his activities or health, and whether they did the one or the other was the test of their "goodness" or "badness" for him.

The primitive Indian has no conception of a hell; nor is his entry into the spirit land dependent on his conduct. He enters it as a matter of course, he believes, and continues there whatever activities have interested him in this life. To some tribes this is a "skyland," to others it is merely a region of the earth, "in the West," "across the sea," or "beyond a river." Others believe the villages of the dead to be near their villages but invisible.

Belief In Magic Important

Coupled in the mind of the primitive Indian with a belief in many spirits, is a belief in magic, through which the spirits can be influenced. The medicine men possessed the secrets of such magic, it was believed, and often interceded. All Indians believe in the possession of a soul which leaves the body at death. They also believe that it leaves at other times, and some tribes ascribe illness to this absence of the soul. The services of the medicine man are sought to recover the missing soul. Belief in a continuing soul did not lead to ancestor worship as among Eastern peoples.

Most Indian mythologies do not concern themselves with creation; they assume the existence of the earth and deal with its peopling and with the origin of arts, customs, and rites. All these are supposed to have come by a sort of revelation. Some tribes, however, especially those of the Pacific coast region, do have a creation myth. In some it is "Old Man Above," in others an animal such as the coyote or the silver fox, who makes a hole in the sky, comes to earth, and creates the animals and men. In some of these myths there is only water beneath the sky, but the descending being creates the earth in the form of an island which grows.

Good Moral Development

Morality and ethics were well developed among American Indians. They have a strong sense of conscience and many individuals are strikingly benevolent. The tribal morality was strict. He who lied, failed to keep his promises, or stole within the tribe was disgraced. Murder too was punished. War removed ethical barriers among Indians as it has among most people of all ages. It then became a virtue for the Indian to kill his enemies and to take their property.

On the whole the Indian's religious beliefs [illegible] wholly practical and as springing from fear of the more or less hostile forces of Nature that surrounded him. His various rites arose from his efforts to propitiate or to take advantage of these forces.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS

A diver, working at the dam at the North Reservoir, created considerable excitement for many persons on Sunday. Seeing the man in his suit working about the gate house led many to believe that either some one was drowned or that the dam was about to break. As a matter of fact the diver was brought out to make an inspection of the gate house, the foundations, masonery and valves being thoroughly examined. This had not been done for many years, and as the North Reservoir is the oldest supply in town it was felt advisable by the Water Board. Sunday was selected for the work largely because less water is used and during the inspection the town was supplied from the South Reservoir only.

Frank Edwards of the U. S. S. Idaho, son of Mr. Benjamin Edwards of this town, leaves for the Pacific coast Sunday. He has been spending a fortnight with his father. His ship is stationed at Pasadena as its home port, and he expects to join his wife and family there the last of June.

Situated on the West Side of Winchester off of Cambridge Street nearly opposite Calumet Road. A tract of 20 lots of land varying in size from 7000 to 12,000 square feet in area. Every lot affords a beautiful panoramic view of the most attractive part of the town. In addition to the four houses already erected thereon, the Fairmount Associates have purchased five uncompleted houses adjoining their property at a mortgagees sale. This in order not only to conserve the high type of construction originally planned for this tract, but more particularly to control the disposition of these houses, in order to maintain the high class neighborhood to which we set out to create. FRANK MERRITT NOWELL

Frank Merritt Nowell, aged 66, a native of Winchester and for 21 years in the employ of its Highway Department, died Thursday afternoon, May 26, after an illness of two years, at the home on Main street in Woburn of his daughter, Mrs. Florence Smith.

Mr. Nowell was the son of Horace and Mary (Hunnewell) Nowell. He was educated in the Winchester schools and spent nearly his entire life in this town, leaving 15 months ago to make his home with his daughter in Woburn.

As a young man he was employed by Kelley & Hawes Companw and Erskine Brothers before establishing himself in the express and furniture moving business. Later he entered the service of the Highway Department in which he remained until forced by ill health to retire. He was Past Commander of John T. Wilson Camp, 153, Sons of Veterans, and was active in its work for many years.

Mr. Nowell was married in 1881 to Margaret Conner who died four years ago. He is survived by four daughters, Mrs. Harry Bennett, Mrs. Carl Fisher, both of Winchester, Mrs. Folrence Smith of Woburn and Mrs. Lawrence Boudreau of Woburn; and by four sons, John R., George R., William A. and James L. Nowell, all of Winchester. A sister, Mrs. James Johnson of Winchester and 15 grand children also survive him.

Funeral services will be held on Monday morning from the home of his son, George R. Nowell on Thompson street. There will be a requiem high Mass in St. Mary's Church at 9 o'clock. Interment will be at Calvary Cemetery.

WINCHESTER BOY SERIOUSLY INJURED

Little Joseph Perry, 5 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Perry of 727 Washington street, was seriously injured at 9:30 o'clock Thursday morning when he was struck by an automobile driven by Vera E. Keyes, assistant superintendent of the Winchester Hospital. The accident occurred on Washington street at the Woburn-Winchester line, the little boy running directly into the path of the machine which was headed toward Winchester.

He was rushed to the hospital where he was treated by Dr. Milton J. Quinn and Dr. Martin Sheehan of Stoneham. His name was at once placed upon the dangerous list, he having sustained a fractured leg and a possible fracture of the skull. Last evening his condition remained about the same but hope for his recovery had not been abandoned.

WOBURN HERE TOMORROW

Winchester plays one of its big home baseball games of the season on Manchester Field tomorrow afternoon at 3:15 when it will entertain the slugging Orange and Black nine from Woburn. The tanning city lads have enjoyed a fairly successful season and under their new coach, "Chucker" Roache, former Tufts star, have developed into a powerful offensive club. Coach Mansfield's charges gave Woburn a great battle in the previous meeting and if "Lefty" Hatch has one of his good days may furnish an upset tomorrow. Woburn should win, but anything can happen.

LIEUT-COL. WASHBURN SPOKE

Lieut.-Col. Slater Washburn, Assistant Chief-of-Staff G-1, 26th Division, State Representative from the 21st Worcester District, was the speaker last evening at the regular monthly meeting of Winchester Post, American Legion, held in the Legion House on Washington street.

His address, entitled "France—Then and Now" was illustrated with a series of remarkable steriopticon slides, showing the splendid reconstruction work which has been done in France since the days of the great war.

State Representative Thomas R. Bateman was the guest of the post at the meeting. His work in the recent sessions of the Legislature was highly praised by Lieut.-Colonel Washburn who also announced that Mr. Bateman had been appointed to the Recess Committee on Aviation, an important post.

Commander Arthur S. Harris presided at the Legion business session which was largely concerned with plans for Memorial Day. Refreshments were served at the conclusion of the address. One of the largest gatherings of the season attended the meeting.

FUNERAL SERVICES FOR MRS. GEORGE A. PRATT

Funeral services for Mrs. Lizzie A. S. (Webster) Pratt, 70, wife of Geo. E. Pratt, and a resident of Winchester for more than 40 years, took place at the Unitarian Church, Thursday afternoon, May 19. Rev. George Hale Reed, pastor officiated. Mrs. George Lochman, wife of Postmaster Lochman, played several selections on the organ.

The services were largely attended. Quite a delegation of the Ladies' Friendly Society of the Women's Alliance of the church, in which Mrs. Pratt was active many years, were present.

The pall bearers were John A. Pratt of Burlington, Ralph Symmes of Swampscott, nephews of the deceased; J. Leslie Johnston, G. Warren Johnston and Ralph D. Joslin of Winchester, and William A. Hall of Woburn. The floral tributes numbered more than 60, among them being many pieces from members of the Ladies' Friendly Society. The interment was in Wildwood Cemetery.

MARRIAGE INTENTIONS

Marriage intentions have been filed with the Town Clerk as follows:

ROTARY CLUB LUNCHEON

The regular meeting of the Rotary Club of Winchester was held at the Calumet Club on Thursday noon, there being a large attendance, with a number of guests from Woburn. The speaker of the week was Vincent P. Clarke, former Commander of Winchester Post, American Legion, who took as his subject "Memorial Day" and its meaning in the history of our country. Included among the guests present were the two members of the G. A. R. residing in this town, Messrs. Edward M. Messenger and Frank D. Marchand. These members, although not members of A. D. Weld Post of this town, are the only Grand Army men here. Winchester has one surviving member who resides elsewhere.

Plans were completed for the Charter Night of the club, which is to be observed next Wednesday night in the Town Hall by a banquet, exercises and a dance. Already the capacity of the hall has been reached and it has been necessary to curtail the issuing of further tickets. The affair will be the biggest event of its nature ever held here.

FORMER WINCHESTER WOMAN DEAD IN CALIFORNIA

Emma Wibler Gutterson, widow of Rev. George H. Gutterson of Boston and Marshfield, died on May 21 at the home in Los Angeles, Cal., of her daughter, Mrs. Karl Howenstein.

Mrs. Gutterson was the daughter of H. A. Wilder, one of the pioneer missionaries to South Africa under the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions. She was born in South Africa and remained there until 15 years of age when she came to this country to complete her education. With her husband she served as a missionary in Idnia for 40 years. She will be remembered by many of the older residents of Winchester where she made her home in Rangeley over a long period. Ten children and a brother, George A., Wilder, recently retired, who for many years was a missionary in South Africa, survive her.

FUNERAL RITES FOR JENNIE M. FREEMAN

Funeral services for Jennie M. Freeman, wife of Alvin M. Freeman and a former resident of Winchester who died last week Wednesday night at her home in Welfleet, following an illness of only a day, were held on last Saturday afternoon from the late residence with the Rev. W. S. Clark, pastor of the Welfleet Methodist Church, officiating. There was a beautiful display of flowers. Interment was in Welfleet in the Freeman family lot.

Mrs. Freeman was born at East Orange, N. J. 64 years ago, but following her marriage made her home for many years in Winchester on Mystic avenue. She was a member of the Eastern Star and during her residence here of the First Congregational Church, the Western Missionary Society and of the Fortnightly Women's Club. She left Winchester to make her home in Welfleet about five years ago. Besides her husband she is survived by a daughter, Mrs. John Charles Daniels of Detroit, Mich., and by two sons, Oliver F., of Providence, R. I. and Dana M. Freeman of Somerville.

Mr and Mrs. Louis G. Rondina and family of Highland avenue have opened their summer home at Rindge, N. H.

LEGION FAIR

Dolls, blankets, lamps, silk pillows, shawls, candy and dozens of other articles to numerous to mention will be on display and sold at the Legion booths at the Legion Fair to be held on the Town Hall and Legion House grounds Saturday, June 11, 1927, both afternoon and evening. Not a single game of chance will be used on the grounds, as the committee are anxious to comply with the spirit of the law as well as the letter of the law governing fairs and carnivals in this State. There will be many chances to try your skill at throwing darts, baseballs, rings, etc. but the best throw wins and takes the prize—not a chance number on a ticket, decided by a spinning wheel or other gambling devices.

The committee is delighted by the enthusiastic offers of assistance coming from other clubs and organizations in town. Just what booths will be given to the helping organizations will be announced in the "Star" next week. The profits of the fair are to be divided equally between the permanent welfare fund of the local post and the current expense treasury.

In response to popular demand it has been decided to enlarge the Baby Contest to include a doll and doll carriage contest. Children up to three years old may enter the baby contest and a prize will be awarded to the prettiest baby, also a prize to the best decorated baby carriage and baby. Another prize for the handsomest doll and doll carriage, and still another for the prettiest dressed doll.

The Legion has secured the services of the well known Winchester Post, 97, American Legion Band for the entire afternoon and evening. This band has been heard in Winchester several times and is well liked and will wear their new uniforms for the first time at this fair.

The fair committee asks the friends of the American Legion in Winchester to not forget the donated rummage auction sale. Any article at all will be accepted and called for. Telephone Winchester 1270-W or Winchester 1660 to arrange to have a truck call for whatever you can give to this cause. All of the donated articles obtained will be sold at auction by a corps of especially trained Legion men.

Many would-be barnyard champions have expressed their intention of entering the horseshoe pitching contest. There will be at least four courts going full speed, and it is hard to foretell who will be the champion.

The ladies nail driving contest is going to make a lot of fun as anyone knows who has ever seen a lady drive a 10-penny nail with a tack hammer.

Everyone likes the novel idea of outdoor movies and will want to see them as well as the clown, fortune teller, and other feature attractions. Admissions is free to all.

Don't forget the date, June 11, Saturday afternoon and evening. In the event of rain the fair will be held in the Town Hall.

WADLEIGH SCHOOL EXERCISES ON JUNE 15

The final assembly of the Wadleigh School is to be held this year in the Town Hall on the afternoon of Wednesday, June 15.

Mrs. Fred Avery of Glen road leaves this afternoon to spend the summer at Longport, N. J.

WINCHESTER BOAT CLUB

The subscription dance held Saturday evening, May 21, proved to be one of the most successful events of its kind ever given at the club house. The dance hall was filled to its capacity and all of those attending spent a most enjoyable evening. The music was excellent and all indications seem to point to an unusually active social season. Much credit is due the entertainment committee for the manner in which the two dances already held have been given.

The proceeds derived from this dance will go a long ways to pay for the new racing canoe, but to complete payment it has been decided to run another subscription dance. Accordingly Saturday evening June 4, has been decided upon as the date and all arrangements have been completed. This move seems to have met with the hearty approval of all those who attended the last dance and is of course in addition to the regular schedule of club entertainments to follow.

The cool weather has done much to hold up the canoe regattas, but it is highly probable that the warmer weather to come will increase interest in the water sports. Tentative arrangements have been made to run a series of inter-club meets as is the customary practice every year. At this time the outlook for having a war canoe crew is not promising, but it is possible that club fours will be organized and that entries will be made in some of the larger meets to be held in Boston this summer.

CAR OVERTURNED IN CAMBRIDGE STREET CRASH

Leon Lambert of 2 Akon street, Lowell, sustained injuries to his right shoulder and both legs at 6 o'clock Wednesday evening when the Ford sedan in which he was riding overturned on Cambridge street near Pond street, following a collision with a second Ford sedan owned and operated by Benjamin A. Pulsifer of 180 Bow street, Everett.

The first machine was owned and driven by Joseph W. Penault of 710 Central street, Lowell, and was going north on Cambridge street. Pulsifer's machine was headed southerly and was turning into Pond street when the accident occurred. Penault's sedan was tipped over on its side by the force of the collision, having all its glass and left rear wheel broken. The other car had its left mud guard, wishbone and front axel bent. Albert H. Muller of 33 Manning street, Medford, was riding with Pulsifer. Neither was injured.

WADLEIGH CONSOLATION RESULTS

Helen Nowell and John Morton were the winners of the Wadleigh Consolation tennis series which was played last week at the town courts on Palmer street. Play was limited to those boys and girls who were defeated in their first match of the regular tournament play.

Miss Nowell won her way into the final match by defeating Barbara Chidley in the semi-finals, 7—5. Helen Barry was successful in her first round match against Dorothy Bidwell and thereafter was defaulted into the finals. She was defeated by Miss Nowell in the final, 6—1, 6—0.

John Morton defeated Philip LeRoyer, 6—2, in the first of the semi-finals for boys with Frederick Hitchcock winning from Bronson Garner, 6—1 in the other. The final match between Morton and Hitchcock was a thriller, the former winning 3—6, 6—3, 10—8.

FORMER WINCHESTER BOY EXAMINED LINDBERGH'S PLANE

Along with the fact that the forging's for Capt. Charles A. Lindbergh's airplane motor were manufactured by a concern headed by a Winchester man, noted elsewhere in the "Star," comes the information that a former Winchester boy, Kenneth Lane, son of the late Oscar and Mrs. Annie C. Lane, made the last expert examination of the craft before the wonder aviator hopped off from New York for Paris.

Lane, a graduate of M. I. T., has been engaged in airplane engineering for a number of years, has designed a number of planes and has had one design accepted by the United States Government.

He and Captain Lindbergh are intimate friends and it was at the request of the latter that Lane gave the "Spirit of St. Louis" an examination before it started.

ENJOYED COMPLIMENTARY BANQUET

The final chapter of the Gilbert & Sullivan opera, "The Gondoliers" was written last Friday evening when the cast and chorus of the production were guests of the committee in charge at a banquet held in the vestry of the First Congregational Church.

As was the case with the show, the committee had striven to create an atmosphere for the party and their efforts were eminently successful. Under their skillful handling the vestry became a Venetian banquet hall in which rich tapestries, rugs, oriental hangings, a fountain with running water, candlebras and vases of fresh spring flowers combined to produce a most pleasing effect. Many of the back drops used in the show were also set up about the hall.

The tables were arranged in the form of a square with one end open, the members of the cast occupying seats at the head table. There were no cloths but the tables were dressed with bits of tapestry, candlabras and cut flowers. There were individual bread-sticks and each table bore a huge loaf of Italian bread.

Seated at the center of the head table upon the kingly thrones which had graced the second act of the production were Lisle Burroughs and Arthur Howe who had played with so much success the parts of "The Gondoliers." Considerable amusement was occasioned when but one cover was laid for both. Mr. Burroughs' objections thereto being sustained by the company after a heated debate with Oscar Crowers. Mr. Burroughs made a splendid impromptu master of ceremonies and as no one was present who had not been in some way connected with the production of April 30 the local "hits" and repartee were appreciated and greatly enjoyed. During the serving of the courses several telegrams were received from various impressarios, all seeking to book the Winchester production of "The Gondoliers" in the several cultural centers of the world. Especially clever and amusing was the telegram received by Lisle Burroughs from "the folks at home."

Immediately following the banquet those in charge of the various departments of the show spoke in praise of the unselfish efforts of all who had in any manner assisted in making the production the success it was.

The tables being cleared away, song and dance hits from the show were reviewed with Conductor G. Wallace Woodworth at the piano. As an added attraction Alden Symmes gave his inimitable version of "Levinsky at the Wedding." The evening was brought to a close with the rolicking finale of "The Gondoliers" by the entire company.

Mrs. Howard J. Chidley, general chairman of the show committees, was in charge of the arrangements for the evening. The banquet, the menu for which was entirely Italian and most unusual, was prepared and served by ladies of Group 4 of the church, in costume and under the direction of Mrs. F. Patterson Smith.

The First New England Washday

Three hundred years ago on the shores of Cape Cod a woman, whose housewifely instincts had suffered during a long sea voyage, hastily set up tubs brought from England, and washed the personal linen of one Myles Standish.

Soon that gentleman's illustrious shirt tails were waving in the brisk east wind, as millions of shirt tails have waved since, for thereby, Blue Monday was bequeathed to every New England woman as a hated inheritance.

In many homes Blue Monday is as much an antique as are other relics of those distant years, for modern housewives have found a new New England Way that solves the problem.

Sending us all your laundry, or any of the more difficult parts of it, will put an end to the problems of keeping clean.

OBSERVED 74th BIRTHDAY ANNIVERSARY

Once again on Monday of this week the Star Office paused awhile from its several duties to join with John Aylmer Vining in the observance of the latter's 74th birthday. It hardly seemed a year since we celebrated the 73rd birthday of our kindly, humorous man-of-all-work, yet having "Bob's" word in advance that Monday was to be the date, arrangements were made to celebrate according to ancient and honorable custom.

Which of course meant something to eat! Down through the ages a celebration from the standpoint of the genus homo has alway involved a magnificant banquet, spread, "eats" or what-have-you. A silver loving cup would have held little significance for "Bob" without at the same time something with which to satisfy the inner-man.

With an eye to the aesthetic the viands were set out upon a specially decorated table in the composing room, the work being done while "Bob" was busy upon the floor below. There were candles, oodles of pink crepe paper in fantastic designs, silver and fine linen, or perhaps neither of the last named was after all so fine.

The menu, suggested by "Bob" himself, had as its piece-de-resistance fried haddock and potatoes, cake, cookies, cheese, bread and butter with plenty of coffee. The central figure of the occasion was feted and toasted and all the rest of it, apparently enjoying himself passing well.

It was, however, a lamentable fact that this year he was unable to consume nearly so much as at his last party when he naively admitted that his capacity was "not what it used to be." From a dispassionate standpoint we felt that he did as well as any could desire, though probably we do not recall him at his best. At all events he was pleased and grateful, naming us once again "heroes," so we may take it that the party was a huge success.

FLORENCE CRITTENTON ANNUAL MEETING

The annual meeting of the Florence Crittenton League was held on Thursday, May 19, at the home of Mrs. Bowen Tufts. After a short business meeting presided over by the president Mrs. Apsey, Mrs. Hughes gave two solo selections accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Alexander.

Mrs. Apsey then introduced Miss Albee the Educational Secretary of the Boston Florence Crittenton League who spoke briefly of her work.

The principal speaker of the afternoon, Miss Frances B. Mayer, Executive Secretary of the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, was most interesting in her talk on "Citizens in the Making." She had slides to show pictorially some of the work which her Society had done for unfortunate children who through no fault of their own were thrown upon their own resources. She said that during the past year 12,000 children were in their care. Different problems of child welfare have many times been solved by this remarkable Society which cares for children who are destitute through medical, moral or spiritual neglect.

The most important business of the afternoon was the election of officers, as suggested by the Nominating Committee. The officers elected for the ensuing year will be as follows:

President, Mrs. F. C. Alexander
Vice President, Mrs. W. Holbrook Lowell
Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. S. H. Taylor
Recording Secretary, Mrs. B. R. Gave.
Treasurer, Mrs. W. H. Balcke
Director for 3 Years, Mrs. D. W. Estabrook.
Director for 2 Years, Mrs. C. W. Jones
Director for 1 Year, Mrs. R. K. Miller

Mrs. Apsey the retiring President gave a short farewell message and hoped that the co-operation she had had in the past would continue with the new officers. Mrs. W. H. Lowell in a delightful speech paid tribute to Mrs. Apsey's wonderful work as President the past two years and presented her with a beautiful bouquet of roses from the Board as its token of appreciation.

Tea was then served by the hostess assisted by the Social Committee. Mrs. Apsey and Mrs. Alexander poured.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS

Mr. Ernest F. Nelson of Henniker, N. H., former proprietor of the Food Shop on Mt. Vernon street, who has been quite ill at the Manchester Hospital, is reported as improving and expected to return to his home in ten days or a fortnight.

After rainy weather, variously announced at from 19 to 22 days, which has predominated during this month, the sun shone again yesterday morning. This appearance followed clouds and rain from the previous Saturday. On Wednesday evening a good-sized thunder storm, with a heavy downpour of rain, made some variation from the customary schedule. According to the weather forecast, we shall have several days of fair weather—possibly over the holiday.

Commencing June 1, tailors of Winchester and Woburn will close every evening at 7, excepting Saturdays. They will close on Wednesday afternoons at 12:30 during June, July and August. Signed, Cleansers and Tailors Protective Ass'n.

Bratey of 272 West Sixth street, Lowell, while going north on Main stret in the square stopped his Buick sedan on signal directly in the path of an oncoming electric car in charge of Conductor James T. Cobbett. Aside from bending the left rear mudguard of the sedan there was no damage done and no one was injured.

DAILY PHILOSOPHY

Character and personality are two great human assets. The higher you build your character the more need of steel in the structure.

Don't become a slave to impatience or indifference. Play a man's part in life and keep away from both.

To speak wisely may not always be easy, but not to speak ill requires only silence.

If you can keep out of a rut, make the best of little, subdue an ugly temper, and maintain a high standard, you're some "feller."

Mails are still speeding between Boston and Winchester. Five days for an insured package last week! Has the Government provided sufficient storage space in the new post-office creeping up on Thompson street?

ABYSMAL IGNORANCE

To the Editor of the Star:

Last Friday you published in the Star an article entitled "Birds in the Middlesex Fells."

It really is a shame to publish anything in your paper which shows such abysmal ignorance of the subject discussed.

In the first place, there is no such thing as a "wild canary" in the nomenclature of ornithology. The term is a colloquial name applied at times to American Goldfinches and Yellow Warblers. The rare "wild canaries" referred to in the article, whose presence here from the South is explained as due to their being driven from there by the floods, are American Goldfinches, one of our common Massachusetts residents, breeding abundantly throughout the State. They are arriving now on their annual Spring migration which explains their presence in numbers. It is true, they leave here late in the fall, but they return in the spring as do most of our birds.

Scarlet Tanagers are spoken of in conjunction with Baltimore Orioles as visitants from the south. They, too, are resident breeding birds, and are not at all rare.

It does seem to me that if you are going to publish bird notes—and they are of interest to many of your readers—you might check on their authenticity before printing them.

Very truly yours,
Allen H. Wood, Jr.

The Itinerant Peddler—Mrs. Mary Kelley.

Little Red Riding Hood—Mary Jack King.

On Wednesday evening Mrs. Catharine Kean, our past treasurer, entertained the Court and its friends at her home on Linden street. A very enjoyable social pleased all who attended.

On Monday the 12 deceased members of the Court will be remembered in the usual way. A committee consisting of Sisters O'Connor, Coty and Brown will place rustic baskets of forget-me-nots on the graves of the deceased members, each basket tied with the purple ribbon of the order, fittingly inscribed with C. D. of A. in letters of gold.

EMBLEM CLUB AFFAIRS

The first meeting of the Club under the new regime was held on Wednesday evening, May 25, with President Emily A. Scholl in the chair. Initiation for waiting candidates was in order, and the ritualistic work was performed by the local officers with Mrs. Emma M. Cullen acting as Marshall. Marshall Edna M. Gilchrist being confined to the house by illness.

President Emily A. Scholl gave a very encouraging report of the social held at her home on May 18. About 35 members and their friends were "paying guests" on this occasion and a tidy little sum was collected in contributions for welfare work of the Club. The next "Home Social" will be held at 45 Vine street, with Mrs. Ethel A. Horn as hostess. Preparations are being made to accommodate a large crowd and members are urged to invite their friends and neighbors. Mrs. Horn announces the date as Tuesday evening, May 31, and hopes for a large attendance.

A committee of officers and members was appointed by the President to serve on the Refreshment Booth at the fair to be held by Winchester Post, American Legion on June 11. Contributions of foodstuffs are solicited and all desiring to assist in any way may communicate with Mrs. F. H. Scholl, tel. Win. 1731.

Under the chairmanship of Vice-President Annie M. Hanlon, a drill team has been started and the first rehearsal took place after the business session with Mr. Martin McDonough of Stoneham as instructor. Under the expert direction of Mr. McDonough, who has had much military experience, it is hoped to emphasize the patriotic spirit of our Order in floorwork of a martial character. Those selected for the team are all well fitted for the drill work and are urged to remember the rules of the game as stressed by Mr. McDonough, "good attendance and punctuality." The next rehearsal is called for Wednesday evening, June 8, at 7:45 p. m. The regular session of the Club will start at 8:30 to accommodate those taking part in the drill.

UNIVERSITY THEATRE

"Taxi! Taxi!" Here's a story with human interest. Peter, the lowly draughtsman, is sent to the station by his aristocratic and distinguished boss to meet the latter's niece. That's the beginning of the romance. The hero has to buy a taxi to get the heroine home in the rain and he discovers too late that the car he has bought is under suspicion for the part it played in an important robbery. Edward Everett Horton plays the part of Peter and he does keep in hot water and most of the time.

"The Mysterious Rider" is another good Western from the story by Zane Gray. Jack Holt plays the hero. The thrills are caused by a fight between the settlers and the gunmen of the heroine's father. Holt shows some wonderful riding. There are some big scenes especially the one showing the western wagon trains. Betty Jewel is cast as the heroine.

For the last three days of the week the offerings are "Afraid to Love" with Florence Vidor and Clive Brook and "Down the Stretch" a race track drama from the story "The Money Rider" by Gerald Beaumont. Florence Vidor as a comedienne is the rare treat offered in "Afraid to Love" in which she is starred. Always anxious to demonstrate to the public that she is extremely versatile, Miss Vidor has suddenly switched from powerfully dramatic and emotional roles to light comedy in which, it is declared, she is a sensation. Clive Brock is her leading man and the cast includes Norman Trovor, Jocelyn Lee and Arthur Lubin.

In "Down the Stretch" is presented a sympathetic picture of life in the grey paddock. Robert Agnew plays the role of an apprentice jockey under the iron hand of a heartless trainer. The boy weakens under the rigorous training and wants to quit. But the love of a girl and that burning esire to win that makes races had gotten into his blood, and he stays for the great day that may mean tragedy or triumph. Marian Nixon plays the heroine and Otis Harlan provides the comedy.

"A MATTER OF PUBLIC INTEREST"—EFFICIENCY OR SAFETY?

To the Editor of the Star:

It has come to the attention of the writer that at some time in the near future it is planned that the Boston & Maine Railroad will cease to operate its present crossing gates and switches in the center of our town by man power and that the installation of electric driven switches and crossing gates will supplant the present system, these electric switches and crossing gates to be operated from the tower-house, so-called, which is located just above our center, and out of the center proper.

Now it occurs to "Your Citizen" that this is a very dangerous change and one that comes nigh to working against public safety, for one has only to stand in our center for any 10-minute period out of a 12-hour day to see the amount of traffic and the numbers of children who pass daily over the Boston & Maine tracks.

It is conceded that the installation of electric switches and the like are a step toward efficiency, but is it a type of efficiency the Town of Winchester can allow to be thrust upon its citizens? We know the electric system which the Boston & Maine contemplates installing will be as perfect as it is possible for it to be, but can we be guaranteed that at any and all times and under any and all weather conditions and circumstances the system will prove infallable?

We must not forget that our town has in the very heart of its business section a Boston & Maine crossing which can be compared to no other combination of congested traffic plus main railroad lines in the State, and this presence of congested traffic and a mail line railroad track makes it incumbent, to my way of thinking (and of course I may be wrong, for the citizens of Winchester to make public protest against any change in the present handling of the Boston & Maine crossing situation, as it exists in our town.

As has been noted by "Your Citizen" many times, our crossing gatemen and switchman now employed to run the switches and attend the gates which it is planned to run by electricity by a towerman, located out of the center proper, are many times during any given day called upon to shout at and warn children, and sometimes grown-ups, of an approaching train and this is no small danger which will be brought upon us by the absence of these men from their present posts.

Further, there are times during every day when trains running strictly according to schedule bring about a circumstance, whereby we have an inward and outward bound train in the center at the same time and the present employees of the Boston & Maine who attend the gates and switches are kept pretty busy keeping traffic in a safe place, and our children, unlike any others, yield very easy to the temptation to try to beat the train across the track, especially if they are pretty nearly tardy for school and this is no small item of consideration when we think of abandoning the guidance and help which they now obtain from the Boston & Maine servants.

I wish some of our citizens would look into this matter with some thought for the results which may come about and if it seems policy institute a public protest against any such change of existing conditions and avert what "Your Citizen" believes will at some time result in tragedy.

Our children need protection, our traffic needs a certain assurance for its safety and I fear very strongly that electrically driven switches or gates can work for the greatest safety under the circumstances as they exist in our town.

The Boston & Maine is master or mistress of its own property but so far as its property rights within our limits inflict any danger upon our citizens or their children, it should be made to forfeit efficiency for safety.

WINCHESTER MAN'S CONCERN AIDED IN LINDBERGH'S FLIGHT

With the eyes of the entire civilized world focussed upon Capt. Charles A. Lindbergh's history making flight across the Atlantic it is of more than passing interest to learn that a concern headed by a Winchester man shared in the glory of that intrepid young man's daring feat.

The Ryan monoplane in which the New York to Paris flight was made is equipped with a Wright whirlwind engine, the motor forgings being made by the Cape Ann Tool Company of which Mr. J. Judson Dean of Everett avenue is president. Advices to this effect were received on Monday morning from the Wright Aeronautical Corporation of Patterson, N. J., by Mr. Dean's son, Lindley I. Dean.

The Cape Ann Tool Company of Rockport, manufacturers of high grade forgings, has furnished parts for motors which have undergone the most exacting tests but of course nothing like the one to which Captain Lindbergh's engine was subjected.

The telegram follows in full:

Patterson, N. J.

Cape Ann Tool Company,
Pigeon Cove, Mass.

Forging furnished by you were part of the historic making "Wright Whirlwind Engine," with which Capt. Charles A. Lindberg flew from New York to Paris in 33½ hours.

The Wright Aeronautical Corp.

Rev. William S. Packer, who is largely responsible for Winchester's ever growing interest in tennis, is taking a group of local youngsters to the Longwood Cricket Club this week-end to compete in the junior tournament there.

The Park Department has received the resignation of Clarence O'Donnell, Norwich football and basketball star, who had recently been appointed to serve during the vacation season as playground instructor at Leonard Field, a post in which he gave complete satisfaction a year ago. The Packard sedan of Edward W. Berry of 5 Stratford road and a Ford coupe of Ralph W. Lord of 46 Hillside road, Medford Hillside, were in collision last Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the junction of the Parkway and Washington street. The cars were only slightly damaged. Mr. Berry's car was going southerly across the Parkway at the time of the accident while the Ford was headed in an easterly direction.

Mr. Bruce, who is soon to graduate from the Newton Theological Institute, and Miss Blair, who is a student at Gordon College, have been accepted as missionaries by the Baptist Foreign Mission Society and will be the first to go out as such from the temple under the Baptist Board. HIGH SCHOOL PARENT-TEACHER ASSOCIATION

Annual Meeting—Entertainment

An entertainment of real merit was provided by pupils of the High School for the last meeting of the year of the High School Parent-Teacher Association, on Tuesday evening last.

The retiring President, George S. Tompkins, thanked the several committees for their co-operation and gave entire credit to Mr. Grindle for his preparation of the programs which have proved so attractive during the season.

President, James S. Allen
Vice-President, Bertram Allen
Treasurer, Charles F. Smith
Secretary, M. M. Richmond (Re-elected)
Social Committee, Chairman Mrs. Herbert Wadleigh
Publicity Committee, Albert H. Dalrymple
Membership Committee, Chairman Mr. F. S. Mansfield

The Association shows a steady growth, comprising at present about 134 members.

Routine business of the meeting was made as short as possible in order that ample time might be had for the presentation of a play by the High School Dramatic Society, after which refreshments were served and a social hour enjoyed.

Mr. Tompkins paid a high compliment to Betty Sweetser, under whose leadership, the Winchester High School Dramatic Society has made an enviable record during the winter season. Miss Sweetser stated that during the year one three-act play and five one-act plays had been given; that all expenses were paid; that back-drops for the stage had been provided at an expense of $210 and that there was still a surplus in the Treasury. Miss Sweetser has acted as Coach for the Society, under the supervision of Miss Weeks, their faculty adviser.

The interest in the organization is shown by the fact that its steadily increasing membership has reached its maximum this year and represents over 100 members or one fourth of the school.

COME! COME! COME!

Come to the Girl Scout Block "Aid" on June 1 at the Parker House on Main street, or use the Manchester road entrance, and see the handwork of our Winchester Girl Scouts.

Be prepared to stay for supper by purchasing your supper ticket, in advance for 60 cents, from any Girl Scout.

During the afternoon there will be a sale of cake, breads, candy, ice-cream and fancy articles; while the children will be entertained by pony rides, grabs, games and archery in charge of Mr. Jordan.

Mr. Jordan is an experienced Maine guide who is now residing at Cedar Hill, the Girl Scout Reservation, instructing scouts in iron work, making of bows and arrows, snow-shoes and other handcraft.

In the evening Winchester Girl Scout Drum and Bugle Corps will play and Mr. Jordan will tell tales of the woods and trails around the camp fire.

Don't miss this fine opportunity to see your Winchester Girl Scouts in action and to get acquainted with the Captains and members of the Council who are carrying on this work.

MOTHERS' ASSOCIATION ANNUAL GARDEN PARTY

Once a year, all members of the Mothers' Association, including every Chapter in the different schools, and the teachers as well, are invited to a social gathering at Mrs. Harrison Parker's 408 Main street.

This year the party will have a special significance, as it is to be an informal reception to two of our teachers who are leaving Winchester.

Miss Mason concluded her active service some years ago but her interest has continued and this past year she has again come in close touch with mothers and children, through her leadership of the Extension Service Department of the Mothers' Association.

Miss Hills will be deeply missed, as she seems a very vital part of the Wadleigh School.

Mothers of boys and girls who have come under her guidance in these past years are most cordially invited to take this opportunity to greet Miss Hills and to wish Godspeed to these friends.

Mothers may bring younger children as usual and the weatherman is promising a sunny day.

WOBURN DISTRICT COUNCIL OF RELIGIOUS EDUCATION

This Council is composed of the Protestant church schools in Winchester, Woburn, Stoneham, Reading, Wilmington and Burlington.

The convention theme was "The Needed Emphasis in Religious Education" and after the devotional period, led by Rev. H. W. Hook of the entertaining church a forum dealing with this theme was presided over by Rev. Miles W. Smith of Boston, who very ably handled it.

At the close of the forum there was a practical demonstration period with real classes conducted by the following teachers:

Primary Department, Miss Winifred Bent, Winchester
Junior Department, Miss Annie Murray, Woburn
Intermediate Department, Mrs. E. Hodges, Reading

These demonstrations were most instructive.

At the same time the officers of the council were in conference under the leadership of their President, Dr. Chas. F. Lancaster considering "The Future Policy of the Woburn District."

After a very fine supper served by the ladies of the entertaining church the evening program was opened by Miss Mary French in an organ recital which was greatly enjoyed by all.

Due to illness Dr. Walter S. Athearne, who was to have been the speaker, was unable to be present and while his absence was regretted the committee in charge was indeed fortunate in being able to secure instead Dr. Quay Roselle, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Malden who gave a very helpful message on the Convention theme.

President, Dr. Chas. F. Lancaster, Reading
1st Vice President, Rev. M. M. Thornburg, Stoneham
2nd Vice President, Rev. A. A. Simmons, Wilmington
3rd Vice President, Mr. Myron P. Peffers, Stoneham
Treasurer, Mr. C. S. Shelton, Burlington
Secretary, Miss Florence E. Plummer, Winchester

Departmental Superintendents

Children's Work, Miss Winifred Bent, Winchester
Young People's Work, Mr. Frank S. Adams, Woburn
Adult Work, Mr. Fred Bronson, Reading
Administration, Miss Annie G. Murray, Woburn

McNEIL LEADS HIGH SCHOOL BATTERS

Unofficial tabulations show that "Livin" McNeil, shortstop, is leading the Winchester High School baseball team with the stick, his average being .406. Cobb, first baseman, "Archa" Amico, pitcher and outfielder, "Howie" Smith, second baseman, are the only others who have played at all regularly to break .200. Most of the averages are ridiculously low and the figures show conclusively why the team has lost so regularly in the face of better than average pitching. McNeil has hit consistently since his insertion into the lineup following the Belmont game. Halwartz, despite his poor figures, has hit the ball hard but in wretched luck. Ghirardini in three games has hit at a .333 clip. The team has a grand average of .167. The figures follow:

MRS. GEORGE E. HENRY TO SPEAK

At Young People's Society, First Congregational Church

On Sunday evening at 6:30 in the vestry of the First Congregational Church, the Young People's Society of that church will hear Mrs. George E. Henry speak on, "The Morgan Memorial." Mrs. Henry is personally acquainted with the work of the Morgan Memorial among the poor of South Boston. In connection with the work of the Morgan Memorial, the work of the Goodwill Industries is especially interesting. Work is provided for those who can not find employment and the workshops of the Goodwill Industries provide remade and renovated clothing at very nominal prices for the poor of the district. This type of work is one of the practical demonstrations of the work of the Christian Church in Boston. The Morgan Memorial is inter-denominational in its scope and for that reason all young people in the town are invited to come to this meeting. It will be held at 7 o'clock in the vestry of the church.

M. C. W. G. NOTES

On last evening the first regular business meeting since the installation of officers for the ensuing year was held in K. of C. Hall.

Committees for the year were named and an outline of the program to be followed out was planned. In view of the many activities which are going on, it was the consensus of the meeting that several "Indoor Fetes" would better carry out the work of our Charitable Committee and dates were assigned to several of the members at which time they in turn will assume the role of hostess.

Plans were made for the placing of Memorial Wreaths or Baskets on the graves of our deceased members, as in previous years.

Notice of our next social meeting will appear in a later edition of the Star.

The Big Thrill

It was the ninth inning with a nothing to nothing score. There were two outs against the home team, and the umpire had called two strikes and three balls against the redoubtable Canavan. The pitcher calculated his distance, drew back his arm, and hurled his favorite in-curve. Canavan measured its approach with a keen eye and swung, putting all his strength behind it. Right on the nose! It sped toward the left field fence. The left fielder was running backwards. Would he make it, would he make it? The grandstand watched with open eyes and mouths.

"Look!" Myrtle grabbed her escort's arm and pointed a trembling finger. "Look at that pink and purple hat!"—Exchange.

Chats With YOUR Gas Man

ANCESTRAL—ALL BUT THE KITCHEN!

Much interest at the recent Sesqui-centennial centered around a faithful reproduction of Sulgrave Manor, the old home in England where the ancestors of Washington resided. In every detail the quaint manor house was just as it was originally, but it yielded to the present in the point of the kitchen stove. That was an up-to-date gas range, oven heat regulator and all!

This is but one indication of the home-furnishing trend of the time. We favor English, old Spanish, early American decorative motifs for most of the house, but when it comes to the kitchen there's nothing revived there. It's purely modern. And for good reason. No matter how picturesque the great open fireplace with its iron kettle for heating water and its coals for baking, there's not a housewife in the land who'd want to trade her up-to-date gas water heater and modern gas range for that sort of early equipment.

And of course it's no wonder at all to the thousands of women who have gas appliances in their own homes and know what burdens it bears, what drudgery it banishes.

Why we sell the DUNLOP TIRE

Take the hidden carcass beneath the tread. Dunlop owns its own cotton mills for no other purpose than to spin the best long-fibre cotton into the famous cable-twist cord that goes into this carcass.

The extra strength in these cords means an added factor of safety against constant load and pounding of roads—longer life and greater mileage.

The extra "stretch" enables the carcass to give under severe blows, and to come back into its original position without internal injury.

The Dunlop tread—the toughest rubber development known—wears slowly and smoothly, making sure that you get out of your Dunlops, all the extra mileage that added care and longer experience have built into them. We recommend that you put Dunlops on your car.

DO NOT NEGLECT HEADACHES

"A headache is a warning and it should not be neglected or drugged" says Dr. Merrill Champion of the State Department of Public Health.

"The occasional headache means that something has gone wrong. It is not serious in itself but if neglected may become so. General health habits should be checked over and the cause found.

Headaches caused by overeating can usually be cured by drinking plenty of water and omitting meals until the appetite has returned and the headache gone.

Headaches often mean constipation and are a warning that poisons are being absorbed throughout the body. The diet should be readjusted and a laxative used for immediate results.

Many headaches are caused by fatigue or eye strain. In both cases rest is the right remedy.

In hot weather headaches may be caused by over-exposure to the sun. Resting in cool places is far better than a dose of medicine.

The usual practice of deadening the pain of headaches with drugs is harmful and should never be done unless prescribed by a physician. Drugs do not remove the cause of the trouble and if used too frequently are harmful to the heart or kidneys.

In the case of chronic headaches that appear repeatedly over a long length of time and headaches that are one of several symptoms of an acute disease, such as scarlet fever, a doctor should always be consulted. The condition is serious and should receive prompt attention."

Macksey of Norwood street, was one of the class of 27 candidates upon whom Cardinal O'Connell conferred the major order of deacon last Thursday morning at St. John's Seminary, Brighton. The ceremony took place in the seminary chapel and the Cardinal was assisted by the Rev. Charles A. Finn, rector of the seminary, and the Rev. Dr. Joseph Walsh, professor of canon law.

MEMORIAL DAY PLANS ANNOUNCED

Plans for the Town's observance of Memorial Day as recently announced show no material change from those of other years excepting that the program has been curtailed by the omission of the exercises which have been held in the evening. These exercises, which in past years have included a speaker and music, have been poorly attended and a year ago were given up in favor of a band concert. On next Monday the program of events will be concluded with the return parade from Wildwood.

The annual Union Memorial Service will be held on Sunday afternoon at 5 o'clock in the Methodist Episcopal Church with an address by the pastor, Rev. H. W. Hook. The public is cordially invited and urged to join with the veterans in this service.

On Memorial Day the program will open with the usual parade to Calvary Cemetery in East Woburn where the soldier graves will be decorated and services conducted by the Rev. Fr. John Sullivan of St. Mary's Church. Returning to the Town Hall luncheon will be served to the participants by a caterer at noon.

Of especial interest this year will be the dedication of the recently completed Memorial Room in the Legion Room which will take place at 1:45 in the afternoon.

The afternoon parade starts from the Legion House at 2:30 and will proceed via the old route of Washington, Main, Church and Wildwood streets to Wildwood Cemetery where services will be held as usual. Rev. George Hale Reed, pastor of the Unitarian Church, will deliver the address.

The tentative roster of the parade includes:

FAY PLACED IN INTERCOLLEGIATES

Marshall Fay of this town seems to be following closely in the footsteps of several other Winchester boys who have made track history at Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Last Saturday in the New England Inter-Collegiate Track and Field Games held on the Bowdoin College track at Brunswick, Me., Fay finished fourth in the half-mile run which was won by "Luke" McCloskey of Boston College in the fast time of 1 minute and 55 seconds, equalling the New England record.

Fay has been showing unusually good form in the half-mile this spring and has scored points in all but one of Tech's dual meets. Winchester boys have played quite a part in making track history at the Institute in recent years. "Charlie" Thompson and George Cummings were letter men in the quarter mile, hurdles and relay teams at the Back Bay college while a bit later the Guething boys, Hervey and "Cy," made brilliant records at the middle distances for the engineers. Dwight Thompson was another who showed great promise as a half miler at Technology but left college at the end of his sophomore year.

ENGAGEMENT OF MISS MARJORIE ORDWAY ANNOUNCED

At a party on May 21, at the home of her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Clarence E. Ordway, Miss Marjorie Ordway announced her engagement to Mr. Lawrence Stetson Martin of Melrose, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. Howard Martin.

The invitations to the party were for a bridge to meet Miss Marjorie Ellis of Montclair, N. J. and all were completely surprised when the engagement was announced.

The guest of honor wore a blue printed crepe dress with a bouquet of roses and sweet peas and Miss Ordway wore a dress of midnight blue silk lace and crepe de chine with a lovely orchid on the shoulder.

The engagement was announced in a most ingenious manner. Three friends of Miss Ordway distributed tea napkins rolled into invitation engagement rings and inside these were pictures of the fiance.

GIRL SCOUT COUNCIL MEETING

Following the precedent so agreeably established last year, the Council's annual meeting was held at Cedar Hill on May 21. Sixteen council members, six captains and one scout enjoyed the luncheon which preceeded the business session, called to order at 2 o'clock by Commissioner Snyder.

Mrs. Wadsworth for the Cedar Hill committee reported that on Oct. 15, at Cedar Hill, Winchester will have charge of the popcorn and apple table. Mrs. Crowell, for the court of awards committee presented a splendid list of experts to examine the girls in the different subjects. The reports of the various troop captains was as always of great interest and demonstrated the splendid calibre of our captains and scouts.

An unusual feature of the meeting and one which met with decided approval was the reading of a report of the girls' conference at Newton Jan. 7 by scout delegate Marie Dresser. The report of the nominating committee was accepted and secretary cast one ballot for the officers and members. A letter was read from Mrs. Clarke, chairman of the Legion fair committee requesting our participation in its fair on June 11. The meeting adjourned at 3:30. The cabin was inspected and all commented favorably upon it and its location.

SURPRISE FOR REGENT

Mrs. Michael C. Ambrose, Regent of Winchester Branch, Massachusetts Catholic Women's Guild, was tendered a surprise reception in Knights of Columbus clubhouse, Friday night, by a large group of friends, many of them members of the Women's Guild.

Mrs. Ambrose has been for many years a leader in Catholic charitable and social activities in Winchester and has taken a prominent part in the affairs of the Catholic Women's Guild in Greater Boston.

The reception was held as a mark of the esteem in which Mrs. Ambrose is held by the Catholic women of the town and in appreciation for her untiring efforts to further the works of Catholic social and religious organizations.

Mrs. Josephine V. Kane of Cambridge, formerly of this town, presented Mrs. Ambrose with a purse of gold and a huge bouquet of flowers on behalf of those present. Mrs. Ambrose responded to the presentation with fitting remarks of appreciation for the tokens of esteem.

Mrs. Eugene Davidson of Medford and Mrs. Anne DeCourcey spoke briefly on the many years of endeavor in behalf of Catholic organizations by Mrs. Ambrose.

There were solos by Mrs. Mary McGrath, Mrs. Mary Studley of Woburn and Miss Helen Carroll. A specialty dance was given by Mrs. Davidson McDonald of Cambridge. Dancing was also enjoyed.

SPEED BOAT RACES JUNE 17th

The speed boat regatta to be held in Dorchester Bay and which is creating great interest among all lovers of this sport throughout greater Boston will provide two days of racing on June 17 and 18. The event is not run for profit, but for the general good of yachting and particularly speed boat racing in this section.

The course will run from a point off Castle Island, by the steel pier at City Point, to a point in midchannel off Thompson's Island, then by the grandstand on Thompson's and Spectacle Islands back to Castle Island, and repeat.

The races may be seen from the Columbia road boulevard, the steel pier at City Point and Castle Island. Grand stand facilities will be provided at Thompson's Island and a charge will be made to cover ferryage and other expenses.

Entries have been received as far away as Florida and Los Angeles. Miss America IV and V, two of the fastest boats afloat, will race. See-Me-Go, a very fast outboard type from Florida is also entered and the Esmaral III is coming by way of the Panama Cnaal from Los Angeles.

NEVA W. MacLELLAN

Neva W. MacLellan, widow of Albert E. MacLellan and formerly for many years a well known resident of Winchester, passed away Sunday, May 22 at the Newton Hospital, following a brief illness.

Mrs. MacLellan was 55 years of age and was born in Winchester, the daughter of former Patrolman and Mrs. Thomas I. Dotten. She was educated in the Winchester schools and will be remembered by many of the older residents of the town. Following the death of her husband about 11 years ago she removed to Auburndale and had since made her home there on Central street.

Surviving besides her father are a daughter, Mrs. Howard Walter of Melrose, and two sons, Norman and Donald MacLellan, both of Auburndale. Three sisters, Mrs. H. B. Lawrence of Melrose and Mrs. Annie Singer and Mrs. Edward Gage, both of Auburndale, also survive her.

The funeral services were held on Tuesday afternoon at the late residence. Interment was in Wildwood Cemetery.

THE FORTNIGHTLY NOTES

The following ladies of the Winchester Fortnightly were asked by Mrs. Frank Stewart, Chairman of Art of the State Federation of Women's Clubs, to send exhibits to the Arts and Handicrafts Exhibition given at the annual meeting of the State Federation at the New Ocean House, Swampscott, May 17, 18 and 19.

Mrs Wellington Several pieces of needlepoint.

These exhibits received a great deal of attention. Miss Deborah Gilbert, a Winchester High School student, made the poster for the State Federation Arts and Handicrafts Exhibition.

The proper disposal of trash wherever you picnic or camp. Mar not the beauty of the landscape.

ADOPT RESOLUTIONS UPON RESIGNATION OF WADLEIGH TEACHER

WHEREAS it has come to the knowledge of this assembly that Miss Mary J. Hills has decided to retire from her life-long work of teaching at the end of the present school year, and

WHEREAS the record which she has achieved during the past 27 years in the Wadleigh School is so unusual and noteworthy, and

WHEREAS this assembly comprises parents, teachers and pupils who have all been associated with Miss Hills in her chosen work and who represent the still larger number who have been so associated through nearly three decades,

NOW THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED: That we, the parents, teachers and pupils here assembled, do hereby express our regret that Miss Hills has felt it necessary to retire from the active pursuit of her profession. We deeply appreciate her many years of faithful service, the high quality of her teaching and the refining influence of her personality and character in the class room. We sincerely hope that she will go forward into many happy and useful years to come with the memory of pleasant associations and the consciousness of valuable work admirably done.

VOTED: That this resolution be spread on the records of the Wadleigh Parent-Teacher Association, that a copy be sent by the Secretary to Miss Hills, and that it be published in the Winchester Star.

"B" RATE EXPLAINED

Low Electric Rate for Domestic Refrigeration and Cooking Now Available

The Edison Electric Illuminating Company is now issuing an interesting booklet which explains in full detail the so-called "B" rate for electric current. This is the classified area rate now obtainable for customers of the Edison Company using home refrigeration and cooking, when all the current is taken through one meter. The Edison Company adopted the "B" rate after full study and investigation, feeling that their customers would be interested in availing themselves of the increased comfort and economy of electric refrigeration and cooking.

A copy of the "B" rate booklet may be had by calling at the local Edison Shop or writing the Edison Electric Illuminating Company at their main office, 39 Boylston street, Boston.

WINCHESTER DROPPED ANOTHER TO MELROSE

Winchester High lost another tough game in its Mystic Valley League series last Saturday afternoon at Melrose, being defeated by Melrose High, 4—2. The game was an interesting one to watch and early developed into a pitching duel between Harris of Melrose and "Lefty" Hatch of the locals. Both pitched good ball, getting 10 batters on strikes and passing one. Harris hit Ambrose of Winchester twice.

The locals had several good opportunities to win the ball game but were unable to connect when hits would have meant runs. Despite the fact that Melrose made 7 errors during the afternoon its club was the steadier and on the whole better able to make the most of its chances.

Winchester went out in front in the opening frame. Halwartz fanned for a starter, but Cobb got a life when K. Harris failed to recover his drive in time to make the throw at first. The runner made second unmolested and took third on Taylor's long fly to center. McNeil hit sharply to J. Harris and was credited with a hit despite the latter's wild heave to first on which Cobb counted. K. Harris threw out Ghirardini.

Melrose tallied in the third. Pipe fanned but McHugh singled to right and made second on K. Harris's rap to Halwartz. When Cobb mussed up Ray's throw McHugh made third and Harris second, both scoring on Dwyer's single to left. The latter stole second but was out trying to purloin third, Taylor to Halwartz. Keady fanned.

Another Melrose run trickled over in the 4th. After Armstrong had fanned J. Harris singled to left and made second unmolested. He went to third on a passed ball and scored when Taylor lost the third strike on Giovino. The latter made second on Ross's fly to left, but Pipe fanned to end the inning.

The locals counted in the 5th. Hatch popped up to Pipe but Halwartz singled to left. Cobb rapped to Pipe and the latter threw wildly trying to force Halwartz at second, Ray making third and Cobb second. While Ross in right was booting the ball around Halwartz counted and Cobb made third. J. Harris threw out Taylor and McNeil fanned with the tying run on third.

The home club made its final run in the 6th. Keady doubled to left for a starter and was sacrificed to third by Armstrong, Hatch to Cobb. J. Harris scored Keady with a one-shot to left and was sacrificed to second by Giovino, Hatch again getting the assist. Ross lifted to Ambrose for the final out. Winchester had men on in each of the succeeding frames but was unable to get them over.

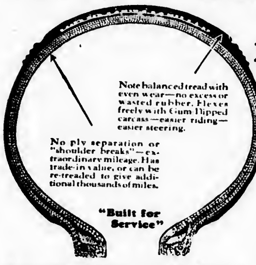
GUM-DIPPED TIRES



Note balanced tread with even wear—no excess or wasted rubber. Flexes freely with Gum-Dipped carcass—easier riding—easier steering.
No ply separation or "shoulder breaks"—extraordinary mileage. Has trade-in value, or can be re-treaded to give additional thousands of miles.

Firestone Round Tread Balloon

MANY Firestone Dealers are prepared to take in your old tires, offering you a liberal allowance on a new set of Gum-Dipped Balloons.

Firestone Dealers are given the advantages of attending Tire Educational Meetings held throughout the country, where tire design and construction are discussed. The sections of used tires reproduced here are a part of this program. Study these two sections and you, too, will understand what Firestone means by tires built for service and tires made to sell.

The Firestone Gum-Dipped Balloon with its scientifically designed tread permits free flexing, easier riding, extra comfort and safety.

The balloon tire with heavy, flat tread design is obviously stiffer and rides harder. The excess rubber, placed for appearance at the edges of the tread, is not only wasted but produces hinging action causing ply separation and "shoulder breaks."

Firestone designed and manufactures Oldfield Tires and Tubes, distributing them direct to Firestone Dealers only, through 148 Factory Warehouses. This efficient and economical distribution assures tire buyers everywhere, clean, fresh stocks of Firestone and Oldfield Tires in all types and sizes, and has helped to make possible today's remarkably low prices—the lowest in tire history. BASEL: SWITZERLAND'S FIRST AND ONLY PORT

Basel threatens to banish a good geographic joke which everyone knows.

I'm going to join the navy, the vaudeville comedian declares.

You are going to join the navy? queries the second. "What navy?"

The Swiss Navy. (laughter and applause).

Switzerland has at Basel a merchant marine, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society, although it has not yet added a navy.

The Swiss Mercantile Marine has been a prominent feature of the Swiss Industries Fair now being held in Basel, continues the bulletin. Alpine guides, cheese makers and watchmakers have their chance now to go down to the sea in ships.

On the Way to the Alps by Canoe

Basel (pronounced without the 's, like the unit of compressed hay with the "a" broadened slightly) stands Colossus-like, with a foot on each bank of the Rhine where that river leaves Switzerland. An enterprising American doing Europe in a canoe must exhibit his Swiss vise at Basel on his way up the Rhine. Such a canoeist would be first to see how engineering has made Basel a port.

Boats and barges coming up the Rhine emerge into the large inner harbor at Basel which has been completed at the cost of $1,650,000. Overhead cranes swing buckets of wheat out of barge holds. Ore trains move into position along the quay. In one recent year 280,000 tons of imports and exports were moved by water in this harbor. If the Rhine Commission established by the Versailles Treaty will improve the Rhine channel, guaranteeing a 6½ foot depth the year around, Basel merchants claim they can do a 2,000,000-ton freight business by water annually.

Unless one is a shipper, a buyer of silk ribbon, dyes or chemicals, a lover of Holbein's art, or unless one is writing a thesis on Erasmus, he might better visit Geneva or Zurich than Basel. Trade has put its mark upon Basel. Trade has given it a population of 135,000 and more millionaires (in francs) than any other city of Switzerland. Trade and lack of Alps on its doorstep, has saved it from, or denied to it, (depending on the point of view) tourists. Sightseers hurry on to Lausanne, St. Moritz and Lugano.

Basel Worthies In Your Living Room

The time to have visited Basel was in the heyday of Columbus, Balboa and Magellan. At the beginning of the 16th century three masters of three arts; literature, painting and printing, lived at Basel and lent their genius to joint enterprise. They were Hans Holbein, the younger, the painter; Erasmus, the Bernard Shaw of his day, and Froben, the master printer.

Not one of them became rich. Erasmus thought he was well off when an Englishman settled 20 pounds ($100) a year on him! A single copy of Erasmus' "Paraphrases" published by Froben sold in an American book auction recently for $210. Froben brought Holbein to the city to decorate his books. Once in Basel, Holbein branched out into portraiture and altar decoration. The local Public Art Gallery treasures many of Holbein's works. The art world's estimation of him may be judged by the price of $3,750 paid recently for one of the few Holbeins in the United States.

Yet it is simpler to introduce an American to Holbein than any other member of Basel's trio. What art store, indeed, is so poor as not to offer for sale a Holbein print? Usually the print is a side face sketch of a plump German, done without color except for a tinge of pink on the cheek and a bit of blue in the eyes. Holbein's men usually wear tams sliding rakishly over one ear. His genius lay in his ability to pack a person's character into a line. So for a few dollars anyone may buy the burgomaster, his wife, a dandy of the town, Erasmus himself, or Holbein's son, and enjoy the hearty companionship of these Basel worthies in one's own living room.

Basel, Basle, Bale and Basilea

Rivalry of certain twin cities of the United States has its counterpart in Basel. Since the Rhine divides the city, the left bank takes the title Gross Basel while the right bank must be Klein Basel. Bad feeling existed between the Basels, Klein and Gross, in times past. An ingenious artist of Gross Basel carved a figure, still to be seen in the museum of the famous University of Basel, which put out its tongue and rolled its eyes in derision at Klein Basel from an advantageous position on the bridge.

Like most Swiss towns Basel has many spellings. The German spelling, Basel, is most acceptable because the town lies within the German-speaking cantons of Switzerland. Some English maps spell it Basle. In French Basel is Bale. In Italian Basel is Basilea.

A Lecture
on Christian Science
Entitled
Christian Science: The Understanding of Love by
John Randall Dunn, C. S. B.
Boston, Massachusetts
Member of the Board of Lectureship of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

Friends:

In the fifth chapter of the Gospel according to St. Mark, we find an account of a woman who had been a bodily sufferer for many years. She had sought relief through material means of various kinds, but in spite of her efforts she was not healed, but "rather grew worse." It was only when she came to Jesus and showed her faith in Him that her infirmity left her. Her case was only one of a very great many that were healed by the same means, for the Bible tells us that frequently the people would bring to Him all their relatives and friends who were sick and He healed them every one.

Christian Science is effecting cures today in many thousands of cases in the same divine manner in which Christ Jesus healed the sick. Our revered leader, Mary Baker Eddy, has recorded in her text book, Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures, the rules which govern this method of healing and they are just as effective now as they were 1900 years ago. People are turning to Christian Science in great numbers after having found that all material means had failed and are receiving the help so much needed.

That this truth might be more widely known, Mrs. Eddy in her inspired wisdom established the Board of Lectureship of the Mother Church, the First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston. We are to have the pleasure of hearing one of the members of that Board talk to us on Christian Science. It gives me great pleasure to introduce to you Mr. John Randall Dunn, C.S.B., of Boston.

Let me say at the outset that the purpose of a Christian Science lecturer is not to attack another's religion; nor does a student of Christian Science ever wish to force his views upon his neighbor. But, assuming that your presence here today indicates a desire on your part to give this great subject an impartial hearing, I am happy to assure you that my pleasant task is merely to tell you the truth about Christian Science the truth about its Discoverer, its promise, its methods, and its accomplishments, and thereby to remove some of the popular misconceptions of its teachings which are abroad in the land today.

Ridiculous Misconceptions

We hear, even at this enlightened moment the most extraordinary statements about Christian Science. Just recently a man told me that he understands that Christian Science teaches a man in financial trouble to "imagine he has a million dollars," and his worries will be over! Then, too, there is the widely proclaimed fallacy that the Christian Scientist does absolutely nothing for a sick man, and in addition to such negligence, makes matters worse by bidding the sufferer to imagine himself well, and he will be well. One hardly need say to a body of thinking men and women that such concepts are absolutely erroneous, and sound as absurd to the student of Christian Science as to the outsider. It will probably be of interest to many to know that possibly no word occurs less frequently in the Christian Science literature, or in the conversation of the informed student of this Science, than the word "imagine." In the Christian Science textbook we find that it appears only five times. A Christian Scientist is more concerned with the little word "know" for he learns that it is only that which he knows that does things; in fact, that which he knows of truth, according to the Scriptures, is that which will make him free.

MEMORIAL DAY OBSERVED

Plans Ran Off Smoothly—Legion Memorial Room Dedicated—Fine Weather Helped

Blue skies and weather neither too warm nor too cool added much to Winchester's observance of Memorial Day and for the first time in several years plans for the tribute to its soldier dead could be carried out according to schedule.

The program of events began as usual with the Union Memorial Service which was held this year on last Sunday afternoon at 5 o'clock in the Methodist Episcopal Church. Members of Winchester Post, American Legion with representatives of the G. A. R. and John T. Wilson Camp, Sons of Veterans attended the service with their colors.

Rev. H. W. Hook, pastor of the church, was the speaker, taking as his topic, "The Spirit of the Boys in Blue." In the course of his address Mr. Hook interpreted the manner in which the spirit of the Boys of '61 manifested itself in the veterans of the Spanish-American War and later in so great measure in the khaki clad boys who fought on the stricken fields of Belgium and France.

The first manifestation was in the way all discriminated between issues and individuals and the second, the passion to defend the weak which was noticeable in all three wars. The third manifestation was the loyalty to every one of our American institutions and the fourth, the uncompromising attitude toward evil. The final manifestation was in the dependence of all upon the Almighty for guidance and help.

On the morning of Memorial Day the program of events was ushered in with the placing of a wreath upon the honor roll in front of the Town Hall. At 10 o'clock the parade formed at the Legion House for the march to Calvary Cemetery where the graves of the soldier dead had been decorated with flags the day previous by Stanley W. Mobbs, representing the Legion, and Thomas H. Barrett, representing the Sons of Veterans. It is estimated that 140 men were in line in the morning, an unusually good showing.

The roster of the parade included motorcycle officer Edward O'Connell, mounted officer Edward Shea, police escort, Sergt. Thomas Cassidy commanding; Winchester Post, A. L. Band; Commdr. Arthur S. Harris of Winchester Post, A. L. and staff; massed colors, Winchester Post, A. L.; A. D. Weld Post, G. A. R., and John T. Wilson Camp, Sons of Veterans and guard; Legion firing squad, Stanley W. Mobbs commanding; Legion Army detachment, Marshall England commanding; Legion Naval Detachment, Kenneth Caldwell commanding; Sons of Veterans, St. Mary's Fife and Drum Corps, Thomas Dolan drum-major; and police rear guard.

Arriving at Calvary the graves there were decorated, those of World War Veterans by a Legion detail in charge of George Barbaro and those of the Grand Army by the Sons of Veterans. The formal services were held at the Knights of Columbus Stone and were conducted by the Rev. Fr. John Sullivan of St. Mary's Church. The latter spoke briefly and effectively, pointing out the lesson which all may learn from the devotion to duty of our honored dead and how their example should be an inspiration to those left behind to "carry on."

At the conclusion of Fr. Sullivan's address the firing squad fired three volleys an taps were blown by a trumpeter. On the return march to the Legion House the procession halted at Leonard Field where a wreath was placed upon the memorial tablet there.

Luncheon was served at noon in the Town Hall, members of the Grand Army and Town Officials being guests of honor.

At 1:45 the afternoon's program was begun with the dedication of the Memorial Room in the Legion Club House. This room is in effect a shrine to the veterans of the great war, containing as it does photographs of the 18 Winchester boys who made the supreme sacrifice in the world conflict. There is also an inscribed tablet and beautiful silk flag while upon a table is a book containing the Legion honor roll. On Memorial Day this table was decorated with two vases of roses, the gift of Mr. Jere Downs.

The affair was the biggest event of a like nature ever held in Winchester. Although about 550 sat down to the banquet which preceded the meeting at 7:45, a larger number was only excluded through lack of seating capacity. As it was, every part of the large and small hall was used, and the catering, planned for this floor, was all done from the basement. The banquet and music were thoroughly in keeping with the importance of the affair, and the committee in charge spared no effort in entertainment.

NOT FAIR TO LOCAL OFFICE

Winchester, Mass.
May 27, 1927

To the Editor of the Star:

I think your editorials in the "Star" relating to postal service between Boston and Winchester are not fair to the local office. You have many times assured me that said editorials were not intended as reflections on the service at this office, that you did not think the trouble was here, that as a matter of fact, that you knew it was not here, but in Boston. Your editorial of May 27 is decidedly unjust and not in accordance with your former statements and usual impartiality. To quote from this editorial in part: "Five days for an insured package last week! Has the Government provided sufficient storage space in the new postoffice now creeping up on Thompson street?"

To the ordinary reader, to one unacquainted with the facts, the above would certainly give the impression that this office was not delivering parcels promptly. Otherwise, why the reference to "storge space?" I challenge you, or any citizen of the Town, or any Postal Inspector, to find in this office, at any time, any mail that has been unduly delayed through the fault of this office. We will be very much pleased, to have you or the public in general, come to this office and see how we handle and deliver the mail.

In your particular case, we have many times, given you special personal service in order to deliver packages which we knew you were awaiting. We have done this, not only for you, but for many other citizens of the Town. The package which we presume instigated the editorial referred to, arrived at this office Saturday afternoon about 3 o'clock and was immediately "back-stamped" to show time of arrival. As your place of business closes at noon Saturdays, naturally the package could not be delivered until Monday.

Why give the public the impression that we are to blame for the sins of others? Why not give us a fair show and stop "knocking" the Winchester Postoffice, and the next time your mail is delayed, come over and let us prove to you that the fault is not ours?

Respectfully,
G. H. Lochman, Postmaster

W. C. T. U. NOTES

The 51st anniversary of the local Woman's Christian Temperance Union was celebrated by a luncheon held in the vestry of the Methodist Church on Friday, May 27. Mrs. Frank Roberts, Mrs. A. P. Welburn and Mrs. James Blair headed the committee of arrangements. At the close of the luncheon the President, Mrs. Geo. Hamilton introduced Mrs. Alice G. Ropes, President of Massachusetts W. C. T. U., who gave a very interesting and instructive talk on the work and urged all present who were not members to join the ranks of the "white ribbon army." Rev. Henry W. Crane, pastor of the Methodist Church in Malden gave a very spirited address. He claimed on good authority that in 39 states in the Union no avowedly wet candidate could run for any national political office.

Mrs. Helen E. Barr sang a group of songs in her own inimitable manner.

Mrs. Ella A. Gleason presented the following resolution which was adopted:

"Whereas, the government now has in its possession 13,000,000 gallons of whiskey available for medicinal use, with withdrawals of less than 2,000,000 gallons a year, be it resolved, that we protest against the order which, according to the press, is about to be given to the department of the treasury concerning the establishment of five corporations to manufacture whiskey. At present this manufacture is unnecessary and it might also pave the way for government control. Be it further resolved, that a copy of this resolution be sent at once to President Coolidge and Secretary Mellon."

ROAD TERM FOR EVERY DRUNKEN AUTOIST

Getting drunk and taking to the roads in a car will mean taking to the roads in another form when the driver is brought before Judge T. B. Finley in Superior Court from now on, the jurist announced during court yesterday.

No more fines and suspended sentences are left in the judge's box of prescriptions for drunken drivers, he indicates. From now on shoveling dirt across ditches will replace shoving money across the court clerk's desk.

"It makes no difference whether they are the most prominent people in this city, or the lowest. Everyone brought before me on this charge will go to the chain gang," he declared.

"The lives of people have been endangered long enough by these drunken drivers, and I shall deal heavily with them in the future," the judge concluded.—[Charlotte Observer, N C

PROTECT YOURSELF AGAINST TYPHOID

"Every person drinking from a roadside stream or spring or taking raw uncertified milk is running a chance of getting typhoid" warns Dr. Merrill Champion of the State Department of Public Health.

"Spring and summer are the seasons for motoring and each year we are faced with the danger of typhoid. The disease may be contracted by drinking polluted water, eating raw foods that have been exposed to flies or careless handling.

To play safe all motorists, travellers and campers are urged to use only such water as comes from the city or town supplies. Carry it with you. If too far from the regular supply, water from a nearby brook or well may be used if it is boiled.

Drink only pasteurized or certified milk.

Avoid raw food if there is any question of its source or possibility of unclean handling.

The only sure way of dodging the menace of the typhoid carrier is to be vaccinated against typhoid. Everyone who eats away from home runs the risk of coming into contact with the typhoid carrier. The only people who are immune to this disease are those who have already had the disease. All others should be vaccinated. This vaccination consists of three inoculations. This gives one a reasonable protection for a period of two or three years but all persons travelling a great deal who are likely to be exposed frequently should have this inoculation repeated each year."

PROTESTS AGAINST B. & M. ELECTRICAL DEVICES

To the Editor of the Star:

Allow me the space in your paper to enter my protest against the electrical device the Boston & Maine officials propose to install at our grade crossing. To do away with our gate tenders is to endanger the lives of hundreds of school children.

Thirty years ago one of my sons on his way from school was killed instantly. The gates at that time were short ones and anyone could walk through. The Boston & Maine officials didn't even ask if he was dead. They did, however, put in new gates; this time they had them long enough to come together.

Last June another one of my sons was killed near the station and once more the Boston & Maine officials never inquired about the accident. His death was a terrible loss, as he left two motherless children. True he stepped on the fence and jumped right in the path of an incoming train, but like the short gates of 30 years ago, we have a short fence. Although it was built for public protection why not build it high enough so people couldn't jump over it, or not have it there at all.

If so much can happen with protection, what will it be depending on an electrical device and praying the signals will work.

With so many fast trains passing through our centre I hope the town officials won't allow any more killing. The gate tenders are sure very much on their job and are always watching people who attempt to cross when the gates are down.

HARLOW—THUMIM

Winchester Girl Charming Bride At Naval Wedding

Miss Natalie Thumim, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Thumim of Sheffield road and Ensign James Bradford Harlow, United States Navy, of the U. S. S. Florida, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Bradford Harlow of Warren street, West Medford, were married on Saturday evening at 8 o'clock at the First Congregational Church, the ceremony being the first naval wedding in this town in a long time and the most interesting of the late spring weddings. The ceremony was attended by society from Winchester and Medford, many naval and army officers and notable guests from numerous distant cities.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Howard J. Chidley, pastor of the church, the edifice being decorated for the occasion with palms, ferns and lillies. From four to five hundred guests attended the wedding. The organist was G. Wallace Woodworth.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, made a most charming picture. She wore a dress of satin trimmed with rare Brussels lace, and her veil was an exquisite piece of the same lace. She carried a bouquet of roses and sweet peas and wore a spray of orange blossoms fastened in her veil.

Miss Charlotte Healey was maid of honor, wearing pink and blue taffeta and carrying pink roses and larkspur. Little Jeanne Anne Thumim, sister of the bride, was the flower girl, dressed in pink and carrying a basket of rose buds. F. Webster Harlow of West Medford, the groom's brother, was best man.

The simple ceremony was most impressive, especially when the couple left the altar and waked beneath the crossed swords of the officers of Ensign Harow's ship. These officers, who also acted as ushers, both at the ceremony and reception, were Ensign C. E. Tolman, Jr., of Concord, Ensign D. M. Allgood of North Carolina, Ensign J. F. Delaney of Medford and Ensign J. W. Wetlings of Boston.

The reception following the ceremony was very brilliant, attended by about 250, with many navy and army guests. The house was a bower of cut flowers, with pink and red roses and pink and white sweet peas predominating.

Ensign and Mrs. Harlow are spending their honeymoon on a motor trip, first attending the commencement exercises at Annapolis. They will make their home in New London, receiving after Aug. 1. Many beautiful gifts were received from a host of friends, including the automobile in which they are taking their wedding trip.

Mrs. Harlow attended the Walnut Hill School and is a graduate of Miss Lee's School, class of '26. Ensign Harlow graduated from the Naval Academy in 1925.

GRANADA ATTRACTIONS

Leon Errol, most famous of Broadway's funsters, is appearing at the beautiful Granada Theatre in Malden today and Saturday in his new cinema hit "A Lunatic at Large." The picture opened to capacity houses yesterday and every person agreed that it is one of the funniest farces ever filmed. Dorothy Mackaill, who is soon to be a featured star, appears in the leading feminine role. In addition to its hilarious comedy moments there is an eye-soothing episode from "Louis the XIVth," in which Errol ws being starred on Broadway as the picture was filmed. Five acts of high class vaudeville will also be presented in addition to the feature, together with specialties by the Granada Symphony Orchestra and Roy Frazee, organist.

Chalk up another winner for Elinor Glyn. Right on top of her sensation, "It," Madam Glyn comes to the fore with another knockout. This time it is "Ritzy" starring petite Betty Bronson, which the Granada will present for three days starting next Monday.

"Ritzy" is a brilliant comedy, tinged with satire, and strung together by a thread of romantic drama. It combines the romance of a title-hunting heiress with the hilarity that ensues when she ritzes a real duke in favor of a false masquerader. Miss Bronson is the same sweet Betty who captivated in "Peter Pan." James Hall and William Austin, are the leading men.

Will anyone who is willing to give or to help at the tables please notify Mrs. W. I. Thompson, Win. 1659.

On Wednesday, June 12, from 3:30 to 5:30, the Art Committee will give a Rose Tea to the members of the Fortnightly at the home of Mrs. Dorothy M. Wills, 238 Highland avenue. In case of rain, the tea will be postponed until the following Wednesday, June 22.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED

PAST WEEK-END NOTED SEVERAL AUTO MISHAPS

Seven automobile accidents were recorded in Winchester over the past week-end and holiday, the greatest number for a like period in some time. At 10:45 Saturday morning headquarters was notified of an accident on Wildwood street at the corner of Wedgemere avenue. Officer Donaghey was sent to investigate and found that a Studebaker coupe, owned by Geoffrey C. Neiley of 62 Yale street and operated by his wife, Mrs. Marion R. Neiley, had crashed into an electric light pole, breaking the latter short off. The accident occurred when Mrs. Neiley somehow lost control of her car while going west on Wildwood street. A little child who was riding in the machine with Mrs. Neiley was cut by flying glass and was treated by Dr. F. R. Brown. The left front side of the car was damaged.

Four other accidents occurred on Saturday. Early in the afternoon three persons were injured when an automobile, the property of the 20th Century System of 79 Providence street, Boston, and operated by John Roach of 26 Park road, Belmont, crashed into a telegraph pole at Main and Hill streets. Roach and two companions, Albert Sause of 361 Broadway, Somerville and Miss Anna Warren of 23 Linden street, Charlestown, suffered cuts and bruises and were treated by Dr. Milton J. Quinn.

As Henry J. Haley of 138 Jackson street, Lynn, was driving a Buick coupe from Wildwood street onto Church street to go east, his machine was in collision with a Hudson sedan, owned by E. Frank Ward of 141 Theodore Parker road, West Roxbury and driven by John J. Stanton of 394 Commonwealth avenue, Boston. Stanton was headed west on Church street at the time of the collision which damaged both machines. The Buick had to be towed to the Central Garage.

At 4:55 Saturday afternoon as Harry A. Gardner of 49 Myrtle terrace was driving his Ford coupe into Manchester Field where a baseball game was in progress the machine struck John Edwards, 9, son of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Edwards of Thompson street. The little boy was knocked down and partially run over. He was picked up by Patrolman James Farrell of the police and taken to his home in Gardner's car by Sergeant William Rogers. Later he was treated by a physician. His injuries were not reported as serious.

Shortly after midnight Saturday an Essex coach, owned by Sonie Logan of 68 Irving street and operated by Albert H. Nunley of the same address, was in collision with a Buick sedan driven by Alonzo Nicholas of 59 Yale street at the corner of Washington and Mt. Vernon streets. The Essex was headed north while the Buick was going west on Mt. Vernon street. The machines were damaged.

Sunday evening at 8:45 a Chandler touring car owned by Raymond Gullard of Somerville and operated by Henry A. Peno of 96 Concord avenue, Somerville, was in collision on Main street near the center with an electric car of the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway which was in charge of Conductor H. G. Oakes. No one was injured but the front of the Chandler was somewhat damaged.

At 5:40 on the afternoon of the holiday as Leslie A. Drake of 230 Cambridge street was driving his automobile south along that roadway and was making a left turn into the driveway of Mr. N. W. Purrington, his machine was struck by an Essex coach driven by Harry L. Shandler of 26 Beacon street, Winthrop, who, according to reports, disregarded Drake's signal and attempted to pass him on the left. As a result of the collision Ruth Tekley, 4, a passenger with Shandler in the coach, sustained slight injuries to her nose when she was thrown against the instrument board of the machine. Her mother and Mrs. Shandler who were also in the coach complained of injuries to the legs. Both cars were somewhat damaged.

It's Like A Miracle!
Refrigeration By Gas

ANOTHER modern miracle? Well may it be called such. For years commercial refrigerating plants have produced dry cold air in one place by applying heat at another. It's the most economical way of making ice or chilling foods much cheaper than doing it by the methods hitherto in use.

But now comes the first practical home refrigerator of this type. Now to every home, Ice-O-Lator brings this low cost refrigeration to keep foods fresh, sweet and sanitary in an ever-cool, always-dry condition. Its record of service has proved that Ice-O-Lator is dependable, safe, sanitary and silent.

Once installed in your refrigerator, Ice-O-Lator needs no further thought, but you'll be everlastingly thankful you have it.

McKEE—MULVEY

On Wednesday evening, June 1, in St. Raphael's Church, West Medford, Miss Katherine Elizabeth Mulvey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick A. Mulvey of 15 Boston avenue, West Medford, became the bride of William J. McKee of this town, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. McKee of 641 Main street. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Fr. P. Glennon at 7:30 o'clock.

The bride wore a wedding gown of ivory satin trimmed with Valencian lace and having a court train. Her bouquet was of Killarney roses, orchids and lilies of the valley. Mrs. Winifred Mathews, of Waltham, sister of the bride, was matron of honor and another sister, Miss Mary M. Mulvey of Detroit, Mich., was bridesmaid. Both were gowned in grey georgette trimmed with orchid and carried bouquets of orchids and roses.

Little Audrey Goslin of West Medford was ring bearer and the bride's train-bearers were Mora J. Somers of West Medford and Arthur R. Johnson of Winchester. Mr. McKee had for his best man his brother, Francis McKee of Winchester, and the ushers were Arthur Johnson of Winchester, and Frank Maguire and William Mathews of Waltham.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, the house being prettily decorated for the occasion with palms and cut flowers. Guests were present from New York, New Jersey, Boston, Woburn, Brookline, Lexington, Needham, Waltham, Detroit, Mich., Connecticut, Medford and Winchester. Mr. and Mrs. Patrick A. Mulvey and Mr. and Mrs. J. McKee were in the receiving line with the young couple.

Mr. and Mrs. McKee are to sail from New York on the Majestic June 4, for a honeymoon in Paris and upon their return will make their home in Connecticut. The bride graduated from Lexington High School in 1917 and from the Massachusetts Hospital Training School for Nurses with the class of 1921. She is a former president of the Catholic Nurses' Club. Mr. McKee is well known here, is a members of Winchester Lodge of Elks and of Winchester Council, Knights of Columbus. During the World War he served for more than two years in the Navy being attached to the Transport Mt. Vernon. He was aboard ship when it was struck by a torpedo fired from a German submarine.

THE LINCOLN PLAYERS

BOWDOIN SQUARE THEATRE

Another fascinating and enjoyable feature picture program coupled with live selected vaudeville acts will hold forth at the popular Bowdoin Square Theatre beginning Monday. The top feature will introduce that great screen star, Lon Chaney who will appear in the film classic, "Mr. Wu." In the cast will be found Renee Adoree, Louise Dresser and Ralph Forbes. The story is what might be termed one of the best ever offered by Metro-Goldwyn pictures and deals with a girl who was guilty of love and the unwritten code of the East cried out for vengeance. Another picture of merit will be the William Fox production, "Cradle Snatchers," a riotous comedy of women who possessed young ideas and the comedy is bright and wholesome. The leading roles will be taken by Louise Fazenda and Dorothy Phillips. The Our Gang Comedy will be "Ten Years Old" and the Pathe News will show world events. Opportunity night with extra acts will be offered Friday night. The Sunday concert begins at 3. Free parking service for suburbanites is much enjoyed by many.

Announcement has been made of the selection of the three assistants for the progressive department of Vassar's Summer School of Euthenics. SPECIAL OFFICER O'BRIEN STOPPED STOLEN CAR

A stolen automobile, the property of the Edison Electric Illuminating Company was recovered at 9:45 Tuesday night on Cambridge street through the vigilance of Special Officer John F. O'Brien of this town.

Officer O'Brien was on duty at the new road construction in progress on Cambridge street when he noticed the Edison machine approaching him out of the line of traffic. He signalled it to stop and after questioning the operator ordered him to remain where he was while he got traffic under way again.

When he returned to the machine the occupants, three young men, had abandoned it and Officer O'Brien saw them running in the direction of Arlington. He at once notified Headquarters where details were telephoned the police in Arlington, Lexington and Woburn.

Meanwhile Officer Daniel Kelley brought the machine to the Station where an investigation disclosed that it had been stolen on Chauncy street in Boston. Later the Arlington police phoned to state they were holding a young man who had been picked up there and whose stories were strangely conflicting. Officer Charles Harrold with Special Officer O'Brien went to Arlington, where the latter identified the young man as one of the occupants of the stolen car. When questioned by the local authorities the young man finally admitted having been in the machine. He was turned over to the Boston police and the stolen car returned to the Edison Light Company.

BOY SCOUTS CARRIED GOVERNOR'S MESSAGE

Winchester Scouts aided in the spreading on Memorial Day of Governor Fuller's safety message which is inaugurating a safety campaign throughout 25 cities and towns in Greater Boston. Arrangements for the campaign have recently been completed by the Governor in co-operation with eight of the leading automobile associations and a prize has been offered for the city or town showing the best record over a given time.

In each case the message was relayed in duplicate, the scouts delivering one copy to the Mayor or Board of Selectmen of the community and speeding the other to the city or town line where it was taken by new carriers.

Members of Troop 1 and Troop 3, Boy Scouts of Winchester delivered the message in Winchester. Charnley Slack and George Philbrick received the papers at the Arlington line from Scouts of that town and relayed them to Herbert Brook and Fred Philbrick at the corner of Church and Cambridge streets. From there they were rushed to the Town Hall by Bronson Garner and John Brooks, a copy being handed to the Selectmen and a second copy taken to the Woburn line by Roger Newell who made the trip on his bicycle. Woburn Scouts took the message at that point.

FLAMINGO STILL WINNING

Flamingo, Arthur Black's handsome mount, won two more blues at the Metropolitan Driving Club's horse show at the Charles River Speedway last Saturday. He was adjudged first in the class for fine horses, long tail, true all around action, general appearance and individuality and also in the class for models shown in hand.

The Winchester horseman's entry placed second to Miss Betty Bird's Chocolate Soldier in the competition for the Montgomery Rollins saddle horse cup at the Chestnut Hill show held on the holiday. There was a field of nine entries but the competition was between the splendid geldings of Miss Bird and Mr. Black. James P. Marshall, the judge, finally gave his decision to Chocolate Soldier, later stating that the two horses were evenly matches both as to conformation and manners but that Miss Bird's mount seemed more regular in action.

HORACE KEZAR LIBBY

Horace Kezar Libby, who formerly for some years made his home in Winchester on Forest street, died suddenly last Friday night at his residence, 1012 Beacon street, Brookline, of an acute heart attack. His death was wholly unexpected and when stricken he was planning for the next day when he was to leave for his summer camp in Maine.

Mr. Libby was 61 years old and was born in Boston, the son of Isaac and Dorcas Zezar Libby. He had been employed as a traveling salesman for a large food concern and was well known in Winchester, having made his home here up to within the last few months. He was a member of William Parkman Lodge of Masons.

Funeral services were held from the late residence on Monday afternoon and were conducted by the Rev. Lisle Burroughs of the First Congregational Church. Representatives of William Parkman, Lodge attended the services and the Schubert Quartet sang "Just Beyond the Hilltop," "In the Garden," and the "Lord's Prayer." Interment was in the family lot at Wildwood Cemetery where the committal prayers were read by Rev. Mr. Burroughs.

Citizens Called to War

There were three drawings made for the draft during the World war. One was made for each registration. The first and second drawings were made by the secretary of war, Newton D. Baker. The number drawn in the first drawing was 258, on July 20, 1917. The number in the second drawing was 246 on June 27, 1918. In the third drawing President Wilson drew the number, which was 322. This was September 20, 1918. The first man to be selected for the draft in the United States was Harry C. Gilbert of the District of Columbia.

WINCHESTER BOAT CLUB

The next dance at the club house will be the subscription dance this coming Saturday evening, June 4. A large gathering is expected as much interest is being shown at the club's social events this year. The price of admission will be $2 per couple and the proceeds will be used to complete payment of the new racing canoe.

On June 17, a regular club dance will be given. This will be one of a schedule to be run throughout the season and members are advised to reserve this date. A canoe regatta may be run in the afternoon providing entries are not made in the meet to be held on the Charles River. If the larger Charles River meet does conflict with club plans, the informal inter-club regatta will follow at an early date.

The club was unusually active on Decoration Day, though no special events took place. A number of the members spent the entire day in paddling and playing tennis. Steward Rogers was kept very much on the go serving his usual excellent lunches and suppers to those wishing to spend the entire day on or near the water.

OFFICER REGAN GOT TWO

Twice in the same place was the record of officer John Regan of the Police Department while on duty early last Saturday and Sunday morning in the square. As a result of his vigilance two drivers convicted of operating while under the influence of liquor landed in durance vile and paid fines for their exhilaration in the District Court at Woburn.

Officer Regan's first arrest was at 2 o'clock Saturday morning when he stopped George L. Thompson of Medford after noticing the latter drooping over the wheel of his Dodge touring car while going through the square. Thompson appeared in court later the same morning and was fined $50.

At 2:40 Sunday morning the patrolman became suspicious of the operator of a Ford sedan who was driving through the center. The latter refused to stop on signal and started at high speed toward Woburn. Officer Regan commandeered a car and gave chase, catching his man at Russell road. At the station house the latter gave his name as James Cosgrove and his address as Wilmington. In court Monday morning he was fined $75 by Judge Morton.

Not Easily Frozen

The bureau of standards says that gasoline has no definite freezing point. It stiffens up slowly like melted wax at temperatures far below those ordinarily encountered even in the Arctic.

Finns Once Powerful

The Finns are descendants of a western branch of the great racial family of which the Mongolians are the modern representatives in the Far East. But there is evidence that the Finns, or a closely allied race, were at a prehistoric time spread over a large area of Europe. In the course of time they mixed with other races to such an extent that some of their original characteristics have been modified or lost, while some of those of other races have become Finnish. The original stock is now represented in Europe in a good many other places than Finland. The Hungarians, the Lapps, the Samoyeds, the Esthonians, and various people of Russia may be numbered among these representatives.

Rest Not Advisable in Nervous Weakness

Rest cures are going out of fashion and physicians are prescribing work cures instead, says Dr. George J. Wright in Hygeia Magazine. Prolonged nervous weakness is usually considered the result of some other condition, such as a physical defect that reduces the body's reserve strength or impairs the process of repair so that ordinary physical or mental activity is no longer possible. Infections may produce the same effect of nervous weakness.

Emotional disturbances are particularly depressing and exhausting. Various physical ills, such as headaches, stomach distress, a neck pain or a choking feeling are often due to emotional or nervous strain, but not to overwork. Work and worry may be very exhausting, but work by itself is not harmful.

People vary in their inherent mental and nervous strength as they do in physical strength. Persons leading a quiet, tranquil life may never discover that they are weak mentally or nervously. However, sudden crises, such as a war, force them to exert themselves beyond their strength and a breakdown follows.

WHEN GOOD COOKS GET TOGETHER

There was a big party in New York the other night, given by notables in the hotel world. Oscar, the famous chef of the Waldorf, led the grand march, and when it came supper time, everybody was curious to see what the elite of the culinary world would serve to their own guests.

Surely a world-famous chef would outdo himself on an occasion like this and devise dishes the like of which not even the gods enjoyed. But no! The menu cards read—"Chicken Salad, Assorted Sandwiches, Fancy Ice Cream, Small Cakes"—just the same old evening-party combination, but very nicely done, of course.

All of which emphasizes a great truth—the old favorite dishes never fail to delight us when they're well prepared. In your own home kitchen, with your own gas range and other aids as used in the greatest hostelries of the country, you can duplicate viands that even epicures find tempting.

WINCHESTER'S MISPLAYS GAVE WOBURN GAME

Winchester High lost its second Mystic Valley League game to Woburn last Saturday afternoon on Manchester Field, loose playing in the local infield allowing the visitors to score 3 runs in the 7th after Coach Mansfield's boys had broken the ice in the previous frame.

The game was fast and interesting throughout, early developing into a pitching duel between Weafer of Woburn and Winchester's crack southpaw, "Lefty" Hatch. Both hurled nice ball but Hatch, in holding the slugging boys from Woburn to 6 scattered hits while fanning a like number and issuing no free tickets, had the edge. The 7 errors tossed in behind his twirling tell the whole story.

There was some nifty defensive work tucked into the nine innings, "half-pint" Burns and "Dusky" Fields playing very smoothly around the keystone sack for the visitors while "Howie" Smith and Harold Ambrose fielded well for Winchester. The real gem of the matinee, however, was contributed by Captain "Eddie" Carey of the Orange and Black who robbed Ray Halwartz of a surenuff home run with a truly marvelous catch in the 8th inning.

The Winchester third sacker, batting with one away, smote one of Weafer's offerings on the well known nose just inside the foul line in left field. It looked like a real ride into the river on the first hop, for Ray put everything he had into the drive. Starting with the crack of the bat, Carey tore across the turf and hurled himself at the ball which was passing to his right and which was perhaps two feet off the ground. Catching the ball with both hands he turned a complete somersault, holding tight to the apple despite a severe fall which shook him up badly. He was able to continue after a short rest and richly deserved the generous hand which was accorded him. His great catch recalls a similar exploit which he performed a couple of years ago when he prevented Frank Melly from winning the Mystic Valley League championship for Winchester with a homer into the river late in the first Winchester-Woburn battle of the season. All in all the local fans will shed no tears when Mr. Carey gets his sheepskin this June.

After having several chances to score in the early innings Winchester finally broke through in the 6th. Cobb, first up, crossed the Woburn infield by laying down a perfect bunt and beating the throw to first for a hit. He stole second and stuck around while McNeil was flying out to Keating. Carey played Halwartz's line single to left fast enough to hold Cobb at 3rd, Ray making second on the throw-in. With Smith batting, Coach Mansfield called for the squeeze, but the batter failed to connect and Cobb was run down, Costello to Donahue to Costello; Halwartz making third. Smith's single to left scored Halwartz and the runner advanced on Ghirardini's one-shot to right. Fields threw out Taylor to end the frame.

Winchester's advantage was short lived, Woburn coming back with 3 runs in its half of the 7th. Fields, hard hitting shortfielder, tripled to far right for a starter and scored a moment later when Taylor lost one of "Lefty's" fast ones. Costello punched a single to right and advanced when McNeil mussed up Daly's hopper. Both runners moved up when Halwartz lost Donahue's roller and Costello scored on Weafer's sacrifice fly to Ghirardini. Flawless playing might have retired the side with but a single run at this point. As it was Burn's sacrifice bunt eased Daley over with the third run before Hatch knocked down Carey's drive and threw him out at first.

This just about tells the entire story, though Winchester had a good chance to tie in the 9th. With one away Taylor reached second on Burns' error and stole third. Ambrose drew a pass and went right down. With two on and only one away the crowd yelled for a pinch hitter and it seems as though it might have been good judgment to have inserted, "Archa" Amico in place of Hatch, a notoriously weak sticker. Hatch, however, batted and fanned and Murphy rolled to Burns, ending the frame.

The biggest crowd of the season was present and was well handled by Patrolmen Archie O'Connell and James Farrell.

WINCHESTER SHUT OUT ARLINGTON

Gilt edged pitching by big "Archa" Amico combined with timely hitting gave Winchester high its second win of the season in a Mystic Valley League baseball game with Arlington on Spy Pond Field Tuesday afternoon. Strangely enough both of the locals' victories have been at the expense of Coach Henricus' Arlington ball club.

There was no doubt about Tuesday's win, the score being 5 to 0, with Amico out in front all the way. He was for once accorded good support by his mates, Smith's wild peg in the 2nd being the only miscue charged to the locals throughout the matinee. Four scattered hits were all the Arlington batters could garner off the right handed shoots of Amico and the Spy Ponders went hitless after the 4th, 12 of them being set down on strikes.

Meanwhile the charges of Coach Mansfield had Donahue, the Arlington pitcher, in trouble a good part of the time and aided by passes and some good solid hitting put across 4 runs in the 6th and 1 in the 7th to sew up the game. Up to that time the contest had been tight and interesting, but with Winchester having a decided edge.

Cobb started the 6th with a single to left and stole second. McNeil drew a pass and both runners advanced unmolested. Halwartz walked, filling the bases. Smith fanned, but Ghirardini singled to left, scoring Cobb. On the throw in McNeil was caught at third, Simonds to MacArthur. Halwartz advanced to second on the hit and stole 3rd while Franklin was working Donahue for a walk. "Archie" Taylor was sent in to bat for ambrose and belted one on the nose to left, scoring Halwartz and Ghirardini. Amico single to left, scoring Franklin but Murphy popped to McArthur to end the frame.

Cobb started off the 7th with a base on balls but was forced at second on McNeil's rap to Donahue. "Livin" stole second and went to third while McArthur was throwing out Halwartz. He scored a moment later on a wild pitch. Smith was safe on McNamara's error but Ghirardini popped up to McGiven.

"Bad Man" Began His Lawless Life Early

Bill Langley probably was one of the toughest characters that Texas ever produced, Owen P. White tells us, in Collier's Magazine. According to his family Bible he was born of honest, God-fearing parents, but he took to shooting early. When he was only fourteen years old he was doing his daily dozen with a pair of six-shooters and filling all the trees in the ancestral wood lot with clusters of leaden bullets, generally grouped a dozen in a spot and no spot more than six inches in diameter. Thus early in life did Bill make a bid for fame. He learned to shoot with both hands, afoot or horseback, it was the same to him. But, sad to relate of one so young, Bill's conscience apparently was just as well trained as his shooting eye. It never bothered him in the slightest degree. Hence, before he was nineteen years he had six nicks on his gun and had been hanged by a Texas vigilance committee. But the hanging did not "take." Members of the party fired shots at him as they rode away. One of the bullets clipped the rope, weakening it, and a few moments later he dropped to the ground and quickly recovered. After several years of wild depredation, Langley was executed in Giddings, Texas, October 11, 1878.

The Silver Sword

On the Hawaiian islands may be found wonders of nature not seen anywhere else in the world. On Maui, the Garden island, the volcano of Haleakala rears its snow-capped crest above the clouds. The rim of the crater is 20 miles around, and here it is that the rare silver sword plant may be found. From a distance it resembles the yucca of California. Thick felt-like leaves cluster at the base of a tall slender stem, crowned with a silvery plume of flowers. The silver sword is becoming scarce, due to the ravages of mountain goats. It grows in such inaccessible places that it is as difficult to gather as the Alpine edelweiss.

Ponderous German Verbs

The ponderous use of the divided German verb is as characteristic of their mental processes as is one of their great machines. In fact, it reminds one of Big Bertha shooting at Paris. It also seems to be the thing which is most embedded in their way of thinking.

I knew a German who had lived forty years in America and had practically forgotten all of his German. But to the end of his days he would get off such an expression as this: "As long as I live in this town the more I find, by Jiminy Christmas, out," and that final "out" landed with all the force of a projectile which had been carefully aimed and had carried a long distance.—Henry C. Emery in Harper's Magazine.

Hid Stolen Gold in Eye

The death of the owner of a "pub" at Kalgoorlie, western Australia, recently revealed a unique theft from the gold mines many years ago. In his youth the man had lost an eye in an explosion and a glass one had been substituted in the socket. A cavity at the back of this furnished a hiding place for gold stolen from the mine, and though the miner stole only a small bit of gold each day, his revenue from this source was about $40 a week. Before his death the man told his friends that he had stolen several thousand dollars worth of gold, but that he retired and bought a "pub," fearing he might arouse suspicion.

Indian Pictographs

There are some 50 or 60 places in various parts of California from the northern boundary of the state to San Diego county where pictographs and petroglyphs are found. They are interesting but we have no indication as to what their purpose was and aside from the person or persons who made them, no one knows what the figures are supposed to be. We do know that in San Diego county in former times the girls painted symbolic figures on granite boulders at the completion of their adolescence ceremonies. Some anthropologists have suggested that these carvings and paintings are the work of shamans.—Mr Woodward, in Adventure Magazine.

DAILY PHILOSOPHY

It is better to be fast asleep than to be slow when awake.

When we see the heroism shown by others who are more grievously affected than we, it should help us to bear our own ills more patiently.

The fellow that bemoans the fact that he has missed his chance is simply getting all set to miss the next one.

When a man is wrong and won't admit it, he usually becomes angry.

Eloquence is the child of knowledge.

OUR MAIL

We print in another column a letter from the Postmaster of our Winchester office, in which he takes exceptions very rightly to our editorial of a recent date. It was not our intention to censure or criticize the local office and we offer our apologies for so doing. So far as we know, the Winchester office gives prompt and efficient service. We recognize the many favors extended to the Star with thanks. On the other hand the mails between Boston and Winchester are most inefficient. We are unable to depend upon the receipt or delivery of any important mail without delay. It is not our place to state where the trouble lays, and we are sorry to cast reflections on our local office.

Island's "Soup" Harvest

There is [illegible] an island off the coast of China that has but one industry. It is soup. To those not initiated, birds' nest soup may easily summon up a picture of stewed twigs, strings, grass, bits of cotton and feathers, but connoisseurs of the exotic know that the nests from which this brand of soup is made are composed entirely of a gelatinous substance excreted by the birds as they build. On this island where an intensive soup industry is conducted (it is sometimes called Birds' Nest island, sometimes the Island of a Hundred Peaks), there are caves in which the birds construct their dwellings in great numbers. These are regularly harvested after each breeding season and the delicacy is prepared for export.

Odd Method of Travel Called "Ride and Tie"

Salmon P. Chase, Lincoln's secretary of the treasury, showed financial ability early in his life. When he went from his New Hampshire home to Worthington, Ohio, to live with his uncle, he was accompanied by an older brother as far as Cleveland, where he was given instructions as to how to reach Worthington. Finding that he had to wait several days for a coach to take him as far as Medina, he obtained a canoe and earned several dollars by ferrying people across the Cuyahoga river, relates J. H. Galbraith, Ohio historian. In Medina he met two young men from Worthington, whom he was to accompany on their return trip. They had come on horseback, so young Chase was introduced to the "ride and tie" method of travel. One of them would mount the horse and ride forward several miles, of course outstripping the one who walked. Then the rider would dismount and tie the horse by the road side and press on by foot. The other would reach the horse, mount it and passing his companion, would tie it and go ahead on foot. In this way the horse was spared a double burden and the travelers made good speed.

Got Name and Victory

Tradition says that the "Langobardi" were originally called "Winnili." Under the leadership of Ibor and Aio, sons of a prophetess called "Gambara," they came into conflict with the Vandals. The leaders of the Vandals prayed to Wodan for victory, while Gambara and her sons invoked Frea. Wodan promised victory to those whom he should see at sunrise. Frea directed Winnili to bring their women with their hair around their faces like beards. He then turned Wodan's couch around so that when he woke at sunrise he first saw the host of the Winnili. He asked 'Qui sunt isti Longibarbi?' "Who are these long beards?" Frea replied, "As thou hast given them the name, give them also the victory." They conquered in the ensuing battle and were thenceforth known as "Longobardi."

"Hump" of European Origin

Records show that hump railroad yards were maintained at Speldorf, Germany, in 1876, and also on the Paris, Lyon and Mediterranean in France in 1888. The first summit yard in America, as far as can be learned, was constructed by the Pennsylvania railroad in 1882 at Huffs station, two miles south of Greenbush, Va

President George T. Davidson of the Winchester Club presided, welcoming the Rotarian guests. Dominion Sought as the Perfect Freedom

The history of the struggle for liberty in the deeper sense is thus not merely the history of wars fought and battles won in the name of deliverance from oppression. It is the history of the struggle of mankind for dominion, and dominion is only another name for the perfect freedom.

Man has achieved not only freedom from the beast, but dominion over it; not only freedom from enemy man but dominion over him. He has achieved at least a partial safety from the elements, and exercises at least a partial dominion over them. He has learned to divert and dominate the lightning; he has made fire and water his slaves, and only on occasion do they rise against him; he has subdued the hard earth with the share, and converted its minerals and metals from dead weights into the ministers of his comfort. He has made the labor of an hour the achievement of a minute; he can travel in a day by sea the week's distance of his grandfathers, and by land the distance of their month; he has vanquished the air. In these ways and others he has won new liberties. In these ways and others he is seeking liberty still through the control of natural forces, the control of disease, the control of intelligence, the control of passion, the control of men in masses and singly.—Grant Showerman in the University of California Chronicle.

Engine Cylinders

The Society of Automotive Engineers says that all radial or rotary engines as commonly used in airplanes have an odd number of cylinders around a single crank. The firing order skips alternate cylinders, and will have occurred in all the cylinders in two complete revolutions of the crank or cylinder, depending on whether the engine is a fixed or rotary radial engine. Engines of this type having an even number of cylinders, such as 10 or 14, are composed of two banks of five and seven cylinders, respectively. Radial and rotary engines are characterized by having the cylinders disposed at equal angular intervals around a complete circle.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN, THE STRAIGHT THINKER

He said this: "Property is the fruit of labor; property is desirable; it is a positive good in the world. That some should be rich shows that others may become rich, and hence is an encouragement to industry and enterprise. Let not him who is houseless pull down the house of another but let him work diligently and build one for himself, thus by example assuring that his own shall be safe from violence when built."

Many people, who have thrift accounts with us, are acting on this very principle.

Many who wanted homes, got them by the industry and enterprise that Lincoln speaks of. Got them, also, because our plan of home ownership was practical and convenient.

MEMORIAL DAY OBSERVED

Commander Harris of the Legion opened the exercises with the reading of the poem, "In Flanders Field," continuing to point out that in conceiving and executing the Memorial Room the Legion was doing its part with the Town in honoring its "buddies" who had gone before. He then introduced Marshall England, chairman of the room committee who explained the significance of the chamber and described it in detail before presenting it formally to the parents of the 18 men for whom it was a memorial. Mr. Charles E. Kendall accepted the room on behalf of the parents, many of whom were present. The dedicatory prayer was offered by the new Legion chaplain, Rev. Lisle Burroughs.

The afternoon parade to Wildwood formed at 2:30 and marched thither over the old route, via Washington and Main streets to the square, thence to the cemetery by way of Church, Wildwood and Willow streets. The line of march paused and stood at attention before the Memorial statue at the High School lot while a wreath and flags were placed upon it.

The roster of the afternoon parade was as follows: Motorcycle officer Edward O'Connell, mounted officer Edward Shea, police escort, Lieut. John Harrold commanding; Winchester Post, A. L. Band; detachment 102nd Motor Transport Co., M. N. G., Lieut. William H. Mobbs commanding; platoon Co. G, 182nd Infantry, M. N. G., First Sergt. Edward Carroll commanding; Post Commdr. Arthur S. Harris and staff; National and Post colors with guard, Firing Squad, A. L. Stanley Mobbs commanding; Legion Army detachment, Marshall England commanding; Legion Naval detachment, Kenneth Caldwell commanding; colors, A. D. Weld Post, G. A. R.; and John T. Wilson Camp, Sons of Veterans, with guard; detachment of Spanish War and Sons of Veterans, J. Frank Holland, Junior Vice Commander, commanding; St. Mary's Fife and Drum Corps, Thomas Dolan, drum-major; Girl Scouts' Drum and Bugle Corps, Marie Dresser, drum-major; detachment Girl Scouts in charge of Mrs. Louis K. Snyder, Capt. Eugenia Parker commanding; detachment Boy Scouts, Scout Commissioner Arthur Butters commanding; G. A. R. Veterans and escort; Town officials and police rear guard.

The Legion graves in Wildwood were decorated by a detail in charge of Louis E. Goddu; those of the Grand Army and Spanish American Veterans by the Sons of Veterans assisted by Boy and Girl Scouts.

Meanwhile the usual exercises were held at the Soldiers' monument where the address was given by the Rev. George Hale Reed, pastor of the Unitarian Church. Mr. Reed spoke briefly and without too much attention to the harrowing details attendent upon War and Memorial Day. After paying tribute to our hero dead he turned his attention to the Legion members present. He spoke of Lindbergh as our latest ambassador to France and how this smiling young American had done much to decimate the ill feeling which had cropped out between two great nations. He further said that the Legionaires in attending their convention in Paris next fall might too serve as ambassadors to France and urged them to so conduct themselves as to reflect credit upon their organization and nation.

The Grand Army honor roll was read by Harry Lunt of the Sons of Veterans; that of the World War veterans by Commander Harris of the Legion. Three volleys were fired by the firing squad and taps were blown consecutively by three trumpeters from different sections of the cemetery.

The return march to the Legion House was made by way of Wildwood, Church and Mt. Vernon streets through the square. After ranks had been broken refreshments were served to the participants in the Town Hall with plenty of ice cream for all the "kiddies." This concluded the day's program, the usual evening exercises having been omitted.

Not Much Haggling Over Diamond Deals

A shabbily dressed man strolls down a quiet street not a minute from Hatton Garden, London. He looks as if he might be worth $25 all told. He stops by a public house and acknowledges the casual greeting of a man little better dressed than himself.

For perhaps five minutes both are absorbed in something the shabbier of the two takes from a leather wallet. Something changes hands and the two part. It is all over in five minutes.

What sort of business have they been transacting? Merely a little deal in diamonds. And how much was involved? Around $5,000.

Stolen stones sometimes come into the Hatton Garden market. But woe betide the crook who seeks to dispose of well-known stones there! Dealers will have none of him.

Unset diamonds, necklaces, bracelets, brooches and rings all find their way to this unique mart. All deals are for cash and all are quickly, silently, and quite casually put through.

Capital Letters

"Caput" in Latin really means a head, and so a chief, and thus it comes about that we speak of "capital" letters to describe those that are used to mark the chief or most important words in a sentence.

When writing started all the words were written in the same hand and as far as our own alphabet was concerned, mostly in what we now call capital letters. Gradually, however, it was found that one could write more quickly by joining up the letters. Next it occurred to us to emphasize the beginnings of important words by writing them in the old manner, and so we get our "capitals."

MEMORIAL DAY JOTTINGS

It Would Have Been Hard to Pick a More Perfect Day

Mounted officer "Ned" Shea, on his handsome charger, was easily the "class" of the parades, and was much admired all along the line. In prancing and curveting to the music his horse showed "Ned's" splendid horsemanship to perfection. The latter was like a rock in the saddle.

There was a good turn-out of Grand Army veterans in the afternoon. This was due in part to an agreement made a year ago when James Dunnell, sole survivor of A. D. Weld Post, 48, G. A. R., joined with the veterans of Medford in their observance of Memorial Day with the understanding that his comrades in that city should join him in Winchester this year. True to their word two members of S. C. Lawrence Post, 66, of Medford accompanied Comrade Dunnell to the Town Hall last Monday afternoon. They were Commdr. George L. Stokell, aged 83, who served with the 18th Mass. Volunteers and William Ellsbree, aged 83, who served with the 11th Rhode Island Regiment. Frank D. Marchand, aged 84, who makes his home in Winchester, now unattached but formerly of Cambridge Post, also assisted in the afternoon's program. He served with the 5th and 9th Delaware Regiments. Comrade Dunnell who is 80 years of age and who makes his home in Medford, served in the Navy during the Civil War, being attached to the U. S. S. Antona. Three other Grand Army veterans who make their homes in Winchester were unequal to turning out on Memorial Day. They include David L. Story, Daniel Kimball and Edward M. Messenger.

Former Legion Commdr. Nathan Thumim drove the Grand Army veterans over the route in his automobile while the Town officials rode in a machine operated by Fred Wellington.

The police made a fine showing in both the morning and afternoon parades. Sergeant Cassidy's detail included patrolmen Archie O'Connell, Henry Dempsey, John Regan and Mark Kelley. "Eddie" O'Connell rode the motorcycle morning and afternoon and kept the roads clear of motor traffic for the marchers.

As usual Lieut. John Harrold lead the afternoon turnout. His detail comprised patrolmen James Farrell, Mark Kelley, Henry Dempsey, Daniel Kelley, John Regan, Willie Cassidy and Archie O'Connell. Patrolman Charles Harold served as rear guard for both parades.

While not so widely dvertised as the police band a year ago, the Winchester Post Band furnished much better music.

St Mary's Fife and Drum Corps presented a trim appearance in their natty blue uniforms and helped a lot to dress up the parade. The boys played well and "Tommy" Dolan was a drum-major par excellence. Father Fitzgibbons would have been proud of their showing.

The Girl and Boy Scouts went over the parade routes with the best and the bugle and drum corps of the former under Drum-major Marie Dresser was the cynosure of all eyes.

Once more we missed Walter Lord in the line of march. The genial Commander of the Sons of Veterans was doing special police duty. "Tom" Barrett, Harry Lunt and Hans Holland were in line.

That Memorial Room at the Legion usual good showing and the afternoon parade owes much of its effectiveness to their participation. It would be hard to find a more soldierly appearing officer than Lieut. "Billy" Mobbs.

That Memorial Soom at the Legion House is well worth a trip there to see. The Legion boys will be glad to show guests about at any time.

Trachoma Blamed on Faulty Food Habits

Trachoma, that dangerous disease which so often ends in blindness, may be caused by inadequate diet, like scurvey, rickets and similar deficiency diseases, according to a statement from the National Committee for the Prevention of Blindness. While trachoma is spread all over the world, the highest incidence is among people who have faulty food habits.

The apparent contagiousness of trachoma may be due to another eye disease that is associated with it. On Ellis Island, where there is always some trachoma and where hundreds of cases of it are handled each year, no doctor, nurse or orderly has ever contracted the disease. Similarly, in long steerage trips from eastern Mediterranean ports, passengers with trachoma never caused outbreaks of this disease during the voyage, although the conditions for the transmission of a contagious disease were most favorable.—Hygeia Magazine.

Explaining Military Salute

There have been several ideas advanced as to the origin of the military salute. It was supposed to have been the practice in Rome at the time of Julius Caesar for inferiors to raise the palm of their hand to the front of their caps in order to show that it contained no dagger. This was on account of the fact that assassinations were so common in those days. It has been suggested that time and custom have modified this to the military salute. Another idea suggested was that in the British army during the American Revolution it was customary for inferiors to uncover before superiors and equals in acknowledgment of their presence. On account of the clumsy headgear, this custom degenerated into saluting without removing the cap.

Music Charms Horses

Horses are particularly sensitive to music, especially martial airs. In 1892 a certain British regiment was making a military test march. When the music started a young horse ridden by a captain hastened forward and placed itself in spite of its rider, behind the last rank of the musicians. Then it followed peacefully, giving obvious signs of pleasure. When the music ceased the captain was able to resume his place at the head of his company. But when the band struck up again the horse galloped ahead, and once more placed itself behind the musicians.

Material Needed to Make Up Square Meal

The familiar expression "a square meal" may be adapted to represent a complete diet supplying all the material that the body needs, say R. H. A. Plimmer of the University of London and Violet G. Plimmer in Hygeia Magazine. The center of the square is filled with the fat, carbohydrate, mineral salts and water; the corners are filled respectively with vitamines A, B and C and protein P.

The corner A represents both the fat soluble vitamines A and D which are found in the same foods. Foods from the same corner may be used alternatively, but a food from one corner is not a substitute for one from another corner. A square meal consists of food from all four corners in suitable proportions.

Some of the foods in the A corner are butter, cod liver oil, milk, egg yolk and liver; in the C corner are fresh fruits, especially citrus fruits, tomatoes and green vegetables either raw or very slightly cooked; the B corner contains whole meal cereal products, dried peas, beans and lentils and nuts; corner P includes meat, eggs, milk and cheese and fish.

Peoples of the East Accept Death Lightly

To the West, death is a closed door; to the East, an open one. An American told me recently that, when he was in China on an official mission, he and his colleagues were entertained by a delightful little mandarin, who was always cheerful and considerate. He had a remarkable insight into European politics, which he discussed enthusiastically and at length. His smile was as persistent as his jokes, yet he was under sentence of death. The sentence was carried out the day after the American mission left.

In a certain Arabian state, an official was exceedingly kind in helping me organize a caravan. One day I asked his wife if her lord could accompany me to the market to choose some new waterskins.

"He is to be hanged tomorrow," she said, "by the emir's order, but his brother will go with you."

Last year I was passing through Syria. I stopped to drink mint tea with an old friend, wife of a patriot, or a revolutionary—the terms are synonymous in the East. It just depends which side you're on!

"How is the master?" I asked politely, over my third scented glass.

"The French killed him last week," my hostess answered unmoved. I gasped horror and protest. "He leaves five sons," she reassured me, surprised at my emotion.—Rosita Forbes in Pearson's Magazine.

Ski Travel Made History

Messengers on skis provided a turning point in Sweden's history in the Sixteenth century. When King Gustav Vasa called for men to repel the Danish invaders, the cautious phlegmatic men of Darlecarlia, the ancient Swedish province, took counsel and were not sure whether they should respond. Bereft of support, the king started for the Norwegian border, but had not been on his way long till the Darlecarlians decided to throw in their lot with him against the foreigner and messengers raced after him on skis and brought him back. To that event and those men modern Sweden owes her renaissance. To this day an annual ski race is held in winter to commemorate this turning point in the country's history.—London Sphere.

Joel Chandler Harris Never a Social "Lion"

The first published work of Joel Chandler Harris, creator of "Uncle Remus," was set into type by hand as ideas came to his head, without first being committed to paper, says J. T. Maury of Plain Dealing, who worked with Harris on the Monroe Advertiser in Forsyth, Ga., shortly after the close of the Civil war.

Harris would not read his compositions after they were in print if he could avoid it. He taught Maury to read proof and thus avoided having to read what he had "written" with type. Harris was extremely shy and declined to meet many persons. Once Harris, Mark Twain and George W. Cable met in New Orleans. Twain recounts the instance in his "Life on the Mississippi." When the New Orleans children saw "Uncle Remus" they were greatly disapointed and exclaimed:

"Why, he's white."

To console them, a move was made to have Harris read the Tar Baby story aloud. But he never had read aloud to people and was too shy to make the venture.

Gestures Tell More Than Spoken Words

It is one of the most difficult things in the world to act a lie. Gesture is, in fact, far more revealing and far more truthful than speech. Comparatively few persons possess complete control of this "language of the body." Neither a golden tongue nor a voice thrilling with passion is any match for a contradicting gesture or glance.

Scientific study of gestures has shown that they fall naturally into two classes—acceptance or rejection. Almost every gesture of which we are capable belongs to one or other of these classes, for, in truth, the language of gesture is much simpler than the language of the lips. Upward movements of the head, hands, arms or eyelids belong to the former class, and downward movements to the latter. There are few exceptions to this, but they only prove the rule. For example, there is a way of raising the eyebrows that expresses a sneer, but then a sneer is deliberate, whereas the gestures that are really tell-tale are always made without deliberation.

A LECTURE ON CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

Jesus' Teaching Scientific

The word "know" is, in the Latin, scio, and bases our word "science." Now the words "Christian Science" can mean only this: demonstrable, provable, Christian, or spiritual knowledge. Thus the student of Christian Science takes the stand that Jesus' teachings are not mystical, and should not be capable of hundreds of different interpretations; that they are based upon changeless law, and are as provable as propositions in mathematics.

Reverence for Christ Jesus

I wish that all who have felt disturbed over the Christian Scientist's concept of the words and works of the Saviour might read that wonderful chapter in the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," entitled, "Atonement and Eucharist." These pages breathe a spirit of the most tender and reverent love for and appreciation of Christ Jesus. To quote one of the statements in this chapter, "The divinity of the Christ was made manifest in the humanity of Jesus." (page 25). I can think of no writings aside from the Scripture which set forth higher ideals and incite to holier Christian living than this remarkable chapter

Dealing with Objections

The difficulty, of course, in dealing with most objections to Christian Science is that the objectors have seldom if ever read the textbook, "Science and Health," or other authorized literature. Consequently their fund of information upon the actual teachings of this system is as doubtful as was the man's who said he knew that the story of Robinson Crusoe was in the Bible, but was not sure whether it was in the Old or the New Testament. Others read Christian Science literature determined to find therein unchristian and unorthodox sentiments, and emerge from their unhappy tasks with a few statements carefully detached from the contexts which prove to their complete satisfaction that Christian Science is the work of Satan.

The Discoverer of Christian Science

Our critics then turn their attention to the Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science, if indeed they have not begun their criticism with objection to her. Are not the calumny, the abuse, and criticism that are hurled at this Christian gentlewoman surprising? Gentlewoman she was; Christian gentlewoman she remained during all the splendid ninety years of her loving, forgiving, helping pilgrimage. Christian woman must she have been to turn, through her writings, an army of men and women and children, to the earnest study of the Bible to find there the panacea for all the ills of earth. One cannot help wondering at the world's slow reception of her message, at the world's reluctance to ascribe honor to the woman who found the way of Life. To illustrate: Suppose that an emigrant party on the hot plains has exhausted its supply of water, and weakened, sick, and disheartened, feels that further journeying is futile. Suppose that one of its number, a woman, disappears from the party and bravely starts towards some distant hills. Some time afterwards she returns with strong step and clear eye and says joyfully, "I've found water—water! Up in those hills is a stream clear as crystal, and flowing abundantly. Come, all of you, come and see!" Can you imagine one of that parched, thirsty number saying, "Well, I'd be more inclined to believe it if a man, instead of a woman, had found it!" or, "How do we know that you have found water? You just imagine you have seen it," or, again, "If you did find water, certainly some one else told you where it was!" No, we could not imagine such a reception of the message that the woman delivered. What can be easily pictured is that enfeebled company eagerly, trustfully, and gratefully following that woman to the newly found waters. Yet when Mary Baker Eddy, after years of retirement, searching of the Scriptures, and submitting her discovery to the most practical tests, sent forth to the hungering and thirsting sons of men her work, Science and Health, containing the joyous message that earth's sufferers need only ascend the mount of spiritual understanding to find the waters of Truth which heal sickness and sin and sorrow; behold the unreasonable, the senseless opposition of many who possibly are sadly in need of healing themselves, and who allow such opposition to cheat them out of the blessings which would surely be theirs, if they too would only climb the hill and drink.

Is There a Way Out

And how sorely does earth need today the message of Christian Science! As a French writer has clearly put it, "The ceaseless unrest of this weary world is the unvoiced cry for God." "Is there no balm in Gilead," ask the Jeremiahs of today; "is there no physician there." Is there no better way of healing the sick than the constantly changing, experimenting, now succeeding, now failing methods of material medicine Is there no solution for the great economic problems of the world, of capital and labor, of the relations of men and nations? Yes, Christian Science says to the afflicted, perplexed, and storm-tossed children of earth, there is balm in Gilead; there is a way out of mortal discords. That way is the way of spiritual understanding taught and demonstrated by Christ Jesus.

Has Christianity Failed?

"But," says some one, "have we not had nearly nineteen hundred years of Christianity, and are not the great problems of being still far from solution?" The only answer to such a query is a definite, No! We have not had nineteen centuries of Jesus' Christianity. Far from it! It is a far cry indeed from the practical, regenerating healing work of Jesus to the inert, unfruitful concept of Christianity that most of us have had. Think you that this world would have been rocked by the convulsions of a great war, swept by the terrors of an epidemic, or held in the clutches of a great unrest, had Christians all these years healed the sick, preached heaven at hand, loved as Jesus loved, and cast out demons as he commanded? We suffer today, not because of an inadequate Christianity, but from sheer lack of Christianity.

Jesus Practical Message

Jesus Christ, walking into the synagogue in Nazareth on that memorable Sabbath day, declared that he had been sent to preach good tidings to the meek, to bind up the broken-hearted, and to proclaim liberty to them that were bound in other words, deliverance and healing here and now. Lest any of his hearers should misunderstand his message and think that he alone possessed power to heal the sick and wipe out discord, he soon after gave his twelve disciples their first lesson in healing and sent them forth to preach the gospel - the good news -and to heal the sick. Later he sent forth seventy more students, and it is recorded that even the devils were subject unto them. In the writings of the so-called early Christian fathers, it is made apparent that the healing of the sick and casting out of demons was a common occurance with students of Christianity for over two hundred years after the advent of Jesus.

The Loss of Christian Healing

Then what happened? A mischievous teaching seemed to gain a foothold, a teaching quite attractive to the human mind, for it was a much simpler matter to consider oneself a Christian under the new regime than the old. This teaching found expression in the clothing of Christianity in the theatrical robes of pomp, ritual, and mysticism, and in the substitution of ceremonial worship of the personality of Jesus for the simple doing of the works that he commanded, and the thinking of the thoughts that he commended. Of course the human mind liked this new concept the letter, for it was certainly easier to worship Jesus than to attempt to follow him in the doing of his mighty works. So we find that Christianity became very popular. In fact it was quite the thing to be a Christian—provided, of course, one was the kind of Christian that the majority of believers thought that one should be. But when this material sense, this spiritual deadness, crept in the front door of the Christian Church, the vitalizing healing religion of Jesus seemed to go out the back door. Centuries after came the reformers, the Wycliffes the Luthers, the Calvins the Wesleys, all striving for what? To preach something new? No, to bring back the old; to get back to the Principle and to restore the message of Jesus in all its beauty and simplicity.

Primitive Christianity Restored

And now in our time comes another reformer, and this time a woman, who insists that Christianity to be real Christianity must reestablish the healing, redemptive work of Jesus, of his apostles, and of the early Christians. She insists that the sacred designation "Christian" can be claimed only by the disciple who strives to do the works of the great Exemplar. Far too lightly has that holy name been bandied about all these years. Men and even nations have been designated as "Christian" with little thought of the real meaning of the term. You have heard without doubt of the shipwrecked traveler who was under the impression that the island upon which he found himself was inhabited by cannibals. For a long time he ventured from his hiding-place only at night, fearing the savages. But one day, crouching in his retreat, he was terrified to hear the tread of approaching feet and the sound of angry human voices. He had just concluded that he might as well give himself up speedily and end the misery, when close to him passed a white man and woman, the two violently quarreling in unmistakable Anglo-Saxon. Overcome by emotion, the traveler sank to his knees, exclaiming, "Thank heaven, they're Christians!"

Jesus Definition Of A Christian

What was the Master's definition of a Christian? Can words be plainer than these: "Herein is my Father glorified, that ye bear much fruit; so shall ye be my disciples." Then he leaves no doubt as to the nature of the "fruit," when he says (as recorded in the sixteenth chapter of Mark), "And these signs shall follow them that believe; In my name shall they cast out devils; they shall speak with new tongues; they shall take up serpents; and if they drink any deadly thing, it shall not hurt them; they shall lay hands on the sick, and they shall recover." One of the most pitiable sights these days, when the human heart is crying as never before for relief and healing, is the so-called Christian man or woman trying to explain away such mighty statements as these. Recently I picked up a paper in which was voiced the opinion that the statement of Jesus in Mark relative to "signs following," should not be dwelt upon unduly, as considerable doubt has been expressed by many Bible scholars as to the authenticity of the passage and that it might have been added by a later copyist, and so forth. Granting that this contention is true, what can the critics of Christian Science do with this famous statement from the fourteenth chapter of John's gospel, the genuineness of which has never been questioned. "Verily, verily, I say unto you, he that believeth on me, the works that I do shall he do also; and greater works than these shall he do; because I go unto my Father." No, try as we may, explain as we may, still stands the unchanging test of discipleship. It is not, "What is your belief?" but, "What is the fruitage? What are your works?" and, "Have you learned to love?" For once again does the great Teacher leave us with no doubt as to the nature of a Christian. He says, "By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one to another."

"How Can We Know the Way?"

There certainly must be a few Christian believers, indeed, who in these times of turmoil, discord, and distress do not long to know how to solve humanity's problems, how to bind up the wounded and comfort the sorrowing, as did Jesus and his disciples. And should we not rejoice at the appearing in our age of a volume called a "Key to the Scriptures," and rejoice to find that such a volume indeed unlocks that great gateway of truth, the Bible, and reveals the path which leads to healing and peace—the path missed so many centuries because men had eyes which saw not!

The Christian Science Textbook

Of course, it is impossible in the few moments alloted for this lecture to give a comprehensive resume of this remarkable book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures." The importance of the work may be brought forcibly to our thought, however, when we realize that the last hundred pages are given over to statements of many who have gained their freedom from sin, suffering, and all manner of discord simply through their reading and study of the book. Possibly the chapter to which a sufferer most eagerly turns is that entitled, "Christian Science Practice," for in it Mrs. Eddy sets forth, simply and directly, the steps to be taken in the healing of the sick and the reforming of the sinner. Let us briefly glance at these inspired pages.

The Christian Science Practitioner

Mrs. Eddy begins the chapter with a remarkable pen-picture of the consistent Christian Scientist. If a seeker after Truth has any doubt as to the qualifications of a practitioner, let him read the first pages of this chapter and then see if the one to whom he has applied for help measures up to this standard. Mrs. Eddy indicates that the Christian Scientist who will be able to heal the sick is the one who has first cast moral evils out of himself, for "heal he cannot," she writes, "while his own spiritual barrenness debars him from giving drink to the thirsty, . . . yea, while mental penury chills his faith and understanding" (p. 366.)

True Sympathy and Compassion

We sometimes hear it said that Christian Scientists lack sympathy and human affection in their relations with the sufferers of earth. Listen to these definite instructions from the pen of their Leader: "If we would open their prison doors for the sick, we must first learn to bind up the broken-hearted. If we would heal by the Spirit, we must not hide the talent of spiritual healing under the napkin of its form, nor bury the morale of Christian Science in the grave-clothes of its letter. The tender word and Christian encouragement of an invalid, pitiful patience with his fears and the removal of them, are better than hecatombs of gushing theories, stereotyped borrowed speeches, and the doling or arguments, which are but so many parodies on legitimate Christian Science, aflame with divine Love" (Science and Health, pp. 366, 367). Therefore, if you seek treatment in Christian Science and encounter a person calling himself a Christian Science practitioner and then discover that this person is not learning the lessons of humility, of tenderness and compassion; if you find that he unlovingly criticizes his neighbor, is a gossiper or tale-bearer; of you find that his thought seems mercenary and that he is not loyally upholding and abiding by the Manual of The Mother Church, don't stay for the treatment! Such a person is not even touching the hem of the garment of the healing Christ. Mrs. Eddy writes elsewhere in the same book (p. 235), "Better suffer a doctor infected with smallpox to attend you than to be treated mentally by one who does not obey the requirements of divine Science." The Christian Science movement is not a restful place for the spiritual pretender. The question, "But should not just such persons who are seeking healing find healing?" may be asked Sooner or later "suffering or Science" (Science and Health, p. 296) will surely lead them to the recognition and practice of genuine Christian Science, when hypocrisy must yield to sincerity and high-sounding words to loving Christian deeds.

"Be Not Afraid"

Remedy for Fear

Mrs. Eddy goes to the Bible to find the medicine for fear, and writes as follows: "The Apostle John says: 'There is no fear in Love, but perfect Love casteth out fear. . . . He that feareth is not made perfect in Love.' Here is a definite and inspired proclamation of Christian Science" (Science and Health, p. 410). Now it is self-evident that the word "Love" used here must be closely allied in meaning to the word "know," or "understand." Can one love that which he does not know or understand Have not we all heard such statements as this: "You will surely love him, when you begin to see and know him as he really is." So the love that casts out fear must include an understanding or knowledge of something." But an understanding of what? It cannot be an understanding of anything material, for sometimes those most learned in material medicine or hygiene, or the so-called material sciences, are the greatest victims of fear Again, the love that overcomes fear cannot be that commonly designated as human affection, for may not a mother's great love for her child, for instance, be literally impregnated with fear? The same may be said of all merely human knowledge. It must be the love and understanding of that which is infinitely above materiality—the understanding of God and man's relation to Him—that casts out fear and heals the sick.

The Great First Cause

From first to last the Christian Science textbook turns mortals from a finite, material sense of God to the beautiful, comforting realization that the Great First Cause must be and is Love itself, Love infinitely good, and eternally giving, giving, giving to His creation Some persons become disturbed when they find that Mrs. Eddy speaks of God, Love, as divine Principle. "That settles it!" they exclaim. "I shall have nothing to do with a system that refers to the Almighty as 'a principle.'"

Love Is Divine Principle

The interesting point to be considered here is that Mrs. Eddy does not call God "a principle," but "divine Principle," capitalizing the written or printed word, and between the two words is a vast difference in meaning. You will find that dictionaries define the word "principle" as "the source or cause from which a thing proceeds, a power which acts continuously or uniformly." What, therefore, could afford more glory to the Father than the appelation "divine Principle," the divine source and cause of all real being —that Giver of all good and love "with whom is no variableness, neither shadow of turning?" When men begin to comprehend the harmonious, beneficent nature of the divine Principle, Love, they will cease to attribute to God the suffering of material existence. The sons of men are not suffering and dying because of a vengeful God; they suffer and die because of their ignorance of that divine Love, that divine Principle or cause, whose law is Life and unfolding harmony.

Unhappy Conceptions of God

Sadly indeed have mortals been victimized all these centuries by their unhappy conceptions of a God who is the author of both good and evil. A case in point is that of the pious farmer who accepted every untoward circumstance in his life as a visitation of God. When sorrows and sickness came to his home, he tried to bow humbly to what he called "God's will." When his house burned down, again it was the Lord's will. His son embezzled and was sent to prison. It was the hand of God. Finally, the family deserting him, and the mortgage on his farm being foreclosed, the farmer went to the country almshouse. Here he assisted with the work, and one day while ploughing in the field, a violent electrical storm arose and lightning struck his plough-share, throwing him into a hedge of brambles, tearing his clothes and wounding him physically and mentally. When the storm had passed he gathered himself together, looked reproachfully heavenward and said "Lord, this is just getting to be ridiculous."

Love Not the Author of Evil

What a blessing to the whole human family would be that understanding of the goodness of God which would enable us to rebuke the wretched discords of material sense as Jesus rebuked them, and to see in them not the hand of a tender Father-Mother Love, but the experiences that attend ignorance of that Love and law. Many of us have heard at funerals the seemingly solemn pronouncement of Scripture: "The Lord gave, the Lord hath taken away; blessed be the name of the Lord," and have completely missed, in a material interpretation thereof, the grand spiritual message contained in these words. Seeing God as infinite good and Love, we realize that He gives only life, harmony, and joy, and spiritual understanding of this truth takes away evil and sorrow and discord.

The Understanding That Casts Out Fear

In his effort to cast out fear and heal the sick, therefore, the Christian Scientist starts with the divine Principle, infinitely good, who is Spirit and Love As the Apostle John states: "God is light, and in him is no darkness at all." Man, states the first chapter of Genesis, is made in the image and after the likeness of this good and loving creator. As the Christian Science text-book put its, man is therefore the reflection of God. Can a reflection be unlike that which it reflects? Can a man stand before a mirror laughing and behold his reflection weeping? Can a child hold a rose before the mirror and see in the reflection a vegetable? Certainly not. All that a reflection is or can be is the exact image of that which is before the mirror. So the man of the first chapter of Genesis is the image or reflection of Spirit. He can not be material, for God is not material. He must be spiritual. Christ Jesus clearly brings out the thought of reflection when he states as recorded in the Gospel of Jesus, "The Son can do nothing of himself, but what he seeth the Father do; for what things soever He doeth, these also doeth the son likewise." If we, therefore, would see the man of God's creating, we must seek him in the spiritual realm. If one would seek the image and likeness of Love, one will see it only in that which, as we love, reflects Love, and expresses Love.

Did God Create Material Sense?

At this point, the question may be asked, "Do you mean, then, that God did not create this material man that we know through the senses?" Christian Science means just that, and the Apostle Paul meant just that when he said in his famous epistle to the Romans, "They which are the children of the flesh, these are not the children of God." Our Master must have meant just that when he said, "It is the Spirit that quickeneth, the flesh profiteth nothing." From the beginning to the end the Bible's central theme is the overcoming of the flesh and all materiality through the power of Spirit. It might be well to point out the fact that material man does not appear until, in the second chapter of Genesis, a mist seems to go up from the earth; and what is this mist but a material sense which seems to shut out the beautiful, harmonious creation of Spirit?

Material Sense a Mirage

Mrs Eddy in the Christian Science textbook refers to the material sense of things as a mirage—as that which seemeth to be, but in reality is not. Traveling over the great desert of central Australia, and not having encountered any signs of water for several hundreds of miles, I was surprised and delighted to see, not far from the train, what appeared to be a good-sized lake with the bluest of blue water. I called the attention of a fellow-traveler to this. "Why," said he, "you are not looking at water. There is no water within hundreds of miles of us. You are looking at a mirage." Even as he spoke, I still seemed to see that lake. Had I been driving in that direction, I should have altered my course to escape the water; yet, in truth, there was no water there. Does not this illustrate the elusive nature of this mist, this material sense of things, which today, as of yore, seems to come up from the earth, from material premises, and shut out from our gaze the man and universe created by God who is Love?

The "Correct View of Man"

We have now reached in our analysis that point which may be regarded as possibly the greatest statement in the Christian Science textbook, a statement fraught with tremendous possibilities for the race. Mrs. Eddy shows that Jesus did not look through a glass darkly, did not let his gaze rest upon this material Adam-sense of things. When confronted with a picture of sinning, maimed, sick, and imperfect humanity, he put the glasses of material sense far from him, and to quote the textbook, "beheld in Science the perfect man, who appeared to him where sinning mortal man appears to mortals. In this perfect man the Saviour saw God's own likeness, and this correct view of man healed the sick" (pp. 476, 477). Have we not in this passage the clearest explanation of that understanding that love which will cast out fear? What can the statement, "Love thy neighbour as thyself," mean but that we must gain the correct spiritual view of our neighbor, see our neighbor, as we strive to see ourselves, as the spiritual image of God described in the first chapter of Genesis. When we gain "this correct view of man," when we realize that the true selfhood of man and his neighbor is spiritual, not material, this love, this understanding, begins to destroy ignorance and fear, and thus wipes out sickness and sin, destroys misunderstandings, hate, and all manner of discord."

"Correct View" Heals The Sick

During the great influenza epidemic, when doctors frankly admitted their inability to cope with the malady, those who relied on Christian Science treatment were, in a vast majority of instances, safely carried through. And why? Because fear—fear of disease, and fear of death, universal fear and mesmerism—was the real name of the so-called influenza germ, and only spiritual understanding, "the correct view," could destroy that fear—the understanding of God who is divine Principle, Love, and man, eternally at one with his Maker, reflecting deathless Life and harmonious law. A little child who had been allowed to attend the Christian Science Sunday School had been battling for hours with the symptoms of influenza. Finally he asked his mother to read to him the story of Daniel in the lion's den. When she concluded with the well known words, "So no manner of hurt was found upon him, because he believed in his God," the child sat up in bed and said earnestly, "Mother, the God of Daniel is my God, and nothing can hurt me." In no time the fear of sickness was gone and the child dropped into a peaceful slumber and awakened whole and free. Perfect love had cast out fear.

The Problem of Intemperance

Let us consider for a moment the problem of intemperance. Mrs. Eddy was a staunch prohibitionist. Loyal Christian Scientists unite with clean minded citizens in upholding the cause of temperance in every land. What would be thought of a man or woman professing to be a Christian Scientist, and therefore a believer in law, deliberately violating a nation's laws, or attempting to undermine them? Such a picture is unthinkable. But there will be no need for prohibition laws when every citizen is a Christian Scientist. Why? The Christian Scientist does not indulge in intoxicants for the simple reason that he has learned that there is no real pleasure or satisfaction in such indulgences Many turn to so-called stimulants because they crave a feeling of well-being, supposed to follow in the wake of strong drink The Christian Scientist has found a more excellent method.

Have you ever made good on one job.. for 39 years?

THE extra mileage you get from Dunlop tires starts with the fact that Dunlop has had thirty-nine years of tire-building experience—more than any other tiremaker.

These cords mean extra strength—an added factor of safety against constant load and pounding of roads—longer life and greater mileage.

They mean extra "stretch"—so the tire carcass will give under blows, and come back to its original shape without the slightest injury.

Every Dunlop you buy has extra miles built into it because Dunlop knows each part of its job. That is why we recommend you put Dunlops on your car.

A LECTURE ON CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

He strives to partake of the wine of inspiration, rather than the wine of fermentation, and through the knowing of that Love "divinely near" (Poems, page 6) eternally satisfying, strengthening, and upholding man, he gains a sense of peace and satisfaction and well-being never experienced before.

Christian Science, therefore, is not engaged in taking joy from mortals, it is in the glorious business of giving to mankind real joy and lasting satisfaction that joy which the Master said no man should take from us.

A man who had been an inveterate smoker for fifty-seven years, and was healed in Christian Science, said, "Think of all the joy I missed during my tobacco years."

Christian Science in Business

The understanding of Christian Science brings to the business man and woman fresh courage, inspiration and intelligence. It will probably be conceded by all thinking persons that the kingdom of heaven on earth would not be far distant if the elements of hate, greed, suspicion, and jealousy could be eliminated from the business world. And wherever you find the understanding of Christian Science brought into business, there you may know that these errors are surely being eliminated. The Christian Scientist in business strives to recognize first of all that he is not working for material personality, but for divine Principle, Love. To be sure, he renders to "Caesar the things that are Caesar's." In other words, he strives to obey orders and to give intelligent service to his human superiors. His burden is made light, however, in the realization that in truth, he is serving divine Principle, and that a just and loving God governs, protects and rewards his children.

Solving A Business Problem

Let us take, for example, a situation in some busy offices. Many of the employees are disgruntled, dissatisfied and envious. The superior officers are criticized as tyrants. The workers feel they are not being justly compensated. Dwelling merely in the mirage of material sense they are unhappy, hopeless and rebellious, and, in many cases sick because of this disturbing mental attitude. Another worker in this office is a student of Christian Science; possibly he too feels that injustice is in the saddle. His thoughts, however, must be lifted above the evidence of the material senses. You will find him striving to realize that divine Principle, Love is his employer and paymaster and that there is no power nor reality in that which would withhold from man his righteous due. He refuses to see his brother man as a withholder or tyrant, when the image of God must be the very expression or outpouring of Love itself. And many times the righteous thinking of just one individual in an office or organization lifts the sense of injustice and hate not only from himself, but from all his brethren.

Man Not A Withholder

I knew a man once who owed another a large sum of money, and who, apparently, was endeavoring to evade payment thereof. The feeling was not a happy one between the two men. The creditor constantly regarded the other as an ungrateful withholder, whilst the debtor could see in the creditor only a grasping mercenary thought. Things went from bad to worse for some time until Christian Science came to the rescue of the creditor. He then realized that he had been dwelling only in the mirage of material sense testimony, and had been seeing his brother as a withholder. Gradually it dawned upon him that man can not withhold if he is the very expression of Love itself. With this realization, all bitterness dropped away, and the very day following the lifting of this mist, and without any further demand upon his debtor, he received a kind letter from him enclosing a check in full payment of his account. How prone have mortals been to bind their brother man with the chains of limitation, hate and wrong thinking, and then complain because the brother seems bound. An understanding of Love takes off the fetters which false belief has forged, and man appears as the image of his Maker the joyous expression of harmony and of law.

Grateful for Some Progress

No student of Christian Science claims to be able to do all of the great works of Christ Jesus. He realizes that he has enrolled himself in the great school-room of Spirit, and that today he is in only the A B C's of spiritual demonstration. If he is not able to walk on the water and raise the dead, as did the great Teacher, he is grateful that he is at least making some progress, for he is certainly healthier, happier, and better morally than he was before beginning his study, and as years go by he finds that he understands better how to bring the healing message to his neighbor.

Futility of Discouragement

Never should he allow the argument of discouragement to obtain lodgement in his mental home, for it is as futile to speak of failure in connection with the Science of Christianity as with the science of numbers. There is not, there never can be, a failure with the divine Principle of being. Suppose we have two water glasses of equal height and capacity. Fill one with water, the other with quicksilver. Then begin to pour the quicksilver into the water. What will happen? Every drop of quicksilver that goes into the other glass displaces an equal volume of water. It never fails. When you have completely transferred the quicksilver into the other receptacle you will find that the water has all been eliminated. Now, call the glass of water the human thinking, and let the quicksilver represent spiritual sense. Every time a spiritual idea, a correct view of being is poured into the human consciousness, a corresponding amount of wrong thinking, fear, ignorance, and sin goes out. That always happens. It never fails to happen.

Keep On Pouring

The textbook tells us that "the way to extract error from mortal mind is to pour in truth through flood-tides of Love" (Science and Health, p. 201). The trouble with many of us is that we forget that this understanding makes us virtually the master of every circumstance, and so many times we cease pouring. And of course when the pouring in of the quicksilver of truth is stopped the water of material belief remains undisturbed. Let us, therefore, realize the certain and never failing effect of the truth of being and keep on pouring! Then surely shall we witness the fulfillment of Malachi's beautiful promise that divine Love will open the windows of heaven and pour out a blessing, "that there shall not be room enough to receive it."

Conclusion

There is no record in history, so far as we know, of the death of the Apostle John. Certain it is that "he whom Jesus loved," who caught the spiritual sense of the Master's message as did none other of Jesus' students, rose above the argument of age and decrepitude, and walked with men long after the rest of the disciples had gone from human sight. A well-known tradition has it that the beloved Apostle was once taken to a small gathering of Christians, who were eager to see and hear one who had been with Jesus. They pressed him to tell them some of the wonderful things the great Teacher had said. A sacred hush fell on them all, and after a few moments St. John said reverently, "Little children, love one another." They waited breathlessly for him to go on, but he said no more. Then they importuned him to continue. Again he said, "Little children, love one another." "Why do you always keep saying that?" asked one of the audience. "Because" John answered, "the Master was always telling us that nothing mattered much if we only loved one another."

Oh, how sadly do earth's children need this lesson today! Certainly Jesus was not commending that so-called love which is only sentimental emotionalism, or that "sickly charity" (Miscellaneous Writings, p. 211) which Mrs. Eddy describes as supplying "criminals with bouquets," but that Love divine, which looking through the Adam-mist and dispersing it, sees only the man of God's creating and separates all evil from him, thus destroying inharmony, sickness, and sin. If we thus strive to love and bless mankind, we may know that truly we are in the Master's business, for he taught, in the language of one of our hymns, that

> "Not by the harsh or scornful word
> Should we our brother seek to gain,
> Not by the prison or the sword,
> The shackles or the clanking chain
> [illegible]
> A [illegible]
> [illegible]
> And [illegible]

The Good Book tells us that though we speak with the tongues of men and angels, and have not Love, we are become as sounding brass or a tinkling cymbal; though we have the gift of prophesy, and understand all mysteries and all knowledge, and though we have all faith, so that we could remove mountains and have not Love, we are nothing; and though we bestow all our goods to feed the poor, and though we give our bodies to be burned, and have not Love, it profiteth us nothing!

Love suffereth long, and is kind; it envieth not, vaunteth not itself, is not puffed up, doth not behave itself unseemly, seeketh not her own, is not easily provoked, thinketh no evil. Love never faileth—Love never faileth!

Put Faith in Image to Frighten Smallpox

Motoring along a country road in India, the attention of tourists was called to a curious-looking object by the roadside. It was a roughly carved little image, mounted on a small stool, with three legs.

The image betrayed no signs of expert workmanship and was quite clearly the handwork of some rough village carpenter. They eyes and mouth were roughly carved, and vermillion paint brought these into prominence. The little creature had also two wooden arms.

Stopping the car, the tourists waited until some villager came along the road, and questioned him as to the reason why this image had been left by the roadside. He pointed out that it had been placed a few yards over the boundary line of the village, and that it had been there since the early hours of the morning.

It was an image of the goddess of the village temple, so common in south India, and represented the deity who controls smallpox. The scourge had broken out and had laid low a number of people, and it was felt that unless the goddess could be persuaded to transfer the evil more would fall sick.

So the little image was made and removed outside the bounds of the village. Naturally the people in the next village did not appreciate this attention, and the custom is to move it from village to village. Then sometimes it is possible to get a Mohammedan, for a small fee, to destroy it completely.

Thus does the Indian villager deal with the troublesome disease.

Investigation seems to indicate that one can adjust to the increasing noises of modern cities with great rapidity and ease and that little or no harm is done.

Typists placed at work for hours in the most infernal uproar—steam whistles, crashing tinware, pistol shots and intermittent groans and screams—are troubled only until the novelty wears off. Then nerves quiet down and the noises cease to be impressed.

Look With Suspicion On Too-Good Youth

Poor little good boy! Nobody believes in him; everybody distrusts him. All the wise educators and psychologists peer at him suspiciously and solemnly announce that he can't possibly be approved of. If he is tractable and obedient they shake their heads dolorously and prophesy that it won't last—that he'll do something dreadful later in life to make up for it and he'd much better be getting his allowance of original sin out of his system while he's young, ingrowing sin being a serious complaint. Well maybe. But somehow, we can't help wondering if it's quite as bad as all that. We always had a sneaking idea that the boys and girls who did as they were told and got into no serious mischief grew up to be the dependable, conscientious industrious men and women who do the bulk of the world's work and do it quietly and efficiently, without ringing any bells or blowing any horns to call attention to themselves and that one or two of them may even have become presidents of banks or railroads or something. Probably we're wrong, but it's a comfortable theory, anyway.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Trapping the Deceitful

The most artful [illegible] is to pretend to fall into the snare that is laid for us; for we are never so easily deceived as when we think we are deceiving others.—La Rochefoucauld.

Plants and Light

All plants require some light. Sunlight supplies the energy which causes chemical reactions to take place inside the leaves. These reactions convert the raw food elements into food elements available to the plant, says Nature Magazine. Therefore, such sun-loving plants as geraniums, roses, and abutilon, when set away in a dark corner, do not thrive so well as when placed in a sunny window. On the other hand, plants which take a small amount of sunlight, and this includes palms, aspidistra, ferns, and many of the vines, do not thrive if put in a sunny location.

Odd Quirk of Nature in Recognized Genius

The annals of literary forgery have no more pathetic instance than the so-called Rowley poems of Thomas Chatterton. When Chatterton, perhaps the most striking example of precocity to be found in literary history, was twelve years old he conceived the idea of fabricating the literary relics of a monk to whom he gave the name Rowley and whom he ascribed to the Fifteenth century. By the time he was seventeen he had aroused some interest in the poems of Rowley but not enough to satisfy his imagination. So he wrote to Horace Walpole, inclosing some pages of manuscript and inferring he had other papers and poems. Walpole wrote, asking to see whatever documents he might have and Chatterton sent so many as to arouse Walpole's suspicion and cause him to call in the poets, Mason and Gray. They pronounced the poems a forgery. Walpole dispatched a letter of admonition to Chatterton. Three months later he returned the manuscripts, which, with the exception of one poem, never saw print until after Chatterton had taken his life in a moment of despair. He was not yet eighteen when he died. So brilliant, so versatile was he that even those contemporaries who condemned him conceded that in many respects he was a greater genius. By some queer quirk of nature he had chosen to act the imposter, where he might with every prospect of renown have produced his work as his own.—Dearborn Independent.

UNIVERSITY THEATRE

"The Monkey Talks" and "The Prairie King" are the feature pictures at the University for four days beginning Sunday. "The Monkey Talks" has earned the reputation of being the best circus picture ever filmed. It is more than a circus picture, however, for the plot is very different from the usual one that accompanies stories under the "Big Top." Olive Borden is the heroine with Don Alvaarado as the hero. Jaques Lerner, a Frenchman, impersonates a monkey so successfully that one wonders whether it is a case of a man playing the monkey or the monkey playing the man. Raymond Hitchcock, of musical comedy fame, furnishes the comedy.

"The Prairie King" is the story of a go-getting cowboy who turns prospector. In one day he met a girl and inherited a mine. Then the action begins and there is no let up till the very finish of the picture. Hoot Gibson is the hero and dainty Barbara Worth plays the heroine.

For the last three days of the week the program includes "Ritzy," an Elinor Glyn story with charming Betty Bronson in the title role. An American heiress wants to marry a title. In her attempt to do so she so far overreaches herself as to refuse a real Duke, who is traveling incognito, and sets her cap for the pseudo Duke. Then the fun begins.

The companion feature film is "Mother" with Belle Bennett. The story is from the novel by Kathleen Norris. It is one of the most appealing and convincing dramas ever put on the screen.

WINCHESTER JUNIORS COMPETED AT LONGWOOD

Herbert Wallis won the consolation singles for boys in the same tourney and Mary Armstrong was runner up in the consolations for girls while several others of the Town's young tennis hopefuls made a good showing in the play while getting some excellent experience.

Rev. William S. Packer was in charge of the local delegation which took part in the tournament, the group of players including Ruth Wadleigh, Mabel Tompkins, Barbara Chidley, Helen Nowell, Helen Bidwell, Mary Armstrong, Deborah Gilbert, Frances Pettingell, Lucy Fowle, Marguerite Bartlett, Roger Pettingell, Gardiner Walker, Richard Riley, Herbert Wallis, Frank Nelson, Paul Welborn, Dee[illegible] Hamerstrom, Fred Hitchcock and Walter Abbott.

Mouth Shutters

We have automatic door shutters and automatic contrivances for a lot of other things, but up to this time no inventor has filed application for a patent on an automatic mouth shutter, and goodness knows they could be used to good advantage. The principal trouble in selling them would be to convince the one who should have such a helpful device that it would be just the thing for him.—Hartford News.

A GOOD START

Officer John F. Dempsey made a good start for his first night on duty as a member of Winchester's police department. While patroling his beat on Church street Wednesday he stopped two North Woburn men who were charged at headquarters with violations of the Motor Vehicle Laws.

Both appered in the District Court at Woburn Thursday morning. Arthur J. Curtis was found guilty of failing to stop when ordered to do so by an officer and with operating after his license had been revoked. He was fined $25 on both counts. Charles N. Clark who was charged with failure to stop on signal and with allowing one to operate his car who had no legal right to do so was found not guilty.

Thought for Youth

There is an especial duty at middle age to sow the right seed thoughts that will make the latter period of life as beautiful and as attractive as it can be made.

First White House Car

When the Tafts entered the White House there was a new motor brougham, which has been designated as "the first motor car ever to be used at the White House."

Strange Race of People

There is an ancient race in India, the Todas, nearly extinct now, that resembles the gypsies. Its members speak a strange tongue, make hovels out of mud topped with a kind of pyramid, in the hills. They are sullen, savage, chary of approach. They worship dark, occult gods who preside over death and life. They do not wander like the gypsies. In their isolation one supposes that the wolves and the vultures and the jackals are their familiars, [illegible] either side. They worship stones, the stars, the grass, the dawn and the moon.—Grit.

Given String of Names

The longest name yet wished on a defenseless infant has been bestowed on a daughter of Arthur Pepper, Liverpool (Eng.) laundryman. The child's initials exhaust the alphabet. Taking the letters in order omitting p which is supplied by Pepper, the child was christened Anna Bertha Cecilia Diana Emily Fanny Gertrude Hypatia Inez Jane Kate Louise Maud Nora Ophelia Quince Rebecca Starkey Teresa Ulysses Venus Winifred Xenophon Yetty Zeno Pepper. She's sometimes called Miss Alphabet Pepper for short.

BAPTISTS TENDER RECEPTION

To Their Acting Pastor and to His Father, Dr. Brougher of Oakland, California

The members of the First Baptist Church tendered a reception to their acting pastor, Rev. James W. Brougher, Jr., and his wife, and to Rev. James W. Brougher, D.D. LL.D and his wife, who are his father and mother.

The Broughers had just returned from Chicago where they had been attending the Northern Baptist Convention of which Dr. Brougher was the president.

The reception took place at half past nine in the evening in order to permit the members to return from the meeting of the Boston Baptist Social Union in Ford Building, Boston, where Dr Brougher had delivered an address on "Keys and Keyholes." The chapel of the church had been beautifully decorated and prepared for the reception, and practically all the members and friends of the church were present when the Broughers arrived from Boston. After they had been introduced to all, Mr. Brougher and his father and mother made brief addresses. It was also announced that Mr Brougher would accept the pastorate of the church beginning in the fall. This was received with great enthusiasm and applause which lasted for many minutes.

The decorations were in yellow and lavender. Mrs. Brougher, Senior, carried an arm bouquet of lavender sweet peas and Mrs. Brougher, Jr., an arm bouquet of yellow marguerites, both of which were presented to them by the Committee. Music was furnished by a trio of ladies from Arlington and refreshments were served under the direction of Mrs. Lorenzo Crowell.

Those who were in charge of the reception were Mrs. Charles A. Burnham, Mrs. R. W. Taylor, H. T. Winn, L. O. Waters, Mrs. E. H. Butterworth, Mary W. Moulton, Mrs. E. S. Winn, Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Johnson and Mrs. Newton Shultis.

LEGION FAIR TOMORROW

The Town Hall and Legion House grounds are displaying a festive air as Saturday is the day of the great Legion Fair, put on by the local Post to raise money for their Welfare Fund and current expenses, the profits to be equally divided. An even dozen other organizations in town are assisting the Post in this worthy cause by running special booths and in other feature attractions.

The Women's Republican Club has already secured the attendance of President and Mrs. Coolidge, by proxy, to help make the Fair interesting. The Winchester Post, No. 97, A. L. Band will give a splendid concert both afternoon and evening. The Bugle and Drum Corps of the Girl Scouts will assist with special music.

Competent judges for the Baby Show have been selected from our townspeople and the Baby Show will start at 3:30 p. m., followed by a doll and doll carriage show. Four valuable prizes are offered by the Legion, and the judges have a hard job ahead of them to determine the prettiest baby and best decorated baby and baby carriage; also best dressed doll and best decorated doll and doll carriage. Children three years old and younger may enter the Baby Show, no age limit in the Doll and Doll Carriage Show.

Among the many other attractions will be "grab" tables, fortune teller, performing clowns, outdoor movies, horseshoe pitching contests, striking machine to test your strength, nail driving contest for the ladies, novelty tables, food and tonic booths, etc. The Legion members will be in charge of booths with carnival merchandise, Mexican hats, large dolls, blankets, candy, pillows, etc.

No gambling devices of any kind will be allowed on the grounds. Prize winners will be determined by their skill in throwing darts and similar games.

Arrangements have been made to hold the Fair in the Town Hall in case of rain. Admission is free to all.

ELKS TO OBSERVE FLAG DAY

In accordance with its usual custom and together with brother lodges throughout these United States Winchester Lodge of Elks will observe Flag Day this Sunday evening with appropriate exercises in Lyceum Hall.

No service is more important in Elkdom than is that of Flag Day and the ritual is beautiful and impressive. In addition, arrangements have been made for the appearance of William H. McSweeney of Salem Lodge who will deliver the oration. Mr. McSweeney is a powerful and magnetic speaker and Winchester Lodge feels very fortunate in having obtained his services.

The bugle and drum corps of the Winchester Girl Scouts will also assist with the exercises and there will be trumpet solos by Mrs. William Avery of Melrose, a widely known musician.

The service will begin at 7 o'clock and is not long. Winchester Lodge extends a cordial invitation to the public to attend.

Marion Stover Winn, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Winn of Myopia Hill, was a high honor graduate of Lesley School, Cambridge at commencement exercises held in the First Parish Church, Cambridge, Wednesday.

EMBLEM CLUB AFFAIRS

Tuesday evening quite a few of the members were entertained by Past President Mrs. Anna W. Lochman at her home on Kenwin road, and needless to say, were well repaid for their long walk—if they did walk—to that "other end" of the town. Incidentally, a few took note of the costly and much discussed George Washington School, where it nestles among the pine trees, or maybe they are chestnut trees. And then again, maybe they are neither! It's as dangerous to handle scenery these days as it is to name canary birds unless one holds an inquest first.

But to get back to that schoolhouse again! Viewing its pretentious exterior and knowing the costliness of its interior, one wonders how the "Father of His Country" ever managed to "get there," handicapped as he was by home training, log school houses and unsanitary conditions! But, anyway, we enjoyed Mrs. Lochman's home social and the beautiful view from her veranda much better knowing that the agony of naming that school is over and that we can now concentrate whole-heartedly on the next bunch of border schoolhouses, and the taxes thereon.

Well, however wise or otherwise our line of reasoning may be, we are accumulating quite a little sum by our home socials, and every little bit speeds up our welfare activities. At the business session Wednesday evening Trustee Bernice F. Gorman announced that date of her "At Home Party," Monday afternoon, June 13, at 1 Warwick place, from 2 till 5 o'clock. Mrs. Benjamin F. Cullen announced "open house" at 9 Russell road, on the evening of June 21. Members are urged to attend both affairs and all may be assured of "room for all" and a cordial welcome.

All but one of the drill team reported for duty at the rehearsal which took place in the early part of the session, and it looks as if this innovation was going to fill a long desired want. Mr. McDonough, the instructor, is much encouraged by the interest shown and predicts a perfect team by the fall. If no arrangements can be made for an earlier date, the next rehearsal will be held at the same hour on the evening of June 22. The officers, too, have plans for a few floor maneouvers to add to the club's impressive style of ritualistic work, and under the guidance of Marshal Edna M. Gilchrist everyone is trying to perfect her part.

President Emily A. Scholl announces a class initiation, scheduled for Wednesday evening, June 22. Also, everyone is expected to attend Flag Day exercises in Lyceum Hall Sunday evening at 7 o'clock. Members are requested by the local lodge, B. P. O. E., to meet in the lower hallway before the hour for formation purposes, and march into the main hall in a body. The committee in charge of the refreshment booth at the Legion Fair next Saturday afternoon should consult President E. M. Scholl, tel. 1731, for further particulars. The club has donated a sum of money to stock the booth and contributions of food and money are coming in from individual members. A donation to the Mississippi Flood victims was voted at this session, also.

During the social hour a splendid entertainment was staged by Mrs. M. E. Goodhue and Mrs. Kathryn Griffin. The instrumental numbers were rendered with all the skill of trained artists by Miss Eileen Golden on the cornet and Miss Kathleen Golden at the piano. In their country dance specialty little Dorothy and Myrtle Goodhue were especially good. Solo dances were given by each of the children and little Myrtle danced her way right into the hearts of all in her butterfly dance.

Refreshments of fruit punch and strawberry shortcake were served under the direction of Mrs. Ethel Horn and Mrs. Annie E. Vayo.

LINCOLN PLAYERS APPEARED LAST EVENING

Xylophone solos were played by Walter Howe and violin numbers by Samuel Farber of Roxbury, formerly of Winchester.

Assisting the Lincoln Players with the program was a group of charming junior dancers including Priscilla Danforth, Muriel Little, Leonore McNiff, Alcyone Rogers, Dorothy Hamilton and Virginia Danforth. Mrs. William Adriance and Miss Florence Baker were the accompanists. Walter L. Rice, founder and director of the Lincoln Players, was conductor. A more complete account of the concert will appear in next week's issue of the Star.

FORMER WINCHESTER BOY RECEIVED DOCTOR'S DEGREE

Word has been received here that Arthur S. Adams, a former Winchester boy and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Adams of Mystic avenue, has received the degree of Doctor of Science at the Colorado School of Mines.

Mr. Adams up to a year ago had been a member of the faculty at the University of California where he was doing special work leading to his receiving his degree there in 1926. He was graduated from the Winchester High School with high honor in 1913 and spent a year at Norwich before entering the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis. He was graduated there with the rank of ensign in 1919 and for two years thereafter was stationed at Honolulu, Hawaii. In 1921 he was commissioned Lieutenant and was put in command of the U. S. Submarine S-4 with base at San Pedro, Sal.

A year later he was forced by ill health to resign from the navy and became a member of the teaching staff at the Denver, Col. high school, studying during the summer months at Harvard. PETITION TO HAVE CROSS STREET STATION RETAINED

The Selectmen received this week a petition signed by Margaret E. McGonigle and 222 others, asking the Board, as representatives of the Town, to make known to the officials of the Boston & Main Railroad the petitioners' desire that the railroad's station at Cross street be kept in operation.

In communicating with the railroad the Board set forth such information as was contained in the petition and asked the road's reasons for closing the station. The Selectmen also inquired whether any hearing upon the matter of closing the station was to be held.

Mr and Mrs. B. F. Wild of Sheffield road have opened their summer home at Bass River.

GIRL SCOUT BLOCK "AID"

Last Saturday afternoon the Girl Scouts of Winchester held a very successful bazaar at the home of Captain Parker on Main street. The affair opened promptly at 3 o'clock with playing by the drum and bugle corps. A Scout then raised the flag while all stood at attention, then followed the salute to the flag, by all the organization and the afternoon's festivities began.

Each troop had a special feature and the girls relayed each other in the discharge of duty, thereby affording an opportunity for service by each member.

Captain Houston with Troop 1 served delicious lemonade. Their booth was decorated to represent a bell and was very attractive.

Captain Ladd and Lieutenant MacElwain with girls of Troop 2 in costumes amused the interested crowd with their games of human croquet and leap frog.

The handicraft table was in charge of Troop 3, and all the articles for sale were made by these girls, under the able leadership of Captain Parker, and beautifully executed.

Troop 4 did their bit with the Brownie Pack and Captain Antin Brown Owl Jurgenson and the girls were hidden in the loft of the barn to dispense "Grabs." The little folks dressed as robins sent the grabs to the ground by way of the birds' nest.

Industries made at Cedar Hill were sold in the barn by the deputy commissioner, Mrs. Walter Wadsworth; and a demonstration of hand-weaving given by Scout Hayden.

Captain Clarke, Lieutenant Moran and Troop 4 were very successful with their sale of cake and cooked foods.

Archery was skillfully directed by Mr. Jordan of Cedar Hill, and the crowd of boys and men who constantly tried their skill with the bow and arrow attested its popularity.

Mary Whittaker and Janet Nichols gave the use of their ponies for the enjoyment of the very little people and they were always booked ahead for rides.

The drum and bugle corps led by its splendid drum major, Marie Dresser, gave much pleasure to the visitors during the afternoon.

At 5:30 a supper was served at small tables, under the trees, Scouts acting as waitresses.

This supper was under the able direction of the Winchester Council with Mrs. Arthur Speedy, its very efficient social chairman in charge.

The commissioner, Mrs. Louis K. Snyder and Mrs. Howard F. Bidwell had charge of the ice cream and pie desserts.

The affair proved a success in every way and netted about $300 for the maintenance of the drum and bugle corps.

MEDFORD WON FROM WINCHESTER

"Danny" Connors, crack right hander of Medford, held Winchester to one hit at Fulton street Wednesday afternoon and Medford defeated the local nine, 5—1. "Howie" Smith's single in the 5th inning prevented Connors from getting credit for a no hit game, the goal of all twirlers.

Hatch worked for Winchester and was hit rather hard, Coach Roberts' sluggers finding him for 8 bingles, including 4 doubles and a triple. "Lefty" got nine on strikes while walking three. Connors struck out one more than Hatch and issued one free ticket.

Medford won the battle in the very first inning. Cook, first up, topped a fast one which looked foul but which was ruled fair by Umpire Kelley. Franklin recovered the ball but pegged wildly allowing the runner to make second. Elliott singled to left and Cook counted when Murphy's peg to catch him was wide of the mark. Elliott made second on the throw-in. McCarthy hoisted to Taylor. McCune singled, sending Elliott to 3rd. Connors hit to Hatch and Elliott was caught at the plate, Connors making second and McCune third. Both counted on Wells' double. Ober fanned for the final out.

A cheap run trickled over in the 4th. Edgerly, who had replaced Ober, was safe on Ghirardini's error and he at once stole second. He scored when Franklin pegged wildly in an attempt to flag him at 3rd. The run would never have scored otherwise, since Hanley popped to Franklin, Newton flied to Amico and Cook fanned.

Doubles by Wells and Edgerly accounted for Medford's final run in the 6th. Winchester's sole tally was made in the 5th. Smith, first up, singled to right and stole second. Franklin fanned. Smith made third while McCune was throwing out Amico and scored when Cook mussed up Hatch's roller. Murphy got a walk but Cobb struck out to end the inning.

TO TRY TO REDUCE MOTOR ACCIDENTS

The Winchester Chamber of Commerce has written the Board of Selectmen, expressing its desire to cooperate with the Board in stimulating interest in the movement to reduce automobile accidents in town during the month of June.

Governor Fuller has offered a valuable silver trophy to the city or town showing the greatest reduction for the month, beginning June 1, 1927. The poster sent by the Governor to the Town has been turned over to the Chief of Police and more posters are to be obtained and displayed in conspicuous places.

Winchester got away to rather a poor start in its attempt to reduce motor accidents for June, the past two weeks listing more such mishaps than any like period for some time.

The Chevrolet was headed north on Main street while the truck was coming out of Swanton street at the time of the accident. The pleasure car was somewhat damaged in the collision but no one was reported injured.

WINCHESTER GIRL RODE WINNER FOR HARRY GOOD

Winchester horse lovers and devotees of riding were interested in the splendid win which the bay team entered by Harry Good of West Medford, former well known local riding master, scored at Waveney Farm, Framingham, last Friday in capturing the blue in the feature event for the Millwood Hunt Trophy.

Mr. Good's hunters, "Who," "Miss Cork," and "Caragaline" were the winning mounts and adding interest from a local standpoint is the fact that the second named was ridden by Miss Ellen Harding, 13 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Harding of Fells road. Although Miss Harding has been riding for about a year and a half, it is only within the past six months that she has taken part in hunting fixtures. That she would have been a winner in such a worth while event as that for the Millwood Trophy is considered particularly noteworthy, since it is said that she is among the youngest girl riders in the country.

A strictly Winchester entry was among the winners at Waveney, Arthur Black's Red Roberts winning the blue in the event for Park Hacks. Red Roberts also placed third in the Sweepstakes Saddle Class (open) held during Saturday's exhibiting at the same show.

Superintendent of Streets Parker Holbrook has announced that by far the greater part of oiling which the streets will receive has been done. His department has been trying out one of the new painting machines for traffic lines on streets this week, the machine having been loaned the Town by one of the big oil concerns.

WEDDING ANNOUNCED

Miss Caroline Farrar Ware, instructor in history at Vassar College since 1925, was married at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Thursday, June 2, to Gardner C. Means of Cambridge, a Harvard graduate and former Winchester boy. Mr. Means makes his home at 503 Fairfax Hall, Cambridge, and is the son of Rev. Frederick H. Means, formerly of Brookline and Winchester. He served as an aviator during the World War and received his degree at Harvard in 1919, later returning for graduate work. Mrs. Means plans to continue as a member of the Vassar faculty.

A CORRECTION

Through an unfortunate error the name of Marvin G. Branch was included in the list of Winchester's World War Dead, appearing in the Star of May 27. Winchester Post, American Legion, is obliged to relatives of Mr. Branch who called its attention to the mistake and greatly regret its error. His buddies here are glad to learn that though not now living in Winchester, Mh. Branch is very much alive and enjoying good health.

ANOTHER BOOTLEGGER'S MISTAKE

Another bootlegger made the mistake of plying his trade a bit too openly on the West Side of Winchester last Friday evening and as a result of Officer William Cassidy's vigilance and ability to make an even 4 out of 2 and 2 the former took a little trip to the Woburn Court the following morning where his bank roll was lightened exactly $200 by Judge Morton. Not that a paltry $200 means much of anything in the life of a bootlegger with a thriving trade, but at that, $200 is just $200, even in these brisk times, and then there is the principal of the thing as the bankers say.

Officer Cassidy was patrolling his beat along Oxford street at about 8:15 o'clock when a man driving a Cadillac Victoria asked to be directed to a nearby residence. After giving the necessary directions the patrolman casually drifted along and noticed a bit later the same car parked in a private garage. Becoming suspicious Officer Cassidy examined the machine and had his suspicions nicely confirmed. Was there liquor? There was, and how.

The driver of the car was nowhere in sight but some children informed Officer Cassidy that they had seen the man in question running down the street. Getting the direction the patrolman gave chase and ran his quarry to earth at the corner of Calumet road and Oxford street.

At the Station House the bootlegger gave his name as Louis Stepansky and said he came from Dorchester. The Caddillac was found to contain between 80 and 90 bottles of choice liquors.

Stepansky was locked up and appeared in the District Court Saturday morning where he was charged with the illegal transportation of liquor. He was found guilty and fined $209 as noted above.

WINCHESTER MADE CLEAN SWEEP AT TENNIS

Winchester High School's tennis team won all five of its matches with Winthrop High at Palmer street Tuesday afternoon, the tourney being an Interscholastic League affair.

Ross, playing number one singles for Winchester, won in straight love sets from Fenton of Winthrop while both Smith and Rowe of the locals prevented the visitors from winning a set.

The league title was won by Melrose which team defeated Lexington yesterday. Winchester has made a splendid showing and another year should be in the driver's seat.

The summary:

SINGLES

Ross, Winchester, defeated Fenton, Winthrop, 6-0, 6-0; Smith, Winchester, defeated Patterson, Winthrop, 6-1, 6-4; Rowe, Winchester, defeated MacCasick, Winthrop, 6-1, 6-2.

The local Emblem Club was represented by Mrs. Anna W. Lochman and Mrs. Emily Scholl. Points of interest throughout the city, including Whittier's home were visited during the day and the local party reported a royal reception and general good time.

ANNUAL HORSE SHOW SATURDAY

The annual Winchester Horse Show will be held on the grounds of Goods' Riding School at Franklin avenue, Medford, on June 11. This show had a modest beginning seven years ago when Mrs. Oren C. Sanborn, Miss Helen Sanborn and Miss M. Alice Mason, Winchester ladies interested in the welfare of the Winchester Hospital, conceived the idea of raising funds for the Hospital by running a horse show. The show was held for several years at the Sanborn estate on Myopia Hill. WINCHESTER BOAT CLUB

On the holiday, June 17, a regatta is to be held in the afternoon with a regular club dance in the evening. It is hoped that the Omricon-Delta Canoe Association of Waltham will be able to accept an invitation to participate in a dual meet with Winchester, as their presence would do much to make the regatta a success. In the event of their accepting, the races will be divided into two classes. The regular one half mile events will be divided into two classes. The regular one-half mile events will consist of club-fours and tandems, single and double blades, and in between these events, novelty races will be run. The meet would wind up by a tilting tournament.

If the Omricon Deltas cannot accept, the regatta will be held just the same, and instead of having half-mile events, all of the races would be novelties. It has been decided to have one race for girls, namely, tandems, single blades, one-eighth mile, canvas canoes. The finishes will take place in front of the club house.

Members are urged to attend the regatta in the afternoon and the dance in the evening. Those wishing box lunches or suppers at the club house, should put their orders in to Steward Regers, at least three days in advance. The regatta will start promptly at 2 o'clock and the dance at 8 o'clock.

Tuesday evening as Frank G. Flowers of Grant street, Stoneham, was driving his Overland automobile southerly on Highland avenue near the Washington School at 7 o'clock his machine was crowded nearly off the road and had its hubcap knocked off by a Buick brougham containing a man and woman. The occupants of the latter machine drove off laughing, apparently oblivious to the fact that they had very nearly caused a serious accident. Flowers succeeded in getting the number of the machine and reported the matter to the police.

HARVEY HOLLINGSWORTH MITCHELL

Full military honors were accorded Harvey Hollingsworth Mitchell, Master Sergeant of Headquarters Company, 51st Brigade, M. N. G., whose funeral was held Tuesday afternoon, June 7, from the home on Reservoir street of his mother, Mrs. Annie J. Mitchell.

Rev. H. W. Hook, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church, conducted the services which were attended by a detail, firing squad and bugler from Headquarters Company, Captain Coty commanding. Brigade Commander, Brigadier General Foote, was represented by Major Cliff, and Captain Wright of the regular army also attended the services. The bearers were all members of Headquarters Company under Lieutenant O'Brien and included Master Sergeant Boardman, 1st Sergeant Adams, Sergeant McAdams, Corporal Peters and Corporal Ganey. The selections, "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere," "Face to Face" and "Rest in Jesus," were sung by Mrs. Florence Atwood. Floral tributes numbered more than 60 pieces.

Following the funeral the flag draped casket was escorted to Wildwood Cemetery where the committal prayers were read by Rev. Mr. Hook. Three volleys were fired by the firing squad and taps were sounded by the bugler.

Sergeant Mitchell lost his life late last Saturday afternoon by drowning in Long Pond, Groton, where he had gone to install electric wires in a summer cottage. Having finished his work and while awaiting the arrival of the cottage owners he attempted to enter a canoe for a short ride around the lake.

In stepping into the canoe he evidently lost his balance and fell into the water. For a time he held himself afloat, calling for aid. His cries were heard by one who chanced to be passing and the latter started at all speed for the State police barracks, leaving Mitchell clinging to the canoe.

As the frail craft shifted its position the young man lost his hold and sank, his feet becoming entagled in a sunken tree.

When the rescuing squad arrived a short time later they found Mitchell's body held beneath the surface of the water, and it was necessary to disengage it from the tree before it could be recovered.

Harvey Hollingsworth Mitchell was born at Westwood, N. J., 21 years ago, the son of Annie J. (Robinson) and the late Harvey James Mitchell. Following the death of his father 11 years ago he came to make his home in Winchester with his mother who is assistant treasurer of the Winchester Hospital.

Mr. Mitchell had been a member of the State Militia for the past seven years and was employed at the time of his death as an electrician at the Wollaston Radio Electric Shop.

Besides his mother he is survived by a sister, Miss Nannette Mitchell of Winchester, and by two brothers, George, a radio operator, attached to the U. S. Navy and stationed at Thatcher's Island, and Robert Mitchell of Stoneham.

Among the many telegrams of condolence received by the young man's mother, some from as far removed as Shanghai, China, the following from his commanding officer in the Militia bespeaks the esteem in which he was held by those who knew him best.

Mrs. Annie Mitchell,
10 Reservoir street,
Winchester, Mass.

Shocked to hear of Sergeant Mitchell's death. Words fail to express my sentiments in regard to the excellent service he has rendered and to his sterling character. Organization loses a valued member and as individuals we lose a loyal friend. Please accept my heartfelt sympathy in these hours of a mother's grief.

Signed,
Foote,
Brigadier General M. N. G.

JOHN FONGILLO

John Fongillo, for the past 30 years a resident of this town, died Tuesday evening at his home on Harvard street, following a six weeks' illness.

Mr. Fongillo was born in Italy and was 49 years of age. During his residence in Winchester he had made for himself a wide circle of friends and was among the best known of the Town's Italian householders. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Marie Fongillo, and by four children, Mrs. Florence M. Chicha, Miss Sarah Fongillo and Carmanna and Frank Fongillo, all of Winchester. A brother, Andrew Fongillo of Revere, and a sister, Mrs. Camilla Di Rino of Roxbury, also survive him.

Funeral services were held this morning from the late residence, 46 Harvard street, followed by a high mass of requiem in St. Mary's Church at 9 o'clock. Interment was in Calvary Cemetery.

At 4:30 Monday afternoon a Graham Bros. truck owned by Bacco Theodore of Manchester, N. H. and driven by Henry Gervais of 53 Granite street, Manchester, N. H., was in collision on Main street opposite the Jenney Gasoline Station with a Willys-Knight sedan owned by the Winchester Overland Co., and driven by Frederick Stevenson of 3 Central street. Both machines were going north on Main street. The sedan had a rear fender bent but no one was injured.

BLIND WOMEN TO BE GUESTS AT WINCHESTER

Mrs. Benjamin Tishler of Chestnut Hill is Chairman of the Committee and Mrs. Robert E. Naumburg of Winchester is in charge of entertainment.

The members of the Committee will call for their guests at the Woolson House, take them for a drive in the Fells and around Spot Pond, and then stop for tea at the Annette Mitchell Studio, Winchester.

The Central Fire Station was notified by James J. Fitzgerald of 10 Oak street at 6:45 Wednesday morning of an explosion at the High School information concerning which he had just received. Chief DeCourcy and Fireman Ray Hanscomb went to the school and made a thorough examination but could not find any trace of anything resembling an explosion. Finally some broken glass was discovered outside the building and a broken window found in one of the classrooms. The window weight was found to be broken and it is thought that the noise of the falling window had been heard and mistaken for an explosion.

Many commuters on their way to their trains at Winchester Station Tuesday morning wondered at the strange looking vehicle parked on Common street. It was motor driven and looked like nothing so much as a small electric car cross with the now nearly extinct portable "dogcart." There was a large platform at the rear of the strange conveyance and inquiry led to the information that the machine was a gospel wagon on tour from Maryland, the occupants reporting that they had been on the road for about three weeks. The evangelist did his speaking from the platform at the rear of the car in which were living quarters for his family. The wagon excited considerable interest.

DAILY PHILOSOPHY

As you go on through life let your good fellowship folow you like ripples follow a sailing ship.

Live your life, do your work, then take your hat and move on.

There is no such thing as personal liberty, except on a desert island.

Some have a great desire to rule, but that is second class business, real greatness comes only through service.

Every now and again we see and wonder at strange things which motorists do in places where there are direction signs indicating the proper procedure. Usually we charge their utter disregard of the printed warnings to indifference or inattention and in many instances such may be the case.

There is, however, a type of driver upon the road who pays scant attention to traffic regulations for the good and sufficient reason that he cannot read the signs and consequently does not know what they are all about.

An example of this came to our attention Monday when Officer John Noonan stopped a motorist in the square for disregarding a traffic signal. The man appeared unusually uncertain of what he ought to do and the patrolman asked to see his license.

Upon examination the license proved to be unsigned by the owner and when questioned by Officer Noonan the man finally admitted that he couldn't read what was on the license and did not know that it should be signed.

The Patrolman sent his name and the story to Registrar Goodwin and it is to be hoped that the license is revoked. How it was ever obtained in the first place should also be investigated.

Last week the Star listed among the accounts of automobile accidents that which befell John Edwards, 9-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin F. Edwards of Thompson street, who was struck and knocked down by an automobile while on Manchester Field at the baseball game in progress there. Fortunately the youngster was not seriously hurt, but that fact is beside the point. He might easily have been killed. He would have been, had he been struck by some of the drivers which we have noticed at ball games in the past.

There seems to be a certain type of individual whose delight it is to attend athletic functions, where there is not an inclosed field, apparently with the express purpose of preventing others from enjoying the game in progress. He or she, as the case may be, soon tires of the spectacle on the playing field and thereafter spends the time in driving too and from the field or up and down through the crowd on the sidelines. The rate of speed employed is away beyond reason at such a time or place.

Manchester Field has been plagued with this type of driver almost ever since motor vehicles have been allowed to park on the playground and it seems that only the intervention of a Divine Providence has prevented serious consequences. With children playing about the field promiscuous automobile driving should be taboo and every caution exercised, if it is necessary to drive off the grounds.

It would be hardly fair to prohibit automobiles from entering the field at games for the great majority of the motorists come to enjoy the contests and "stay out" until the proper time to leave. It does seem reasonable, however to exclude motor vehicles after the game being played has gotten under way. Speeding along the straightaway on Manchester Field is going to result in a bad accident sooner or later and the time to prevent such an occurence is naturally before it happens. It is impossible to keep the kiddies quiet at a ball game and it looks as if the motorist should be the one to use discretion. There ought to be one or two places where the pedestrian gets the first consideration, and the police should be ordered to prevent automobilists from using the cinder path on Manchester Field for a speedway.

TO TAKE INVITATION TO LINDBERGH

Major Charles H. Woolley, M. N. G., son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Woolley of Fells road, is one of the two aviators selected by Mayor Malcolm Nichols to fly to Washington with the official invitation to Col. Charles Lindbergh to visit Boston either on Bunker Hill Day or any other occasion convenient to him. Major Woolley with Capt. Gardiner H. Fiske, vice chairman of the municipal air board, were scheduled to leave Boston at 10 o'clock today and to fly to New York where after an hour's stop they will proceed to Washington, arriving about 3 p. m.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert G. Brooks, formerly of Lloyd street, left town this week and are now making their home in Arlington.

UNIVERSITY THEATRE

The big feature picture at the University for four days beginning Sunday will be "Special Delivery" with that master comedian Eddie Cantor grand is "Moulders of Men" with Conway Tearle in the title role. On the same program Tearle, Margaret Morris and Frankie Darro. "Special Delivery" is Eddie Cantor's own idea. He wrote it himself. As a postal clerk, Eddie is a complete misfit, but as a letter carrier on a route he is at least conscientious if blundering, and thoroughly happy, particularly as it gives him the opportunity to see the girl of his dreams, little Madge, the waitress at the Dutch Lunch. Others in the cast are William Powell, Jobyna Ralston and Donald Keith.

"Moulders of Men" was written by John Chapman, managing editor of the Elk's Magazine. It is a story of the Big Brother spirit as exemplified by the Elks. Conway Tearle, Margaret Morris and Frankie Darro are in the cast.

Will Rogers appears on the screen in the first of his series as "Unofficial Ambassador." The background of the first film is "Paris." The comedy is a Harold Lloyd; "Captain Kidd's Kids."

For the last three days of the week the program consists of "The Beloved Rogue" with John Barrymore and "Naughty Nannette" with Viola Dana. Barrymore is winning as many triumphs on the screen as he formerly enjoyed on the legitimate stage. In "The Beloved Rogue" he has a role worthy of his mettle. He portrays the part of that poet and rogue, Francois Villou, a historical character of the days of Louis XI. You can brush up on your history before you see this picture, but if you fail to brush up, you will still enjoy "The Beloved Rogue."

AN EDITOR'S TROUBLES

The world war has been charged with a great many grievances, imaginary and otherwise, but it is an indisputable fact that an unlimited number of days and weeks for fad observances have been handed down. Some are worthy of commemoration; others ought to have been canned long ago. We are giving a few of these today for the information of the reading public: Child Health day, Better Homes week, Canned Foods week, American Forest week, National Music week, Baby week, Fire Prevention week, Clean-up week, Better English week, Thrift week, January Laugh month, Girl Scout week, Boy Scout week, National Garden week, Golden Rule day, and World Good Will day, and at the present rate the year will not be sufficiently long to take care of all these and others to follow.

Now, we do not want to say that some of these observances are not meritorious, but there are a great number of organizations that use the newspaper to promote these observances without doing any work themselves. When they want to get some publicity they run over to the newspaper office and attempt to fill the columns, and in many instances they ask for editorials and then mail these in as the sum total of their work. This paper is willing to cooperate whenever it deems the effort worth while, but we are getting tired of being used as a propaganda sheet. During the world war we had meatless days, wheatless days, and any number of other days and weeks; but they were promulgated in the interest of winning the war, and newspapers willingly assumed the task of publicity mediums. The war is over now, and organizations that attempt to foster the numerous observances will do well to promote a program themselves that is worth while and not shirk their responsibilities. Let them work out a local program that is of appealing interest to the public, and they will find their local newspaper ready and willing to join with them.—[From the Sheboygan Press.

M. C. W. G. NOTES

On last evening the regular business meeting for June was held in K. of C. Hall.

The Sick and Flower Committees reported our members who have been ill are improved or entirely recovered in good health.

Report was received from Secretary Alice Fitzgerald upon the Indoor Fete held at her home on June 1. She was assisted by Treasurer Ruth Ambrose and it is planned that their party is only the beginning of many more Indoor Fetes. Sisters Anna DeCourcey and Josephine Kane are to have the next one in charge and it will be held at the home of Mrs. Anna DeCourcey on Monday evening June 20.

Since this is the last meeting until the fall schedule, we take this opportunity to extend to all our members and their friends an invitation to visit the Vacation House at Nantasket conducted annually under the direction of the Catholic Charitable Bureau and aided materially by the cumulative efforts of the several branches of the M. C. W. G. This is a worthwhile charity and the members of the M. C. W. G. take pride in the small part of this work which they make possible to be carried on.

"LOOKING THRU THE LIBRARY DOOR"

By Basil B. Burwell

I went into the library
To gaze among the books,
The reading room a cozy place
With tables in its nooks.
With reference books and Magazines arranged along the wall.
Seems to me this room's not large
'Tis very much too small.
A counter partly blocked the way into the larger room,
The place where you do charge
Your books and go to pay your doom.
The other room was filled with
Books packed tightly in their cases.
The cases stood against the wall,
The center, in many places.
The people around me seem
To say, according to their faces
This library is much too small
And it the town disgraces.

THE REASON FOR LINDBERGH'S ROUTE

Why does he go so far out of his way?

This was the exclamation of a spectator when a newspaper bulletin board flashed a dispatch that Lindbergh, trans-Atlantic flyer, had passed over Newfoundland.

The answer, of course, is that Lindbergh was not going out of his way; he was making a bee-line for Paris, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

Even a casual examination of a globe would show this fact, but landsmen are more accustomed to looking at maps, with their inevitable distortions, always necessary if a spherical surface is to be projected upon a flat surface.

The Great Circle Line

Aviation is educating the general public in the significance of the great circle line, a potent fact to mariners, and a significant force in making history and laying down the major trade routes of the world.

To non-seafaring folk it is rather a surprise to note that the shortest course from New York to Liverpool lies across New England and Canada, west of Nova Scotia, and through inland Newfoundland. Ships cannot sail overland but they do vear as far north as the double obstacle of land and icebergs will permit.

The reason for this, technically stated, is that in the higher latitudes the shortest distance between two points, because of the earth's curvature, is not on the east and west parallel between those points, but on the arc of a circle which would divide the earth in two equal parts and pass through the points in question.

What A Piece Of String Tells

A far simpler way to prove this is to take a piece of string and apply it to a globe. That piece of string will reveal more amazing facts about oceanic commerce than volumes of trade statistics.

It will show why Norfolk, Va., is a normal coaling port for all Europe bound vessels out of our Gulf ports. It will show why a vessel sailing from Seattle to Yokohama would be wrecked upon the foggy and rocky shores of the Aleutians if it tried to take the shortest run across the Pacific.

Recall your history in this connection, and it will show why the New England boat builders of Colonial days were able to capture the trade of the southern States, and set up the great triangular trade route between West Indies, the southern colonies and the Mother country, which had such a marked effect upon New England's shipping supremacy.

Hawaii An Offside Port

On the average map it looks as if Hawaii were a normal stopover between San Francisco and any Chinese port. Your globe and a string will show you why a call at Hawaii would add a day or more to your sailing time.

San Francisco and Los Angeles might be called the step children of the great circle line. Sail from the Panama Canal to Asiatic ports and the shortest route is not westward across the Pacific, but northwestward, via San Francisco and Los Angeles.

We have a dandy new gas ball at 50c. Also sponge rubber and return-balls. Wilson the Stationer.

TO HAVE the reputation as a "high flyer" in personal expenditures is no honor.

The reckless spenders may make an altitude record but they usually fall with a sickening thud.

Those who spend wisely and save are surest to make a safe landing.

Plan your expenditures and plan your savings. Open a thrift account with us at once. Invest your savings regularly.

This is sound advice.

Visitors to Winchester are universal in their praise of our Common and often remark the painstaking care lavished upon it by Superintendent "Alex" McDonald and his men of the Park Department. Perhaps we who are here every day fail to appreciate the work necessary to keep the community's parks presenting the attractive, well kept appearance we have come to expect since "Alex" got onto the job. The Common in particular has been unusually beautiful this spring.

Wonderful

It being the telegrapher's twenty-fifth birthday, the office force presented him with a bunch of twenty-five roses, for which he returned thanks. Just then several people came in with messages to send.

Grasping the roses in his left hand the operator began to work the key with his right.

"He is telegraphing those flowers," whispered one of the women in line. "Isn't it wonderful what science can do?"

Buried Treasure

A grim statistician announces that under the sod in the cemeteries of this country a treasure estimated at $20,000,000,000 has been buried since the beginning of American history. No one can dispute these figures. No one will care to analyze them carefully.

The ancient tombs of Egypt have given up treasure of priceless value. Excavations in buried cities have shown that man has ever held to the custom of burying jewels and baubles and valuable trinkets with the dead. The sword and helmet of many a warrior have gone with him into his dark and narrow bed. Thrift Magazine.

Of the Old School

An old gentleman and a very young lady arrive simultaneously at the elevator in a large hotel. Both are French. (This is a true story.)

"Room for one," says the elevator boy.

"Oh, not at all," declares the young lady smilingly. "I am young, and I'll walk up."

"Precisely, madame, you are young, whereas I belong to the period when one surrendered one's place to a lady. So you must understand, my dear, that I am too old to take yours."

The young lady smiles and steps into the elevator—but forgets to say "Thank you."—From Le Figaro Hebdomadaire, Paris. (Translated for the Kansas City Star.)

Great Engineering Feat

The construction of 600 miles of the Canadian Pacific railway through the Rocky mountains in British Columbia constituted an exceedingly difficult engineering feat. The syndicate building the road actually constructed the line from Montreal to Calgary, 100 miles from the mountains, before an available route through the ranges was discovered. The men who overcame the multitudinous engineering problems of those 600 miles of mountain construction erected a monument to themselves for all time. Before the work was started, the syndicate was granted terms considered over-generous by political opponents of the government and there was much opposition to the project. One statesman predicted that the road never would earn enough to pay for axle grease.—Dearborn Independent.

Handel Rebuked King

The courage of conviction is a characteristic to be admired. Handel held no other avocation or individual higher in his estimation than the elevated standard to which he placed music. To him the power of man was no greater power than that of his art. With such exalted reverence did his genius worship the spirit of music it is quite reasonable to accept his fearless manner of constantly championing it, no matter what the dignity of the personage whom he found himself compelled to address. On one occasion, when the king of England told Handel how greatly the performance of "The Messiah" had pleased him, the composer answered: "Your majesty, I did not intend to amuse or afford pleasure, but to make the world better."—The Violinist.

REGENT THEATRE, ARLINGTON

Tom was in the bathroom getting dressed for dinner
Laura was in the bath tub, trying to get thinner
Bryant Washburn waited at the window in his flat

Think you won't have time to think. No sir-ee. You'll be so darned busy looking at and laughing at one of the greatest screen comedies that you won't stop to figure out rhyme or reason and oh, what a cast: Laura La Plante, Tom Moore, Bryant Washburn, Jocelyn Lee and many others in the love thrill. Yes, that's the name of it, but what's in the name, just as long as you get a thrill from it and this one is a real laugh thrill. And it hops here direct from the eyes of New York's Broadway, where it had its first showing to the world in the world's most beautiful theatre. Guess that's stepping on the gas, nearly as good as Lucky Lindy's record in the air. Nothing stands in the way of Mr. Coriaty and his able managing supervisor, Wm. Donovan when it comes to getting the best for the patrons of the little Met. of Arlington. No sir, and that's only half of the big banner show for today and tomorrow. Here is the rest of it. Daniel Boone through the Wilderness, a romantic story torn from the pages of American history; a special comedy; "Melting Millions," the chapter play and the big special feature for the children, the 3rd of the Charleston contest series. Little Miss Rita Fenno of 66 Mystic street won last Saturday, who will win at the Saturday matinee tomorrow.

On Monday and Tuesday next week, "What Every Girl Should Know." That tells how some of 'em know too much and others not enough, but Patsy Ruth Miller will show you in this great screen play just how much. The added feature will be "Pals in Paradise" featuring Marguerite De La Motte a really truly woman's story; the latest news weekly and special comedy complete the bill.

On Wednesday and Thursday, June 15 and 16 another big special and for the first time on any screen in Arlington, the world's most astounding picture, "The Lost Battalion." The only real authentic story a screen offering never equalled before. The added feature, Virginia Lee Corbin in the best of melodramatic pictures, "Driven From Home." It was a great success on the stage but the screen has made it a great offering for the eyes. Geo. Lewis will appear in another of the series of "The Collegians" and that's some dandy show.

On Friday and Saturday, Buck Jones in "The War Horse" full of pep, action and just enough of a love story to entertain you properly. Also the little captivating screen star, Viola Dana in one of her nifty picture plays, "Bred In Old Kentucky." "Melting Millions" and special comedy; also the 4th in the popular children's Charleston contest.

CLEARING THE BAR AT 8 FEET, 2 INCHES, IN AFRICA

Leading 134 American track stars, by 150 yards, a Hopi Indian set a new marathon record recently in a Long Island race. He overcame the handicap of coming from an arid climate 7000 feet up in the Rockies down to humid sea level.

More records would fall to primitive peoples, according to the report of an African explorer in a communication to the National Geographic Society, if the Watussi could jump as successfully in a temperate climate as in the Tropics.

A line, which could be raised or lowered at will, was stretched between two slender trees standing on an incline, wrote a spectator at track events among the Watussi people of Tanganyika. The athletes had to run up to this and jump from a small termite heap a foot in height. Despite these unfavorable conditions, exhibitions were given which would place all European efforts in the shade. The best jumpers—slender, but splendid figures, with an almost Indian profile—attained the incredible height of 8 feet, 2 inches, and young boys made the relatively no less wonderful performance of five feet.

Then a number of young Watussi exhibited their remarkable skill in javelin throwing. Taking a run of ten steps, bending backwards almost to the ground, they hurled their javelins up to prodigious heights, and with such impetus that two of the spear-shafts broke in the air from the vibration. It was the same with the shooting-matches with bow and arrow, in which the trunk of a banana tree was used for the butt. The shooting average at 150 feet was really good.

Great strength is required to bend the bow correctly, and to draw it to its fullest extent long years of practice are necessary. The elasticity of the bow, which is from 4 feet to 4 feet, 9 inches in height, is extraordinarily great, and with the bow-string drawn to its fullest extent the arrow flies a distance of 200 paces.

Running races, too, were organized, but owing to the lack of the necessary measuring instruments I am, unfortunately, not in a position to give the time. I have no doubt, however, that in this department, also, the European records were at least equalled.

The Sultan being desirous of seeing the white men do some shooting, an iron pot was placed on a stake and set up at a distance of about 500 feet. As I, as well as others of my company, was successful in hitting this tolerably easy mark several times in succession, the plaudits from the crowd were great, and innumerable hands were stretched out in congratulation.

The Sultan fearing that he would be beaten if he tried his skill from the same point, approached within 50 paces of the mark. His efforts were not exactly brilliant, yet every company captain would have been delighted with the faultless way in which he made ready and the precision with which he carried out all the movements. He was like an infantry man at the rifle butts.

Good Motto to Remember

There is an old college in England, built some centuries ago, that has carved over its stone doorway William of Wykeham's famous motto, "Do the next thing." No doubt of the generations of young men who have passed through the portal in the last five hundred years, there have been many influenced by that optimistic cheery old message, and remembering it, have courageously turned away from sorrows, failures, mistakes and troubles to do the next best thing.

Chats With YOUR Gas Man

GAS PAREE DOES IT BETTER WITH GAS

The bright lights of Paris are gas lights, nine-tenths of them, according to American gas men who have recently inspected the lighting system of that famous city.

These gas men report further that this lighting of Paris streets is highly efficient. Not only are gas street lights very brilliant, but they can be lit and extinguished automatically by clockwork and regulated to suit the needs of each district.

The uses of gas on foreign shores are many. They vary from lighting the great white way of Paris to illuminating the cortege of the late royal emperor of Japan. In fact, there are few countries under the sun that do not find important uses for this universal fuel.

It is the same little blue flame that springs to your service in many homely, helpful ways here in America. Around the world its uses have become a symbol of dependability for every fuel need.

SHERMAN AND TANSEY STRONG IN BASEBALL

Roger Sherman of this town, a junior at Norwich University, is playing a strong gamt for the cadets as third baseman on the baseball nine, according to information received here from the military college in Northfield, Vt. He is one of the heaviest hitters among the Horsemen. The cadets have won over half their games this season.

Last fall, the local boy, who is prominent in a variety of activities at Norwich, played quarterback on the championship Cadet foothall eleven. He is captain of the 1927 football team. During the winter he was a member of the Norwich hockey team. Sherman is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Roland H. Sherman of 14 Evecett avenue.

Another local boy, Joseph Tansey, a freshman at Norwich, is one of the pitching staff. Last fall he was a guard on the football eleven. During the winter he played forward with the Cadet basketball team. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Tansey of 81 Nelson street.

Many in Winchester listened with pleasure to the baritone solos broadcast last Saturday evening from Station WNAC by Robert H. Isensee, a member of the quartette at the Unitarian Church. Mr. Isensee, who was born in Russia, came to Boston in 1920 after studying music in his native land and in New York City. Besides making several appearances throughout the country in concert and oratorio he is soloist at Temple Ohabei Shalom.

Members of Waterfield Lodge, 231, I. O. O. F., and Rebekah Lodge, 178, observed their annual Memorial Sunday, June 5, by attending services in the morning at the First Congregational Church, followed by the decoration of the graves of deceased members in Wildwood Cemetery.

Sixty members of the two lodges met at their rooms in Lyceum Hall and marched in regalia to the church, led by their respective marshalls, Mrs. George Hamilton of the Rebekahs and J. Albert Hersey of the Odd Fellows.

At the church a special section was reserved in the front center for the delegation while the flowers which were to be used at the cemetery were arranged upon a table placed at the head of the auditorium. In the course of his sermon Rev. Lisle Burroughs referred especially to the principles of Odd Fellowship, "Fellowship, Loyalty and Truth." There was music by the Chancel Choir of the church under the direction of Organist and Choirmaster, G. Wallace Woodworth.

Following the service while the remainder of the congregation were seated the Odd Fellows and Rebekahs formed and marched from the auditorium, passing en route the table where each took one of the bouquets of flowers. Outside the church the parade formed and marched to Wildwood where the graves of deceased members were decorated.

At the conclusion of this ceremony taps were sounded from the Soldiers Monument on the hill in the cemetery by Scout Bugler Henry Brown. Following the blowing of Assembly the parade reformed and marched to the Lodge Rooms where ranks were broken.

The committee in charge of the arrangements for the day included Mrs. Conrad Larson, Mrs. J. Albert Hersey, Miss Mildred Hamilton, Mrs. Charles Russell and Mrs. Frank Higgins for the Rebekahs and Robert Fay, John Lutes and George Smith for the Odd Fellows. Mrs. Larson and Mr. Fay were the respective chairmen.

THIRD DEGREE AT WATERFIELD LODGE

The Third Degree of Odd Fellowship will be exemplified on Monday evening, June 13 in the Lodge Rooms of Waterfield Lodge, 231, I. O. O. F., by the degree team from Mt. Vernon Lodge of West Medford, commencing at 8 o'clock.

This meeting will conclude the degree schedule for the local lodge for the year. Last Friday evening Waterfield Lodge worked the second Degree upon a class at Harmony Lodge in Medford which in turn had worked the first degree earlier in the year. Noble Grand Ralph Hatch of Waterfield Lodge is in charge of the arrangements for next Monday evening.

WOMAN'S CHRISTIAN TEMPERANCE UNION NOTES

A survey of the bootleg situation in the 13th district, comprising Indiana, Illinois and Wisconsin, has shown clearly that Uncle Sam is bigger than the bootlegger. The W. C. T. U. offers Chicago as typical of any other American city and interesting because it has been generally supposed that in Chicago the crook is bigger than the government. The Chicago study, attached, can be a model for other districts the figures in every case being readily obtainable from the prohibition administrators. The great supply of bootleg whiskey once manufactured in or near Chicago has been dried up.

It is also impossible to buy alcoholic drinks in public resorts; and in at least one of the high priced night clubs the management has placed its own private detectives to warn bibulous guests they must neither break nor flout the law. The padlock proceedings are too expensive on invested capital.

The facts are as follows:

Sixteen months ago at the peak of the great bootleg drive there were about 38 laboratories in and near Chicago; supposedly making perfumery, hair tonic or flavoring extracts, but in reality turning out bootleg liquor. Every concern that buys industrial alcohol must have a permit. The government followed all permits, found out what was going on in every laboratory, real or simulated, and by January of this year the 38 bootleg institutions which were turning out 176,000,000 pints of bootleg liquor were closed; their business stopped, their machinery seized. This was the big bootleg ring—this was the way Uncle Sam broke it up.

Today in the 13th district, federal agents are posted in the plants and laboratories which use industrial alcohol which prevents perfumery from turning into whiskey; and gives the legitimate users of alcohol a feeling that he is secure from suspicion.

In addition Uncle Sam has cut off 157 druggists, 200 doctors and 200 others from using or withdrawing whiskey to the extent of 6,500,000 gallons, to say nothing of the 160,000 gallons of wine and 745,000 gallons of other beverages, which would have gone the bootleg route under a less rigid system.

Uncle Sam knows full well of the existence of a bootleg gang in the 13th district which is operating with the sevices of a high priced European chemist whose specialty is taking the malodorious denaturants out of industrial alcohol. This particular gang is operating with denatured alcohol which is imported stealthily from another district where law enforcement is not at all well conducted as it is in Chicago. Sooner or later this gang will be rounded up and jailed and the last hares of the whiskey bandits will have been removed from Chicago. Meanwhile, the thing that remains is the blind jug, the cellar distillery and the casual brewery. These are problems for the local police. The bootlegger is not bigger than Uncle Sam.

GETTING READY FOR SEPTEMBER

"This is the ideal time to have a careful check-up on the physical condition of the child who is entering school for the first time in September" says Dr. Susan M. Coffin, Pediatrician of the State Department of Public Health.

The first six years of life are the years when the greatest number of physical defects develop. The most common defects found in the entering-school-child are as follows:

1. Under nourishment—resulting in flabby muscles and poor posture.
2. Poor teeth—may be responsible for defects of heart, kidneys, or joints or other general infections. Decayed baby teeth should be filled or extracted.
3. Tonsils and adenoids are common in this age group. Adenoids interfere with breathing and proper jaw formation, while infected tonsils are a menace to the child's health and should be removed.
4. Enlarged glands show possibility of infection and sources of milk should be investigated.
5. And then the doctor may discover at this time early tuberculosis or affections of the heart, which, if put under proper treatment, may be arrested in the very early start.

This is the opportune time to guard against smallpox by vaccinaton and immunize against diphtheria.

Take him right away to the family doctor for a complete physical examination. How fortunate to have three whole months before the beginning of school. During that time all efforts of the family should be concentrated on the correction of the major defects, which were discovered by the family doctor. Our first grader will be alert, eager and ready to learn—splendid raw material—because he will have no physical handicaps.

Parents must realize the importance of detecting and promptly correcting existing defects. Let the child start school with a well equipped body so that he may be physically fit to adjust himself to that entirely new and rather difficult environment.

WATERTOWN HERE TODAY

Winchester will close its high school baseball season this afternoon on Manchester Field when it will meet Watertown High in a Mystic Valley League game at 3:15. Johnny McDonald's boys won the previous contest between the two clubs but were lucky to get the verdict. Coach Mansfield's charges have improved greatly in their last few starts and have shown an ability to hit in the pinches which was entirely lacking earlier in the year. They are out to win their final game and stand at least an even chance.

Officer John Regan of the Police Department was the complainant in the District Court at Woburn Tuesday morning against Jeremiah P. Sullivan of Somerville whom he charged with driving a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor. Officer Regan arrested Sullivan at 3:30 last Saturday morning, the latter apearing at the same morning's session of court. Sullivan asked for a continuance until Tuesday which was granted by Judge Morton. Upon his second appearance the Judge found Sullivan guilty as charged and imposed a fine of $50.

ST. MARY'S START WINCHESTER'S SUMMER BASEBALL SATURDAY

Saturday afternoon at 3:15 Winchester's summer baseball will get under way when St. Mary's Baseball Club will meet the strong Lincoln Club of Somerville on Manchester Field.

Manager Frank Melly of St. Mary's expects to bring only real attractions to Manchester Field and promises the fans some good ball, provided the support will warrant booking the teams wanting to come to Winchester.

The St. Mary's Club, representing the Town for the first time last season, played a lot of good baseball in the face of many handicaps, chief of which was a lack of financial support. It is hoped that those who wish to see Winchester represented upon the diamond will get behind the boys this summer and at least see to it that the club gets an even break financially. It should be remembered that every dollar thus far taken in has gone into actual running expenses of the team, the players themselves giving their services.

The locals will present a strong lineup tomorrow, though they will be without the services of their big "ace," Jim Fitzgerald, who is still doing duty with the Tufts varsity nine. Old reliable "Mex" Kelley will do the pitching with Frank Melly behind the plate. The latter has just finished a great season with the Tufts fresh and should be better than ever. "Spike" O'Donnell will fill in at first and the remainder of the infield will be composed of "Flats" Flaherty, "Vin" Ambrose and "Jomma" Dolan, all well known to local fans. "Tommy" Dolan, crack outfielder will again play center field and will be flanked by "Nip" Chamberland in left and "Livin" McNeil, high school batting king, in right. Ray Halwartz, "Howie" Ambrose, "Jocko" Prue and Roy McGrath are spares who may break into the lineup at any time.

Somerville will bring a strong club to Winchester and will feature the former high school star battery of McHale and McGovern. It will be remembered that St. Mary's had plenty of trouble defeating this outfit on last Fourth of July, 4—2, after getting 4 runs in the first. It looks like a real game for the opener and a big crowd should be on hand. "Ernie" Mathews, a capable umpire, will officiate.

WINCHESTER HIGH WON GIRLS AND BOYS TENNIS

Winchester High School girls' tennis team continued unbeaten in inter-scholastic competition by winning all its matches with the Lexington High girls last Friday afternoon on the Town Courts at Palmer street. Winchester played without its "ace" Louise Packer, Cecile de Coriolis moving up to No. 1 singles and winning from Katherine Brown of the visiting team in straight sets, 6—3, 6—3. Lexington was unable to take a single set in either singles or doubles.

The summary:

While the girls were outclassing Lexington at home the boys were nosing out Watertown High 3 matches to two, on the courts of the Winsor Club at Watertown. The doubles matches were even, Spalding and Coolidge of Watertown being successful in the number one competition while Ross and Rowe of Winchester came through in their match.

In the singles Ross won from Coolidge and Rowe defeated Boutelle of Watertown. Perkins of Watertown defeated Smith of Winchester for the home team's other point.

The summary:

SINGLES

WINCHESTER WON FROM WAKEFIELD

Winchester pushed Wakefield a bit further down the Mystic Valley League ladder last Saturday afternoon at Wakefield when it won the ball game between the two schools, 6—2. It was the second consecutive win for Coach Mansfield's boys and they looked very good out there during a great part of the nine frames.

Hatch pitched his usual good game being very effective in the pinches. Horrigan, the Wakefield slow ball star, also hurled effectively, getting 11 of the locals on strikes. The latter was accorded rather sloppy support in spots and was unable to prevent Winchester from hitting in the pinches. "Dick" Murphy and Hubbard, Wakefield's left fielder, contributed spectacular catches.

Wakefield scored in the first when Winchester started throwing the ball around. With 2 away Talbot hit one of those lucky ones just inside third base. Doherty fielded the ball in time to get the runner at second but pegged wildly to Smith who lost the ball. Cobb was backing up nicely, but his throw to get Talbot at third was away over Halwartz's head and the run counted. Kerrigan was safe on McNeil's error, Hatch hit Maroney and things looked very, very dark and dismal. The crowd tried hard to rattle "Lefty" but the lanky southpaw was as cool as the proverbial gherkin. Putting everything he had on the apple he got out of a bad hole by striking out Gleason to end the rally.

Winchester got its tally right back in the 2nd. Two were down when Murphy hit safely and stole second. Hatch hit to Horrigan and Murphy counted on the latter's two base wild peg. Doherty fanned.

The boys evidently had the habit and rolled up 4 runs in the 3rd. Franklin drew a pass to start. Cobb fanned but McNeil moved "Bo" along with a single to left and when Hubbard foozled the ball the runner made third. McNeil made second and both he and Franklin counted on Halwartz's line drive through shortfield. Ray died at second, Horrigan to Maroney, on Ghirardini's tap to the box; "Gerry" making third on "Smitty's" one shot to center. "Howie" stole second and both he and Ghirardini were over when Murphy drove out a safety. Hatch tried hard for a hit but Hubbard took his hoist in left.

The 6th saw Winchester getting its final tally. With one out Murphy got a walk and sole second and third. Coach Mansfield called for the squeeze and Hatch layed it down nicely. Murphy scored and Hatch reached second on Chatterton's error. Horrigan bore down hard and fanned both Doherty and Franklin.

Wakefield made its second run in the lucky 7th. Hatch threw out Maroney but Gleason got a life on McNeil's miscue and stole second. He scored on Hubbard's single, but the latter's joy was short lived when "Livin" nipped him off first on a sharp throw to Cobb. Marshall hoisted to McNeil to end the stanza.

SOUND ADVICE

The Merchant Prince

There was an old geezer,
And he had a lot of sense
He started up a business
On a dollar 'n' eighty cents
The dollar was for stock
And the eighty for an ad,
Which brought him in three dollars
In a day, by dad!

Well, he bought more goods
And a little more space,
And he played that system
With a smile on his face.
The customers flocked
To his two-by-four,
Soon he had to hustle
For a regular store

Up on the square
Where the people pass,
He gobbled up a corner
That was all plate glass,
He fixed up the windows
With the best he had
And he told them all about it
In a half-page ad.

He soon had 'em coming
And never, never quit,
And he wouldn't cut down
On his ad. one jot
And he's kept things humming
In the town 'ver since,
And everybody calls him
The Merchant Prince.

Some say it's luck,
But that's all bunk
He was doing business
When times were punk!
People have to purchase
And the geezer was wise -
He knew the way to get 'em
Was to ad-ver-tise!

THIRTY-NINE YEARS of tube-building experience has proved to Dunlop that "cheap tubes" do not pay.

That is why Dunlop tubes are made casing shaped. It costs a little more than to build them on a straight pole, as cheap tubes are built.

But a casing-shaped Dunlop tube is strong everywhere. The outside edge is not weakened by excess stretch. The side next to the rim has no wrinkles to crack with age and blow out. A Dunlop tube protects your casing, because it fits. And your casing is worth ten times the cost of the tube.

TREE RINGS ARE CLUES TO HISTORY AND WEATHER

Announcement by Dr. A. E. Douglass, of the University of Arizona, that the study of the sequence of tree rings is likely to be of value in long-time weather forecasting recalls that tree rings already have furnished valuable clues to dating pre-Columbian history of America.

This method was used in conjunction with pottery types in fixing the time when Pueblo Bonito, New Mexico, flourished as the metropolis of America in the years before 1492.

Trees Our Oldest Inhabitants

Dr. Neil M. Judd, leader of the National Geographic Society Expeditions to Pueblo Bonito, with whom Dr. Douglass collaborated in applying his method to the Pueblo Bonito ruins, writes:

The oldest living things in America are its big trees, the sequoias of the Sierra Nevada. The pines and junipers of Arizona and New Mexico are much younger than the sequoias; but, like the latter, they are older than any other living thing in their own neighborhood. Some of these upland trees are between 400 and 500 years of age, and it is not at all improbable that still older ones may be found.

The life history of almost every tree is revealed by its own cross-section, each year's growth being recorded by a new ring. If any given year will be relatively thin; and, conversely, if the rainfall has been abundant, there will be a corresponding increase in the thickness of the annual ring.

Abnormal Years In Cycles

Periods of drought of excessive moisture, it has been learned, tend to repeat themselves at fairly regular intervals, resulting thus in a more or less orderly sequence of thick and thin annual rings which do not vary, to any marked degree, in all the trees of any one district.

Certain of these ring series possess individual features that quickly identify them, no matter in what locality they may be found, and these are naturally utilized by the investigator as keys to the problem he is seeking to solve. And what is true of living trees is likewise true of dead trees, and beams of roofing timbers from prehistoric ruins, like Pueblo Bonito.

From the foregoing it will be obvious that if any overlapping series of annual rings can be discovered—that is, if a given sequence of rings can be found both in a beam from Pueblo Bonito and in a tree still living—it will be possible to date the former with reasonable exactness.

Tree Calendar's Missing Link

Such a direct connection, however, with no intervening links in our time chain from the beams of prehistoric Pueblo Bonito to the living trees of northern New Mexico is rather beyond the range of possibilities; the explorer's task is rarely quite so easy as that.

It seems necessary, therefore, in the present case, to find a connecting link in this time chain, and that was the especial object of a subsidiary expedition authorized by the Research Committee of the National Geographic Society in connection with the exploration of Pueblo Bonito.

Cross-sections from 49 timbers unearthed during the explorations of two seasons were examined by Dr. Douglass with very instructive results. These beams, taken from the eastern portion of Pueblo Bonito, all seem to have been cut within a period of 12 years.

Some timbers exposed in the northwestern quarter of the ruin, however, were cut several years earlier, thus corroborating the archeological evidence previously presented.

NEWFOUNDLAND: GREAT BRITAIN'S SENIOR COLONY

Newfoundland, where the French Paris-New York flyers were reported to have been heard, is the oldest colony of Great Britain, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

Five years after Columbus touched the West Indies, John Cabot discovered Newfoundland, but Britain's king did not formally annex the new domain for nearly a century. In the meantime the Portuguese landed on the island in the neighborhood of Conception Bay. It is along the shores of this body of water that the villagers thought they heard the "White Bird."

Attempts To Unite With Canada

After several unsuccessful attempts to settle Newfoundland, it became a full-fledged British colony, with a governor, in 1728, continues the bulletin. Then Canada was New France, south Africa belonged to the Dutch, and the natives of Australia had not seen white settlers, although various European explorers had visited there.

Newfoundland usually is colored by the map-makers like Canada, but the island is as separate from Canada, so far as government is concerned, as it is from India. Attempts have frequently been made in the past to bring about a union of the two British dominions, but Newfoundland has insisted on standing alone. Perhaps this is partly due to the pride that Newfoundlanders have always had in the seniority of their colony.

Closest Point of North America to Europe

Newfoundland stands as a sentinel at Canada's front door to Europe, its 42,000 square miles leaving only a narrow outlet to the sea from the St. Lawrence River. It is the closest part of North America to the British Isles—about 1640 miles to Ireland, less than half the distance the French aviators planned to fly. It is natural that the first trans-Atlantic cable should have been laid to the shores of Newfoundland in 1858, and that 11 of the 17 cables now crossing the North Atlantic first touch America either on Newfoundland or its neighboring islets. In 1919, the two British aviators who first flew across the Atlantic, took off from Newfoundland.

From the sea, the island resembles Norway with its cliffs rising 200 to 300 feet from the water's edge, broken here and there by deep fiords and bays that form splendid harbors. They are also responsible for Newfoundland's saw tooth shore line which about doubles its coast.

The bleak, barren cliffs belie conditions in many parts of the rolling, heavily forested interior. In the vicinity of some of the lakes and rivers that cover more than one-third of Newfoundland, are fertile valleys in which agriculture and stock raising flourish.

Avalon peninsula, joined to the southeastern extremity of the island by a narrow strip of land about three miles wide in some places, is the most populous part of Newfoundland. St. Johns, the capital is located near the northern end of one of the four tentacles that form the peninsula's erratic coast line.

Cod Trains British Landlubbers

Fish made Newfoundland what it was for a few hundred years, but mining, stock-raising, farming and the manufacture of news print paper from wood pulp have helped to make it what it is today—a thriving colony of about 250,000 inhabitants, whose people are famous for their industry and loyalty and ability as seafarers. Most of them are English, Scotch and Irish. A few native Indians remain, many of whom are employed as guides.

Codfish stirred the British to utilize the resources of her new domain and helped lay the foundation of the British Empire upon which the sun never sets. Before Cabot's discovery, the British were landlubbers and knew little of seafaring. But the cod started a stampede to the island in 1498, when a fleet took off from Devon. Thousands of men who shipped between Newfoundland and England annually became trained seafarers and Great Britain soon became a seafaring nation. Then the British Navy grew and the Empire began its world-wide expansion.

Newfoundland's government is like that of Canada. The island is a responsible colony (self-governing) with a governor-general appointed by the British King and a Parliament of two houses.

SUCCESSFUL HORSE SHOW

Annual Event For Hospital Greatest Ever

The annual Winchester Horse Show, given yearly by a group of Winchester people for the benefit of the hospital, was held on Saturday at the riding school grounds of Harry Good off Main street. It proved by far the most successful affair yet held, being attended by a crowd of about 1200 and listing many entries, including some of the most noted horses in this section. Owing to the size of the entry list and the large number of classes represented, the show occupied the entire day, luncheon being served at noon at the Fortnightly rooms in the centre.

The show was given under the auspices of a large committee of which Mr. Arthur Black was secretary and comprising the following Winchester society people: Mrs. Oren C. Sanborn, chairman; Miss M. Alice Mason, treasurer; Arthur A. Kidder, John T. Marston, Miss Helen E. Sanborn, Jean Blanchard, Mrs. William A. Lefavour, Dr. Mary T. Maynard and Harry Good.

The judges were Mrs. Robert B. Almy for saddle horses and Crompton Smith for hunters and jumpers.

The outstanding winner of the day was Miss Betty Bird's brown mare, Chocolate Soldier, which won the Governor Alvan T. Fuller silver trophy and blue ribbon in three saddle horse classes, taking the ladies' saddle, saddle horses over 15.2 and park hack class. The day proved ideal for the show, a heavy thunder storm of the night before leaving the ground in excellent condition when dried out by the warm sun.

There were 28 classes judged during the day, a number of Winchester riders carrying ribbons and the Good stables being prominent among the awards. There were a few spills, but none of them serious, the most alarming being in the exhibit of the middleweight hunter class when Miss Betty Bird was thrown from Nellie Morse at the wooden barrier. She fell clear, however, and was not hurt.

Albion B. Danforth had a number of his horses entered, capturing a good share of the ribbons. Miss Anna C. Danforth with her Black Magic and Miss La Salle, also took ribbons. Harry Good's Dingbat and Caragaline, and Clifford Pratt's Freckles took ribbons also, while a number of Winchester children appeared in the juvenile exhibit. Miss Joan Harding took third in the children under 12 riding competition, with Marjorie Danforth and Martha Harding following. Ellen Harding took a red ribbon in the children's riding and pony competitions, and Elizabeth Chadwick and Esther Puffer also took ribbons.

In the Winchester and Medford saddle class Miss Constance Grecco took second, Miss Edith L. Kennedy third and Miss Eleanor Grecco fourth. The parent and child class was won by Albion L. Danforth and Miss Anna C. Danforth, with Mr. R. E. Harding and Miss Joan Harding second. Ellen Harding took second in the riding competition for children under 16, first division, with Carlton Brown second and Alexander Pratt fourth. The second division was won by Elizabeth Chadwick, with Esther Puffer second, Mary Harding third and Bobby Smith fourth. Ruth Good's Robin Hood won third in the class 12 saddle horses. Miss Constance Grecco's Town Talk took a third in Class 16 saddle horses.

The show was attended by society from all parts of Greater Boston, over 200 fine horses being shown. Arthur H. Lovsey, veteran ringmaster of the Winchester Horse Show, served at this, the eighth annual exhibit, and it is reported that the committee expect to realize about $1500 from the event.

OLD SCHOOL LOTS SOLD

Notwithstanding the heavy shower during the sale periods, the auction of two of the three school lots owned by the Town was held yesterday afternoon. The Gifford lot on Main street and the Washington lot on Cross street, together with the school building, were both sold, while the Prince lot on Church street was held up.

It is reported that the Prince lot sale will be deferred until Sept. 15, pending its selection as a site for the new Junior High School.

The Gifford lot was purchased by Raymond Adams for $3000. A private residence will be erected there.

The Washington building was purchased by the Massachusetts Building & Wrecking Co., for $480. The land, 15,127 sq. ft., went to Allen McLatchey of Woburn for $950.

Last night's alarm from Box 61 at 7:25 was for a fire in a child's playhouse at the residence of Mr. E. V. French, 17 Crescent road.

FINAL ASSEMBLY FOR WADLEIGH HELD

The final assembly of the Wadleigh School and the presentation of certificates to those pupils graduating this year was held on Wednesday afternoon in the Town Hall with a large attendance.

The program which was intended to give an idea of the work in appreciation done in the school during the year included musical numbers by the Wadleigh Orchestra, girls' and boys' glee clubs and the choruses of the seventh and eighth grades. The numbers for the Appreciation of Art comprised "Cordelia Taking Leave" (from King Lear) by Edward A. Abbey and the "Dance of the Nymphs" by Jean B. C. Corot. In music there were the "Morning" (from Peer Gynt Suite) by Edvard Grieg, "From an Indian Lodge" by Edward MacDowell, and "The Mouse Trap" Scherzo by O. Kohler. The Literature group included "Adventures of Tom Sawyer" by Samuel L. Clemens, "Robin Hood" (an original dramatization), "Little Women" by Louise May Alcott, and "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm" by Kate Douglas Wiggin.

Presentation of promotion certificates was made by Superintendent of Schools James J. Quinn who was assisted by Principal Arthur F. Crowell.

FUNERAL RITES FOR JOHN FRONGILLO

Largely attended funeral services for John Frongillo, one of the town's widely known Italian residents who died on June 7, after a six weeks' illness, were held on last Friday morning from the late residence, 46 Harvard street. A requiem high mass was celebrated in St. Mary's Church at 9 o'clock by the Rev. Fr. John P. Sullivan. The funeral cortege included 73 autos and five flowers cars, a delegation of 150 members of the "Circolo Operario Correse" from Boston, on foot, escorting the body to the grave in Calvary Cemetery.

John Frongillo was 59 years of age and was born in Italy, immigrating to America 33 years ago and making his home during that entire period in Winchester. For more than 25 years he was employed by the Puffer Manufacturing Company, being well known and liked by all. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Marie Frongillo, by two daughters, Mrs. Florence Charcia and Miss Sadie Frongillo, and by two sons, Carmine and Frank Frongillo, all of Winchester. A sister, Mrs. Camilla Di Rino of Roxbury, a brother, Andrew Frongillo, of Revere and two brothers and one sister living in Italy also survive him.

Kenneth H. Benson of this town received the degree of Bachelor of Science from Boston University on Monday. Miss Mildred L. Williams of Winchester received the degree of B.S. in Education from the same college.

THE LINCOLN PLAYERS

At the musicale given by the Lincoln Players, June 9, it was again demonstrated that the new Wyman School is equipped with a fine hall and that its curtain for the stage and fine piano make it second to none.

The hall was filled by an enthusiastic audience and it was observed that with each appearance of this well known orchestra a marked improvement exists. This year the orchestra was made up wholly of its own members and few community orchestras boast of so many different instruments, the only ones needed to really complete the number being a timpani, second horn and bassoon.

To add a little color to the musicale the players were assisted by Miss Virginia and Priscilla Danforth in their dances. In "Mary's Garden" appears a Mistress Mary visiting her garden which was made up of the following delightful flowers: daisy, Muriel Little; violet, Lenore McNiff; rose, Alcyone Rogers; daffodil, Dorothy Hamilton. Priscilla Danforth was Mistress Mary.

In the solo dance "Bluette and Butterfly" Virginia Danforth showed a more than ordinary talent. In "Moment Musical" by Shubert the music in itself was enough to inspire even a child and her dancing of it was charmingly portrayed.

Walter Howe in his xylophone solos was well received. The French horn playing by Miss Tibbetts, the flute playing by Miss Barbara Linscott, the trumpet solo by William Munroe, and cello by Winslow Breman all showed talent.

It was a great pleasure for the orchestra to be able to have with them Mr. Samuel Farber, one of its former members, who is a skilled violinist. His playing of the Prize Song from the Meister Singers was rendered with a fine singing tone. The Gypsy Dance by Nachez was played with wonderful feeling.

Several of the musical numbers were of more than ordinary interest. "In a Monastery Garden" by Ketelby, "The Old Refrain" by Kreisler and "Poupee Valsante" by Poldini." The orchestra had an opportunity to show its fine technique. The most noticeable number on the program was "Poet and Peasant" by Suppe. In this number the orchestra was at its best. The fine tone, the attack, and the phrasing showed the painstaking work of its conductor, Mr. Walter Rice. Mr. Rice has given of his time unsparingly and as a result, has produced an excellent orchestra which should be well supported by the people of Winchester. The benefits of such an organization to those who are studying orchestra instruments in the community is inestimable.

The accompaniments for the orchestra were played by Mrs. Florence Adriance and for the dancers the accompaniments were played by Miss Florence Baker.

BASEBALL THE 17th AND SATURDAY

Winchester baseball fans will have an opportunity to sit in at two real games on the afternoons of the holiday and Saturday, the St. Mary's management having booked the Midgets of Woburn and the Melrose City Club for those dates.

The Midgets will be here on the holiday and included in their lineup will be a couple of local stars in the persons of "Touchy" Gray, outfield flash, and "Joe" Mathews, pitcher. The Woburn club is going along nicely in the Mystic Valley Twilight League and with either Mathews or the veterans "Kiko" Weafter on the hill will be a tough team to beat. St. Mary's hasn't forgotten the mess the Midgets made of Kelley Day last fall and will be out to square accounts with the visitors so a sizzling battle is on the books.

Saturday afternoon will see the Melrose City Club in action and this outfit can always be depended upon to give a fine account of itself. As we recall last season's game between Melrose and St. Mary's, it was a nip-and-tuck affair with the issue in doubt up to the final put-out. Both games will start at 3:15.

ST. MARY'S WON OPENER FROM LINCOLNS

A home run by "Vinnie" Ambrose in the sixth inning; a home run with the bases filled, baseball's biggest thrill producer, broke up last Saturday ball game on Manchester Field and gave St. Mary's an 8 to 2 victory over the strong Lincolns of Somerville in the first contest of Winchester's summer season.

Steady pitching by the veteran "Mex" Kelley held the visitors pretty well in leash throughout the afternoon and the Lincolns were really only entitled to one of their tallies. St. Mary's outclassed them completely both at the bat and in the field, the locals being right on their toes from the opening "play ball."

Only a slim crowd was on hand for the battle, the management being rather unfortunate in picking its opening date on a Saturday when there were several conflicting attractions. Those who did trek down to Manchester Field witnessed a nice game of ball and left for home satisfied that Winchester will be well represented on the diamond again this summer.

The local lineup was about the same as that of a year ago except that "Livin" McNeil was in left field instead of "Nip" Chamberland. Somerville arrived short handed and the latter was loaned to its management for the afternoon, playing in right. "Nip" made one of the Lincoln's two runs, the other being made by the pitcher, McSweeney, working instead of the advertised McHale who had twirled the night before.

St. Mary's counted in the very first frame. With one away Tansey singled through short and came all the way in on Kelley's slashing double to right center. The locals' run in the 2nd showed some heads-up ball. "Jomma" Dolan drew a pass for a starter and was sacrificed to 2nd by brother Tom. Stealing third the runner was squeezed in when Melly laid down a perfect sacrifice.

The Lincolns put one over in the 3rd. McSweeney was walked and moved along when "Mex" issued a ticket to McIntire. Burke rapped to Flaherty who doubled McIntire at second. In attempting to get the batter at first J. Dolan threw high and O'Donnell lost the ball, allowing McSweeney to tally. Burke was safe at third on "Spike's" poor peg but White fanned and J. Dolan threw out Mahoney to end the inning.

Another visiting run came across in the next inning. After McNamara had been forced at second on Chamberland's rap to Kelley McSweeney tripled lustily to center, sending the runner in. "Mex" fanned the next two batters in order.

In the 5th an error by Maloney let Ambrose reach first and he was sacrificed to second by McNeil. Tansey's third hit through short scored "Vinnie." Kelley singled, sending Tansey to 2nd. As Flaherty fanned Mark was doubled off first, McGovern to White to McIntire.

The 6th was the big frame for the locals. J. Dolan was safe on Burke's error and successive singles by T. Dolan and Melly filled the sacks. Ambrose got hold of one in the alley and slammed it into the Aberjona for a homer, cleaning the bases. "Livin" rolled to White and Burke threw out Tansey.

Just for good measure St. Mary's scored in the 8th. "Jomma" Dolan singled to center. T. Dolan hoisted to McHale. Melly doubled to right, sending Dolan to 3rd from where he scored on Ambrose's long sacrifice fly to center. Burke took "Livin's" foul fly to retire the side.

The visitors started well in the 9th. McGovern and McNamara singled in succession, but Kelley put on steam and made Chamberland and McSweeney hoist to the outfield. On McIntire's rap to Ambrose McNamara was doubled at second, Ambrose to Flaherty, to end the game. "Ernie" Mathews, former star backstop, handled the game well.

MARRIAGE ANNOUNCED

Announcement is made of the marriage on Friday, June 10, at Winchester of Stella G. Root of 12 Grove street and Arthur Graham Robbins of Belmont. The officiating Clergyman was the Rev. George Hale Reed, pastor of the Unitarian Church. Following a wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Robbins are to make their home in this town.

The Boston & Maine Railroad has erected a fence this week dividing its property in the rear of Winchester Station from that of the Postoffice and adjacent buildings. The new fence very effectively closes a short cut which many commuters used to take when in a hurry to make a train.

WINCHESTER LOST FINAL TO WATERTOWN

Winchester High School completed its baseball season last Friday afternoon on Manchester Field when it was defeated, 4 to 2, in a Mystic League game by Watertown.

The home team led until the 7th when Watertown tied the score, tallying in each of the succeeding innings to carry off the pastime.

Neither team played what could be designated air-tight ball, two of Watertown's runs and one of Winchester's being of the unearned variety. Amico started on the hill for the locals, being relieved by "Lefty" Hatch late in the game. Neither was hit hard, in fact Coach Mansfield's charges outhit their opponents, 9 to 6. Watertown, however, was the steadier in the pinches and deserved to win.

The locals went out in front in the first. Murphy singled for a starter and made second when Blake pegged wildly on his attempted steal. He scored a moment later on Cobb's single. The latter stole second and went to third on Taylor's hit. Halwartz popped to Gleason and on Ghirardini's rap to Cappriccio Cobb was doubled at third. Smith hoisted to Cappriccio to end the frame.

Both teams counted in the third, Watertown on White's single, a couple of stolen bases and a hit by Mantenuto. A pass to Cobb, a stolen base and Kirch's error on Taylor's drive accounted for the locals' tally.

Watertown tied it up in the 7th. With two away Gleason singled and stole second. Cappriccio skied to Taylor and when the Winchester center fielder lost the ball Gleason counted. White flied to Ghirardini.

Berry walked in the 8th and stole second. It might be noted that in nearly every instance that old run got into scoring position by means of a stolen base. The runner made third while Halwartz was throwing out Ratigan and counted on a wild pitch.

The final run in the 9th was earned, though it came with two away. Gleason singled and came all the way in on Cappriccio's double. Winchester lost a chance to score in the 6th. Taylor singled and stole second, making third on a passed ball. With Halwartz batting Coach Mansfield called for the "squeeze" and Taylor was an easy out when Ray failed to connect with the ball.

EMBLEM CLUB AFFAIRS

The last very successful social was given by Mrs. J. J. Gorman at her new home on Warwick place Tuesday afternoon. About 25 of the members found time to drop in and share in the entertainment dispensed by the genial hostess.

The next affair of this kind will be given by Mrs. "Ben" Cullen at her home, 9 Russell road on Tuesday evening, June 21. No special invitation is needed when "Sister Em" entertains, so come along, bring all your friends and rest assured of a cordial welcome.

On Friday afternoon, June 24, at 2 o'clock, Vice-President Annie M. Hanlon will conduct a food sale. Through the kindnes of Mr. W. W. McLean, proprietor of the paper store, this affair will take place in the store on Main street now occupied by Mr. McLean for the sale of fireworks. Contributions of home-preserves, pies, cakes, etc., are requested. For further information call Win. 1649-M.

At the next regular meeting of the club, Wednesday evening, June 22, in Lyceum Hall a rehearsal of the drill team is scheduled for 7:15 o'clock. The business session will start promptly at 8:20. Initiation for waiting candidates will be in order and a reception and entertainment will feature the usual social hour.

The matter of the annual beach outing will come up for discussion, and all are urged to come and state their opinions. Whether or not to hold it with so many of the members going away for the summer, seems to be the problem and a time should be set when all may enjoy it. Next year when we establish an air line this matter will not be so perplexing—let us hope.

President Emily A. Scholl announces business sessions of the club closed after June 22. This is a most welcome announcement for most of us, who will be quite content to "call it a day" and rest our weary heads during the summer in preparation for the many activities planned for the fall season, which opens Sept. 21. Rehearsals for the drill team will continue on the regular meeting nights during July and August.

McINTOSH—BROOKS

At a simple ceremony, attended only by their families and a few intimate friends, Miss Charlotte Brooks, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert G. Brooks of Arlington, formerly of 33 Lloyd street, and Lawrence Dennett McIntosh, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles McIntosh of Waltham street, Lexington, were married last Saturday evening in the First Congregational Church. The ceremony was performed at 7:30 o'clock by the pastor, Rev. Howard J. Chidley, the altar of the church being decorated with two large candles. As the bridal party entered the church the Wedding March from Lohengrin was played by Mr. Charles Flohr who also played Mendelssohn's Wedding March for the recessional.

The bride wore a gown of white satin, bouffant style, with white tulle and carried a bouquet of white roses. Her sister, Miss Sally Brooks of Arlington, was her only attendant and wore a gown of salmon colored chiffon, carrying tea roses and larkspur. Mr. McIntosh had as his best man his brother, Norman McIntosh of Fremont, N. H.

A small reception was held immediately following the ceremony in the pastor's study which was decorated with rose colored peonies. In the receiving line with the young couple were Mr. and Mrs. Herbert G. Brooks and Mr. and Mrs. Charles McIntosh. Following the reception Mr. and Mrs. McIntosh left upon a honeymoon trip and upon their return they will make their home in Lexington.

The bride has many friends in Winchester where she was graduated from the high school in 1921, later studying at the Museum School in Boston and the Boston School of Practical Arts. She is a member of the En Ka Sorority. Mr. McIntosh was graduated from Norwich with the class of 1923 and is associated with the S. S. Pierce Company of Brookline.

LIKED LINCOLN PLAYERS

In the musicale given at the Wyman School Assembly Hall on the evening of June 9 by the Lincoln Players Club, Walter L. Rice, conductor, an appreciative audience found it was listening to an orchestra with a splendid ensemble and tone, expressing musical intelligence with its color effects. The players were assisted in presenting their musical picture by a group of very charming junior dancers. The violin solos, "Prize Song" by Wagner and "Gypsy Dance" by Nachez, as rendered by Samuel Farber revealed fine playing, both in tone and expression. It is to be hoped that we may hear the Lincoln Players often as their interpretations of real music, displaying precision and rythm, are always enjoyable.

—The Listener

Monday morning shortly after midnight as Walter K. Hunter of 2 Temple street, West Medford, was driving his Ford sedan from the Parkway into Fenwick road, his machine was struck by a Studebaker sedan going south on Bacon street and driven by its owner, Thomas C. Flahary of 55 Jefferson avenue, Woburn. The left rear end of the Ford was badly damaged and there was slight damage to the Studebaker. Two young ladies who were riding with Flahary were bruised and shaken up by the crash.

EVERY NEW TIRE LOOKS GOOD.

Dunlops not only look good, but they make good—over rocks and gravel, and ruts and sand.

Thirty-nine years of experience has shown Dunlop how to design a tread that gives maximum traction and slow, smooth wear.

This Dunlop tread is the toughest development of rubber known. And this same tough tread-rubber is carried clear around the sidewall to give maximum protection against rut wear.

You get the full benefit of all this extra tread-mileage because each Dunlop is built with the famous trouble-free cable-twist Dunlop carcass, to provide the high-strength and elasticity so vital to long tire life.

We recommend you put Dunlops on your car

Mr and Mrs. George Vose of Beverly celebrated their golden wedding anniversary on Monday at their home, 37 Washington street, that city. They were for many years well known residents of this town, Mr. Vose being superintendent of the United Shoe Machinery Company, with which he has been connected for a long period. They received many congratulatory messages and golden gifts, as well as a great quantity of floral gifts. They have three children, Edwin H. Vose, Herbert L. Vose and Mrs. Harry M. Hillery.

WINCHESTER GIRLS CONCLUDE FINE NET SEASON

For the second consecutive season the Winchester High School Girls' tennis team has gone through its schedule undefeated in an interscholastic match. But one reverse was suffered by the locals this year and that was at the hands of the strong Sargent School Club which nosed out Winchester, 2 to 1, in a tight tourney. Sargent is of course much better than high school grade in sports and the splendid showing made by the locals in its match with the college girls is distinctly one of the season's achievements.

Six of the remaining seven matches played with high school teams resulted in shut-outs; Malden High, which was defeated, 6—1, being the only team to take a single match from Winchester. Such a record speaks for itself and is conclusive proof that tennis has established itself here beyond the shadow of a doubt. There are few high school teams in the east able to outclass the local high school girls and we doubt if many of the private school outfits would be successful against the brand of tennis shown by Winchester the past two seasons.

For the past two years Louise Packer, one of the better known Junior players of Greater Boston, has captained the local team and has played number 1 singles. Her playing has been consistently high class. We can't recall a high school player being able to win from her this year and she also won her match against the number 1 player for the Sargent Club. The other members of the team who have all played most consistently include Bara Baugher, Cecile de Coriolis, Mary Louise Carpenter, Katherine Boyden, Frances Pettingell, Nancy Bradlee, Helen Bidwell and Caroline Mercer. Miss Priscilla Wheeler of the Department of Physical Education has once more coached the team which has been managed by Eleanor Healey.

The season's record follows:

May
5 Sargent vs Winchester: won by Sargent 2—1.
12 Winthrop vs Winchester, won by Winchester, 7—0.
19 Malden vs Winchester, won by Winchester, 6—1
26 Newton vs Winchester won by Winchester, 7—0
31 Melrose vs Winchester, won by Winchester, 7—0.
June
3 Lexington vs Winchester won by Winchester, 7—0.
7 Brookline vs Winchester, won by Winchester, 7—0.
9 Concord vs Winchester won by Winchester 7—0

REV. AND MRS. BURROUGHS SURPRISED

Rev. and Mrs. Lisle Burroughs were pleasantly surprised last Sunday morning when at the conclusion of the exercises which marked the observance of Children's Sunday at the First Congregational Church they were addressed by Superintendent of Schools, James J. Quinn and presented on behalf of the parishioners with a handsome desk clock and a purse of gold.

In the course of his remarks Mr. Quinn stated that while he was not certain as to whether clergymen prepared their sermons by the clock he felt the parish gift might well prove of value to both Mr. and Mrs. Burroughs. He denied the inuendo, as suggested by Mrs. Burroughs, that the clock might be a help in getting the family to arise betimes in the morning.

The clock is of handsome design with gold case and radium dial enclosed in a handsome travelling case of unfinished alligator leather. The movement is by Waltham and the inscription on the back of the case reads:

> "Presented to Rev and Mrs. Lisle S. Burroughs as a token of esteem and appreciation by the First Congregational Church, Winchester, Mass., June 12, 1927."

Rev. Mr. Burroughs has been for the past three years assistant pastor of the First Congregational Church here and as such has been universally popular with its members. He leaves the first of August to become executive pastor of the Third Church at Rochester, N. Y.

The weekly collection of flowers for distribution to the sick, shut-ins and poor in Boston has started. A basket of flowers leaves Winchester Station every Tuesday morning on the 9:06 train. Make it a full one

These flowers are made into attractive bouquets and given out, from four social centers, to those who are without the country pleasure that summer brings to most of us.

Don't forget, every Tuesday morning.

At the annual election and anniversary banquet of the Burdett College Alumni held at the college last Saturday evening Miss Ruth E. Poland of Canal street was elected president for the coming year Miss Poland is a graduate of Winchester High School, Chandler Secretarial School and Burdett Normal School, 1926. DISABLED VETERAN'S WELFARE GROUP

Under the graceful trees on the estate of Mrs. John A. Maddocks, 3 Woodside road, on Wednesday, June 8, the Disabled Veteran's Welfare Group met to discuss their plans for the summer months. A report of the Spring activities was made by the Secretary, Mrs. Robie Cove and plans were formulated to make possible the regular Friday visits to the hospital at West Roxbury throughout the entire summer. Also tentative arrangements were made to give the boys two beach outings, one in July to Nantasket and one in August at the summer residence of Mrs. Burton L. Gale at Nahant.

Contributions to carry on the summer work were made by many of those present and an invitation was issued to all those interested in Veteran's Welfare to make donations of candy, smokes, books, flowers or money at any time during the summer with the assurance that all offerings will be taken to the hospital by the visiting committee, headed by the President, Mrs. Mae R. Hoey.

One of the boys from West Roxbury was the guest of honor for the afternoon.

When the meeting had adjourned, ices and cakes were served by the hostess in her lovely garden where stately rows of iris made a charming setting. During this social hour the members talked of future plans for the boys' welfare and many happy surprises were suggested.

FIRST BIRTHDAY PARTY

Warren Meek, the little son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Meek, (Angie Harrold) celebrated his first birthday on Tuesday, and although he may not have realized the true significance of the event, his mother, who has been at Rutland for the past year, rejoices in the observance for him. The party was given at the home of his aunt, Mrs. John Sullivan, at 63 Nelson street, and there was a big attendance of guests, together with their mothers. What the entertainment was remains somewhat obscure, that is, for the children, but a good time was had by all. Warren received many presents and toys.

DAILY PHILOSOPHY

Life is not so complex if we do not persist in making it so.

Charles Dickins said "Try to do to others as you would have them do to you, but don't get discouraged if they fail to do their part."

There is hope for the fellow who knows that he does not know much, especially if he is the only one who knows it.

Greatness does not depend on size, Napoleon, if living today, could never get a job as a policeman.

It's a coward who quits at misfortune.

Joseph A. Scott of Loring avenue suffered on Sunday, June 12, the loss of his brother, Mark A. Scott, who passed away at his home in Jersey City, N. J., from the effects of gassing sustained in the World War. Mr. Scott was at his brother's bedside when he died and stayed to attend the funeral services, the burial being at Waterbury, Conn., with full military honors. The deceased had been a policeman in Jersey City at the time of his last illness and previously had been a member of the force in Waterbury, Conn. During the World War he served overseas with the 104th Infantry, having the rank of Sergeant. He was a brother of the late Capt. Arthur Francis Scott and was stationed within three miles of him when the latter was killed in action. Sergt. Scott was 38 years of age and served for four years in the Army of Occupation following the signing of the Armistice.

Charles M. Vanner of this town, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Vanner of the Parkway, was graduated from Worcester Academy at the commencement exercises held at the school on Monday. Vanner has been prominent in the student life at Worcester and has been a member of the association football team.

Mrs. J. I. French and family of Pittsburg Pa., formerly of this town will spend the summer at Orleans.

The elementary schools closed Wednesday for the summer. The high school is to close the first of the week, final examinations necessitating the delay.

Announcement is made of the marriage on June 8 in the Church of Our Savior, Brookline, of Marie E. Marchand of Winchester and Malcolm Graham of Cambridge.

Miss Louise DeCamp of Winchester daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William P. M. DeCamp of Highland avenue was graduated from Abbott Academy on Tuesday.

The Maria A. Parsons Cup awarded by the Class of 1887 and presented yearly to that class in the Winchester High School having the best scholarship record has been won this year by the Class of 1927.

Miss Rebecca Barrett of Winchester graduated Monday from the School of Education for Store Service at Simmons College. Miss Barrett also holds a degree from Wellesley. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Barrett of Bacon street.

Development has been started of the large tract of land at the junction of Woodside road and Pond street, a steam shovel being at work and new streets being laid out and constructed. Already same half-dozen houses are in various stages of construction and it is reported that a total of 56 houses will be erected there at once.

Tuesday morning at 11:20 a Mack truck owned by A. A. Doherty of the Stoneham Garage and driven by John Moran of 15 Franklin street, Stoneham, was in collision on Church street in front of the Congregational Church with a Peerless coupe, owned by Charles A. Greco of 32 Everett avenue and operated by Miss Constance Greco of the same address. Both machines were going west on Church street and the accident is said to have occurred when Miss Greco attempted to pass the truck, striking it in the rear. The front of the Peerless was badly damaged and it was towed to the Central Garage. Miss Eleanor Greco was a passenger in the coupe at the time of the accident. No one was injured.

It has been announced that the Winchester Post, American Legion Band, will give a concert program on Saturday evening, June 18, at St. Mary's Garden Party on the parochial grounds, this being but one of the attractions.

What seems an attractive and worth while proposition is the proposal to purchase for the Town four acres of land adjacent to its present holding of about one acre surrounding the high service stand-pipe off High street. The idea behind the acquisition is to retain the land in its present natural state as a Town reservation or park. The location is well nigh ideal for such a scheme, the land in question being situated at very nearly the highest point in the Town and commanding an exceptional view of the surrounding country.

HIGH SCHOOL GRADUATES 79

Professor Andre Morize, Litt.D. of Harvard delivered the address of the evening, taking as his subject, "Clothes For Inventory, or Thoughts For Graduation." He was introduced by Principal Wade L. Grindle and said in part that the purpose of education is service and that its three essentials are knowledge, purpose and character. Professor Morize is a most interesting person, having been an officer in the French Army during the very first dark days of the World War. He was invalided home and sent to this country as a military instructor being attached to the S. A. T. C. at Harvard, where he has since remained.

Following the singing by the Boys' Glee Club of the "Soldiers' Chorus" from "Faust" by Gounod the Class Gift to the School was presented by President Charles Doherty. The gift, two handsome silk flags, the National Emblem and the colors of the Commonwealth, were accepted by George Deninson, the Junior Class president, with Angelo Ghirardini and William Allen, presidents of the two lower classes as aides. The acceptance of the flags was most impressive and was concluded by a salute in which the graduates were joined by the audience.

After the community singing of the song, "America the Beautiful" by Bates, the special scholarship awards were made by Principal Grindle. The Washington and Franklin History Medal, given by the Massachusetts Sons of the American Revolution was won by Charles Smith, Valedictorian of the class. Daniel Dennett, Salutatorian, was awarded the Stillman P. Williams Scholarship given by the Men's Club of the Unitarian Church.

The Valedictory was delivered by Charles Smith, ranking student of the class, just preceeding the presentation of diplomas which was made by Chairman Robert M. Stone of the School Committee, assisted by Principal Grindle.

An orchestral selection, "With the Colors," played by the high school orchestra under Miss Knightly completed the program.

New additions to the Friendly Food family, and we are surely proud of them. Butter Kist and Clover Leaf are their names. Butter Kist is so-called because there is fresh, creamery butter rolled into them, and melted butter spread over them. Clover Leaf Rolls derive their name from their unique shape, which bears a close resemblance to a clover leaf.

GRANADA THEATRE

A colorful adventure, melodramatic in several sequences, and with thrills galore, aside from the beautiful story of sacrificing love of a good woman for her husband—this is the "Notorious Lady," which is now playing at the magnificent Granada Theater in Malden. "The Notorious Lady" stars Lewis Stone Barbara Bedford and Ann Rork.

Barbara Bedford plays the part of "The Notorious Lady." The title is suggested by the notoriety she receives when she goes on the witness stand to swear away her reputation and thus save her husband, (Lewis Stone) on the unwritten law. Stone goes away to forget and eventually the truth of the wife's sacrifice is discovered by a mutual friends of the married couple. A meeting is cleverly arranged without either husband or wife suspecting. A reconciliation brings a fine story to a finish. Most of the action takes place in Africa, with adventures in a diamond mine and other colorful situations. Five acts of high class vaudeville is another big attraction for today and Saturday.

Featuring Madge Bellamy, Warner Baxter, May Allison and Lawrence Grey, "The Telephone Girl" comes to the Granada next Monday for a run of three days. This is a political story with the result of an election unexpectedly placed in the hands of a telephone operator. The story concerns Matthew Standish, a young candidate for the Governor's chair who is being threatened by the political henchmen of the present Governor with the disclosure of an affair with an unnamed woman that took place several years before. The evidence is complete except for the woman's name. In reality the woman has since become the wife of the Governor himself, who, in ignorance of his wife's past, precipitates a near tragedy. The plot hinges upon a telephone call made by the candidate for office warning the Governor's wife of her husband's intention to disclose her past. May Allison plays the Governor's wife; Madge Bellamy, the telephone operator; and Warner Baxter, the aspiring candidate. Five acts of vaudeville, a regular feature of the Granada shows, will also be offered the first three days of next week.

PROGRESS

We once spent days to travel as far as we now go in hours. Similar progress can be noted on every hand.

Todays financial institutions render services that formerly were scarcely hoped for.

Today, the average family can come into home ownership through the help of our home ownership plan, and this is a comparatively recent service.

Today those who invest savings with us get more than twice the earnings, per dollar invested, that were formerly obtainable. And they get all this under much safer conditions.

BOWDOIN SQUARE THEATRE

The Bowdoin Square Theatre long noted for its fine programs will offer another pleasing bill beginning Monday. The picture which is sure to attract wide attention is, "The Understanding Heart," Peter B. Kyne's stirring romance of the California forests and the cast is made up of such favorites as, Joan Crawford, Carmel Myers, Rockliffe Fellowes and Francis X. Bushman, Jr. The story deals with a pretty girl who shielded a convict. It is replete with big scenes and the most spectacular one of them all will be the forest fire, said not to be excelled in screenland.

Another picture feature of merit will be the Metro-Goldwyn offering, "Heaven on Earth" with Renee Adoree and Conrad Nagel in the outstanding roles. The story is of real value with the thrill and throb of war and is sure to be enjoyed. The Mack Sennett Comedy will be, "Peaches and Plumbers," also the Pathe News of world events and five selected vaudeville specialties. Opportunity night on Friday with extra acts. Concert Sunday at 3. Free parking to suburban patrons.

EAT OUT OF DOORS

Eating out of doors is good for the health of the whole family. It means extra fresh air and sunshine for the children. The wage-earner, who may have been cramped indoors at an office all day will have a keener appetite. It will mean a restful change from washing dishes and cooking over a hot stove, for the mother of the family.

Picnics are good for cramped dispositions as well as tired bodies. They take the monotony out of meals. The right kind of food for hot weather, milk, fruit, lettuce and dark bread make appetizing picnic lunches.

If you cannot go to the woods or a park use a grassy backyard or the roof. Eat supper early. Live in the sunshine as much as you can.

The Ice-O-Lator is absolutely silent in operation. Without a sound, it will keep your foods fresh and sanitary and provide a constant supply of clear, sparkling ice cubes. And there's no vibration.

CAN'T WEAR OUT
The Ice-O-Lator has no moving machinery—therefore there is no mechanical wear. It will serve you as long as the cabinet in which you place it. Once installed, you can forget it through years of trouble-free service.

COSTS LESS TO OPERATE
Ice-O-Lator more than halves the usual cost of sanitary refrigeration. Using gas as a fuel, the Ice-O-Lator offers an entirely new method of economically keeping your refrigerator as cold as you want it. LEGION CARNIVAL DREW LARGE CROWDS

Fine weather helped to attract good sized crowds to the big outdoor carnival held under the auspices of Winchester Post, American Legion, at the Legion grounds in the rear of the Town Hall last Saturday afternoon and evening.

Seldom has an affair of this sort gone off so well, everything combining to make the carnival a huge success socially, and it is to be hoped financially since the proceeds are to be devoted to the Post's relief fund.

The grounds presented an attractive appearance, decorated as they were, with hundreds of naval pennants and a huge American flag, the booths being gay in red, white and blue bunting. In the evening electric lights added to the general attractiveness, wiring being done under the direction of the local contractor, Edmund C. Sanderson. The Winchester Post Band, which made such a favorable impression in the parades on Memorial Day, played concert programs during both the afternoon and evening sessions of the fair while the drum and bugle corps of both the Boy and Girl Scouts also helped to entertain the crowds. The girl buglers and drummers under their splendid drum-major, Marie Dresser, attracted much attention and were one of the high lights of the carnival.

Perhaps nothing which took place in the afternoon aroused more general interest than the baby show in which there were several entries. For obvious reasons we will refrain from giving the judges' names, but as a result of their deliberations, little Julia Catherine Gibbons, daughter of Mr and Mrs. William H. Gibbons of Wendall street was awarded first prize, having advanced from runner-up in the contest two years ago.

Running a close second in interest to the baby show was the doll carriage parade which was won by Priscilla Skillings.

There really was action every minute of the entire carnival and it would be hard to pick out any particular booth as having been more popular than the others.

Considerable interest was caused by the sudden appearance of President and Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, who were present by proxy in the persons of Mrs. John Wills Mrs. Henry W Hildred and Mrs. L. Theodore Wallis. Mrs. Wills gave plenty of atmosphere to her impersonation of Mr. Coolidge but the pace proved too swift for the original first lady, Mrs. Hildreth, past president of the Womens' Fortnightly Club, who retired in favor of Mrs. Wallis during the evening performance. "Cal" proved his right to be judged a good picker since both his wives were very similar in general appearance and both, a woman's perogative notwithstanding to the contrary, would doubtless have voted the Republican ticket.

There were of course the auctions, run by the Legion boys with W. Allan Wilde as a most efficient auctioneer. The amount of saleable and unsaleable articles disposed of by this demon persuader helped at intervals by Alden Symmes and Harry Bigelow, was little short of remarkable.

By far the larger crowd of the two attended the carnival in the evening and it was a good natured gathering from the start, evidently out for a good time. If the Legionaires didn't make any money, which we believe they did, the fair was a good thing both for them and for the Town serving to get a large group of people together in a good cause

A reel of movies helped to liven up the after-supper program and the booths did a more thriving business with the lights on and in the cool of the evening One of the most popular amusements was the striking machine on which a hard hitter could ring a bell, if able to maintain a certain force to his punches. It is of interest to note that George Wells, local boxer, was able to ring the gong 100 times out of a possible 112. The nail hammering contests attracted many both afternoon and evening.

Assisting the boys in running additional booths were the Fortnightly Club, the League of Women Voters and the Disabled Veterans Relief Committee who ran Food, Cake and Candy Tables under the direction of Mrs. A Beatrice Thompson and Mrs. W. J. Brown; the Women's Republican Club and the Florence Crittenton League operating a [illegible] Table under Mrs. Joseph [illegible], Mrs. F. C. Alexander and Mrs. [illegible] Lowell; and the Legion Auxiliary, running a booth for fancy articles, aprons, towels, etc under Mrs. Theodore H Lawson The Elks and their Auxiliary, the Emblem Club were in charge of the refreshment booth headed by Mrs. F. H. Scholl and Jack Donaghey. The Grange had a fortune telling booth and sold balloons under Mrs. Helen Dewar while the Boy Scouts had a campfire on the grounds and gave exhibitions of scouting under Arthur E. Butters and Dwight Hall. The Girl Scouts under Mrs. L. K. Snyder and Mrs. V. P. Clarke ran a grab table as did the Fo Ka girls under the leadership of Miss Janet Grant. The Ice Cream Cone booth operated by the Sigma Beta girls was in charge of Miss Alida Goddu. Assisting the Legion with donations were Winchester Chapter, O. E. S and Winchester Victoria Rebekah Lodge

The committee in charge of the arrangements for the carnival was headed by Past Commander, Vincent P Clarke and included Holbrooke Ayer, Russell Carroll, Harry Bigelow, Daniel E. Lynch, William S. Phippen, Andrew Anderson and Richard Parkhurst.

WINCHESTER ELKS OBSERVE FLAG DAY

What was characterized as the most successful observance of Flag Day since the inception of the Lodge was carried out last Sunday evening by Winchester Lodge of Elks in Lyceum Hall, the exercises being given an impetus by a good attendance.

The program opened with the grand march into the hall lead by Esquire Ted Connors. Following were the colors carried by Francis McNeil and the Bugle and Drum Corps of the Winchester Girl Scouts under Drum-Major Marie Dresser. Escorted by the Officers of the Lodge and Past Exalted Ruler Maurice Dinneen was Past-District Deputy William H. McSweeney of Salem Lodge. Next came the ladies of the Emblem Club, the Elks' Auxiliary, led by their president, Mrs. Fred H. Scholl. The music for the march around the hall was furnished by the scouts and was of a high order.

The Elks' Flag Day ritual was exemplified by the Lodge Officers under Exalted Ruler, George H. Lochman. Mr. McSweeney delivered the stirring oration and the History of the Flag was given by Mr. Dinneen.

Unusually pleasing were the trumpet solos played by Mrs. William Atey of Melrose, first trumpeter with Leginska's "People's Symphony Orchestra" of Boston. Mrs. Arey was accompanied by Mrs. George H. Lochman and presented the following program: "Columbia" by Rollinson; "The Magic Lay," Helmud; "Tenting on the Old Camp Grounds" by Kittredge and "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp" by Rollinson. Mrs. Arey displayed her admirable musicianship and technical skill in her playing of these numbers, her double and triple tongueing being unusually fine.

Mr. Henry Weed entertained seven of his intimate friends on Monday night, the party, although in some respects being unexpected, being in observance of his 69th birthday. The gathering was held at his home on Winthrop street, his guests contributing to the surprise and entertainment, and he received the good wishes of a host of friends.

INTERIOR DECORATING.
THE KITCHEN

A pink kitchen or a green, which would you prefer?

The day is not far off when the kitchen will be made just as attractive as any other room in the house, according to reports from prominent interior decorators. It will follow a definite color scheme, and all the furnishings and equipment will harmonize.

Manufacturers are already showing gas ranges in a galaxy of pleasing colors, with pinks, greens and blues predominating. The gas range, as the center of kitchen activities will, it is predicted, furnish the color note.

This is just another step forward in modernizing kitchens, making them more beautiful and hence more enjoyable to work in. It is notable that this, as with every other important improvement in kitchens, is led by the gas industry.

HI-JACKERS ATTEMPT TO GET TRUCK

An attempt to hi-jack a truck in broad daylight on Bacon street at 9:45 Tuesday morning was brought to the attention of the police, unfortunately too late for them to take any effective action.

According to the story which the officials obtained from the truck driver, Charles J. Adams of Cambridge road, Burlington, the attempted hi-jacking occurred after he had passed three men in a Ford sedan while driving a Reo truck, the property of Watson Park Company of 165 High street Boston, north on Main street at the intersection of Highland avenue.

Adams stated to the police that his truck contained five barrels of formalda hyde and seven empty drums, and the police are inclined to believe that the men who attempted to steal the vehicle were under the impression that it contained liquor.

At all events after Adams had passed the sedan, had entered Bacon street and had reached a point opposite the residence of Mr. James P. Clark the machine drew alongside the Reo and its occupants motioned Adams to stop.

Upon doing so one of the three men leaped upon the right side of the Reo, the other upon the left while the third remained in the Ford. Adams at once started the truck and as he did so one of the men struck at him. As the truck passed Central street the man drew a long stilletto and demanded that the truck and contents be given up.

Adams shouted for help and succeeded in scaring the men who leaped off the truck as he stopped and got into the sedan with the third of the party. Entering the home of Mr. Frederick B. Reynolds, Adams called he police and Sergeant Cassidy with Officer Noonan made haste to the scene. Upon their arrival, however, the officers found that the hi-jackers had disappeared and all efforts to locate them proved unavailing.

BASEBALL TOMORROW

Tomorrow afternoon on Manchester Field at 3:15 St. Mary's B. B. C. will have as its opponents the strong Medford City Club, composed of crack Medford High School stars reinforced by veteran semi-pro performers. Last year Winchester was fortunate to pull out a win against this club and a good game is promised tomorrow.

The visitors are bringing a snappy club to Winchester, their lineup including "Bud" Edgerly, hard hitting outfielder; Wholley, veteran catcher, formerly with the New England League and Odams, pitcher. Manager Frank Melly expects to try out a slightly different lineup in an effort to bolster up a couple of weak spots and will probably start big Mark Kelley on the hill. It is expected that "Jimmy" Fitzgerald, slugging member of the Tufts varsity nine, will be at the initial sack for St. Mary's.

UNITARIAN NEWS

The regular church services will be discontinued after next Sunday. Mr. Reed will preach a sermon suggested by the 25th anniversary of his ordination. The committee hopes that there will be a large attendance at the final session. Regular services will be resumed the second Sunday in September. The Sunday School closed its sessions on June 5 and the fall term will begin Oct. 2.

The following will attend the Star Island conference from our church: George Hayden, Marjorie Hayden, Eleanor Healey, Elizabeth Livingstone, Carolyn Drisco, Herbert K. Miller. Herbert Miller will have charge of the social activities for the conference for the first week, June 25 to July 2 and he will be assisted by Miss Virginia Fredericks of Dorchester and Mr. Lawrence Ballard of Lexington. Marjorie Hayden will represent the Metcalf Union. Dwight Elliott will represent the Men's Club during Laymen's League week, July 9 to 16 and Miss Elizabeth Tyler will represent the Sunday School during the Church School Institute of the same week. We understand to date 420 have registered to attend the conference. This is a very satisfactory representation.

WED ON STEAMSHIP

Winchester Boy in Southern Romance Brings Bride Here

The culmination of a friendship started during flying maneuvers at Langley Field in 1925, when the groom spent his annual training period with the 26th Div. Air Service, M. N. G. there, resulted in a marriage on board the SS. Alleghany at Norfolk, Va., Tuesday afternoon, June 14. The groom was Theodore Elliott, son of Mr. Frank Elliott of Herrick street, and the bride was Miss Louise C. Dishman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David A. Dishman of 129 26th street, Newport News, Va. She comes from an old Virginia family.

The couple met in the summer of 1925. The next year they saw quite a little of each other, corresponded regularly, and last April became engaged, Mr. Elliott driving from Winchester to Newport News, a distance of 711 miles between one afternoon and the following night to make a call.

On the 7th of June, this year, Mr. Elliott took the boat to Norfolk and thence to Newport News, arriving there two days later. He took his prospective bride her engagement ring, presenting it to her on June 11, the date of his birthday and hers.

The couple planned to be married on that date, but owing to the shortage of time the date was postponed, and on Sunday, June 12, they made plans to have the ceremony performed and return together to Winchester. The following Tuesday they packed their trunks and on Wednesday procured the marriage license, taking Mr. Harry J. Kelly, Mrs. Elliott's brother-in-law, for best man and Mrs. Leroy Price, Miss Dishman's chum along for matron of honor.

They planned to be married and take the 4 o'clock boat, Rev. Floyd T. Holland, pastor of the Park Street Baptist Church in Norfolk, known as the Dr. Cadmun of Norfolk, being engaged to perform the ceremony. Lucky for the young couple they met Mr. Garvin M. Bawden of M. I. T. '21, on the ferry to Norfolk, and as the ferry was delayed in its passage, he kindly used his influence with Captain Hart of the Alleghany to hold the steamer 10 minutes while the ceremony was performed in the social hall by Rev. Mr. Holland, who had been rushed to the ship.

The happy couple reached Boston last Friday morning and went at once to the home of Mr. Elliott's father on Herrick street, where they will make their home for the present.

Mrs. Elliott is a graduate of the Newport News High School and studied art in Norfolk. The groom graduated from the Winchester High School in 1918 and M. I. T. in 1922. He is a member of the Beta Theta Pi fraternity.

WHITEFORD—MITCHELL

A wedding of much interest to society in Boston and California as well as in Winchester was that solemnized in the Church of the Epiphany Wednesday evening when Miss Asenath Louise Mitchell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Arthur Mitchell of Cambridge street, become the bride of William Kepler Whiteford of Los Angeles, Cal., son of the late G. A. Whiteford and Mrs. Whiteford. The ceremony was performed at 8 o'clock by the Rev. William S. Packer, acting rector. A most effective background was created with decorations of palms, peonies, roses and mountain laurel, the nave of the church being lighted by candles in tall candlabras placed at each pew.

The bride wore a gown of white satin with satin train from the shoulders and long tight sleeves. The train was edged with wide lace while the bertha and veil, previously worn by the bride's grandmother, Asenath Bacon Tait, were decorated with real orange blossoms sent by air mail from Santa Barbara, Cal. Completing the ensemble was a shower bouquet of valley lilies and orchids.

Miss Grace Louise Whiteford of Los Angeles, Cal., sister of the bridegroom, was the bride's only attendent. Her gown was of yellow taffeta in robe de style with bouffant skirt and her bouquet of lavender sweet peas and yellow roses.

Mr. Whiteford had for his best man Thomas Keck, Yale '21, of Coronado, Cal., and Easthampton, L. I. The ushers were all college men and included Joseph Porter, Stanford, of Kansas City, Mo.; Ray Barth, Pittsburgh University, of New York City; Arthur Pollard, 2nd, Harvard, of Lowell; and Clement Coady, Harvard, of West Newton.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at Knollwood, the stately home of the bride's parents, where the decorations were peonies and roses. Assisting the young couple in receiving were Mr. and Mrs. William Arthur Mitchell, Mrs. G. A. Whiteford and Miss Grace Louise Whiteford, Mrs. Asenath Bacon Tait and Mrs. B. Gregory Tognazzi of Los Altos, Cal., aunt of the bride.

Mr. and Mrs. Whiteford are sailing from New York on June 25 for a honeymoon abroad. Upon their return they will make their home at the Londonell, Tulsa, Okla., where Mr. Whiteford is associated with the Barnsdall Oil Corporation.

The bride was graduated from Smith College on Monday, June 2., preparing for college at Rogers Hall in Lowell. Mr. Whiteford is a graduate of Leland Stanford, California, class of 1923.

Tuesday evening at 7:05 o'clock a Ford sedan owned by the Economy Grocery Company and operated by Louis C. Malogody of 58 Rushing street, Medford, was in collision at the junction of Main and Thompson streets with a Chandler tourning car, owned and driven by W. R. Robinson of Blind Bridge street. The Ford was headed south on Main street while the Chandler was going west on Thompson street. The damage was slight and no one was injured.

BENET—DOLAN

A wedding of interest here was that of Miss Eleanor Harriet Dolan of Wakefield and Lorenzo Peter Benet who were married on the morning of Saturday, June 18, in St. Mary's Rectory by the Rev. Fr. George H. Quigley.

The bride is a former Winchester girl and has many friends here. Mr. Benet is widely known here and is the son of Mrs. Margaret M. Benet of Lebanon street and the late Lorenzo P. Benet.

Among the approaching weddings is that of Miss Frances Blake of 627 Main street Woburn, and Walter Leo Day of 25 Ridgefield road.

DiFREDERICO—VESPUCCI

Miss Clara Dolores Vespucci, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donato Vespucci of 72 Florence street, and John DiFrederico, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank DiFrederico of 165 Mechanic street, Southbridge, were married in St. Mary's Church last Saturday morning, a nuptial mass being celebrated at 8 o'clock by the Rev. Fr. John P. Sullivan.

The bride wore a wedding gown of white satin made in bodice style, trimmed with lace. Her lace veil was held in place by a wreath of orange blossoms and she carried an arm bouquet of brides roses and lilies of the valley.

Her maid of honor, Miss Ida Chiaocco of Southbridge, wore deep pink georgette with picture hat of tulle and carried pink sweet peas. The bridesmaids Miss Florence Ferrina of Winchester Miss Constance M. Barbaro of Winchester Miss Nellie Intinarrelli of Winchester, Miss Elvira Crescenzi of Woburn and Miss Frances Qualtz of Waltham, were all gowned similarly in frocks of taffeta trimmed with tulle, the colors being pastel shades of orchid, pink, blue, flesh and green. Bandeaux of tulle matching their frocks were worn as head-dresses and they carried bouquets of pink tea roses.

Mr. DiFrederico had for his best man Carmin Marinelli of Southbridge and the ushers were Perry Sylvester of Everett, Leonard Spinelli of Somerville, Joseph Qualtz of Waltham and Dominick Santo and Anthony DiFrederico, both of Southbridge. The flower girl and ring bearer were the sister and brother of the bride, the former wearing a charming little frock of yellow crepe de chine.

The wedding party entered the church to the strains of the wedding march from Lohingrin, played upon the organ. The bride was given in marriage by her father, the double ring ceremony being used. During the mass there were selections sung by members of the church choir.

Following the wedding two large buses and several private cars took the bridal party and about 100 of the guests to Southbridge where a reception was held in Edwards Hall. The young couple were assisted in receiving by their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Donato Vespucci and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Frederico. Pink and white crepe paper, potted plants and cut flowers made very effective decorations and an eight-piece orchestra furnished music both for the reception and for dancing which followed. Dinner was served to 200 guests at 2 o'clock.

Upon their return from a wedding trip to New York and Canada Mr. and Mrs. DiFrederico will make their home in Southbridge at 165 Mechanic street where they will be ready to receive their friends after July 4.

The bride is very popular among Winchester's young Italian residents while Mr. DiFrederico has many friends in Southbridge.

BOY SCOUT NOTES

"Bobby" Smith, 1 Wolcott terrace, has this week become an Eagle Scout one of the youngest to gain it in Winchester, 14 years, 6 months, 11 days. With the award of this badge is the first time that two members of the same family have gained the Eagle Badge of the Boy Scouts in Winchester. Lyman B. Smith, the brother of "Bobby" won his Eagle, the second in Winchester, about seven years ago. Troop 1 has now had four Eagle Scouts.

As of June 20 troop 1 has won the Scout shield, which now becomes its permanent possession, it having won it for three years. The points this year were, Troop 1, 717; Troop 2, 522; Troop 4, 85. In its two previous victories Troop 1 won the shield by over 100 points each time.

The success of this troop may, to a large extent be attributed to an unusually fine set of patrol leaders during recent years, according to Scout officials.

At the present time there are three active Eagle Scouts in Winchester in addition to "Bobby" Smith, who has 21 merit badges, the minimum number for an Eagle Scout. Also in Troop 1 there is Kezar Nichols, with 27 merit badges and four palms on his Eagle. In troop 3 there are Henry Brown, with 26 merit badges and one palm on his Eagle and Dwight Bradford Hill, Jr., with 23 merit badges.

The other Eagle Scouts in Winchester are inactive at the present time. They are: Gordon Bennett, Lyman Smith, Roy Jordan, Donald Hight, Richard Clark and James Fitch.

ANTLE—DEARBORN

A very pretty June wedding took place at the Second Congregational Church on Saturday at 5 o'clock when Miss Pearl Dearborn of Winchester and Mr. Charles Antle of Stoneham were united in marriage. The ceremony was performed by Rev. John Whitley. The double ring service was used.

The bride wore a gown of white satin and lace and carried a bouquet of brides' roses. She was attended by Miss Eleanor Erskine of Winchester and Miss Ruth Sage of Boston, who wore blue taffeta gowns and carried shower bouquets of sweet peas. The groom had for his best man, Mr. Charles Gillispie of Melrose.

A reception was held at the church immediately after the ceremony. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde P. Dearborn of Winchester and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Antle of Stoneham. Mr. and Mrs. Antle will make their home in Winchester.

Mrs. Frederick E. Ritchie of Wedgemere avenue is undergoing treatment at the New England Baptist Hospital.

EMBLEM CLUB AFFAIRS

Owing to a misunderstanding, a mistake was made in the announcement of the food sale scheduled for this Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The sale will be conducted by Vice President Annie M. Hanlon in the paper store of W. W. McLean on Thompson street, instead of his former stand on Main street. Those who have offered to contribute food stuff are requested to bring their donations early. Those wishing to sample some real home-confections would do well to attend.

Quite a party was received at the home of Mrs. B. F. Cullen on Russell road, last Tuesday evening and the contributions were generous and added materially to our fast-growing Welfare Fund. The gratitude of the Club is due our gracious hostess and the others who have given over their homes and time to this most worthy cause.

At the last regular meeting, Wednesday night Mrs. J. D. Coakley set the date for her home social at 2 Russell road for Thursday evening, June 30. The following Thursday night, July 7, everyone is expected at the home of Mrs. E. T. Hines, Broadway, Stoneham. Mrs. K. T. Griffin will entertain at 72 Washington street, Woburn, Thursday evening, July 14. Members and their friends are cordially invited to all these affairs. If unable to get transportation to the out-of-town parties, members are requested to get in touch with Chairman of Entertainment, Mrs. Annie M. Hanlon, tel. 1619-M.

Although there will be no more business sessions of the Club until September, the drill team rehearsals will continue as usual on the regular meeting nights.

President Emily A. Scholl, much in sympathy with the stay-at-home element, announced the date of the annual Beach Outing. This year we will return to our first "camping ground," Salem Willows, and the chances are that we will be much better satisfied with the menu, at least. The date set is Wednesday, July 27, the Entertainment Committee will have charge of arrangements.

At this session a delegation from the Lynn Emblem Club were present and all were delighted to hear remarks for the good of the Order from their president, Mrs. Margaret Burke. A visit to the Lynn Club is listed for the near future, after our drill team gets "all dolled up" in new regalia.

President Emily Scholl will accompany her husband, F. H. Scholl who is delegate to the Elks' Convention at Cincinnati. While she is away, from July 8 to the 16th, Mrs. Geo. Osborne will attend to all sick calls, tel. 0237-M or to the Secretary, tel. 1449-M.

PIANOFORTE RECITAL

The intermediate and advanced pupils of Mrs. Annie Soule Lewis of Winchester gave their annual June recital of pianoforte music Monday evening, June 20, in the vestry of the Unitarian Church, Woburn.

An audience of good size remained through the entire program and expressed its appreciation and pleasure in sustained applause. Of especial interest was the selection, "The Fairy Orchestra" by Paldi in which the Misses Anna Smith, Eleanor Frances, Doris Heald, Edith Patterson, Priscilla Richardson, Evelyn Lord and Lester Goldstein imitated with complete success the instruments of an abridged orchestral group. There were numbers played upon two pianos for both four and eight hands and the finale, "In the Procession" by Hewitt was brilliantly played upon two pianos by 16 hands, showing painstaking drilling.

The program was of especial worth, interpretive remarks about several of the selections being made by Mrs. Lewis who was presented with a handsome bouquet of pinks and Marguerites. Mrs. Lewis also announced that the Misses Loraine Hamm and Betty Bezanson had missed no lessons for two years, that for three years Miss Eleanor McEleney had had a perfect record, that Miss Priscilla Richardson and Lester Goldstein had not missed for four years and that Miss Dorothy Harrington had not been absent for eight years. Miss Priscilla Frost and Miss Dorothy Collins were playing in their eleventh June recital.

The guest performer for the evening was Mrs. Patterson who played in a duet with her daughter, Miss Edith Patterson. Assisting with readings was Miss Florence Anguish.

The accident occurred when Mr. McHugh lost control of his Ford sedan while turning from Grove street onto Fenwick road the machine turning over on its side. Phillip O'Brien of 8 Chapin court and Thomas Dolan of 78 Westland avenue, Lynn, took McHugh to the Winchester Hospital where he was treated by Dr. M. D. You can't look at a tire and tell how far it will run

YOU CAN'T SEE a tire carcass because it is covered by the tread. Yet the way this carcass is built tells how far the tire will run.

Dunlop has had 39 years to learn all the hidden points where tires wear. Dunlop carcasses are built from the best long fibre cotton, spun in Dunlop's own mills into the famous Dunlop cable-twist cord.

These cords are elastic, so they give and take as your tire runs: strong, so they resist constant load and pounding. They build the best possible foundation for the Dunlop tread—the toughest rubber development known.

Thus Dunlop's extra years of experience build added value into every vital tire-part. That is why, not one Dunlop—but every Dunlop—gives you more service than you can reasonably expect.

We recommend that you put Dunlops on your car

ST. MARY'S WON AND LOST

Tansey Pitched No Hit Game Against The Midgets—Melrose City Club Took Close Game

Francis Tansey, erstwhile high school southpaw in the days when championships were drifting to Winchester and lately catcher on the Eastern Conference Seminary team at Bucksport, Me., once more ascended the dizzy heights aspired to by all hurlers and turned in a no-hit, no-run game against the strong Highland Midgets of Woburn on the afternoon of the holiday before a good sized crowd on Manchester Field. The victory was doubly sweet in that it was these same Midgets, playing behind their star pitcher, "Kiko" Weafer, who mussed up the baseball end of St. Mary's Kelly Day last fall and naturally the locals have been smarting to square accounts.

There was nothing to the holiday matinee but Tansey, the sturdy little forkhander holding the Midgets in the hollow of his hand. In only 4 of the nine frames were they able to get a man to first. Weafer was on the hill for Woburn and the hefty veteran pitched good enough ball to win against anything but perfect hurling. Tansey was accorded much the better support, Weafer's mates tossing in 7 miscues behind his benders. There were some nifty fielding plays turned in. In the 6th "Bobby" Burns, diminutive visiting shortstop robbed Kelley of a sure hit when he took his Texas leaguer in short center field with his back to the plate. "Tom" Dolan hacked away up against the running track to take Weafer's hoist in the 3rd, saving a run, while Desmond ran into the first base crowd in the 4th to take "Jomma" Dolan's foul fly.

It was a great game to watch and the crowd went home happy. No hit, no run performances are few and far between.

St. Mary's scored in the first with two gone. Flaherty singled sharply to left and went all the way around to 3rd on Kelley's hit over second. "Flats" counted when he and "Mex" pulled off a nifty double steal. Melly rolled to Weafer.

Flaherty scored the second run in the third, after getting a life when McManus failed to field his hopper cleanly. "Mex" Kelley hit one on the nose to center field for a couple of sacks and "Flats" had ample time to trot across the platter.

This ended the scoring but St. Mary's constantly threatened and three times had 3rd base tennanted with only one away. In the 8th the bases were filled with only one out but sterling pitching by Weafer kept the platter clean.

Saturday afternoon found the snappy Melrose City Club carrying too many guns for the locals, St. Mary's being on the short end of a 1 to 3 counting.

Mark Kelley was working for Winchester and was found for 8 bingles, the five errors turned in by St. Mary's inner defense counting very much against him.

Harris, the visiting pitcher, was very effective with the exception of Frank Melly held the local bats very firmly in check. He was backed by a sharp fielding outfit that simply took everything before and after the fateful 4th frame, in which St. Mary's scored all their runs.

With one out Flaherty banged a hit over Morton's head and stole second. O'Donnell rapped to Morton and the latter's throw was in the dirt in an attempt to head off "Flats" at 3rd. T. Dolan grounded to Delano and Flaherty scored on the latter's poor peg to first, O'Donnell making third and Dolan second. In an attempt to catch the latter off second, Semple pegged to Morton and when O'Donnell faked a start for home Morton threw past Delano allowing Spike to tally. Tom Dolan pulled up at 3rd from where he counted on Melly's single to right.

Melrose scored in the 3rd. With one out Morton singled but was forced at second, Dolan to Flaherty, on Delano's grounder. The latter went to third on Marshall's single to right and scored when no one covered second after Kelley had intercepted Tansey's heave and threw to catch the batter trying to stretch his hit.

Three singles by Woertner, Morton and Delano, coupled with Flaherty's error gave the visitors their other 3 tallies in the 5th. A sweet catch by "Lavin'" McNeil of Marshall's great bid for a homer prevented further damage.

St. Mary's had a great chance to tie in the 9th when "Tom" Dolan singled with no one out. On an attempted sacrifice Ambrose failed to connect and Dolan was run down between bases, a ringing single by Melly going for nothing later in the frame.

CONGREGATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL HELD PICNIC

About 100 happy youngsters left Winchester in good season on the holiday morning bound for Riverhurst on the Concord river in Billerica and the annual picnic of the Sunday School of the First Congregational Church. A big motor bus and several private automobiles carried the party which left the church at 10:30, arriving at Riverhurst shortly after 11.

Swimming monopolized the morning program, the youngsters taking to the water upon arrival and remaining until the dinner gong was sounded at noon.

Following luncheon the first event was the baseball game between Mr. Kenneth Caldwell's class of boys and a picked group of opponents. It was impossible to keep much of any track of the various lineups flung into the battle in an effort to bring about victory, but if there was anyone feature of the game which stood out above all others it was the pitching of little "Billy" Gilpatric for the Caldwell class, the members of which were finally successful by the close score of 5—3.

After the ball game came the inevitable field sports without which no outing can be considered anywhere nearly complete. Rev. Lisle Burroughs, who was in general charge of the picnic, was assisted in running off a fine set of games by Edward Grosvenor, Kenneth Caldwell, Dr. William H. Gilpatrie and Wayne Thompson.

Just as sides were being chosen for a second game of baseball the wailing of a fire siren attracted everyone's attention and a shiney red chief's car was seen to roll swiftly up to the pavilion at the river. Hastily the crowd repaired thither to find a group of four men working over the prostrate form of Roberta Healey, 13 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Warren R. Healey of Winthrop street. Dr. William Semple of Somerville, who happened to be at Riverhurst with another picnic party, was in charge of the resuscitation and after considerable difficulty the girl was brought back to semi-consciousness without the use of the pulmotor which the firemen had hastily brought to the picnic grounds in response to a phone call for assistance.

The story was quickly told. Miss Healey with Gladys Mouradian, 16, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Mouradian of Crescent road, had left the picnic party and returned to the river to swim. The girls were swimming at a point about 25 feet off shore and near a raft when the former was siezed with cramps. Seizing Miss Mouradian in her struggles Miss Healey sank, dragging her friend with her. The attention of Albert Cutter, another of the picnicers who was swimming nearby, was drawn to the girls and he quickly went to their assistance. He was finally able to get a grip upon Miss Mouradian and pluckily hung onto her until he was successful in getting her to the raft.

Meanwhile Wayne B. Thompson of Crescent road, one of the Sunday School teachers, had arrived at the beach and was told that Miss Healey had sunk in the river. Believing her under the raft, Mr. Thompson plunged into the water fully clothed and dove four times beneath and near the raft before he recovered the girl in seven feet of water.

After bringing the unconscious girl ashore Mr. Thompson assisted in the work of resuscitation which was directed by Dr. Semple. Fortunate indeed it was that Mr. Thompson was so strong a swimmer; fortunate it was that the physician was ready to do just the right thing, for Miss Healey had been under water about six minutes when brought to the surface.

As soon as the girl's breathing became discernable she was wrapped in blankets and taken in the Billerica Fire Chief's car, accompanied by Rev. Lisle Burroughs, to the Winchester Hospital. The trip was not without incident since the fire apparatus broke down in Lexington, directly in front of the Police Headquarters there. A quick change to the police ambulance was effected and the journey continued without mishap.

At the hospital after treatment Miss Healey was pronounced out of danger and later in the evening was removed to her home.

The incident reflects much credit upon Mr. Thompson and Albert Cutter and but for their courage and promptness the picnicers might have returned to town, a saddened party.

Miss Marjorie Almira Robinson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert C. Robinson of 157 Forest street and Stewart Rudyard Lake of Belmont were married at 8 o'clock Monday evening in the First Congregational Church by the pastor, Rev. Howard J. Chidley. The simple ceremony was attended only by the families of the young couple and a few intimate friends.

The bride wore a gown of powder blue georgette with gray picture hat. Her attendant, Miss Alice Webster of Winchester, wore pink georgette with a picture hat of black. Mr. Lake had for his best man Carl Krager of Belmont.

Following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Lake left upon an auto honeymoon trip through Maine. Upon their return they will make their home in Cambridge where the groom is engaged in the radio business.

The bride is a graduate of the Winchester High School in the class of 1922 and was graduated from the Bryant and Stratton Secretarial School. She is a member of the Eu Ka Sorority. Mr. Lake is a graduate of Belmont High School and for the past few years has made an intensive study of radio.

HALWARTZ NEW BASEBALL CAPTAIN

At a recent meeting of the letter men in baseball at the Winchester High School Ray Halwartz was elected to captain the nine next season. Halwartz is a member of the junior class and has been an all around athlete, having made insignia in football, baseball and basketball. During the past season he has played at third base and has been one of the dependables throughout a disastrous season. He is a consistent fielder and a hard hitter, though batting in very hard luck this year. With many of this year's team available next year he should lead a much more successful club.

At [illegible] of Winchester [illegible] Catholic Women's Guild last Thursday evening, the chief topic for discussion was the children's vacation house at Sunset Point, Nantasket. All members are aware of the wonderful work carried on here where many little ones receive the pleasures all little one's enjoy and which would otherwise be kept from these little ones during the weeks the Guild lends a hand.

The last very successful party was given by V. R. Anna DeCourcey at her home on Westley street last Monday evening. The next will be under the direction of [illegible] Davidson at her home in West Medford, date to be announced later. Very gratifying reports were read by Secretary Alice Fitzgerald and V. R. Anna DeCourcey on the last two house parties which enabled us to contribute generously to the children's vacation fund.

Following our regular business meeting the charitable committee met and under the direction of Chairman T. V. Kane entered into plans for a very energetic and promising program for their work.

The next regular meeting will be held Thursday evening, Sept. 8, in K. of C. Hall.

HOLIDAY UNEVENTFUL

Fine Weather Helped Stay-at-Homes to Enjoy 17th

The 17th in Winchester proved quiet and on the whole uneventful, many taking advantage of the closing of the grade school to make an early start for seashore, mountains or farm. A large number were out of town for the week-end.

Those who remained at home were greatly aided in their enjoyment of the day by fine weather with blue skies and cooling breezes.

No formal program of events was attempted here but there was plenty going on throughout the town for those interested. The usual golf tournaments were staged at the country club, medal play handicaps in the morning and mixed foursomes in the afternoon. There was also tennis on the club courts, at Palmer street and on the courts of the Benedict Tennis Club on Governors avenue. Many took advantage of the splendid morning to attend the big celebration at Charlestown.

In the afternoon the big event was the ball game on Manchester Field in which St. Mary's B. B. C. of Winchester defeated the Highland Midgets of Woburn, aided materially by a no-hit, no-run pitching performance by Francis Tansey. Those interested in water sports attended the regatta staged at the Winchester Boat Club, the events being contested by members of the local club and of the Omicron Delta Canoe Club which makes its headquarters on the Charles River at Waltham. Winchester captured the meet by a point and a half, scoring 24½ points to 23 for its opponents.

At police headquarters everything was serene, not an arrest being reported during the day or night before. At 9 o'clock on the last named a complaint was received about boys setting a bonfire in the rear of Water street but officer James Farrell who went to investigate discovered nothing alarming. One automobile accident was reported the night before, Alice Twombley, four-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer J. Twombly of 17 Stevens street, having been knocked down by a machine on Mt. Vernon street. The little girl was taken to her home and treated by Dr. D. F. Dennett. She was reported as not seriously hurt.

On the afternoon of the holiday at 3:20 o'clock a Chevrolet sedan, owned and operated by Phillip Schneider of Park street, North Reading, and a Hudson sedan, owned and driven by Hiram J. Potter of 283 St Paul street, Brookline, were in collision at the junction of Washington street and Park avenue. The Chevrolet was going south on Washington street while the Hudson was making a right turn into Park avenue. Both machines were damaged and one of the occupants of the Chevrolet, Ida Wise, sustained a cut on one knee.

The only other mishap reported during the day in Winchester was that which occurred when one of the children of Mr. William Guy of 91 Swanton street was bitten by a dog, owned by one of the nearby householders. The dog was later disposed of.

Many children were out of town during the day, Sunday School picnics staged by both the Methodist and First Congregational Churches taking the kiddies to Norumbega and Riverhurst respectively.

The holiday's only alarm of fire sounded at 8:10 p. m. for a blaze in the second story of the house at 24 Shepard court occupied by John McElhiney. The damage was slight.

GRANADA THEATRE, MALDEN

"High Hat," with Ben Lyon and Mary Brian as the stars, is the photoplay feature the beautiful Granada Theatre in Malden is presenting today and Saturday. "High Hat," is a burlesque on movie conditions as found in Hollywood. The picture is all comedy and offers the spectator an insight in the making of pictures. Many things which have puzzled the average picture fan are disclosed in this merry movie mix-up. Ben Lyon stands ace high with the ladies and has never had a better role than the lazy extra who becomes a star through the insistence of his sweetheart, who, in this case, is Mary Brian. The vaudeville bill now on tap is headed by the Jackson Troupe, renowned artists, who have played all over the world. Lydell and Mason, a comedy team, presenting "How Do We Get Away With It," is another big act for today and Saturday. This pair have a method of getting laughs which is quite original. John Regay and Company, is a pretentious song and dance offering is the third headliner. The other two acts are Uncle Jim McCree and his daughter and Lambert Brothers, musicians, presenting a novelty entitled "Plunketers."

Florence Vidor, one of the most accomplished actresses appearing before the camera, will be offered at the Granada for three days starting next Monday in "Afraid to Love." Clive Brook is the star's leading man in this story which has for its setting the fashionable smart places of Paris and London.

"Afraid to Love" is a riotous comedy concerning a beautiful girl who made herself up as a dowd and married a man to save him from a scheming adventuress. A scrambled honeymoon, quite the funniest ever shown, adds to the fun of the production. Florence Vidor is really beautiful in the leading role and receives fine support from the assisting company which is headed by Clive Brook. The usual five act program of vaudeville will also be presented the first three days of next week.

WINCHESTER BOAT CLUB

A dual meet was held on Mystic Lake, on the holiday, June 17, between the Omricon Delta Canoe Association of Waltham and the Winchester Boat Club canoeists. Weather conditions were ideal for spectators and participants alike, and throughout the afternoon the clubhouse veranda was filled with club members who were much interested in watching the finishes of the various events.

The Winchester Club won the most number of events throughout the meet, though most of the races were closely contested and it was not until the final event that the winning club could be decided upon. The visitors proved to be superior in the individual races, while Winchester showed greater strength in the team races. The event proving to be the most closely contested was the tandem single blades race. In this the Omricon Deltas took both first and second places, but both of the Winchester boats finished less than a half boat length behind the winner.

The one-half mile straight-away races, were separated by a number of amusing novelty events and one special race was run for the girls, namely, the single-singles, one-eighth mile in canvas canoes. In this, Miss Mary Brown proved herself to be an expert canoeist, she passed the finishing line one length ahead of Miss Wilson, with her sister Miss Leslie Brown closely following in third place.

John Pratt, with his cousin Kenneth paddling, won the tilting tournament. There were four teams in this event.

The summary of events is as follows:

SERVICE THAT NAPOLEON ENJOYED MODERNIZED

In the hey day of his power Napoleon enjoyed the best of personal services of every kind.

Although he arose at any time between 4 a. m. and noon his cook always had a freshly cooked duck, hot off the spit, ready for his breakfast at any hour.

One day he asked his cook how he managed to anticipate his breakfast hour so accurately.

"Well Sir," he said, "I put a duck on the fire at 4 a. m., and another one on every fifteen minutes until you appear, so there is always one just cooked."

Self-action water heaters give you just the same kind of service that Napoleon enjoyed. Water is kept hot for you at any hour of the day or night. Unlike the ducks, the heat is not wasted, but is conserved by efficient, approved equipment.

NAMED NEW RECTOR OF EPIPHANY

Rev. Truman Hemingway to Succeed Rev. Allan Evans

Rev. Truman Hemingway, until recently Chaplain of St. George's School in Newport, R. I., is to become rector of the Church of the Epiphany, announcement to this effect having been made at the morning service last Sunday.

Rev. Mr. Hemingway is a former ranchman from Calgary, a graduate of the Theological School in Cambridge and an expert in boys' work, until recently chaplain at a boys' school.

He is a grandson of Rev. Dr. Harwood, for many years rector of Trinity Church, New Haven, Conn., one of the great Episcopal clergymen of his time. After studying a year or two at Harvard College, he went out to Calgary, Alberta, where he established a large cattle ranch. The venture was successful and he spent between five and six years there.

During this time, he did much reading along various lines, eventually along that of religion, and the conviction gradually formed that he should devote himself to the ministry. He returned to Boston and studied for three years at the Episcopal Theological School, receiving his degree of bachelor of divinity in 1922.

According to Rev. Dr. Max Kellner, a member of the faculty of this school Rev. Mr. Hemingway began his theological studies under a severe handicap, not having completed the four years' academic work which usually precedes them.

He was not a brilliant student at first but he was a hard worker. He gradually caught up with his class and was graduated on a level with his fellow students, meeting the high standard set by this school. Rev. Dr. Kellner said, "He has a charming personality and great magnetism."

Throughout his course he was interested in boys' work, and after his graduation from the theological school, he devoted his time to this aspect of church work. For two years he was assistant at Grace Church, Providence, R. I., to Rev. Philemon R. Sturges, now dean of the Cathedral Church of St. Paul.

He left that church in Providence to become chaplain of St. George's School in Newport, where he has remained until called to Winchester.

He also acted as rector of St. Columba's Church, a small parish not far from the school, in Middletown, R. I.

While a ranchman he married and now has four children.

He paid his first preaching visit to Boston less than two weeks ago, June 12, at the evening service in the Cathedral Church of St. Paul.

At the Church of the Epiphany, Rev. Mr. Hemingway succeeds Rev. Allan Evans, Jr., who resigned last April to become rector of Trinity Church, Rockaway, L. I. He will come here late in August to prepare for the work in his new parish.

ST. MARY'S HELD GARDEN PARTY

The annual garden party under the auspices of St. Mary's Parish was held on last Saturday afternoon and evening on the parochial grounds which were attractively decorated for the occasion and made gay with colored lights. There were large attendances at both afternoon and evening parties with an estimated gathering of 1500 in the evening.

Gaily bedecked booths dispensed refreshments and merchandise under the direction of committees of parishoners with the Pastor, Rev. Fr. Nathaniel J. Following is the list of committees to which is added the name of Mrs. M. C. Ambrose who was in charge of the tickets:

W. C. T. U. NOTES

Was There Any Drinking in the Homes Before Prohibition

One easy answer to the person who says there was no home drinking before prohibition is to point at the homes that were built with wine cellars. If there was no drinking, why the wine cellars? An enormous amount of wine and liquor was sold by grocers, department stores, and mail order houses for home consumption; and in the early years of the present century the liquor trade was working on a campaign of publicity for a wider practice of drinking in the family circle. Who doesn't remember the fake "malt whisky" sold to thousands of homes on the false assertion that it was good for nearly every ailment, including the ills of nervous children. The brewers put on a nation-wide campaign to induce mothers and children to use beer instead of milk; the Kansas City Journal brought to light the fact that home drinking was so common that many school children showed the effects of an alcoholic diet; and Edward Bok, editor of the Ladies' Home Journal, was outspoken in his condemnation of the prevalence of drinking at home.

Just prior to prohibition 29 well-known large stores in Chicago, including a department store and two nationally known mail order houses, were selling millions of dollars worth of liquor to the homes. Chicago families were spending an average of $91 a year for liquor and E. W. Stevens, a well-known grocer, arranged a store window to show the amount of food a family could buy with its booze money.

In these days the cities seemed to be run entirely by the saloons, and the temperance forces had all they could do to get the authorities to make the rum shops close on Sundays—in accordance with the law, which the liquor interests have never obeyed.

The local W. C. T. U. will hold their annual outing on the grounds adjoining the home of Mrs. Jennie Tolman, 607 Washington street, on Thursday, June 30, from 11 o'clock until 4, basket lunch.

An urgent appeal has come to us from the State superintendent of prison work, asking that we collect used books for the use of the prisoners at Charlestown. Will the members and friends of the Union please bring or send books to Mrs. Tolman on or before June 29.

FAIRMOUNT PARK

Situated on the West Side of Winchester off of Cambridge Street nearly opposite Calumet Road. A tract of 20 lots of land varying in size from 7000 to 12,000 square feet in area. Every lot affords a beautiful panoramic view of the most attractive part of the town. In addition to the four houses already erected thereon, the Fairmount Associates have purchased five uncompleted houses adjoining their property at a mortgagees sale. This in order not only to conserve the high type of construction originally planned for this tract, but more particularly to control the disposition of these houses, in order to maintain the high class neighborhood to which we set out to create. These aforesaid five houses are nearing completion and will be offered to satisfactory parties at reasonable prices and possibly one or two of these houses may be obtained for rent.
